A Good Example

"I am a good example," writes Mrs. R. L. Bell, of McAlester, Okla., "of what Cardui will do for suffering women.

"I suffered with my head and back, for over six years, and although I tried everything, I never could get anything to do me any good, until I began to take Cardui.

"Cardui has surely helped me and built me up and I am so thankful that I have found something that will do me good. I feel so much stronger and better than I have in a long time."

It is well to make up your mind before you are sick what medicine you will take when you are sick.

Fracas at Maplesville.

On Monday a telephone message from Maplesville summoned Sheriff Cartee to that place.

The message merely stated that a man had been struck upon the head by another man, but did not give farther particulars.

Deputy Sheriff Curlee was despatched with the dogs, and returned to Clanton with Columbus Whatley, the man who was struck, and was wanted on another charge and he was lodged in jail.

Republican Executive Committee Meeting.

The Executive Committe of the Republican party of Chilton county met at the court house at Clanton on Saturday with a full attendance. J. Osmond Middleton, chairman, and Dudley Collins, secretary.

A mass meeting was called for Monday, June 27, 1910, to be held at Thorsby, for the purpose of electing delegates to the District convention and to the State convention, and for other business as may properly come before the meeting.

Must Keep Promises for High Schools.

In an opinion to the State Superintendent of Education, Attorney General Garber has ruled that under the laws of the State, the towns, promising aid and buildings as an inducement for the location of the county high school, must pay what they have agreed to pay.

It is said that the town of Reform had failed to meet its word in the promises made in securing the high school. According to the ruling of the Attorney General the State of Alabama can enter suit against the citizens of Reform to require them to comply with their contract.

In regard to the Reform question, State Superintendent of Education, H. C. Gunnels asked the Attorney General the following questions:

"Has the County Board of Education the authority to compel by law the payment of the supplement promised by the town of Reform for the support of the high school? Also: Is the County Board of Education authorized by law to compel the people of Reform to comply with their contract with the High School Commission to erect a building and equipment—to cost not less than $12,000 with waterworks and sewerage system."

The Attorney General also holds that if the town of Reform has made an appropriation for this purpose that a proceeding to enforce the payment thereof should be instituted in the name of Alabama.

Probate Judge Must Report Vital Statistics.

As the result of the failure of certain Probate Judges to make reports on vital statistics and other matters, on request of the State Health Officer Dr. W. H. Sanders, head of this department, has been informed by Attorney General Garber that these judges must obey his orders.

According to the opinion handed down by General Garber, under Section 7457 of the code, the Judge of Probate who fails to furnish such reports required are subject, on conviction, to a fine of not more than $200, in addition to removal from office.

The Size of Antarctica.

It is a somewhat curious fact, if it is a fact, that the last of the terrestrial continents to be explored if the largest mass of raised land in the world. The concentration of attention upon the south pole since Commander Peary landed the other end of our axis makes it highly probable that the antarctic antipode will soon be dangling from some explorer's belt. Incidentally, the south polar continent will be opened, if not to the settler, at least to the mapmaker. We already know something of its fringes at a few points, and Lieutenant Shackleton pushed into it south of Mounts Erebus and Terror for several hundred miles, but the greater portion of its surface is still terra incognita.—Collier's.

Editor Banner:—Please give me a small space in the dear old Banner to say a few words, as it has been some time since I have written any news from this place.

Health of this town is very good at this time. We are proud to say that Mr. J. T. Anderson is improving slowly from his fall; hope to see him out again soon.

The ice cream supper given by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jones was greatly enjoyed by a large attendance.

Farmers are getting behind with their little crops on account of so much rain; guess they will have plenty of grass to battle. So I will close for this time, wishing the Banner and its many readers much success.

FORTUNE IN SWIMMING HOLE

California Lawyer Buys Property for Sentimental Reasons and It Increases in Value.

San Francisco.—George A. Knight, attorney and political orator, is ahead just $45,000 through a romance cherished since his boyhood days.

When a little boy, Mr. Knight learned to swim at a dock on the Eureka water front.

As he grew up, became an attorney and moved to San Francisco he often thought of the spot and wondered if he would ever be successful enough to own it. About five years ago his ambitions were realized. The property at that time was owned by the well known capitalist of Eureka, Thomas Baer.

Mr. Knight one day approached Baer and asked if he would sell the property. Baer replied he would sell it for $27,000, to which price Knight agreed. Within a month from that time the attorney was owner of the wharf and water front site, 32x200 feet in size.

Eureka property increased rapidly in value, and a representative of the Salem Flour Milling company of Oregon called on Mr. Knight and offered him $72,000 for the property.

"I thought if the property was worth that now," said Mr. Knight; "it would be worth a great deal more when the railroad is completed, and I have turned down the offer. Yet I feel pretty proud of my investment and never would have thought of buying the property unless I had learned to swim on the site.

When a Bale to the Acre is the Rule

The average cotton crop of the whole Cotton Belt is less than two hundred pounds of lint per acre, a good deal less. And yet, when we know that all over the South there are here and there men who seldom fail to make five hundred pounds, and a smaller number who make more than this, and now and then one who makes a thousand pounds, it is evident that to make this low average there must be many who are growing cotton at an actual loss, for 200 pounds hardly pays more than the cost of growing it. In fact, it does not pay the cost of those who are carried by a merchant. If every farmer in the Cotton Belt made a bale an acre, it would not take half the area to make the usual crop, and the remaining acres could be growing something to feed the land or the cattle, and helping to improve the land so that one fourth of the area now planted would make the crop.

I may not live to see it, but the time is coming when a Southern farmer will be ashamed of a crop of half a bale an acre, and will be disappointed at less than a bale. The leaven is working, and as the young men come to take charge of affairs, there is going to be a general breaking away from old methods.—W. F. Massey, in Starkville (Miss.) Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

She Walks in Beauty.

She walks in beauty like the night, as some romantic singer said; her eyes give forth a starry light, her lips are of a cherry red; across the floor she seems to float; she seems to me beyond compare a being perfect—till I note the way she has done up her hair. She must have toiled through half a day to build that large, unwieldy mass; she must have used a bale of hay, and strips of tin, and wire of brass; her sisters must have helped to braid, her mother wrought and tinkered there, and butler, cook and chambermaid all helped to wrestle with her hair. And after all, the grinding toil and all the braiding and the fuss, the one effect is just to spoil her beauty and make people cuss. She walks in beauty like the night where nights are most serenely fair; but, Julius Caesar! she's a sight, when she's got on her Sunday hair!—London Tit-Bits.

(Communicated)

Clanton, Ala., June 6, 1910.
Editor Banner:—I have noticed several articles in the papers of late about Judge Reynolds, and, as I have always believed in fair play, I ask that you give me space for this letter.

I have known Judge Reynolds for many years—knew him long before he was elected Probate Judge. I have been frequently entertained at his home, and I am glad to say to the people of Chilton county that I never knew a more honorable gentleman; he is cordial and social in his relations, and the latch string hangs on the outside of his door to all who are worthy to enter. He is not stuck up, and the office of Probate Judge has not changed him. I have been in and on the Court House since Judge Reynolds went into office and I feel that I can safely say that he is the best Probate Judge Chilton county has ever had. He treats the rich and the poor alike and has no pets, and, while I have differed with him in politics, I consider him honest and sincere in his convictions. He has not flopped from one side to the other to get office; he has fought fearlessly for his convictions.

I am sorry of such attacks as are being made on him by Mr. Mahan and others, but I am sure that they will not hurt him. I know of a number of good men who were against him, who say they intend to support him now.

I am familiar with the facts of the Littleton case and I know that Judge Reynolds was not in the least to blame; in fact I consider that Judge Reynolds did Mr. Littleton a favor in getting the fine remitted and thereby saving him the sum of $20.00. Mr. Mahan seeks to create the impression that Judge Reynolds, intentionally and mercilessly persecuted Mr. Littleton. Probably Mr. Mahan does not know that the grand jury of this county made a thorough investigation of this case and returned an indictment against Mr. Littleton, charging him with disturbing religious worship and that without ever having Judge Reynolds before the grand jury as a witness.

Judge Reynolds did not know Mr. Littleton and could have no motive in the world for doing him an injustice; and men do not persecute without a cause. However, if "Orphan Boy," as friend Mahan delights to call him, was injured and was caused to pay out the sum of $65.00 entirely by Judge Reynolds, and if its payment was wrong, why in the name of common sense didn't "Orphan Boy" take advantage of the new trial which Judge Reynolds secured for him, and have his innocence and character vindicated at the next term of Circuit Court by a jury of his peers? It is a well known fact that "Orphan Boy" was represented and defended at by a lawyer of fifteen or twenty years experience in such cases, and after they had consulted together, they evidently decided that the verdict of the jury was right, and that the best thing "Orphan Boy" could do would be to settle up.

It looks like there is a clique or organization in Clanton, the purpose of which it is to vilify Judge Reynolds and try to bring about his defeat. They say he ought not to be elected Probate Judge because he voted for the amendment. Now men, stop and think what that means. It means taking away from a citizen the right and privilege of voting his honest convictions. Judge Reynolds has always stood for sobriety and morality and his life, on the liquor question has always been consistent. What has got the matter with some people, anyhow? They seem to think that everything and everybody must be measured and weighed by the amendment question. Every sensible man knows that the amendment is not an issue now, and whenever I hear of a candidate saying that he ought to be elected to office because he voted for or against the amendment, it strikes me that he has no merit in his case, no claims on his party, and that he is simply trying to get into office by playing upon the prejudices of the people. It is my opinion that such a man would make a very poor officer.

I ask the people of Chilton county if Judge Reynolds is not making a clean campaign? Have you ever seen one word from him against Mr. Smith? Have any of Judge Reynolds' supporters written letters to the papers at which Mr. Smith could take exception? On the other hand, have you seen a single letter from one of Mr. Smith's friends that did not make a personal attack upon Judge Reynolds? Why do not Smith's friends write up his record and speak of what he has done? If their candidate is so strong and clean and fearless, why do not they talk about it some?

Now my friends, I had no motive whatever in writing this letter except to put things just as I see them. I have no hard feelings toward any candidate, but, as I said at the outset, I believe in fair play. Why do they not take up Judge Reynolds administration as a whole and discuss it and compare it with that of the Probate Judges prior to this time? I do not hesitate to say that Reynolds has made the best Probate Judge the county has ever had, and that he has done more for Chilton county than any other man who has filled that office. I feel that the people of Chilton county, regardless of party, who believe in progress and the upbuilding of the county, should stand by him in this fight. I am a Democrat, but I am going to support Judge Reynolds with all my heart and I believe that he is going to be elected Probate Judge this time, by the largest majority ever given a candidate in this county. I believe his defeat will be a great loss to the county. With best wishes for all, I am, Joseph W. Cox.

CLANTON, ALA.

The Metamorphosis

By Stacy E. Baker

(Copyright, 1909 by Associated Literary Press.)

It was all owing to the inheritance.

Miss Angelina Dobbins, spinster, would have been resigned to a placid life-existence in Hubbletown—corkscrew curls, sallow complexion, silly simper and all—had not Fortune tipped her brimming horn and given unto the maiden lady both money and a thrilly little half-frightened wish to be revenged upon a certain person.

Miss Angelina was 40 years of age when crusty Reuben Duderfield, uncle on the maternal side, passed on, leaving to his sole relative an accumulation of long accumulated dollars.

The obsequies over, the heiress placed a good man on the farm and went back to her home town to wrestle with girlish ideas of vengeance she had long thought hidden away in the crypt of forgotten things.

And so it was that the natives of Hubbletown awoke one blustering morning to find the angular Miss Dobbins a memory of yesterday. Nor had the departed left one clue behind to tell of her whereabouts.

Hubbletown sat up and took notice. It was a nine days' wonder, a startling epoch in the staid history of the town. For a brief period there was talk of abduction, elopement—here rumor again touched upon the one romance in the woman's life—and then—Hubbletown stretched its arms, yawned and forgot.

As for Miss Angelina, she was safe in New York. Also, a wonderful metamorphosis had begun. Miss Angelina, inconsistent changeling, was emerging from the chrysalis of time-mellowed convention to—girlhood!

The necromancers along Broadway—the hair dressers, the massage artists, the manicurists—and the dressmakers and the wonderful department stores were accomplishing miracles.

From corkscrew curls and a severe rope of hair capped with a shell comb, Miss Angelina's chestnut tresses were transformed to modish waves, and the sallowness was steamed from the well-shaped forehead and face. The lady's blue eyes took on a vivacious sparkle under the stimulus of the change, and she walked with the elastic step and springy stride of the woman of purpose.

Know, then, that Miss Angelina had a purpose.

Years ago, when the heiress was a diffident damsel, a man had come into her life, a wonderful man, Angelina had thought in the innocence of her youthful heart, and she had listened to his words of love.

Bogart was a summer sojourner, a youth from the city, sent by his father to Hubbletown to be kept there until he could forget an affection for a woman that did not appeal to the elder Bogart. It had been an easy matter to forget, and the susceptible heart of Tommy had laid its message before the shrine of this new love.

All of which proves the limitations of the sincere-for-the-moment youth who asked Miss Angelina to marry him, and went confidently home to arrange matters with the pater.

"You will wait for me, dearest?" asked T. Bogart gently, preliminary to starting for the home-bound train.

"Forever, if necessary," the girl had answered, and with a chaste kiss on her brow the fickle Thomas had hied away—and out of the life of the maiden.

But if Bogart was inconstant, Miss Angelina was not. Letterless months made it appear that she was to remain true for all time to her promise.

After ten years of silent constancy it came to Miss Angelina, through some vagrant channels, that the faithless one had again succumbed, upon his return to his father's home, to his first love.

Her old maid manners had been time's gift to her during the years that followed, and at 42 she was a fine specimen of spinster.

Miss Angelina's latent bloom, awakened by the beauty culture clan in little old New York, was a revelation, even to themselves.

"Why, Miss Dobbins," enthused that lady's masseuse, "you look positively girlish. Your complexion is as pink and white as a year-old babe's, and you have better expression, and—er—control of language than when you first arrived."

Three months before this Miss Angelina would have answered with an inane simper. Now she spoke calmly. "I am giving the subject of beauty culture conscientious study—for a purpose. You see I have been an old maid so long that it has palled on me."

By August the lady from Hubbletown could have passed through the streets of her native village incognito. Her cheeks were as pale and pink-tinted as a young girl's. The angular lines had become graceful curves. Miss Angelina was now the pretty Miss Dobbins.

Forty years do not sit heavily on the head of the knowing woman. It occurred to the sojourner from Hubbletown as she gazed into her mirror that she must have suddenly found the secret of perpetual youth.

"Now," ruminated Miss Dobbins, as she critically summed up her alluring likeness, "I believe—I actually believe—that I am equipped for the fray." And thereafter New York knew her not.

It was a dainty little woman in weeds whom Mrs. Albert Harding introduced to the best society of the thriving city of Albantown. Susceptible youth and gay widowers fell victims to her charms. In this group the popular newcomer noticed appreciatively one Thomas Bogart, recently bereaved, and rather pudgy and ridiculous.

There were others. Mr. Bogart's fat little characteriess face had good reason to furrow deep lines of worriment. The dapper Albert Kalm, some years younger, and financial magnate of Albantown, was a rival.

But, in spite of this, the gods seemed kind. Mrs. Case seemed to favor his suit, and this was well, because it was rumored that the sprightly widow had money.

On an evening during which Bogart had been unusually favored and allowed to escort the widow home from the opera, his ardor suddenly got the better of him.

"Mrs. Case," he began, when they had arrived at the home of the widow's friend, "I have something serious to say to you."

"What is it—Thomas?" A slow flush lighted the pale face of the fascinating widow. Bogart's eyes rested lingeringly upon her, and his heart thumped joyously.

"I—I—Mrs. Case—er—Margaret," he burst out desperately. "I—I love you. Can you not see it in my every action? My heart is your's. Will you marry me?"

"Do you really love me—Thomas?" she asked gently.

"I swear it," responded T. Bogart, convincingly.

"How am I to know?" insisted the widow, coquettishly. "Is not some other one waiting disconsolate, some place, for you?"

"How can you think it?" reproached Bogart.

"I don't," acknowledged the widow, somewhat curtly. "Really, Tommy, I'm sure there isn't. And I will marry you, too, only—only I must go home and arrange things. Then I will come back. Will you be true?"

"Forever, if necessary," replied the jubilant T. Bogart. He attempted to kiss her, but she repulsed him, bidding him wait.

And he waited.

The next day the widow left for her home, nor did the infatuated lover receive word from her. Months went by. He remembered that he did not know where she lived. He asked Mrs. Harding, but she refused the information, bidding him wait.

Nor did he notice, in his perturbed state, the absence of Albert Kalm. Finally this letter came to him:

"You need wait no longer. Have decided that you won't do. Go back to the girl you left in Hubbletown. Maybe she wants you. I don't.

"MRS. ALBERT KALM."

"What fiends some women are," whimpered Thomas Bogart, "and I wonder how she heard of Angelina—er—what's her name?"

This Wooing Didn't Win.

In a wild west exhibition at Coney Island two years ago one of the features of the performance was the lassooing of a girl on horseback by a man who dashed after her also on horse. The man fell in love with the girl, although the latter did not reciprocate his affection to any marked extent.

This attitude did not baffle the suitor, however, and one day he lassoed his sweetheart as usual, drew her toward him with the lariat, and in the presence of the onlookers told her he would "bust up the show" if she refused to marry him. The girl did refuse, and the man galloped off into the dressing tent and let the exhibition proceed as best it could without him.

Later in the day he went to the girl in penitent spirit and asked her forgiveness. This she granted him and succeeded in getting his job back for him. At the evening exhibition, however, the ardent wooer again indulged in the lariat lovemaking with the girl, and was subsequently discharged, this time for good.—The Sunday Magazine.

Blessed Illusions.

Thank heaven that a little illusion is left to us, to enable us to be useful and agreeable—that we don't know exactly what our friends think of us—that the world is not made of looking glass, to show us just the figure we are making, and just what is going on behind our backs! By the help of dear friendly illusion, we are able to dream that we are charming—and our faces wear a becoming air of self-possession; we are able to dream that other men admire our talents—and our benignity is undisturbed; we are able to dream that we are doing much good—and we do a little.—George Eliot.

Bibb County High School.

Editor Banner:—Being in the shadow of, and breathing the inspiration of a county High School, I cannot resist this opportunity to let our people know something of its real greatness.

The citizens of Bibb county are men. I mean by this, they are men who have the energy, determination, love for humanity, and true county spirit that prompts them to do something. They believe in keeping pace with progress, and not lurking in ignorance and darkness all the time. They believe in working in harmony, and not always nursing personal envy. They believe in doing something for their boys and girls, for their county, and for their nation. You will not be surprised at a public spirit like this having the best county High School in the state.

Let me state a few facts about Bibb County High School. The county board of education began one year ago and with the help of the whole county gave $1,500.00 for school grounds, erected a magnificant building for 10,000.00 dollars and equiped the building for 1250 dollars. They employed two teachers and began the school on October 1st. In a short time six counties of the state, one other state and ten of the twelve beats of this county had pupils in the school and they had to employ the third teacher for the school. The school has just closed a most successful years work and they are planning already for another year. They have employed the fourth teacher, and are preparing to add to the school a manual training department, a system of water works, an electric light plant, a teacher of expression and art, a teacher of stenography and typewriting. Now what does all this mean? It simply means that the people of this county have the interest of their boys and girls at heart enough to give them an education that will make them man and woman that will shape the future of the county for good.

Now when I see the greatness of a county High School and the beauty of one well conducted, I cannot help asking myself why can not Chilton have a school like this? Anything is just what the people concerned make it and the leaders of our county in all affairs have placed our county in the background. Leading citizens, you have crusified noble talent on the cross erected by your own hands. Every one should stoop his head in shame to see the boys and girls of our county dying uselessly on account of lack of interest and enthusiasm on your part. This is plain but no plainer than true.

Thanking our kind Editor for this space and wishing great success for the Banner I am.

Yours Sincerely,
JEROME O. WILLIAMS.

Elderly People Helped Free

The last years of life are the sweetest, and yet the most difficult to prolong. It is then that the greatest care is exercised in maintaining bodily health. But the chief care should always be with regard to the food you eat and whether you are digesting it properly. You should not allow yourself to become constipated.

No doubt you have tried salts and cathartic pills, purgative tablets, etc., and have come to the conclusion that they are violent in action and do but temporary good. Listen then, to the voice of experience with regard to a wonderful and mild laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is not a purge, only we are trying to find new friends for it.

A. A. Fuhs, of Johnston City, Ill., suffered from stomach trouble for six years and found his cure in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. His wife uses it too, with success. We could name hundreds of others. Some heard of it first through neighbors or friends; others through the doctor's offer to send any sufferer from a stomach, liver or bowel complaint a free sample bottle for trial, without charge. If you will send your name and address we will send you a trial bottle direct to your home. If it proves itself as he claims they continue the treatment by paying a 50-cent or $1 bottle of your druggist, as all of them sell it. Old people, like children, should look for purity, and it is well to mention that the purity of this remedy is vouched for with the U. S. government. Also, though a free bottle is sent to prove its merits, results are always guaranteed from the regular bottles bought of druggists, who will refund your money if it does not satisfy you. Send at least for the free test bottle today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 200 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

WHOLE SHIP CARGO WEIGHED

Porphydrometed Registers as Passenger Come Aboard or Leaves—Detects Leaks.

London.—An ingenious little instrument which weighs the whole cargo of a ship at one operation and records the change in the vessel's weight when a passenger steps on or off, has been tested on a 200 ton barge off the Temple pier, London. Its name is the porphydrometer. The instrument is based on the infallible principle that a body floating in a liquid of whatever density displaces a quantity of that liquid exactly equal to its own weight, and by its application a vessel is transformed into a gigantic weighbridge, or weighing machine. The porphydrometer will be of immense value in minimizing the danger from leaks on vessels, for attached to the instrument is an electric bell which gives warning should a leak occur.

The Capacity of the Earth.

It has been estimated that the fertile lands of the globe amount to 28,000,000 square miles, the steppes to 14,000,000, and the deserts to 1,000,000. Fixing 207 persons to the square mile for fertile lands, ten for steppes, and one for deserts, as the greatest population that the earth could properly nourish, the conclusion has been arrived at that, when the number of inhabitants reaches about 6,000,000,000 our planet will be peopled to its full capacity. At present it contains a little more than one-quarter of that number. If the rate of increase shown by recent censuses should be uniformly maintained, it is thought that the globe would be fully peopled about the year 2072.

In the battle of West Hill he lost a leg and received other wounds. Major Cheesman was president of the organization of the survivors of the Forty-fifth Pennsylvania volunteers.

The Parable of the Sower

Bible School Lesson For June 20, 1909
Especially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:1-9, 18-23.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Wherefore putting away all filthiness and overflowing of wickedness, receive with meekness the engrafted word which is able to save your souls."—Jas. 1:21 (R. V.).

TIME—The autumn of A. D. 28, six months before the last lesson.

PLACE—Beside the Sea of Galilee, probably near Capernaum.

Suggestion and Practical Thought.

When a Boat Became a Pulpit.—Vs. 1-3a. When was this parable spoken? "The same day."—a day of which we have a conspicuously full record when Jesus healed the blind and dumb demoniac (Matt. 12:22-45), and had a discussion with some scribes from Jerusalem. When his mother and brothers sought him (Matt. 12:46-50) he proclaimed his disciples as his kindred. Then, leaving the house, he went on to the seashore, and there spoke a series of seven parables.

Who made up Christ's audience? "Great multitudes," "out of every city," as Luke says. Christ had been teaching and healing in all their cities (Luke 8:1), and hundreds must have followed the great rabbi and miracle worker, to see more wonders or to seek new blessings for themselves or their dear ones.

What was Christ's pulpit? The crowd was so great that, in order to get a vantage ground whence he could be seen and heard, our Lord entered a boat.

What was Christ's sermon? "He spoke many things unto them in parables." These seven parables (Mark adds an eighth) "are a great whole, setting forth 'the mystery of the kingdom' in its methods of establishment, its corruption, its outward and inward growth, the conditions of entrance into it, and its final purification."—Alexander Maclaren. The first parable is fittingly an illustration of how the kingdom gets a foothold—or fails to—in human hearts and lives, through good and bad listening. It is less "the parable of the sower" than "the parable of the ground" that is offered to the sower.

Four Kinds of Ground.—Vs. 3b-9. What scene had Christ in mind as the details of the parable? "A sower went forth to sow."

What is the first kind of ground on which the seed fell? "The way side," for grainfields in Palestine are seldom fenced, and both pedestrians and beasts of burden use freely the narrow paths intersecting them. The ground, of course, is beaten hard, and the seed that falls there remains conspicuously on the surface.

What is the second kind of ground? "Stony places, where they had not much earth."

What is the third kind of ground? "Some fell among thorns."

How did the seed fare in that soil? "The thorns sprung up, and choked them."

What is the fourth kind of ground? "Good ground," rich, responsive and permanently productive. Of course, most of the seed fell upon such soil.

How did the seed fare in this ground? "It brought forth fruit, some a hundredfold, some sixtyfold, some thirtyfold."

Four Kinds of Hearers.—Vs. 18-23. Why did the disciples seek an explanation of the parable? It seems simple and clear to us only because we are so familiar with the interpretation. Really, it was susceptible of many meanings.

Who is the sower? Again, as in the next parable, the Son of man; but he is the head farmer, and all Christians are to be farmers under him.

What is the seed? "The word of the kingdom," whatever utterance or act has to do with the coming of the kingdom of heaven on earth.

What is the soil? It is the heart of man, which responds to the truth in many ways.

Who are wayside hearers? Those that do not understand "the word of the kingdom."

What befalls the truth in such hearts? "Then cometh the wicked one," Satan, the reality of whose existence and baneful activity our Lord so often avouches, and catcheth away that which was sown.

Who are the stony ground hearers? They make an advance over the first ones, for they receive the word, and gladly with joy; but they obey it only to a certain extent and for a short time. When obedience to it gets them into trouble.

Who are the thorny ground hearers? Those in whose hearts the word of truth is choked by the care of this world, the deceitfulness of riches, and, as Mark adds, "the lust other things."

Who are the good ground hearers? Those that hear the word and take it, receive it in an honest and good heart, hold it fast, and bring forth fruit with patience (Luke 8:15, R. V.). How can any heart become good and fruitful? By yielding itself to the influence of God's Holy Spirit.

What good seed equals the Bible in power? The word of God is the most popular book in the world. Every year the American Bible society issues nearly two million copies or portions, and the British and Foreign Bible society more than five million. In more than 400 languages. Think of the hundreds of thousands of preachers, the 20,000 missionaries, the 300,000 Sunday schools with 2,500,000 teachers, the 70,000 Christian Endeavor societies and many thousands of others constantly engaged in sowing the good seed!

Another Letter From Mr. Mahan.

Clanton, Ala., June 11, 1910.

Editor Banner:—I must again impose upon your generosity and ask for space in your valuable paper.

Being myself a Republican I regret exceedingly to have to call upon a Democratic paper to reply to arguments and sophistries of Republican office seekers, but it appears that the Repuplican press of this county is subsidized by certain of the select few so that no one not connected with this exclusive set need apply for the opportunity to reach the people through its columns.

However, your paper has been kind enough to print my former articles and the people are reading them, so I presume you will not turn me down this time.

I would like to say in the beginning of this letter that I believe I am as loyal to the Republican party as Judge Reynolds or any one of his particular and exclusive friends, and if my letteas appear in any other than a Republican paper it is because the so called Republican paper of this county is so partizan that it prints only such articles as agree entirely with the views of the editor and those whom it supports.

I would not again appear in public print but Judge Reynolds has had his reply to my articles so adroitly prepared that it is calculated to be misleading.

In the first place I would like to inquire why it is necessary for Judge Reynolds to enlist the aid, support and sympathy of Democrats if he is so extremely loyal to the Republican party? Could he not get Republicans to substantiate his claims without going outside the party to find men who would agree to help him bolste up his losing cause? It may be that the close friendship formed during the amendment fight has caused some of his Democratic friends to fly to his rescue.

Then it has been intimated that the Judge is preparing to go over to the Democrats anyway, and if this is true perhaps the letter appearing in the Union last week signed by an amendment Democrat is the first step in this direction.

The veiled insinuation of Judge Reynolds' that some one else is behind this mud slinging, as he chooses to call it, reflects no credit upon him, for he not only did he by his treatment of Littleton prepare the mud but he is now using the most artless tactics in slinging mud at me because I have had the courage to speak my sentiments through the public press. He need not insinuate that some one else is writing articles for me, but it would be well for him to look to his own letter writing, for any one with half judgement can easily see that the last article in the Union signed by Judge Reynolds is not in his old familiar style. Then besides, it is wonderfully strange that in all three of the articles (the Cox letter, the De Shazo letter and Judge Reynolds') appears identically the same thought and in almost the same language. I would not be so ungenerous as to say the same man wrote them all—that would be mud slinging as the Judge calls it—but it does seem rather strange that they should all have hit upon the same idea at one time. I do not know why others have kept quiet about these things so long, but since the Judge seems so anxious to know I will say that for myself I kept quiet till the campaign begun, knowing that was the best and only time I could get an answer.

Of course Judge Reynolds cannot be striking at me when he says some Republicans belong to the party for the sake of the few little fishes and loaves that are being handed around.

If by fishes and loaves he means party office and party favor it seems to me that he has convicted himself, for I know of no man in the party who has gotten more out of it than he and his immediate family. If he is so ardent in his desire for a strong party and cares nothing for the "fishes and loaves" why does he not step down and out, let us center upon one man, divide the fishes and loaves among the multitude instead of trying to gobble them all up himself? Just look at the fishes he has had and the loaves he has had and yet he wants more.

He ought to be the last man in county to talk about men longing for fishes and loaves.

As for Mr. De Shazo's argument about the Littleton case, that amounts to nothing. He cannot any more tell what would have been the result without Judge Reynolds' testimoney than he can tell what would happen if two nights should come together without a day between. The case was not tried without his testimoney and therefore no mortal man can tell what the result would have been had Judge Reynolds stuck strictly to the facts. According to my mind his testimoney has as much or more influence than all the others and the Littleton boy was the sufferer because of it.

As to what I said to my father about opposing judge Reynolds, or what my father said to Judge Reynolds, I leave him to discuss. He is amply able to take care of himself and I believe will do so when the time come.

One other thing, Mr. Editor, and then I am through. Why is it that Judge Reynolds is scared of this amendment question all of a sudden? He stated publicly in his speeches that he was willing to be defeated if his stand on that question should bring it about—why is he now trying to burst it up? And while he is answering that question let him tell us something about hiring detectives to come to Clanton and help him. Who paid for those detectives and who worked with them? How did it happen that one of them who plead guilty in Judge Reynolds' court was after conviction carried away from here by Judge Reynolds and allowed to escape?

When did Chilton county authorize him to hire men to come in and act the spy on her people?

When did she authorize him to take prisoners to the mines? If he wasn't able to guard his prisoner why didn't he get a deputy sheriff to do it?

Respectfully,
J. M. MAHAN.

P. S. And by the way, did not Governor Comer when he was in Clanton boosting the amendment say that he believed Judge Reynolds voted for him for Governor if he would just admit it? That was the same day Hon. P. G. Bowman had to stand in a wagon body exposed to the hot sun to speak for the peoples' rights. Have you ever made a public denial of having voted for Comer, if you have we Republicans in Beat one have never heard of it.

J. M. MAHAN.

HATE UNCLE SAM'S SPELLING

Village People of Rockville Center Are Mad About Official Use of "Center."

Rockville, Centre, L. I.—This village and the Long Island Railroad company are going to give to Uncle Sam a lesson in spelling. They assert that although he is more than 100 years old, he does not know how to spell "centre," and persists in spelling it "center," much to their annoyance. So long as Uncle Sam does not apply his mistaken notion in relation to the proper way of spelling the word to this village the people and the officials of the railroad company do not care a rap how he spells it. They say he may make it "senter," or even draw a circle and put a black dot in the middle of it.

Uncle Sam's great offense is in persisting in spelling the name of this village Rockville "Center," when the villagers, the railroad officials, and every one else who knows anything about Long Island orthography knows the correct spelling is Rockville "Centre." This village was incorporated as Rockville "Centre." The sign on the railroad station reads "Rockville Centre." Notwithstanding that every letter that is mailed from here or delivered here is stamped "Rockville Center." Uncle Sam has been warned time and again of the mistake he is making. Thus far he has paid no heed.

The board of village trustees held a special meeting the other night. The question of Uncle Sam's ignorance was discussed from all sides. Finally the secretary of the board was directed to send a letter to Washington, not requesting, but demanding in no uncertain way that Uncle Sam take a post-graduate course in the way to spell "centre," and to surrender unconditionally to village sentiment. Unless he does it right away, the postoffice may be boycotted, because the Rockville Centrettes are thoroughly in earnest.

Test for Color Blindness.

At the Royal Society of Arts, in London, Doctor Green read a paper on color blindness and concludes that the colored yarn test, which is the official test of the board of trade, is not reliable. He says: "I have examined a great many dangerously color blind men who have passed it, and many others have had the same experience. In the board of trade report of 1908 it will be seen that of those who were rejected by the wool test and who appealed, more than 53 per cent. was found to be normal sighted and to have been rejected wrongfully.

To Disinfect Clothing.

It has been proved by experiment that it is possible to disinfect clothing very satisfactorily by ironing. Clothing which has been worn by children affected by various contagious diseases, and which contained bacteria or pus, diphtheria and the like, was sprinkled and ironed. It was then rubbed on plates of gelatin prepared for the culture of bacteria, but not a single colony was developed.

PROFESSOR DIGS IN SUBWAY

He and Several Students Working for $1.50 a Day to Get Practical Experience.

Cambridge, Mass.—A Harvard professor working as a laborer at $1.50 a day is one of the human interest features of the Cambridge subway. Covered with clay, a slouch hat on his head and the laborer's every-day overalls, it is difficult to distinguish him from the ordinary subway excavator. He is Prof. H. U. Ransom, B. A., teacher of mathematical and civil engineering at the Harvard summer school.

"If a man expects to do contracting on his own hook all the book work that he can learn will avail him nothing unless he gets a practical experience," he says. "So I got this job as laborer."

Other college men on the subway are Jack Lyons and George Homer, friends of the professor; H. W. Routenberg, a former Yale man; Jack McKnight, Holy Cross, and D. R. Bates of Worcester Technical.

Geese Attack Girls.

York, Pa.—Wild geese, which William Stabley of Felton thought he had domesticated, proved untamed when they attacked and frightened almost to death Miss Ophelia Paine and Miss Araminta Sentz, who were gathering arbutus. The flock surrounded the two girls, picking at them and hissing in an alarming manner. The girls fled, but the geese continued the chase almost to town.

Swift and Hurry.

New York.—Lawrence Swift and Elizabeth Hurry got their license to marry the other day in just two minutes by Mr. Swift's chronometer. The bride's father is a member of the law firm of Hurry & Galloup.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

...ns of the times he saw, and those he saw not.

Among the improvements in Clanton, which shows up conspicuously to travelers on the railroad, is the new big sawing and planing mill of the Forest Lumber Company, just south of the Clanton depot. It gives an appearance of life and go to the town, and creates a good impression at first sight.

After a trip through Alabama to Mobile, and taking particular note of the different towns we passed through, I could find none to excel Clanton in their general appearance from the railroad. And this is something to be proud of, for there are some mighty fine towns on the L. & N. railroad between Montgomery and Mobile.

The Banner contest is arousing a good deal of enthusiasm and an amount of healthy rivalry among the contestants is to be noticed. Those who are ahead feel good at the prospect, while those who are behind, smile and say there is plenty of time to catch up. The race is not always to the swift at first, and as the interest increases the fun becomes faster.

Last Friday night a burglarious entry to the express company's warehouse at the depot was made and about a hundred pints of whiskey were taken. No clue to the depredators.

What the social system of this country needs most is a good blood purifier.

Truth plays about the same part in a horse trade that ham does in a railroad sandwich.

Hanging at Clanton.

For the first time in the history of Chilton county a man's life was forfeited in a legal manner on Monday morning, when Wiley Young, colored, was hanged for the murder of Cleve Houlditch at Maplesville.

A crowd numbering some three or four hundred people, including a few ladies and children, gathered around the jail, where a gallows had been erected and awaited the final moment when the life of the murderer was to be ended.

There was not much to be seen, however, save the gallows, across the top of which was to be seen the cross piece with the rope attached, and occasionally a prisoner or two might be seen peering through the bars of the windows of the upper story of the jail.

Patiently the crowd awaited, and about twenty minutes after ten o'clock the doors of the jail were opened and the condemned man was led forth, escorted by Sheriff Catts, Deputies Smithermen and Carlee.

"And see from forth that opening door
They come—he steps that threshold o'er
Who never shall tread upon threshold more!
—God! 'tis a fearful thing to see
That pale wan man's mute agony—
The glare of that wild despairing eye,
Now bent on the crowd, now turned to the sky
As though 'twere scanning in doubt and fear
The path of the spirits unknown career;
These pinioned arms, these hands that ne'er
Shall be lifted again—not even in prayer;
That heaving chest!—Enough—'tis done!
The bolt has fallen!—the spirit is gone—
For weal or for woe is known but to One!—
—Oh! 'twas a fearsome sight! Ah me!
A deed to shudder at—not to see."

There was a slight halt in the proceedings, as the rope was too long and the negro's feet touched the floor at the first drop, but the defect was soon remedied and in a few moments the negro was pronounced to be dead by Drs. Gregg, Hall and Johnson.

THE BANNER

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XVIII | CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JUNE 23, 1910 | No. 38

Assistant Clerk

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

Among the improvements in Clanton, which shows up conspicuously to travelers on the railroad, is the new big sawing and planing mill of the Forest Lumber Company, just south of the Clanton depot. It gives an appearance of life and go to the town, and creates a good impression at first sight.

After a trip through Alabama to Mobile, and taking particular note of the different towns we passed through, I could find none to excel Clanton in their general appearance from the railroad. And this is something to be proud of, for there are some mighty fine towns on the L & N. railroad between Montgomery and Mobile.

THE BANNER contest is arousing a good deal of enthusiasm and an amount of healthy rivalry among the contestants is to be noticed. Those who are ahead feel good at the prospect, while those who are behind, smile and say there is plenty of time to catch up. The race is not always to the swift at first, and as the interest increases the fun becomes faster.

Last Friday night a burglarious entry to the express company's warehouse at the depot was made and about a hundred pints of whiskey were taken. No clue to the depredators.

What the social system of this country needs most is a good blood purifier.

Truth plays about the same part in a horse trade that ham does in a railroad sandwich.

Hanging at Clanton.

For the first time in the history of Chilton county a man's life was forfeited in a legal manner on Monday morning, when Wiley Young, colored, was hanged for the murder of Cleve Houlditch at Maplesville.

A crowd numbering some three or four hundred people, including a few ladies and children, gathered around the jail, where a gallows had been erected and awaited the final moment when the life of the murderer was to be ended.

There was not much to be seen, however, save the gallows, across the top of which was to be seen the cross piece with the rope attached, and occasionally a prisoner or two might be seen peering through the bars of the windows of the upper story of the jail.

Patiently the crowd awaited, and about twenty minutes after ten o'clock the doors of the jail were opened and the condemned man was led forth, escorted by Sheriff Catts, Deputies Smitherman and Curlee.

"And see from forth that opening door
They come—he steps that threshold o'er
Who never shall tread upon threshold more!
—God! 'tis a fearful thing to see
That pale wan man's mute agony—
The glare of that wild despairing eye,
Now bent on the crowd, now turned to the sky
As though 'twere scanning in doubt and in fear
The path of the spirits unknown career;
Those pinioned arms, those hands that ne'er
Shall be lifted again—not even in prayer;
That heaving chest!—Enough—'tis done!
The bolt has fallen!—the spirit is gone—
For weal or for woe is known but to One!—
—Oh! 'twas a fearsome sight! Ah me!
A deed to shudder at—not to see."

There was a slight halt in the proceedings, as the rope was too long and the negroe's feet touched the floor at the first drop, but the defect was soon remedied and in a few moments the negro was pronounced to be dead by Drs. Gragg, Neil and Johnson.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Clanton, June 20, 1910.

Editor Banner:—Here I come again asking a space in the old Banner. It looks as if it necessary for me to write again as a pacifier to my Democratic friends.

Please don't think because I made the statement last week about Judge Reynolds that I am going to bolt my party or split my ticket.

This is not old man J. W. Cox. This is W. S. Cox and I dictate and write for myself. It doesn't differ with me whom they nominate. I am going to do all I can to defeat them, as we have got a set of as good and clean men as can be found in the county—especially my good friend, Judge Deason. Talk about clean and congenial men, he can't be beat.

Well, my good brother has surprised me in his article of last week by claiming to be a Democrat, then says he is going to support Judge Reynolds. Again, he says that the amendment is not an issue in politics. Then in the same place he says that is the paramount thought in his mind.

This is not me. Stand pat, boys, for we have the brightest prospect of success we have had for a long time. So mote it be. Good wishes to all.

W. S. Cox.

Editor Banner:—Here I come again for a small place in your dear Banner. Health of this place is fairly good. The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Abbott and bore the spirit of old aunt Fannie Pocle to the realms of glory, where there will be no parting nor sorrow. Weep not dear friends and relatives, for our loss is heaven's gain; we all hope to meet her in that sweet by and by.

The singing given at Mr. J. B. Anderson's Sunday afternoon was enjoyed by all present. We have organized a nice little Sunday school at this place; hope to have a grand success in our undertaking.

Wishing the Editor much success and its many readers.

Thanking all for promptness, I am

Editor Banner:—Will you print a few more lines for us? The people in this part of the world is getting along nicely at present with their work. Crops looking fine. Mr. Milton Lawrence has the best corn we have seen. Cotton also looks fine. Health is getting better with the sick. I want to say a few words about the singing at Pleasant Grove church the fourth Sunday in May. We had a good singing, I suppose, and plenty of dinner, and all every thing went on all right, but we don't think we have any false leaders in our church we don't want to thank that way. I don't know what we would do if it was not for those that tries to lead the way. There have been a great help to the church. I don't see how we could do without them, if I thought they was false leaders I would not go to the church to hear them. Bro. Smitherman preached to the people last Sunday enough about their tongues to convince them but it looks like it will take more than preachers to bridal our tongues. The day of the singing resembled the day of the Sunday school convention a part of the members went out to the convention had plenty of dinner and had a good time and done the very best we could, but there was not a preacher on the place and lot of members were absent, and we felt almost slighted but we said very little about it, I don't know why they were not there, it has been said that I went off on account of singing, but I did not, I went off on business, I like singing to well. So we hope the false leaders will still be with us. How nice it would be for all to go to church and Sunday school, and all pull the same way, and not find so much fault of others. I am not throwing stones at no one I just feel sary for the false leaders. So wishing all the Banner's readers and every one a good time, I will close and come again.

Great Reception to Former President Roosevelt.

Theodore Roosevelt, ex-president, world traveler, and renowned American, arrived on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria at New York Saturday morning, after a year and a quarter of travel, hunting in Africa and being made the honored guest of kings and potentates at many of the most brilliant courts of the old world.

The reception at New York was one fit for the home-coming of a conquering hero. Probably never before in the history of the great metropolis of the western world has a private citizen been so signally honored.

RECENT SNAPSHOT OF COLONEL ROOSEVELT

A program as elaborate as any that has ever been carried out in the city had been arranged, in which not only the whole city of New York took part, but visitors from other cities and distant points.

Former President Roosevelt on the eve of his arrival home gave out the following interview:

Ex-President's Statement.

"I have been away a year and a quarter. While I enjoyed Africa, I enjoyed Europe a very great deal. In fact, I fail to see how anyone could have had a more interesting or pleasanter trip than I have had.

"I wish to express my very deep appreciation of the more than generous courtesy and hospitality with which I was treated by the people and the rulers of the countries through which I passed. But, of course, I am glad to get home.

Impossible to Accept Invitations.

"I appreciate deeply the kindliness of a multitude of friends who have asked me to speak in different places, and hope they will understand that it is simply a physical impossibility for me even to consider accepting more than one in a hundred of these invitations.

"I shall not speak for more than two months, and will speak first at the John Brown celebration at Kansas City, at the Cheyenne frontier gathering, at the conservation congress in St. Paul, and possibly at one or two other places.

"I shall have nothing whatever to say in the immediate future about politics, and will hold no interview whatever on the subject with anyone, and anything purporting to be an interview with me that may appear can be safely set down at once as an invention.

"I take this opportunity of acknowledging with the heartiest thanks the greetings which I received in London before starting and which it has been impossible to acknowledge. I need not say how deeply I am touched by these kind messages, and am sure the senders will understand that my failure to answer all of them is due simply to the fact that they are so numerous that it is an absolute physical impossibility."

GREAT LOSS OF LIFE.

Several Villages Also Completely Destroyed by Cloudburst.

Nearly 300 persons were killed and several villages annihilated by a cloudburst in Krasso-Szoreny, a country of Hungary, bordering on Transylvanit, Rumania and Servia.

The capital of the county, which is mainly peopled by Rumanians is Lugos.

It is expected that the death roll will be greatly increased when communications which have been almost completely cut off, are restored. Bridges, telegraph and telephone wires in the district have been destroyed, and it is feared that many of the survivors of the cloudburst will die of starvation or exposure before it is possible to send assistance

GEORGIA LEGISLATURE.

Annual Grind of Fifty Days Begins Wednesday, June 22.

The Georgia legislature will convene Wednesday in Atlanta and the annual legislative grind of fifty days' duration will be on in earnest, with President John M. Slaton, of Atlanta, on the job in the senate and with Speaker John N. Holder, of Jackson county, wielding the gavel in the house.

The legislature will find conditions very much changed in the legislative halls from what they were when last they saw them. Both halls have been thoroughly renovated, new carpets have been placed on the floors, the walls have been cleaned and other improvements have been made which will cause considerable improvement in the appearance of the place where the general assembly holds its deliberations.

Just how much work the legislature will do this summer is not easy to figure out. With several hundred bills on the calendar there will be no lack of something to do, but as this is election year and numerous members are figuring on re-election, it is very probable that the trend of events in local county campaigns will share the attention of various and sundry lawmakers.

CONGRESS DRAWS NEAR LAST HOURS

Believed Body Will Adjourn in Next Few Days.

Congress leaders confidently expect to wind up the business of the present session this week and adjourn not later than Saturday. If the session is carried beyond that time it will be because of amendments to the general deficiency bill or complications which may arise in connection with the omnibus public buildings bill. Some members look for the adjournment to take place as early as Thursday.

It is pointed out by republican leaders that there never has been a congress whose president has obtained the amount of legislation that has resulted from the demands of President Taft. Starting with a demand for revision of the tariff he procured this at an extraordinary session. Then at the beginning of the present session he demanded legislation amendatory of the interstate commerce laws, measures enabling the president to pursue a forward conservation policy, admitting Arizona and New Mexico to statehood, creating postal savings banks and on the subject of the use of injunctions. Bills of all these subjects have passed both branches of congress with the exception of the anti-injunction measure. That will have to wait until next session, but it is said the prospects are good for its passage at that time.

JEWISH EXPULSIONS.

Premier Stolypin Minimizes Extent of Government's Campaign.

The Rossia, at St. Petersburg, prints an official statement by Premier Stolypin in his capacity as minister of the interior, regarding the Jewish explusions and in which the premier minimizes the extent of the government's campaign.

According to the minister, the Hebrews in Kiev who were subject to explusion number 446. The government is disposed to relax the rigor of the law so far as it is practical in Kiev and other places, particularly to the advantage of Jews who were established in business. This policy has been carried out in the Caucasus. The statement sets forth that the minister of the interior has sent instructions to the provincial authorities to prohibit Hebrews from residing at summer resort regions and in their villas in surburban localities where, through a strict interpretation of the intent of the law, they would not be entitled to residence.

RENO MAY GET FIGHT.

Probable That Johnson-Jeffries Bout Will Occur in the Nevada Town.

It has practically been decided that the Jeffries-Johnson bout will be staged at Reno, July 4.

Tex Rickard and Jack Gleason, promoters of the fight, have about decided to waste no further time fighting Governor Gillett, but will issue instructions to the boxers to repair at once to the Nevada metropolis, where protection is guaranteed and where they hope to attract almost as many persons as they would had they staged the battle in San Francisco.

With a Ketchel-Langford contest in the morning, and a Jeffries-Johnson battle in the afternoon to look forward to practically every lover of fistic entertainment is going to make strenuous efforts to be in Reno on Independence Day.

Twelve Austrian laborers, known by check numbers only, were burned to death in their shacks at Fallsview, near Niagara Falls, Ont. One man, a woman and a child were probably fatally injured. The Austrians evidently had been overcome by smoke, as they slept, and were roasted to death. The injured were terribly burned.

PARTY DECLARES FOR PATTERSON

State Democratic Convention at Nashville, Tenn.

The state convention which assembled in the Ryman Auditorium in Nashville, Tenn., in response to a call by the state democratic committee, has announced the following ticket:

Governor—Malcom R. Patterson, Memphis, renominated.

United States Senator—Benton McMillin, Carthage.

GOVERNOR PATTERSON.

Nominations were also made for supreme court, court of appeals, treasurer, comptroller and railroad commissioner.

Governor Patterson has accepted his nomination for a third term before a crowd that packed the immense auditorium to suffocation, in a lengthy speech that evoked the wildest enthusiasm.

The resolutions adopted at the meeting, among other things condemn the compulsory prohibition law and declare for an amendment "wherein it affects the communities of Nashville, Chattanooga, Memphis and LaFollette, and further pledge the party to the restoration to the people of those particular communities the right to control their own local affairs as they existed prior to the passage of that measure."

GILLETT STOPS FIGHT.

Jeffries-Johnson Mill Can't Take Place in Frisco, It Is Said.

Stirred to action by intense protests from all parts of the state, Governor James N. Gillett has taken steps to prevent the championship fight between James J. Jeffries and Jack Johnson, scheduled to be held in San Francisco July 4.

In a letter to Attorney General Webb, the governor expresses his disapproval of prize-fighting in measured terms and directs that the aid of the courts be invoked to prevent the match and concludes with a positive order that in case the plea for a restraining order is not granted and the fight is held, the attorney general proceed to gather evidence and proceed to prosecute the principals and those interested in the fight for violation of the penal code of the state.

An effort will be made to pull the fight off at Goldfield, Nevada.

WILL REMOVE CAPITAL.

Governor Haskell Holds Out Strongly Against State Courts.

Governor Haskell has issued a proclamation declaring the capital location bill carried and officially declaring Oklahoma City to have received the greatest number of votes. The proclamation is based on the complete election returns furnished the governor by the state election board. The measure carried by approximately 33,000 majority.

Governor Haskell said that the overruling of his demurrer to prevent the removal of the capital from Guthrie to Oklahoma City by Judge Ruston in Guthrie will not in the least interfere with the determination of the state officials to remain permanently in Oklahoma City. Governor Haskell in his demurrer took the position as chief executive he was not amenable to the state courts.

FOUGHT IN PULPIT.

Mountain Preachers Reported to Have Engaged in Deadly Duel.

A dispatch from Williamsburg, Ky., says that Rev. Robert Vanover and Rev. Isaac Perry, well-known mountain preachers, who had been holding revival meetings, fought a duel with knives in the Rock Creek Baptist church, Whitley county, Kentucky. Vanover's throat being cut from ear to ear. He died in a short time.

The trouble grew out of charges against Vanover, which were being tried in the church, when the fight occurred. Minister Perry and his brother, Blaine, who also took part in the fight, are in jail at Williamsburg.

The church was crowded at the time, and a wild panic ensued.

EUROPE IS SWEPT BY FEARFUL FLOOD

Towns Inundated, Property Is Destroyed, Lives Lost.

Stories of death and the sufferings of survivors are brought by refugees from the flood valley of the Ahr. The waters are rapidly subsiding, but while at their height they wrought frightful damage.

Several villages on the banks of the River Ahr were literally washed away. Houses, collapsing, buried their occupants beneath the flood. So strong was the current that it swept away locomotives and steam road rollers as a child might scatter its toys.

In some instances where the villagers, driven from their home by the waters, lacked time to reach the hill tops, they climbed into the branches of trees, only to be drowned as the rising waters tore the trees up by their roots and bore them away.

Near the mouth of the Ahr river a rescuing party recovered the bodies of a woman and an infant. The little one was tightly clasped in the mother's arms.

Buried Beneath Waters.

Inundations caused by swollen streams in the eastern and central districts of Switzerland have caused immense damage. A landslide at Altorf buried a factory building, killing a woman and ten children employes.

Bridges Swept Away.

Unprecedented rains throughout Belgium have been falling in the lower lying districts, creating heavy losses. Bridges have been carried away and stock drowned. The village of Moos has been devastated.

35 Lives Lost.

Floods, following torrential rains, have caused havoc in the valley of the Morava river. Thirty-five lives have been lost. The towns of Churpria, Jagodina and Svilainatz have been inundated. Water to a depth of from seven to ten feet has filled the streets. Many houses, undermined, have collapsed.

Many Towns Flooded.

The waters of the Lake of Constance have risen rapidly, flooding the lower streets of the various towns along its banks. Railway tracks have been submerged and on several railroad lines traffic has been suspended.

LADY BUGS TO FIGHT APHIS

Valuable Army Corralled by California Authorities for Big Alaska Patches.

Los Angeles—Corralling ladybugs for use in melon fields, where they destroy aphis, is an enterprise engaging the attention at present of John W. Jeffrey, state commissioner of horticulture.

The bugs were secured in Humboldt canyon, in the high Sierras, near Lake Tahoe, and were found under banks of snow. The collection at the state capital consists of 60,000,000 bugs and already 210 crates of them have been prepared for shipment to the south land.

"In all cases where aphis bothers melons and other garden truck, the ladybugs have been found valuable, but this is the first year we have been able to secure such a supply, and is the largest collection in the world," said Mr. Jeffrey.

"They are placed in crates measuring a foot long by six inches square and the crate is filled with excelsior so they can be shipped in comfort.

"When it is realized that 27,000 bugs are required to weigh a pound an idea can be formed of what a small lot in weight there is, after all, but they are precious to the growers and require care to keep during the winter. One time last month they showed signs of restlessness because of the warm weather, and we had to keep 500 pounds of ice in their quarters, and virtually had them in cold storage."

Beer Would Float Warship.

Berlin.—Five hundred and ninety-two million liters of the national beverage were consumed in Germany last year. Bavaria, where most of the beer is brewed, heads the list of the various states with 172,000,000 liters.

It is calculated that the amount of beer consumed in Germany could easily float a modern dreadnaught. At an average price of six cents a liter $20,000,000 was spent for beer.

KEPT PLEDGE IN NEW WAY

Put Able Truthfully to Assert that He Had "Drank", Nothing Intoxicating.

Magistrate Carey found a new form of intoxication yesterday morning when a prisoner was arraigned before him at Third and De Lancey streets police station on the charge of being drunk and disorderly.

When the prisoner gave his name as Bill McCarthy and residing in the neighborhood of Front and Spruce streets, the magistrate recognized him immediately and said: "Well, you are here again, Bill; I didn't expect you would keep the pledge which you took only a week ago, so I will send you up the river this time."

"Judge, your honor, you are mistaken," quickly replied McCarthy. "I took the pledge to abstain from drinking intoxicating liquors for a period of two years and will swear that I did not drink a drop from that time until this moment, and, furthermore, I intend to stick to that pledge."

"What!" shouted the magistrate, "do you mean to stand there and tell this court that you have not been drinking? You are not sobered up now after spending the night in the cell, and from appearances you had a grand time."

McCarty again spoke up and flatly denied drinking.

"It was this way," he said. "I made some ice cream and not having anything to flavor it with remembered where I had a bottle of brandy hidden away in my closet for medical purposes and poured the contents of the bottle into the cream. After it was frozen I molded the cream into blocks and ate it. It was so good that I believe I ate too much; but remember, I kept the pledge."—Philadelphia Times.

Harvard Professors Declare That Kissing Is Not Harmful, but Is That Enough?

Word comes from Harvard that kissing is not harmful, but the careless professors fail to offer any confirmatory proof. If the experimenters could file a few duly attested statements of the following character the public would consider their assurances much more satisfactory:

"Exhibit A—Professor B., while descending from classroom Y, met pretty laundress X on stairs and kissed her. In this experiment diagnosis showed a slight acceleration of pulse with mild febrile complications. No further disturbances were observed.

"Exhibit B—Professor C., while on brief visit to his home, encountered ancient maiden aunt, supposedly rich, and kissed her. In this experiment no disturbances whatever were indicated. Professor C. voluntarily admitted having kissed maiden aunt on several previous occasions, exact dates not given, without prejudice to his normal condition. The professor has been added to the immune experimental squad."

Babies Quieted With Opium.

Opium is fed to babies of the middle and wealthy classes to keep them quiet. Such is the startling charge made by Mrs. Enid Campbell Dauncey in a magazine article. She says there is a total ignorance among many wealthy mothers as to the proper care of their babies and that consequently the care and training are left to lazy or ignorant nurses who give the little ones sedatives, including opium, to make them sleep and thus reduce the amount of work. Mrs. Dauncey severely criticizes the mothers and suggests a school for the teaching of woman the proper way to clothe, train and feed their babies. She tells of calling on a fashionable mother who praised a new nurse because since her arrival baby never cried or was irritable, but slept practically all the time. Mrs. Dauncey asked to see the baby and there plainly in its face were the marks of opium. She says that any person who can recognize the traces of the drug can see them in many babies in the park. Her remedy

VARIATION IN BRIAR STITCH

Inner Decoration That Is New and Not Exclusively Difficult to Execute.

Instead of the single or double briar stitching used as an inner decoration, with a buttonholed scallop, a new and effective variation is a daisy or "bird's-eye" stich to finish each of the side stitches of the briar.

This stitch is nothing more complicated than a loop or chain stitch at the end of the finished line of briar stitching. After the latter is worked begin at top and make a small chain stitch into the hole where side briar stitch ends.

Work toward you, hold thread under thumb of left hand to form a loop held down with small stitch. In taking this stitch slide needle down to tip of next briar stitch, bring out on right side, make another held-down loop, and continue until one side of the line is worked. Repeat on opposite side of briar stitching, being sure to run loop in same direction.

These loops may be in a lighter or darker tone than briar stitching or in a contrasting shade, as pink, blue, or green with white.

Fat Arms.

Fat arms can be much improved by massage and exercise. Grasp one arm with the hand of the opposite side and, beginning either at the shoulder or the wrist, work up and down the arm with a wringing, twisting motion. To give symmetry to the arm the muscle mass should be seized between the fingers and thumb in a firm grasp and moved up and down upon the underlying bones as if the flesh were a sleeve hung upon them.

For Moist Hands.

A few grains of alum or a couple of drops of aromatic spirits of sulphuric acid added to a basinful of tepid water in which the hands are to be bathed, will take away that moist, clammy, unpleasant feeling that some hands have. The hands should then be dried with a rough towel and a good toilet powder dusted on them.

Ways of the Pest.

"In one of the stores I visit out in the provinces," says Frank Rogers, one of the city's best known traveling men, "there is always to be found one of those old-fashioned pests, a hanger-on, who comes to the place in the morning, stays all day, never buying anything, driving away paying customers by his obnoxious habits and making of himself a general nuisance.

"One day when I was taking down an order from the storekeeper this old pest came up and said:

"'Gee, I wish I had about two cents of that new cheese.'

"The storekeeper started to serve him.

"'Oh, never mind, never mind,' said the pest. 'I guess I won't take any. I ain't got nothing less than a dime, and the chances are that if I break that it will all go before the end of the week.'"—Cleveland Leader.

COVER FOR THE ARM-CHAIR

Can Be Used to Good Effect When Article of Furniture Has Become Shabby.

Either in the case of a new and smart arm-chair that requires protection, or of a chair that has, perhaps, become shabby and requires to be hidden as much as possible, the cover shown in our sketch will serve the purpose. It must, of course, be made of a size to fit the chair it is intended for, and the material of which it can be made is a matter of choice.

That portion marked A in the diagram on the right hand side should be of sufficient length and width to cover the back, seat and front, and B and C cover the arms; a glance at the diagram will explain this. The ends of the material can be trimmed with some pretty fringe, and when the cover has been completed and placed over the chair, if it is tucked well in at the sides and back, it will remain in its place without any further fastening, and it can be removed in a moment for cleaning or other purposes. The Woman's Tonic

The rare medicinal herbs of Cardui are imported by the manufacturers direct from Europe and are not to be found in any other medicine.

These ingredients are what give Cardui its superiority, as a female medicine and tonic, over any other medicine.

For over 50 years Cardui has been the favorite woman's medicine. The ladies like it, because it is so easy to take, so gentle, so safe, so reliable in its results, and they have faith in its curative tonic powers, because of the thousands of other ladies it has helped. Try it today.

THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

There is some talk on the streets of Clanton that another news paper is about to make its appearance in the town—we have not been able to learn any definite particulars, but it is said it will be of a Soliastic tendency. Probably it will add one more to the Birmingham printed papers, of which Clanton seems to be rather fond of, or at least puts up with.

It is rather funny doubtless to some of our merchants to read of patronizing home industries in newspapers printed far away off, and which are sending away goodly sums of money every week, which might be more profitably employed at home. Think it over, friends.

If a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, a dollar at home is better than half a dozen that are sent away never to return.

The Alabama Press Association held a very enjoyable meeting at Mobile last week, headquarters being at the far-famed Battle House, recently rebuilt at a cost of one million dollars.

The meeting was an interesting one and among the speakers was Mr. Cullen, of Indiana, who spoke on the telepost.

Col. E. L. Russell, vice-president of the Mobile & Ohio railroad made an excellent speech in an agreeable manner.

McLaine Tilton, of the Pell City Progress, was elected president; A. B. Tucker, of the Thomasville Echo, vice-president; Jacob Pepperman, of the Southern Odd-Fellow, Montgomery was re-elected Secretary, and Frank Crichton, of the Clanton Banner, treasurer.

On Saturday a pleasant day was spent on board the revenue cutter, Winona, traversing the bay of Mobile, and trying to assist the New York liner, Algonquin, which had run aground, but the task was too big and we had to give it up.

Thorsby

Thorsby Institute has just closed the most prosperous year of its existence, and is now laying plans to make the coming year still better. Professor Henson, the principal, is making a canvass of contiguous territory for students, while Miss Helen C. Jenkins, associate principal, is raising funds to carry on the work. Miss Clara Anderson Groves, for the past four years mathematics teacher, leaves this week to seek a home in the north, and will be succeeded by Miss Flora M. Craine of Washington, who is a graduate of Mount Holyoke college.

A new industry is being opened up in Thorsby, which it is hoped is but the beginning of this class of enterprise. C. E. Northrop, for many years engaged in manufacturing fine tools for dentists' use, has for some time been seeking a healthful location in the south and has selected Thorsby in which to locate a factory for small tools.

The Horrible Fly.

Only gross ignorance, it seems, can make it possible for anyone to view with calmness the spectacle of a single housefly buzzing around on a May day. The enlightened person knows that this fly before the end of June will have produced a progeny of over a million and a half. "Kill a fly in August," says E. E. Austen, of the British museum, "and you have only the blood of one miserable insect on your hands, but slay one in April—prevent it from breeding—and you can conscientiously compute your bag by the hundred thousand. Houseflies survive the winter in the person of several sturdy females, which hibernate from October to April in secluded corners of outhouses and stables. Then, on a fine, warm day in April or May, out they come, and if the weather continues fine proceed to lay their eggs. They lay some 120 at a time, and, roughly, these eggs take three weeks to develop into the perfect adult insect."

Mulberry District S. S. Convention.

Editor Banner:—Will you please publish the following article in your paper? The Sunday school convention of Mulberry district met at Shiloh church the third Sunday afternoon, June 19. The convention was called to order by the district president, Wm J. Billingsley. Devotional exercises were conducted by Mr. S. A. Henley, after which Mr. J. W. Billingsley made a brief address, full of sincerety and interest. The regular program was taken up. The first subject, "What Hinders the Sunday School?" By Mr. C. W. Langston. Who opened the discussion with an interesting speech, full of good points.

Roll call and reports of delegates from various schools were given. Seven schools were represented, giving good reports. We were sorry to learn that three of our largest schools failed to send delegates.

"The importance of a Sunday school in a community," was very ably discussed by Mr. A. C. Mims, who brought out many brief and interesting points.

Good suggestions on the benefits and importance of "the Teachers Training class," were given by Mr. F. W. C. Bice, Howard Roper and others, which we hope will be of great benefit toward the organization of classes in the various schools that have not yet organized one.

Every school seems to be anxious for the "Blue Star" which we hope to win in the near future.

The next convention will be held at Mt. Nebo church.

Sincerely in the work,
BESSIE DURBIN.

Colonel Collier Won Big Suit.

Col. Wm A. Collier, of Eufaula, is in town, looking after the Checotah Eufaula county seat fight, which is before the supreme court. Colonel Collier was sole attorney for Mrs. Sudie M. Burdett in the famous Burdett will case just decided by the supreme court in Mrs. Burdett's favor. Although Attorney Collier was opposed in the case by ten of the best lawyers of the state, he won out in every instance, from the county to the supreme court. The case involved over $600,000 most of which was in the form of life insurance policies.—Guthrie Oklahoma Leader.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Believes Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stays Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back of the head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3 50 just for filling this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this:

Dr. A. E. Robinson, K 1141 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure harmless remedies but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

To Our Friends and Customers:

We can truthfully say our business has shown such a phenomenal increase this year that we doubt there being another business of any kind, in this city that will equal our record. Now, there is a reason for this that explains itself. If we had not sold honest goods at honest prices, with polite and prompt attention, we could not have shown this gain.

To those who were our patrons last year, we could offer no stronger reason for them remaining our customers than to assure them of the same square deal at our store in the future that they have received in the past.

When you are sick, you send for a physician in whose ability you have the greatest confidence. It isn't a matter of friendship then, but the doctor who can cure you is the man you want, and must have. It is just as important, and even more so, that you have his prescriptions filled by a druggist in whose ability and honesty you have the same faith that you have in your doctor.

At our store your prescipticns will be filled by a man of experience and thorough knowledge of his profession, and the fact that no mistake has ever been made at our store, sets the seal of caution on our record.

We buy the best drugs and medicines that are offered for sale regardless of cost, and sell them at the same price others would get for an inferior article. If you have not been our customer, your friends have. We have pleased them, why can't we please you?

She Walks in Beauty.

She walks in beauty like the night, as some romantic singer said; her eyes give forth a starry light, her lips are of a cherry red; across the floor she seems to float; she seems to me beyond compare a being perfect—till I note the way she has done up her hair. She must have toiled through half a day to build that large, unwieldy mass; she must have used a bale of hay, and strips of tin, and wire of brass; her sisters must have helped to braid, her mother wrought and tinkered there, and butler, cook and chambermaid all helped to wrestle with her hair. And after all the grinding toil and all the braiding and the fuss, the one effect is just to spoil her beauty and make people cuss. She walks in beauty like the night where nights are most serenely fair; but, Julius Caesar! she's a sight, when she's got on her Sunday hair!—London Tit-Bits.

The Farm Woman's Noble Work.

Where the farm woman's work is lightened by labor-saving conveniences and where she is studying her work and is trying to learn about foods and food values, sanitation, and also about how to make the most splendid examples of physical and moral manhood and womanhood out of her children—well, she has a chance to find ten times as much joy and sweetness in life as the wealthy society woman in town who frittters her time away on matters of no more importance than how to play bridge or how to deck her body a little differently today from what she did yesterday. It seems to me that I could as lief not not live at all as to reproach my Creator with a life wasted in such aimlessness.—Clarence Poe, in Starkville (Miss.) Progressive Farmer and Gazette.

Smikes, Curer of Headache

By Stacy E. Baker

Smikes probably fared better in his love making because he kept from his inane habit of inventing things until the little germ of romance had properly permeated the heart of the damsel of his choice. Outwardly the lady may always claim that she wedded the busy brained one only from a spirit of pique, but in her heart of hearts she knows it was her latest love of him that won.

The Smikes person was a most gawky individual answering to the name of Enos and these handicaps should have bade him keep to the plodding path of the ordinary citizen instead of racing madly away through bramble and tare to storm every citadel of convention looming before him.

Enos was the neglected Don Juan of his day. He longed to tilt a lance with every old established idea and custom and stinging defeat only fired his ambition to other efforts.

It was Enos who—he lived in the wilds of Jersey!—threw open the paternal home to the hungry hordes of insects from the swamps, while others lay awake nights battling these mosquito pests.

All that Enos demanded of the classic terrors was that they make their entrance through screens of his own devising—antiseptic screens, impregnating the saw-like instruments of the invaders with a guaranteed tonic to the blood and, at the same time, neutralizing the poison of their stinging bills.

It was a great idea and only for the fact that Enos tried it out on the family before subjecting it to the keener analysis of some medical critic, it would have placed the name of Smikes, laurel-wreathed, among the heroes of Jersey.

As it was, all of the family lived and although a lot of Smikes blood was sacrificed to make a mosquito holiday, all was forgiven and the faces of the martyrs gradually worked down to normal size.

If Possible, He Was Homlier Than Ever.

Enos, quick to forget a failure, escaped several other tanks and then released his clutch on the fleeting skirts of fame, metaphorically speaking, to seine the dainty hand of Miss Olga Ericson in both of his elephantine fists and—fall in love!

Miss Olga was the schoolmistress at the Primtown knowledge dispensatory and she was as pretty a maid as ever came to Jersey from strange lands.

Her claims to pulchritude vaunted subtly on dreamy eyes, with a promise in them for the man who could awake them; a remarkable amount of blue-black hair, rebelliously curly, and a dainty face.

A sight of Miss Olga, to the gay youth of the town, was as a trumpet call to the tourney.

The alluring schoolma'am's advent into Primtown was followed by a most commented-on perking up among the swains of the locality and high in the favor of the lady stood Enos, who, despite his physical peculiarities, was of the true heart and sterling qualities bound to appeal to the cultured mind.

But there were others in the firm ranks. And not the least to be reckoned with was the village postmaster, Hob Sanders. Hob was young and ambitious and in his coffers were many glittering almoleons. The postmaster had a measly eye, to offset his money, and a petty meanness when it came to offering up sacrifices to his goddess. He was an earnest advocate of substitution. If Miss Olga naively signified a preference for Cuffer's Delicious Chocolates, Hob saved three cents by buying her a pound of Cuffer's Delightful Chocolates—an article pronounced by the grocer-confectioner of the town to be just as good.

Parties were the popular social cruse in Primtown and in the midst of Miss Olga's entrance into the polite and exclusive society of the community both the untrained Enos and Hob were devoted attendants at these simple social functions.

Enos, in fact, originated several conceits in the fun line himself and they proved popular because they smacked of more love-making than some of the older entertainments.

After one of these vitally interesting periods of drop-the-handkerchief, postoffice and going to Jerusalem, the infatuated Enos met his divinity on the street. It was Saturday, consequently the girl had no school, and the inventive youth invited her over to Dobbs' Drug Emporium to test Dobbs' Imperial ice cream soda.

Miss Olga demurred.

She pleaded an excuse the presence of an excruciating headache, one of which, she furthermore elucidated, invariably followed the little parties like unto the one of the night before.

Now, at this time Hob Sanders and Enos Smikes were running neck and neck in the race for the popular teacher's affections. Hob had money in the bank and the local government insecure—the postoffice—while, on the other hand, Enos was the Primtown representative of the Purethan Insurance company and was the proud and exalted foreman of the Phoenix Fire company—the volunteer organization of the town.

When Miss Olga spoke of headaches it opened the floodgates of recollection in the tanning idea factory of Enos and it occurred to him that a sure cure headache pill had been the latest goal to which he had aspired before his infatuation for the girl had weaned him away from his craze.

He now saw a chance to achieve fame and dissipate the pretensions of his rival by one well-organized move.

He hastily excused himself.

For several days Enos was conspicuously absent from the side of his lady love.

The lady, possibly in a spirit of revenge at the unwonted desertion, encouraged Hob and before the absentee's return the postmaster was on the point of proposal with excellent chances of being accepted.

Enos appeared with an excuse for his long absence.

"Miss Olga," he began. He was calling at her boarding house. "I have here in my hand the Smikes Headache Eradicator, over which I have labored since you told me you suffered with headaches. It is safe. It is sane. I can guarantee it."

"How much do you charge?" asked Miss Olga, sweetly.

A look of pain crept into the straw-colored eyes of the inventor.

"It—it is for you that I have done all this," he protested, brokenly. "Not for wage nor hire." Overcome by his emotions, the young man placed his precious box on the table and left the house, terribly wounded.

Miss Olga really thought a great deal of Enos. After he was gone she opened the pill box gingerly and cast a reflective eye upon the egg-like pellets.

"Truly Enos is far from stingy," she ruminated. "He would make a good provider and—and sometimes I believe I like him best—but no! I mustn't deviate. Hob will propose tonight and I shall accept him." She sighed a little.

Plainly the girl was not furiously in love with Hob. She picked a pellet from the box and swallowed it, another followed—and still another.

The jangling ring of the doorbell preceded Hob into the stuffy sitting-room. Hob was all hands and feet. If possible he was homelier than Enos.

The secret of the newly arrived's undue haste lay in the fact that his cunning eyes had rested on his rival as the latter came from the shrine of their mutual goddess.

Hob, as the instinct of the girl had told her, had something to say and now that Enos was again abroad in the land he wanted to say it quickly.

Miss Olga surveyed the postmaster indifferently.

"Take a chair," she said, politely, and, with an evident effort, stifled a yawn. Hob noted this. It didn't inspire him to flowery heights of eloquence, but it did hasten his proposal.

"Miss Olga," he began, "I know I am unworthy, but I love you." With this overture he dashed hastily into a carefully prepared speech about his money saved and his prospects for the near future. It was a vitally interesting subject to Hob. Consequently he was surprised when he had completed his speech, at the strange silence that greeted this question, "Will you become my wife?"

He peered at the girl keenly. Horrors! She was—asleep.

With tears of outraged dignity in his eyes, Hob picked up his hat and left for home.

It took the landlady and her two robust sons an hour to wake the sleeping school-teacher.

The next night Enos proposed and was accepted.

No one knew that the juvenile brother of the eminent inventor had substituted Papa Smikes' insomnia cure for the carefully compiled drug of the lovesick Enos.

And no one cared.

Clung to Primitive Methods.

Consul Wallace of Jerusalem, writes as follows of agricultural methods of today in Palestine: "The land is rented and farmed in a primitive way, which is unprofitable to both landlord and tenant alike. The lands are rented for one-third of the crop produced. After the harvest the grain is immediately threshed. The tithes, or government tax, are first taken, which are one-tenth of the whole crop, and then the remainder is divided, the landlord receiving his one-third share. The farmer has generally pledged a good portion of the expected crop, virtually selling it at a greatly reduced price for the purpose of securing money in advance for his necessities. If grain is $1 a bushel, on an advance to him of $100 he will agree to deliver to the party who advances the money 150 or 160 bushels of grain after the harvest. Should the crop fail it is carried over to the next, but under a new contract in which 30 per cent. is added to the original amount."

GIRL LEAVES MANLESS TOWN

Damsel Finds Life Unbearable at Sag Harbor on Account of Lack of Unmarried Men.

New York.—According to Miss Carrie Markel, the unmarried male population of Sag Harbor, L. I., is a negligible quantity. She has lived there for 18 years and thinks she ought to know something about it. Things got so slow there for a girl of spirit and ambition that she left for New York without stopping for her parents' blessing.

Her egg money that she had saved all winter for the expenses of the trip gave out in a short time, so she walked into an office on Broad street looking for a job. Now, an old Sag Harborite, a Mr. Bowman, is employed in that office, and her mother had written him several times to be on the look-out for her runaway daughter. He engaged the girl in conversation while the police were summoned to take charge of her.

Miss Markel said that she was over 18, and therefore not a child under the law. Mr. Bowman said that she was the same age as his sister, who will be 18 years old in June. So the girl spent the afternoon in the station-house until her brother came up from Sag Harbor to take her home.

In the interval she confided to Lieutenant Bergman that life in Sag Harbor for a young woman who likes a good time is not so pleasant as it may appear on the surface. To Miss Markel's way of thinking it is a very barren existence.

"Why, do you know," she said in a burst of confidence, "there's only one fellow in that town!"

"Yes," she added, as Lieutenant Bergman displayed interest in this sad state of affairs in Sag Harbor, "and he's married."

IN WHITE AND BLUE FOULARD

New and Extremely Effective Idea in One of the Latest Costumes Noticed.

There is a blue poplin foulard gown with a white dot in it, bordered by an elaborate blue and white design. This has a skirt laid in fine accordion plaits from hips to hem, and is finished with the border. There is an overskirt tightly pulled around the hips, edged with the border and finished in a panel of side plaits at back that hang loose for ten inches over the skirt.

The bodice is on the Russian style, with slight fulness gathered into the border which goes around the neck and down the back of a rather wide elbow sleeve.

The latter is plaited into the border and hangs loose over a slightly full sleeve of white Swiss, which is put into three inches of the blue border at the wrist and fastened over with dull red buttons.

The bodice is fastened down the left side with white cord and dull red buttons placed on two strips of the border, with a quarter-inch of plaited white Swiss showing between.

There is a shallow yoke and high stock of Swiss edged with lace. The belt is of the border and is fastened with a round gilt buckle enameled in dull red.

Marvelous Discoveries

mark the wonderful progress of the age. Air flights on heavy machines, telegrams without wires, terrible war inventions to kill men, and that wonder of wonders—Dr. King's New Discovery—to save life when threatened by coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup, bronchitis, hemorrhages, hay fever and whooping cough or lung trouble. For all bronchial affectio s it has no equal. It relieves instantly. Its the surest cure. James M. Black of Asheville, N. C., R. R. No. 4, writes it cured him of an obstinate cough after all other remedies had failed. 50c. and $1.00. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co.

A Constipation Remedy Free

There is no action of your daily life of greater importance than to see that your bowels move. They should move at least once a day naturally, and by that is meant without any help. If they do not move at least once a day you can consider yourself constipated and it is time you did something about it.

You will be glad to know there is a way out of the difficulty. Lemuel Landenslein, an old soldier at Quincy, Ill., Elmer McMillian, of Sparrell, Me., Mrs. Monahan, of Stonewall, Miss., and many others were as you are now. But one day they awoke to the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin was curing their friends, so they bought it too and it cured them. Today they are loud in praise of it.

What Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin did for them it should do for you. Surely your constipation is no worse than theirs, one of whom had it since '61. It only remains for you to realize that salts are of but temporary good, and what you want is a permanent cure; that purgative tablets, cathartic pills and such violent things make a great show of doing something, but do nothing that is lasting. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientific prescription, a laxative-tonic, a mild syrupy liquid that contains ingredients that not only cure the constipation, but tone the intestinal muscles so that they learn again to work without help. A bottle can be bought of any druggist for the small price of 50 cents, and there is a dollar size for families who have already found out its wonderful value in stomach, liver and bowel troubles, in old or young.

Send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you so that you can test it before buying.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

BAPTIZED IN CRYPT CHAPEL

Unique Honor Accorded Infant Born Within Precincts of British Parliamentary Palace.

Two years ago a "crypt christening" took place in Great Britain's parliamentary palace, at which Archdeacon Wilberforce, chaplain to the house of commons, officiated. This christening (by virtue of a privilege granted originally by the pope to Edward III.) took place in the parliamentary crypt chapel.

The infant baptized was the child of Mr. Bradshaw, the resident engineer, and was born within the precincts of the royal palace at Westminster. It was this fact which brought the baby within the privileges of the old papal grant (still preserved in the record office) by which the pope presented a college of priests for his "new chapel of St. Stephen's" and also a font, in which the children of the royal family, as well as any other children born within Westminster palace, might be baptized.

The last case of the kind, says the Strand, was a christening in the family of Viscount Selby when he was speaker; indeed there have been only three cases within the last century in which the privilege has been exercised by virtue of birth within the precincts of the parliamentary palace.

Making a Good Job of It.

Roy E. Tyler, the engineering expert, said in the course of an address on the Panama canal: "Much of the adverse criticism of the canal is unscientific, ridiculous. It makes me think of a faker I heard the other day. The man was selling hair grower. He said: 'Yes, gents, one bottle of this unrivaled hair grower will raise a rich, luxuriant crop of hair on the baldest head in the crowd. But let me give you this one word of warning.' Here he paused to pocket a half dollar and hand a bottle of the liquid to a baldheaded. 'My warning is—do not neglect, when the full head of hair is grown, to take the last dose in the bottle internally.' 'That is, swallow it.' 'Swallow it!' 'What for?' the buyer asked. 'To clinch the roots,' was the reply.

COMMITTEES IN LOCAL UNIONS

Strongest Working Force in Life of Organization and Should Be Strongest of Men.

One of the strongest working forces in the life of the local union is the agricultural committee. This committee should be composed of a number of the strongest men of the local, and should all be good farmers. No local should be without such a committee, writes L. W. Jarman in Southern Farmer. The plan was first suggested by the state agricultural committee and they have continually urged that every local have such a working committee.

If any local union has not appointed such a committee, it should do so at once and put it to work.

A few suggestions as to the duties of this committee might be to the point. There have been a few inquiries as to what was expected of them. The committee should by its influence cause all the interest in the local meetings to center around the question of good farming. Farmers are always interested in farming. By making the question of better farming the live issue in the local meetings, better attendance will be had at these meetings, and by just such work a dead or dying local can be revived.

A program should always be mapped out by this committee at least two weeks ahead. Farming questions of immediate interest should always be discussed at these meetings. The regular discussions could be followed up by experience meetings along farming lines.

Another field of work may be found in the offering of prizes in counties for the best acre of corn, cotton, etc. Such a contest in our own local brought in reports last year of 100 bushels of oats, 75 bushels of corn and other yields in proportion. What once the interest of a neighborhood is aroused on the subject of better farming, no stimulus is needed to keep up enthusiasm. When once the farmers of a community get started on the up-hill road of farming, they always keep going. All they need is the start. This the local union can give through the workings of its agricultural committee.

This committee should also have charge the question of agreement among the members as to the acreage to be devoted to each farm crop. They could also pledge every member of the local to farm with one idea in view before all else, namely, to raise food crops sufficient for his family and stock, and plant his surplus acreage in cotton. These names should all be kept for future reference and a report of his success or failure required of every member at the end of the year.

There is no limit to the usefulness of this committee work if it be thoroughly carried out. The union must organize the fact that it has a work to do right at home.

Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union of America

Matters of Especial Moment to the Progressive Agriculturist

Some very large trees bear very lit tle fruit.

Whisking at sin will soon ruin the eyesight.

The plow would not go deep enough if the team had anything to say about it.

The spider probably thinks the bee is fooling away his time in making honey.

Cover the earth with flowers the year round and the bees would soon quit work.

The farmers are right and can bring results if they will only stand together as one man.

There should be reciprocity in all our dealings. That is part of the co-operative plan.

Map out a scheme for your whole farm, indicate the crops to go in each field with due regard to the value of rotation.

Going to take a hand in the garden yourself this spring? Good, the wife ought not to be allowed to do all the hard work.

Some men disdain garden and poultry work because they are puttering labor—but they do not putter when they are putting away new peas, fresh eggs and spring chickens at the table.

Ever figure out what percentage of profit you are receiving from the money and labor invested in the farm? The business man of the city knows this about his business and the business man on the farm should do so.

The business world has long since recognized that the Galveston plan originated by the Farmers' union in Texas is the true solution of the cotton problem. The business men of Texas and Oklahoma cotton regions have adopted the best plan for handling their cotton.

COMMITTEES IN LOCAL UNION

Strongest Working Force in Life of Organization and Should Be Strongest of Men.

One of the strongest working forces in the life of the local union is the agricultural committee. This committee should be composed of a number of the strongest men of the local, and should all be good farmers. No local should be without such a committee, writes I. W. Jarman in Southern Cultivator. The plan was first suggested by the state agricultural committee, and they have continually urged that every local have such a working committee.

If any local union has not appointed such a committee, it should do so at once and put it to work.

A few suggestions as to the duties of this committee might be to the point. There have been a few inquiries as to what was expected of them. This committee should by its influence cause all the interest in the local meetings to center around the question of good farming. Farmers are always interested in farming. By making the question of better farming a live issue in the local meetings, better attendance will be had at these meetings, and by just such work a dead or dying local can be revived.

A program should always be mapped out by this committee at least two weeks ahead. Farming questions of immediate interest should always be discussed at these meetings. These regular discussions could be followed up by experience meetings along farming lines.

Another field of work may be found in the offering of prizes in contests for the best acre of corn, cotton, hay, etc. Such a contest in our own local brought in reports last year of 77 bushels of oats, 75 bushels of corn, and other yields in proportion. When once the interest of a neighborhood is aroused on the subject of better farming, no stimulus is needed to keep up enthusiasm. When once the farmers of a community get started on the up-hill road of farming, they always keep going. All they need is the start. This the local union may give through the workings of its agricultural committee.

These names should all be kept for future reference and a report of his success or failure required of every member at the end of the year.

There is no limit to the usefulness of this committee work if it be faithfully carried out. The union must recognize the fact that it has a work to do right at home.

The Parable of the Tares

Sunday School Lesson for June 26, 1910

Especially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Matthew 13:24-30, 37-43. Memory verses, 37, 38.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father."—Matt. 13:43.

TIME.—Autumn of A. D. 28.

PLACE.—On the shore of the Sea of Galilee, probably not far from Capernaum.

Suggestion and Practical Thought.

This parable helped the disciples to understand some problems that continually presented themselves in their thoughts about the kingdom of heaven. It is a picture of the contending forces of good and evil in the world, and the victory of the good.

The Good Seed.—Vs. 24, 37, 38. "The kingdom of heaven" is the kingdom which has its origin in heaven, and which Jesus as king came to establish on earth; in which the laws of heaven are obeyed on earth, so that earth becomes like heaven.

The Sower of the Good Seed.—Vs. 24, 37. The man represents the "Son of Man," through whom God was manifest in the seed sowing. He is the source of all good seed. He began in the Garden of Eden, and has been sowing ever since. Every good man, wherever found, is a child of God, born from above by the Spirit, and made alive with the life of God.

The Field Sown.—Vs. 24, 38. "The field is the world." It is not the church, but the whole world; not Christian lands, but all lands in which the true church is the good seed. "In his field." The whole world belongs rightfully to Christ. The sowing of tares is a usurpation. Christ "came unto his own."

The Good Seed.—Vs. 24, 38. "The good seed are the children of the kingdom," those who in heart belong to the kingdom, are filled with its spirit, and strive to live according to its principles.

God's children are good seed, living seed. The principle of life, of increase is in them. Dead seeds do not increase. A dead church does not grow; and this is fortunate, for neither God nor man desires an increase of that kind of Christians or churches.

There is a great variety of good seed adapted to all seasons and all circumstances, producing different kinds of fruit at different times.

But remember that Christians are planted as well as sown, planted where God desires them to be, "by the streams of water" (Isa. 1:3).

The Enemy Sowing Tares Among the Wheat.—Vs. 25, 28, 39. "While men slept," that is, secretly, when the good did not realize what was going on, any more than a sleeping person could. The beginnings of evil are often scarcely discernible. The young often begin courses of evil, as unconscious of its tendencies and outcome, as if they were sound asleep.

"His Enemy."—The wicked one, the devil (vs. 38, 39). He was the original source of evil among men. The story is truly told in Genesis. God is not the author of sin either at first, nor at any time since. Everything God does is toward making men good.

"The tares are the children of the wicked one," filled with his spirit, living according to his principles, and under his control. They are not a degenerate form of virtue, but as distinct as virtue and vice. They often resemble the good till the fruit begins to appear, but they are as different as wheat and tares, as thistles and roses.

The Wheat and Tares Growing Together.—Vs. 26-30. "Let both grow together until the harvest." Because at first it is very difficult to distinguish between the wheat and the tares. The tares are counterfeit wheat. Because when the distinction is clearer, there is danger lest "while ye gather up the tares, ye root up also the wheat with them," for the roots of the two are interlaced together.

It is absolutely necessary before the grain is used in the harvest, "to avoid the mingling of the kernels of the darnel and the wheat lest the bread be poisoned.

The Harvest. The Fate of the Tares.—Vs. 30, 39-42. "Let both grow together until the harvest, which takes place at "the end of the world" (v. 39), or age.

"Say to the reapers . . . the angels" (v. 39), (Matt. 16:27; 24:31; 2 Thes. 1:7); any beings or powers which accomplish this work.

"To burn them." So as to destroy their power of evil, and to keep them from spreading. "They shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend" (v. 41), that cause others to stumble in the path of righteousness.

The Harvest. The Blessedness of the Righteous.—Vs. 30, 43. "Then, when separated from evil, "shall the righteous shine forth as the sun." Here are found hope and cheer amid times of opposition and the flourishing of evil. Make the evil help the good.

Christians themselves are educated and disciplined by contact with the tares. They would not be nearly so good if shut off in a community by themselves. Tares would still come in. If the wheat does not seek to change the tares into wheat, the wheat will degenerate into tares. This is always so when good people would fence themselves in from all contact with the world, whether by monasteries and convents, or by exclusiveness of churches, or neglect of missionary work. As Professor Bowne says: "Character cannot be developed regardless of activities of life."

PROBLEM OF SELLING COTTON

Conditions That Will Make It Possible to Market Staple Slowly, or as Demand Requires.

It is well to consider every issue fairly, and we should be just to all. We are apt to consider our side without giving consideration to the other.

There is a condition which bears heavily upon southern banks, and forces sales of cotton. This is misfortune, and not fault. To handle crops is a tremendous undertaking, and that they are handled so well is wonderful. Were the commodity less available, it would be impossible. The demand for money with which to handle cotton, taxes the resources of banks to the utmost. This demand and necessity forces collections, and requires that loans be made on "fall time." Were the time made otherwise, there would be disaster.

Yet, "fall time" is itself pressure for sales of cotton.

To take from usual channels the money with which to handle crops, is to increase pressure. The thing runs in a circle. Loans must be called in because sales will be made; and sales must be made because loans must be called in.

Sales to merchants must be made on "fall time," because then cotton is sold and then they have money; and they must sell on "fall time," because their own paper matures at "fall time." This runs in a circle, or a sort of endless chain of necessity and demand.

The situation leaves little opportunity for individual election, writes Lee Young, in Farm and Ranch. Pressure makes sales, and sales make pressure.

To break the circle of demand and pressure, changes in time are needed. So long as this continues, cotton must be sold; and so long as it is sold, this must continue.

The ultimate solution must rest with banks and the mercantile community. With them a solution is possible, only to the extent that cotton is security, and only to the margin of safety.

It avails nothing to condemn for a condition which has come without fault. It behooves us to solve the problem, and before it may be solved, there must be fullest consideration.

We repeat the statement, that solution must begin with banks and the mercantile community. Nor must the impossible be expected. The "fall time" system imposes immense burdens, and demand for money made by rapid sale, makes such demand that banks stagger under the load. With millions of the best security, southern banks are often sorely pressed for money.

A commodity will be security for loans only to the extent that it is safe against fluctuations. As cotton prices fluctuate, banks must take this into consideration, and loans can be made only to such amounts as are reasonably below probable values.

To find relief from necessity for rapid sales, it is necessary that there should be a system of loans with cotton as security. The extent of loans must depend upon the amount of the crop, and the law of supply and demand cannot be ignored.

The old style bale must go. It is a relic of a time when we knew no better. The objections to it are so many that they need not be recounted. The bale should not exceed 250 pounds, and should be wrapped in cotton and waterproof paper. It should be so secure from the weather that it may be in water, and yet remain dry.

The waterproof bale is the only secure one, when we consider all conditions of transportation and storage.

With such protection, and with warehouses properly constructed and managed, and bonded, and with such classification as should make buyers secure, cotton would be the best possible security.

Then it would be possible to market cotton slowly, and as demand continued; and bulk sales would also be practicable.

Setting Turkeys.

I build a wire coop of sufficient size to accommodate the hen. This is placed on the ground and the turkey put in the middle of it. On top I put cedar brush to make shade. Plenty of feed, water and grit are given, and the turkey allowed to be alone. The coop is six feet on the sides and at least two feet high. When the poults hatch the corners of the coop are lifted, after the dew is off, and the young ones allowed to run. In the evening the little fellows are shut in to keep out vermin. At first they are fed bread crumbs, boiled eggs and meat crumbled together, after being mixed with water or milk and squeezed dry. When a month old they are allowed to roam with a turkey, but encouraged to be at home in the evening by being fed regularly an hour or so before sundown, says a writer in Baltimore American. Usually the turkey hens will not come home of their own accord unless educated in this way.

Raising Ducks.

Get the best stock you can afford. A drake and four or five ducks will give a fine start. A duck will lay about 150 eggs during the season. They begin in March and lay nearly every day until August.

During the laying season give them comfortable quarters at night and do not let them out of their inclosure until eight or nine o'clock in the morning, as by that time they will have laid. Ducks make such poor mothers that it is better to hatch their eggs under hens or in incubators.

The Cold Young Lawyer.

Mrs. Sol Smith, the veteran actress whose eightieth birthday was celebrated by a dinner of the Professional Women's league in New York, said of the modern spirit at this dinner:

"The modern spirit is more mercenary than the spirit of the fifties. I know a very beautiful girl—in my day she'd have been married off at eighteen—but, though she is now twenty-five, her matrimonial prospects are dark and gloomy.

"At a tea I pointed the beautiful creature out to a young lawyer and said:

"'There's nothing sweeter and lovelier than that girl in America. Why don't you try for her hand?'

"'What has she got in it?' the young lawyer coldly answered."

He Had Been Easy.

Francis Wilson, at the Players' club in New York, lamented the heavy losses that a brother actor had sustained on Wall street.

"Too bad!" said Mr. Wilson. "Poor Betterton! Why, the Wall street men are all laughing at him.

"A couple of Wall street men were golfing the other day on Long Island. They decided to name the holes on the course.

"'And what shall we call the first hole?' the older man asked.

"'Call it Jack Betterton,' the other answered, chuckling.

"'Why call it that?'

"'Oh, because,' was the reply, 'it's so easy to do.'"

CENSUS TAKER AND ANOTHER

Slight Misunderstanding That Arose Where Two Men Called on Housewife at Once.

The door bell rings and the housewife opens the door to find there two men.

"I am the census man, madam," says the man in front, "and I have called to take the census."

"You will have to see my husband at his office," the housewife says, "and talk with him."

"Well, madam," the census man says, "I think I will leave the blank with you and ask you or him to fill it in and I will call again." With that he hands her the blank and passes on, while she closes the door.

A moment later another ring, and this time when the housewife goes to the door she finds still standing there the other man who had stood back of the census man when she first opened the door, and now to this man she says:

"Well, what do you want?"

"Madam," says this man, "I am the new minister."

By just one chance in a million he had reached this door just one foot behind the census man and there he had stood while the census man was talking, and naturally enough she had thought he was with him; but the new minister she asked in.

Hurrah! for The Banner—long may it wave
In this land of the free and the home of the brave!
Keep with the music, keep up with the dance.
The Union Press has brought forth a Free Lance.

Clanton is rapidly becoming a city beautiful—the latest improvement being a grass plat in front of the Kicker building, between the pavement and the curb. The Gamble Hardware Company have a similar plat in front of their store, which is carefully kept neat by a lawn mower. These embellishments greatly improve the appearance of the town.

A pretty plateful of perfect plums was pleasantly presented to the printers of The Banner who are particularly partial to this palatable fruit, and without palaver they proceeded to put the pampered package away in a jealous period, partly because the participants preferred to leave the pabulum in a passive and speechless way, patronizing without pause this peculiar, peerless, perishable prunes. They were plum good and were a pleasing present from John B. Farley, who procured them from his own place and promises to preserve them by the peck. Please pardon poor pilgarlic.

The Republican pow wow, called mass convention was held on last Monday at Thorsby. A set of resolutions already prepared endorsing Hon. J. O. Thompson were adopted. Only a very few of the old Republican party of the county were in evidence—the audience being composed in the main, of Populists and old time Alliance men. A resolution was also passed requesting B. Pounds to resign the office of assessor.

A Smash-up.

Last Saturday evening, when coming home from the ball game, the tongue of the buggy driver by R. L. Marcus broke, causing the horse to run away, demolishing the buggy and throwing out the four occupants—R. L. Marcus, Cleve Giles, Lomer Giles and Obie Mask. Mr. Marcus suffered the greatest injury and was carried home in a bad way, with his jaw broken in two places. Cleve Giles was rendered unconscious for about half an hour and had his face bruised somewhat, while the other two escaped hurt.

Thorsby

Editor Banner:—Please give me room in the columns of the good Banner to say a few words.

Mr. Cox, in the Union, cuts a figure through. He says he is Democrat, but will support L. H. R. for judge. I don't think he is. I believe he straddle of the fence or between the big house and the kitchen.

Mr. Cox estimates L. H. R. far above himself. He says L. H. R. does not flop from one side to the other. What are you doing, Mr. Cox? You surely are getting a slice from over the counter or you surely could not recommend L. H. R so highly, and at the same time claim to be a Democrat.

I am sure from your letter that you was an amendment man. If the man, whom you recommend so highly, is so near a saviour, or so pure and clean, why you ought to vote him for the next president of the U. S. I am sure Mr. Mahan's race have met with the approval of a greater number of voters than you have.

We can't afford to turn down men who stood by us in the amendment fight and helped us to down the worst thing that ever faced the people of Alabama, and elect a man who did all in his power to have it defeated.

I suppose L. H. R. has backed off from Mr. Mahan. He is getting close to him. Just keep cool, L. H. R., don't let him blind you. If you will keep coming you may get a reward of your life some, but hold has not yet been told.

A pretty plateful of perfect plums was pleasantly presented to the printers of The Banner who are particularly partial to this palatable fruit, and without paliver they proceeded to put the pampered package away in a portious period, partly because the participants preferred to pass the pabulum in a passive and passionless way, patronizing without pause this peculiar, peerless, perishable product. They were plum good and were a pleasing present from John B Farley, who procured them from his own place and promises to preserve them by the peck. Please pardon poor pilgarlic.

The Republican pow wow, called a mass convention was held on last Monday at Thorsby. A set of resolutions already prepared endorsing Mr. J. O. Thompson were adopted. Only a very few of the old Republican party of the county were in evidence—the audience being composed in the main, of Populists and old old time Alliance men. A resolution was also passed requesting J. B. Pounds to resign the office of tax assessor.

A Smash-up.

Last Saturday evening, when coming home from the ball game, the tongue of the buggy driver by Mr. R. L. Marcus broke, causing the horse to run away, demolishing the buggy and throwing out the four occupants—R. L. Marcus, Cleve Giles, Lamer Giles and Obie Mann. Mr. Marcus suffered the greatest injury and was carried home in bad way, with his jaw broken in two places. Cleve Giles was rendered unconscious for about half an hour and had his face bruised somewhat, while the other two escaped hurt.

Editor Banner:—Please give me space in the columns of the good old Banner to say a few words.

Mr. Cox, in the Union, cuts a mighty figure through. He says he is Democrat, but will support L. H. R. for judge. I don't think he can be, straddle of the fence or between the big house and the kitchen.

He estimates L. H. R. far above himself. He says L. H. R. does flip from one side to the other. What are you doing, Mr. Cox? You surely are getting a slice from the pie counter or you surely could not recommend L. H. R so highly, and at the same time claim to be a Democrat.

I am sure from your letter that you was an amendment man. If a man, whom you recommend so highly, is so near a saviour, or so pure and clean, why you ought to vote him for the next president of the U. S. I am sure Mr. Mahan's views have met with the approval of a greater number of voters than you have.

We can't afford to turn down the men who stood by us in the amendment fight and helped us to down the worst thing that ever faced the people of Alabama, and elect a man who did all in his power to have it defeated.

I suppose L. H. R. has backed off from Mr. Mahan. He is getting close to him. Just keep coming L. H. R., don't let him bluff you. If you will keep coming you will get a record of your life soon, the half has not yet been told.

Death of Bro. R. W. Gandy.

On Monday, June 20, the death angel visited our midst and took away Bro. R. W. Gandy, aged 49.

Mr. Gandy was born and reared near Stanton in Chilton county, where he lived all of his life until four years ago. He was one of the most prominent farmers of that section, a man that was faithful to his neighbors, a loyal supporter to his county, to his school and above all an honest and faithful man to his church and Sunday school. He was loved and honored by all who knew him. He moved to Birmingham four years ago, where he was engaged in business until his death. During his short stay in Birmingham he won for himself a host of friends both in business and home affairs. The funeral services were conducted at his home near Pauderly station on the morning of June 21 by Rev. W. B. Woodall, assisted by the writer, and the remains were laid to rest at the Elmwood cemetery at West End, Birmingham.

Mr. Gandy was a member of the Woodmen of the World fraternity. His loyalty among his friends here was shown by the great crowds that came to pay the last respects to the deceased one, and to hear the last words that might be spoken of him. During the funeral services, the casket was covered by some of the most beautiful flowers that Birmingham could afford. He leaves to mourn his death a wife, two daughters, a son-in-law, four brothers, one sister and a host of friends, yet we all remember that God has given and that He has taken, blessed be the name of the Lord.

A face and form so much beloved
Has vanished from our sight,
And hearts are left in sadness—
We wonder why 'twas right.
His deeds were pure and kindly,
His voice was sweet and low;
A flower from God's own garden—
That's why we loved him so.
Prepare for him oh, Father,
A mansion in the skies.
Where reunited with the loved,
He can dwell in Paradise.

Well, I noticed in the last week's Banner that a loving friend from Pinedale was asking about the Blue Eyed Girl of this place and I just want to say that if she don't care any more about the Blue Eyed Girl than the Blue Eyed Girl does about her I don't guess it will worry her brain much.

Well, I will close, wishing the Banner and its many readers much success and may come again if this misses the waste basket.

Editor Banner:—Please allow me to endorse the article in last week's Banner in regard to our postmaster, Mr. J. B. Gray. Now, Mr. Gray was falsely accused, and it has been found by the postoffice department. Wish to say for him that there could not be a nicer or more accomodating man found to fill the office, he discharges the duties of the office in an impartial manner without regard to faiths or color, and in a satisfactory manner. This is unsolicited by Mr. Gray and I only do it that he may be righted in the public press of the county. Respectfully,

HOKE SMITH HAS ENTERED THE RACE

Will Be Candidate For Governor of Georgia.

Former Governor Hoke Smith will oppose Governor Joseph M. Brown in the race for Governor of Georgia.

HON. HOKE SMITH.

Once more the leaders of the two wings of the democratic party in this state will clash in political combat and will submit their differences to the judgment of the people.

Once more the issues over which the present chief executive flew the flag of triumph in 1908 will be threshed out before the public and brought to final solution at the polls.

Former Governor Smith has declared pointedly and emphatically that he is in the race for governor. Immediately after he announced his decision to make the race, Judge H. H. Perry, of Gainesville, who has been in the field with the flag which Governor Smith carried in 1906 and 1908, informed the latter that he had retired from the race in his favor, leaving the issue to be fought out by the acknowledged leaders of the two political divisions in the state.

Governor Smith's decision to make the race for governor against Governor Brown was made after he had issued two separate statements declaring that he could not make the race because of personal reasons which he did not discuss, and it was made after persistent urging on the part of his friends during the past two days that he should again become a candidate.

JOSEPH M. BROWN.

Following the reading of Governor Brown's message in the legislature Wednesday great pressure was brought to bear upon the former chief executive by his supporters in the legislature and out of it, who told him that Governor Brown's demand for a repeal of the registration law and for other legislation to which the former governor is opposed, made it imperative for him to take the field in defense of those principles. Yielding to these arguments the former governor decided to enter the race.

FLIGHT AT NIGHT.

Sensational Performance of Aviator Hamilton.

Charles K. Hamilton has made a sensational flight at Nashville, Tenn. He boldly took his biplane into the air after darkness had fallen, flying for eighteen minutes through inky space while 10,000 people at the Fair Grounds stood aghast at his daring. It was the longest flight he has made here, and as his manager, Mr. Young, expressed it, "it marks a new era in aviation."

The attempt was unannounced, and the spectators hardly knew what was happening until the great bird-like figure had shown itself far above the myriads of electric lights at the grounds and disappeared into blackness.

Suddenly it reappeared, and three times Hamilton thrilled the awe-struck spectators by dipping in front of the grand stand until he almost touched the rows of lights stretched across the track, and then skimming along just above them. He even dipped under the wires, and finally came to earth on the track directly in front of the cheering thousands.

NEGRO BURNED BLACK.

Negro, Charged With Murder of Young Woman, Taken From Sheriff.

Leonard Johnson, a negro charged with having killed Miss Maud Redding, a young woman, near Rusk, Tex., was burned at the stake by a mob near the scene of the crime.

Sheriff Norwood and a posse were en route to Rusk with the negro when they were overpowered by a mob at Lone Star, near the home of the murdered woman.

Securing the frightened negro who was pleading for his life, the mob, composed of more than 150 men and boys, dragged him a short distance from the town. There, it is stated, he confessed he had not only murdered, but assaulted Miss Redding.

The negro was then tied to a stake and after brush had been piled high around him, the torch was applied. Disregarding the pleadings of Johnson, the fire was fed until he was dead. After this the mob quietly dispersed.

The murder of Miss Redding was one of the most brutal in the history of Texas. She had left her home en route to Lone Star, about noon. Two hours later, her body with her throat cut from ear to ear, was found in a dense wood, a short distance from the town. Following the finding of the young woman's body, bloodhounds were put on the trail. The dogs immediately took up the scent, following it until the negro was captured.

MR. TAFT ELATED OVER LEGISLATION

President Pleased at the Work Done by Congress.

In a signed statement in the Cincinnati Times-Star, President Taft is quoted as saying:

"I am elated at the legislation which has been enacted by this congress. It has fulfilled the pledges of the party. It is a great satisfaction to me that we have accomplished so much. It has been the custom in the past to try to fulfill the party pledges during the term of the president elected; we have secured what we set out to get during the first regular session of congress.

"We now have the best railroad regulating law we ever had. The provisions for the supervision of capitalization were omitted, but this does not mean that they have been abandoned. Renewed effort to enact them will be made at the next session.

"I think the party in power has enacted legislation which will inure greatly to its benefit. It has kept its contract. The congress which is now closing its first regular session has done what it promised the people to do and the Republican party has a good record to take to the people in the coming elections."

OVER BILLION SPENT.

Expenditures by the Last American Congress.

More than a billion dollars was appropriated at the present session of congress, if continuing appropriations are incorporated in the totals of the general appropriation measures.

Definite figures concerning the appropriations will be issued from the house and senate committees within a few days. Insofar as the figures could be obtained, from measures which underwent changes in the last hours of the session, the total of the appropriations exclusive of continuing appropriations was $894,086,943. The amount of the continuing appropriations for the last fiscal year was about $160,000,000. It is safe to say that it will not be less for the next fiscal year, and the grand total therefore will aggregate at least $1,354,006,000.

The appropriation measures for the fiscal years 1909-10, exclusive of continuing appropriations, carried $883,918,215, while those of the fiscal year of 1908-09 carried $854,208,248.

The boasts of congressional leaders that fully $50,000,000 would be saved in the appropriations for the next fiscal year were not realized.

STORY OF PROSPERITY.

More Money Earned by Georgia Railroads Than Ever Before.

A glance at the advance sheets of the report of the Georgia Railroad Commission, now in the press, shows that the railroads of the state earned more money during the last fiscal year than in any year during their history.

The same story of prosperity is told by the returns from all classes of public utility corporations. Railroad mileage increased; cotton compresses made nearly a half million dollars; street railway, light and power companies have made $2,600,000.

The telephone companies made practically $1,000,000 over and above their operating expenses.

Every indication points to the fact that the wheels of industry are whirring faster than ever, that railroad construction work is being resumed at a rapid rate and that improvements and betterments are fast being made.

HARMON NAMED FOR THE PRESIDENCY

Ohio Democracy's Candidate For 1912.

The democratic party of Ohio goes into the state campaign this fall with Judson Harmon as its candidate for governor and president. The democratic state convention indorsed him in the strongest terms for the presidency of the United States after it had renominated him for governor by acclamation.

The belief is held by many delegates that the governor will resign shortly after the beginning of his new term, in order to become a candidate before the next democratic national convention.

The following resolution, presented by the committee on resolutions, was adopted by the convention, indorsing Governor Harmon for the presidency in 1912.

"We invite the attention of the nation to Judson Harmon and the work he is doing for Ohio. Two years hence it will have been completed, then we can spare him for higher duties. He believes that guilt is personal—is acting on that belief at home, and would act upon it in larger fields. A high sense of duty provides his only motives for official actions, and his sense of justice alone compels judgment. Firmness and strength mark him the man to supplant vacillation and weakness. The nation needs a real man, and the Ohio democracy presents and indorses for the presidency in 1912 Judson Harmon."

Governor Harmon made a futile request of the resolutions committee that they may omit the presidential endorsement, saying that he is making his present fight on state issues, and did not want national issues injected into the coming campaign. He was told that it could not be prevented.

CONFESSES WIFE MURDER.

Porter Charlton Arrested As He Stepped From Ocean Liner.

Porter Charlton, husband of Mary Scott Castle Charlton whose body was found stuffed in a trunk which was taken from Lake Como, Italy, recently, was arrested as he stepped from the steamship Princess Irene, in Hoboken Thursday. Charlton at first denied his identity but after being given the "third degree" he admitted that he was the husband of Mrs. Charlton and that he had murdered his wife.

Later Charlton made a signed statement to the police.

Charlton said in his confession that he and his wife had been having supper together at the villa on Lake Como, and that they had engaged in a violent quarrel.

Charlton said his wife, who was one of the best women in the world, but had an ungovernable temper, called him some vile names, and that finally when he could not stand her abuse any longer, he attacked her with a wooden mallet.

The young man said that he struck her over the head three times, knocking her unconscious and killing her, as far as he knew.

Charlton told the police that he then stuck the body of his wife in a trunk and carried it down the lake, where he threw the trunk into the water.

MRS. HARDING A SUICIDE.

Wife of Birmingham Bank President Takes Her Life.

Mrs. W. P. G. Harding, wife of the president of the First National bank, of Birmingham, shot and killed herself at her home in Glen Iris.

Nothing definite is known about the cause of Mrs. Harding's act, as her home life has seemed to be very happy. She was alone in her room when she fired a pistol ball through her heart.

Mrs. Harding was universally regarded as one of the most beautiful women in the south. She was devoted to society and entertained a great deal at their magnificent place in Glen Iris Park, which is itself one of the show places of Birmingham. She was devoted to athletics, loved outdoor exercise and especially loved horseback riding.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydenham Moore, of Birmingham, and her maiden name was Miss Amanda P. Moore. She was married to Mr. Harding October 22, 1896, and is survived by her husband and three daughters, the oldest being about 13 years old and the youngest 6.

TWO OFFICERS KILLED.

Desperado Defies Arrest and Uses Gun With Deadly Effect.

W. H. Bostwick, a man noted for his fighting proclivities, has killed two officers, a chief of police and a deputy sheriff, in the western part of Irwin county, Georgia.

Bostwick barricaded himself in a log house in the western part of the county and, heavily armed, fired repeatedly upon a sheriff's posse, with the result above stated.

The desperado swore he would not be arrested. The question of appealing to Governor Brown for troops to take charge of the situation has been under consideration.

STEAMER BURNED.

Fatal Fire Occurs on Boat in the Mississippi River.

Three persons lost their lives, five were seriously injured, and it is estimated that 50 received cuts and bruises when the Mississippi river excursion steamer J. S. burned Saturday night.

The escape of all but a handful of the fifteen hundred passengers who thronged the decks of the big boat when the fire broke out is regarded as a miracle. Prompt work by the crew and cool-headed passengers in the controlling of the frantic ones after the first alarm was sounded, is all that prevented hundreds of people from jumping into the river in midstream. Mrs. Randall was the only one who broke through the guard on the edge of the decks and twenty men had arms outstretched to grasp her when she plunged from the upper deck into the water below. Her body has not been recovered.

The loss to the Acme Packing Company, the owner of the steamer, is estimated to be $60,000. Practically every passenger on the steamer lost clothing, money, jewelry or other valuables in the rush for land, and it is estimated that this combined loss will aggregate $10,000.

NASHVILLE TRAGEDIES.

Negro Is Stabbed In Crap Game—Car Motorman Killed.

Two violent deaths occurred at Nashville, Tenn., Sunday morning. During a row over a dice game in a cellar under a soft drink stand, John Martin, negro, was fatally stabbed, James Griffin, a white man, under arrest, charged with the killing, claims he is innocent.

James J. Collins, a street railway motorman, died from injuries received when his car, making its last run, left the track in the West End, crashed through a fence and turned over on him. The single passenger on the car and the conductor escaped with minor injuries.

NOTES FROM NATIONAL CAPITAL

There will be no legislation this year on the proposed rural parcels post advocated by the Farmers' union and supported unanimously by the Georgia congressmen. The rules committee has declined to make the Hardwick bill, providing for an experimental parcels post, a special order. The postoffice committee refuses to let the bill get into the house. Congressman Hardwick, however, intends to force the issue at the next session, and bring the matter directly to the house.

After voting down several amendments, the senate decided, 44 to 31, to concur in the house amendment to the postal savings bank bill and thus took the last legislative step necessary to the establishment of a postal savings bank system in the United States. The measure was included in the administration schedule and its passage marks another triumph for President Taft.

President Taft has sent the following nominations to the senate: E. R. Wright, of New Mexico, to be associate judge of the supreme court of New Mexico; George R. Walker of Oklahoma, to be United States attorney of division 2, District of Alaska; James C. Ford, to be postmaster at Knoxville, Tenn.

The house bill authorizing the issue of certificates of $20,000,000 to complete irrigation projects was amended, passed and sent to conference by the senate.

SPORTING AFFAIRS

Four Eastern league baseball games were declared illegal by P. T. Powers, president of the league, who thus sustains the protest of the Toronto club that Umpire stop McMillan, formerly of the Brooklyn National league club and now with Cincinnati, had no right to play in them. The games must be played off on the same grounds on which they were first played. They were Montreal at Toronto, June 6, 7 and 8. Montreal won at Rochester, and the series played at Toronto Rochester took two and Toronto one.

Friends of William J. Clothier, the national lawn tennis champion of 1906, learned that he is dangerously ill with typhoid fever and will be unable to compete at Newport this summer.

President Lynch, of the national league has suspended Manager Bresnahan, of the St. Louis club, for three days, as a penalty for arguments with umpires on the playing field recently.

Beals C. Wright, of Boston, won another victory in the all-England championship tennis tournament at Wimbledon, England, defeating F. L. Lowis, the third round of the singles in three straight sets.

18 OLDEST ATTIC LETTER

Finally Time Gives a Glimpse of Manners and Customs in Domestic Honor' Times.

A little leaden tablet, tarnished, ugly and otherwise trivial in appearance, was sent a few years ago from Athens to the Imperial museum of Berlin, the Scientific American says. On one side of it was some writing which only recently was deciphered with precise correctness by Adolph Wilhelm, an Austrian savant, who lives in Athens. The tablet is the original of a private letter that was written about the time of the orator Demosthenes.

The writer of the letter lived in a rural neighborhood and wished to send a commercial order to a town. The form of the address was: "To be taken to the pottery market and to be handed to Nausias, or to Thrasykles or to the son" (perhaps the son of the writer was meant). The weekly market, to which the Attic countrymen had gone to offer their produce and wares for sale, may be imagined in progress. There the boy who was bearer of the letter was to find the stand or booth of one of the three persons to whom it was addressed and deliver it to him. The text of the letter says: "Mnesiergides greets you cordially, he greets your family with the same esteem and wishes them good health, and he says also that his own health is good. Please be so kind as to send me a mantle, either of sheepskin or of goatskin, and let it be as cheap as possible, for it does not need to be trimmed with fur. Send with a pair of heavy soles also. As soon as I have an opportunity I will pay you."

So much for the letter, to the motive of which the reader can point with as much precision as the author. Apparently it was written in winter, poor Mnesiergos having been surprised out in the open country by one of those icy snowstorms which sometimes even at this day cover the temples of Acropolis with a mantle of snow. Therefore he desired to receive as quickly as possible the heavy and warm garment of the poorer countrymen, a goatskin, which could be bought for 4½ drachms, and the strong soles which were worn under the ordinary sandals on the rural plains and hillsides. A good pair of the latter could be bought for four drachmas, as a well-preserved bill of that date shows.

A noteworthy feature of this artless letter is the formula that may be found used in very numerous letters that were preserved by the Greek literature of later times. Even at the present day every letter written by a rural Greek begins with the same cordial inquiry about the health of the person to whom the letter is written and with the brief information about the health of the writer.

Pictorial Advertising in China.

The possibilities of pictorial advertising in China are dilated upon by an American consul. The people have a fondness amounting almost to veneration for pictures. Some tact and knowledge are needed in the production of advertising pictures, one American company having made the serious mistake of using pictures of a dog in its advertising posters, the fact being that dogs in China are looked on as street scavengers.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 20, 1910

Editor Banner:—If you wish to publish this letter I will write a short piece about San Francisco and Los Angeles, California, possibly it will interest some who read the Banner.

San Francisco is a wonderful city they say some thing over 500,000 population, some of the most modern and up-to-date buildings I ever saw are built and are being built here. The climate is grand, always a nice breeze, a little warm in the day but the nights are very cool. I sleep under a blanket every night. I see thousands of people wearing their overcoats in the morning, they tell me that is the case the year round. Everybody looks prosperous and feeling good, strange to say people here seldom have bad colds. When I first landed here I thought I would freeze, but have never taken cold. The people here are quite different from our people, more like Chicago people. Go ahead get the money, can't be slow in Frisco, very refined up-to-date, and some of the prettiest women I ever saw outside of Louisville, Ky. are here. I am now in Los Angeles, Cal., a city of something over 300,000 population, a beautiful up-to-date city. The best street car system I ever saw in any city. Cars run as far as 40 miles into the country to all small towns surrounding the city, and to all the places on the beach. At Ocean Park beach it is nothing to see 500 people, men, women and children in bathing, this is every day and on Sunday over 1000 can be seen. The waters of the ocean just roll all the time. It is something grand to see the waves rolling over so many people one right after the other, then they come out on the sand and have a good time. It is only one hour's ride from the city to the beach; and some of the most beautiful orange ranches I ever saw are here, hundreds of acres of trees just hanging full of oranges, the most beautiful sight I ever saw. Vineyards by the thousands of acres of fine grapes, strawberries, prunes and many other fine fruits I could mention. Fish and oysters fresh and fine. How I wish some of my friends from old Chilton county could see what a country this is and what beautiful sights are to be seen here. It is simply wonderful, but it costs something to live here, and enjoy all these good things. I do not enjoy them all, but I do enjoy this fine climate and the grand scenery. I was also at Santa Cruze, Cal., 120 miles from Frisco, that is also on the beach. Near there is where the big trees are, Redwood trees. I saw one tree 18 feet in diameter; I saw a stump cut so a wagon and team could go through. Now this will sound fishey to many who read this, but nevertheless true. I saw these things with my own eyes, ask the editor if you are in doubt, he has been here, if anyone should doubt what I say. I saw Jim Jeffries in training for the big fight to come off the 4th of July at Frisco. He looks to be in good trim for the fight, but Johnson says Jeff is easy. Millions are being bet on that fight. Many people from England have had rooms engaged at the finest hotels for some time to see the fight.

I came from Frisco to Los Angeles by steamer, the ocean was quiet and we had a beautiful and delightful trip. I saw a while, the thing followed the steamer for miles.; his back looked to be at times five or six feet out of water. I did not like the looks of that thing much, but I just let him go on his way. Los Angeles is 500 miles by water from Frisco. I went through Chinatown at Frisco, she is a dandy, 30 000 Chinamen there all to themselves and some of them very rich; 1900 saloons in Frisco, but I never visit them. If you want to see a strong organization look at the whiskey dealers, on the other hand if you want to see a weak one look at the consumer.

Income from different products of the state of California for the year 1909 is as follows:

Fruit over $40,000,000.
Barley over $30,000,000.
Wheat over $27,000,000.
Rye over $25,000,000.
Pecans over $26,000,000.
Corn over $25,000,000.
Hay over $30,000,000.
Oats over $8,000,000.

The land here is very high, very rich in the valleys and clear out of reach of a poor man, they irrigate their ranches, it seldom rains here in spring or summer, but in winter they tell me it rains a good deal. I have been here about two months and have not seen a drop of rain. While this is a beautiful climate, lots of money and rich lands, I still like old Alabama, while the land is poor and money is scarce, it is wonderful to be among people you know. A satisfied and contented mind is everything in life.

Wishing everybody in old Chilton, and the Banner great success,

I am yours truly.

J. C. BROWN.

Uncle Joe Popular With School Girls.

Pretty school girls and teachers have crowded the galleries of the house of representatives chamber every pleasant day lately. They come early as a rule and watch eagerly for the entrance of Uncle Joe Cannon. Two of the ladies' galleries are on the same side of the chamber as the speaker's rostrum. This makes it necessary for persons in the back rows to stretch their necks long and eagerly in the hope of catching a glimpse of Cannon. Those in the back rows watch for a chance to get farther forward in order to get a better view. Uncle Joe usually makes a hit with college and school girls when members escort them into his private office for a little speech. He knows how to say nice things in a way that pleases young folks and seldom fails to "capture the crowd."

First Woman Druggist in Germany.

The first lady apothecary in Germany has succeeded in passing her examinations. She is Fraulein von Gusnar, aged twenty-one. She has now proceeded from Berlin to Darmstadt, where she has been engaged as apothecary's help in a pharmacy there.

Considerable interest has been excited over the fact, as although there are many women pharmacists in England, this is the only instance of its kind known in Germany, and it is expected that many women will now follow in Fraulein von Gusnar's footsteps.

A Woman's Great Idea

is how to make herself attractive. But without health it is hard for her to be lovely in face, form or temper. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and Kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion, good health. Try them. 50c. at Upchurch Drug Co.

Ruskin's Idea of Education.

Lord Rosebery commended authorities with his knowledge of physical science, even as a fad. His education was of the old-fashioned, all-round sort—a sort which he enthusiastically recommended at a speech at the annual dinner of the London Glasgow University club on late on 1907.

"A boy," he said, "should have learned by the age of 12 to write his own language with accuracy and some elegance; he should have a reading knowledge of the French, should be able to translate Latin and easy Greek authors, and should have some acquaintance with German. Having learned thus the meaning of words, a boy should study logic."

Fond Hearts Reconciled.

The dove of peace flew into the open window of Judge Graham's court at San Francisco the other morning, and under the influence of its cooing two severed hearts were again united. The reunion was celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. Clarke, the former being the plaintiff in a divorce suit which was filed recently. After the judge's talk the young pair left the court, apparently as happy as the day when they fell into Hymen's grasp.

Women Only Guess.

A woman who says she has made something of a study of the subject, declares that there is much foolishness about the intuition of women. She says that they simply guess, just as men do, but that when the guess comes right they praise themselves, while the many times in which the guess fails they forget and maintain discreet silence about it.

Two He Has Overlooked.

"The fool killer is overlooking two good bets," remarked "Jim" Pushaw the other day. "Were he on the job he would first get after the man who tells you how miserable you are looking when you feel all right, and would then use his cudgel on the head of the man who tells you how you are looking when you are worn out and sick and need a little sympathy."

Dropsy—
Given up by Doctor

"I had dropsy, and was told by my family physician that there was no chance for me. My family also gave me up. My limbs and body were swollen one-third larger than natural, water collected around my heart and I had to be propped up in bed to keep from smothering. I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy until I was entirely cured. This was in 1902, and I am now able to do any kind of work on my farm. My cure was certainly marvelous."

L. TURLEY CURD,
Wilmore, Ky.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has been wonderfully successful in relieving heart trouble. Its tonic effect upon the heart nerves and muscles is a great factor in assisting nature to overcome heart weakness.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle does not benefit, your druggist will return your money.

In Bad Fix

"I had a mishap at the age of 41, which left me in bad fix," writes Mrs. Georgia Usher, of Conyers, Ga.

"I was unconscious for three days, and after that I would have fainting spells, dizziness, nervousness, sick headache, heart palpitation and many strange feelings.

"I suffered greatly with ailments due to the change of life and had 3 doctors, but they did no good, so I concluded to try Cardui.

"Since taking Cardui, I am so much better and can do all my housework."

Take CARDUI

J 41

The Woman's Tonic

Do not allow yourself to get into a bad fix. You might get in so bad you would find it hard to get out.

Better take Cardui while there is time, while you are still in moderately good health, just to conserve your strength and keep you in tip top condition.

In this way your troubles, whatever they are, will gradually grow smaller instead of larger—you will be on the up-grade instead of the down—and by and bye you will arrive at the north pole of perfect health.

Congress adjourned last Saturday night, and the country breathes a sigh of relief.

President Taft walked out of the Capitol at 11 o'clock smiling. The second session of the 61st Congress had just adjourned and he had signed practically all matters of legislation that had been placed before him. He received congratulations from his cabinet and from members of both branches of Congress upon the successful passage of of most of his pet measures. Mr. Taft shook hands all around and continued to smile.

More than a billion dollars was appropriated at the present session of congress, if continuing appropriations are incorporated in the totals of the general appropriation measures. Definite figures concerning the appropriations will be issued from the House and Senate committees within a few days.

The Republican convention for the Fourth Congressional District was held at Calera, Tuesday, J. I. Abercrombie presiding, and E. F. Nobles, of Anniston, secretary.

A good deal of talk was heard of nominating W. F. Aldrich, of Shelby, or Judge L. H. Reynolds, of Chilton, for Congress, but both gentlemen declined the honor, and the convention adjourned to August 8.

The following account was written by Yancy Giles, a boy about twelve years of age, and is very commendably written:

On Tuesday night of the 21, at 12:30 the night marshel saw two negroes slipping around the Wade warehouse, and he went down to the steps of the Kicker building, and stood there until they broke in the McKee meat market and then run to the back door where they broke in. He called to them five or six times and they would not answer until he started to shoot, and one of the negroes said captain Wagoner don't shoot me, I will come out. And they came out with their hands up, and he marched them up the middle of the streets and down to the jail, and the sheriff opened the door of the jail and told them to walk in and in goes two coons without any ham or eggs. The names of the negroes was Pook McCall and Joe Erven. On Wednesday following the night marshal captured another negro that was said to be into it and took him to jail and in goes another coon without any ham or eggs and the night turned them over to the sheriff and the sheriff went and twore out a search warrant and deputized the night marshal and B. McKee, and searched old Fannie Goodgame's house and there they found two dozen and one of hen eggs and guinea eggs mixed. They get the eggs and then went to Pook McCall's house and there they found two pieces of the ham and three or four dozen eggs that had been taken from Mr. McKee's meat market. The justice of the peace set their bond a. $500 a piece and held them in jail until they reduced it down to $300 each, so we think the negroes will pay for the eggs and ham before they get through with it. Good bye, old coons.

To Get His Money's Worth.

"So you are moving out to a suburb?"

"Yes."

"Dear me! Whatever has caused you to take such a step?"

"My husband is a member of three clubs, and he wants a chance to stay all night at them, once in awhile."

A Loving Friend.

Seven Killed by Robber.

A terrible tale of wholesale murder comes from Bjorki, in Finland, where a man and his wife, their son, daughter, and nephew, and also a man servant and maid, had their throats cut by a young workman who had been given occasional jobs in the house. The murderer's motive was robbery, and he was eventually arrested in the house of a friend, where he had hidden under the bed. The police took him to the scene of the murder for the purpose of reconstituting the crime. He escaped from their custody, and jumped through the window into the street below, sustaining such severe injuries that he died on the way to the hospital.

An Arrangement.

Irate Tailor (who has called frequently to collect, without success)—My dear sir, I wish you'd make some definite arrangement with me.

The Man—Why, surely—let's see—well, suppose you call every Monday.—Exchange.

AN ACTIVE ORGANIZATION.

"The Business Men's League one of the youngest commercial organizations in Birmingham, is "making good" in a way that entitles it to the fullest co-operation of public spirited citizens. The organization is keeping in touch with every movement that is of interest to Birmingham and her business men, and the fruits of its labors are discernible in cold figures.

"The efforts of the League to secure the co operation of railroads in the promotion of the trade-in-Birmingham propaganda are especially laudable. Six of the railroads have been induced to grant week end rates and several have changed the schedule of their line so as to allow shoppers a longer stay in Birmingham. Two roads have put on accomodation trains; two roads have granted special 48-hour rates at the solicitation of the League, and several other advantageous changes in schedule are now being worked out.

"An effort is now under way to get stop-over privileges for all tourists who pass through Birmingham. Several real trade-bringing conventions are credited to the League for the present year, and others will no doubt be secured.

"In its campaign of advertising, the League has prepared a mailing list of over 13,000 names of people residing along the lines of the various trunk lines entering Birmingham, and these citizens are regularly advised of what is going on in Birmingham in a trade way.

"The refund bureau of the League has proven of great value in bringing trade to Birmingham. It has operated so successfully that merchants and out of town shoppers are alike pleased with the results. A conservative estimate of the trade brought to Birmingham through its efforts, since the organization of the League, place the total at $1,200,000.00. The League is carrying on a highly effective campaign of publicity, and is in every way earning a worthy place among the great commercial organizations of the district".—The Birmingham News.

Proper Way to Walk.

When a man walks in the right way—speaking literally—the back of his heel strikes the ground first. Then the rest of the heel comes down, after which the outer edge of the foot takes the bulk of the burden until the forward movement shifts the weight to the ball of the foot and finally to the toes. The ideal step is a slightly rocking motion. At no time should the entire foot be pressed against the ground. Heel and toe is the movement. Try it and see how much further and more easily you can walk. It's the Indian's way, and what Poor Lo doesn't know about footwork can go into the discard.

Problem for New York.

New York city had more transportation facilities with its stages of 70 years ago than it has with all its surface, elevated and subway lines of today. The outlook is that the population will continue to grow faster than the means of transportation.

Who Brought the Baby.

Mrs. Alice Comedy, of Perdido Station, Ala., writes: "Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., Gentlemen: Accept my recommendation for your VIN O VITÆ as it did wonders for me, and is the life of every woman who takes it. I was in pregnancy when I commenced taking it and had fainting spells and my back and hips hurt. I commenced using your VIN-O-VITÆ and Liver Regulator, and now I have a baby girl fat and pretty and am glad to say that I feel like a new woman." Druggists sell this remedy at $1.00 per bottle.

Shoplifted for a Man.

"Only once in my experience has a woman shoplifter who was caught with the goods on stolen anything for a man to wear," said the store detective. "The woman kleptomaniac feathers her own wardrobe every time. Yesterday furnished the exception. One self-sacrificing soul, who apparently thought more of her men folk than she did of herself, was trying to get away with six pairs of socks, a bunch of suspenders, some men's handkerchiefs, two shirts and an assortment of cuff buttons. The circumstances were so unusual that we let her go with a reprimand."

Linoleumed His Sanctum.

If the Times is a little shy this issue please lay the blame upon Boonie and Cliff Boone, who have been giving our humble quarters a thorough interior decoration of paper and white paint, and not that we had the money, but the credit, we have linoleumed our cozy little sanctum and arranged things most conveniently for our daily visitors. If you think we're looking too nice, just drop in and make yourself as much at home as you always have.—Louisiana Times.

Alcohol to Children

Ask your doctor how often he prescribes an alcoholic stimulant for children. He will probably say, "Very, very rarely. Children do not need stimulating." Ask him how often he prescribes a tonic for them. He will probably answer, "Very, very frequently." Then ask him about Ayer's non-alcoholic Sarsaparilla as a tonic for the young. Follow his advice. He knows. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

The first great rule of health—"Daily movement of the bowels." Ask your doctor if this is not so. Then ask him about Ayer's Pills. Sold for nearly sixty years.

The hundredth patient was Mrs. Cobb of Jemison, Ala., who was sent to Dr. Higgins for treatment by Dr. McNeill.

We desire to ask the people if the leading physicians of your county recommend Dr Higgins in fitting glasses, and he holds the second prize for the state of Alabama in OPTICS won at the recent meeting of the State optical expert, can you afford to buy cheap spectacles or go off to other towns to have your eyes treated with glasses?

Suppressing a Sneeze.

Hospital nurses, when assisting at a delicate operation, have their own way of suppressing a cough or a sneeze. The operator's attention must not be distracted for a moment. Coughs and sneezes, too, spead germs on surfaces carefully rendered antiseptic. So every nurse soon learns to press her finger hard on the upper lip, immediately below the nose, when she feels a cough or a sneeze coming on.

American Cities Behind.

In South American cities such as Buenos Ayres, Rio Janeiro, Lima and Valparaiso, billboards are regulated and taxed, the city of Buenos Ayres itself putting up the boards and renting the space. In America are almost the only cities in the world where the billboard—untaxed and scarcely regulated at all—is free to revel in its blight.

To Our Friends and Customers:

We can truthfully say our business has shown such a phenomenal increase this year that we doubt there being another business of any kind, in this city that will equal our record. Now, there is a reason for this that explains itself. If we had not sold honest goods at honest prices, with polite and prompt attention, we could not have shown this gain.

To those who were our patrons last year, we could offer no stronger reason for them remaining our customers than to assure them of the same square deal at our store in the future that they have received in the past.

When you are sick, you send for a physician in whose ability you have the greatest confidence. It isn't a matter of friendship then, but the doctor who can cure you is the man you want, and must have. It's just as important, and even more so, that you have his prescriptions filled by a druggist in whose ability and honesty you have the same faith that you have in your doctor.

At our store your prescriptions will be filled by a man of experience and thorough knowledge of his profession, and the fact that no mistake has ever been made at our store, sets the seal of caution on our record.

We buy the best drugs and medicines that are offered for sale regardless of cost, and sell them at the same price others would get for an inferior article. If you have not been our customer, your friends have. We have pleased them, why can't we please you?

Somnambulistic Mabel

By Lawrence Alfred Clay

(Copyright, 1909 by Associated Literary Press.)

Everybody knows that a lovers' quarrel may start from the most trifling cause. This one did. George Egbert had told Mabel Drake after their engagement that he would trust her to the end of the earth. She understood him to mean by that that if she happened to be leaving the postoffice just as Billy Shaw or Tommy Tweed came along and walked home with her no row would be raised over it, and the poor girl went ahead and let them walk. Then she suddenly discovered that "the ends of the earth" did not extend very far.

On the evening of the day that Billy Shaw happened to walk a distance of five blocks with her, and that half a dozen persons happened to pass them and then happened to drop in and tell the rising young lawyer about it, he made a call with a serious expression on his face. It was so serious as to be legal, and, being legal, it alarmed Miss Mabel. When she had asked if his sister had been indicted for murder, his mother held for conspiracy or if he had got mixed up in a filibustering expedition and was expecting a United States marshal to lay hands on him, he arose and addressed her in his best legal manner.

"You were walking with Billy Shaw today!" he began.

"Well?" she replied.

"You were talking and laughing with him!"

"Well?"

"He is a rejected suitor of yours and an enemy of mine. Can't you see the inconsistency of the thing?"

"Billy Shaw tried to make love to me, but I bargained him out of it. That was a whole year ago. I never heard that he was an enemy of yours."

"No? Well, let me state for your information that William Shaw once proclaimed me a young squirt of a lawyer. Were those the words of a friend or an enemy?"

Hunting Through Blackstone and Coke for Advice.

Mabel could not restrain a hearty laugh, and that laugh froze the dignity of the lover until it was armor-plated. In the most frigid sort of way he looked at her and announced:

"I thought I could trust you, but I see I can't."

"Just what do you mean by that?"

"You have two strings to your bow."

"Mr. Egbert!"

"You must drop William Shaw and others of his like, or you must drop me!"

And then the clock on the mantel missed four ticks and other things began to happen. Young Mr. Egbert had mixed courtship and the law together and brought about combustion. Miss Drake regarded him for a moment with flashing eyes and blazing cheeks and then rose up and handed him his hat and gloves and quietly observed:

"Good night, Mr. Egbert; good night!"

And Mr. Egbert bowed and found himself on the other side of the front door, with no interest whatever as to who climbed Mt. McKinley or whether it was ever climbed at all. Laying down the law to the girl is all right and very interesting up to a certain point, but when it goes beyond that the orator feels a jar. Mr. Egbert felt one and went home in a sort of maze. His sister said he must be coming down with the grip and ought to soak his feet and bring about a sweat; and his mother, who had had years' more experience, darkly hinted at overwork and brain fever and mustard plasters.

As for Miss Mabel—no matter how she looked and felt, She couldn't have done less than she did. Had Mr. Egbert called the next evening with a smile on his face the matter would have passed like a summer shower. But did any one ever know of a young man doing the sensible thing in a case of this kind? He knows the girl can't, and his silly pride won't let him. And there you are.

For the first three days and nights the young lawyer was a determined man. For the next three he was a martyr. For the third three he was hunting through Blackstone and Coke for advice on how to patch up a lovers' quarrel without losing every shred of his dignity. Those volumes, though so full of legal lore, gave him no help on the subject nearest his heart.

The moon was more kind, however. One night, as he tossed on his sleepless couch and called himself names for the hundredth time, the full moon shining into his window brought a sudden recollection with it. Miss Drake had once mentioned that on the full of the moon she had been known to rise, throw a wrapper around her, and walk forth on the lawn in a state of somnambulism. Here was the full of the moon. Might not she be walking at this very minute? Why shouldn't he walk too? He was on the ragged edge, and that was next door to somnambulism. Two somnambulists might accomplish what two persons, awake, had failed to do.

With heart beating high, the young lawyer hurried into his clothes, tiptoed down the stairs and five minutes later was two blocks away and gazing at a human figure slowly walking across a lawn. It was the figure of Mabel Drake. She was walking in her sleep. There is no law laid down in such cases. Attorneys must act for themselves. Young Mr. Egbert acted. He became a somnambulist and began pacing the lawn almost within reaching distance of the girl.

For five minutes the two sleep-walkers paced. They turned at a gooseberry bush at one end, and at a crabapple tree at the other. Then the sleeping Mr. Egbert said to himself in a sleepy voice:

"I shouldn't have said that to the dear girl—no, I shouldn't!"

There was a long-drawn sigh from Mabel.

"She meant no harm, but in my jealousy I accused her!"

Another sigh, and just as they turned, the soft words fell from the sleeping girl's lips:

"If I had known—if I had known that he once called my George a young squirt of a lawyer I should have told him that I hated him."

Then the couple stood at the gooseberry bush a moment, as if listening to the sad refrain of the katydids, and George murmured:

"I was wrong—I was wrong! Earth holds no nobler girl than my dear Mabel!"

On the way to the crabapple tree, with the distant watch dogs baying at the moon and the tree toads keeping up their infernal racket, Mabel sighed again, and her voice was broken as she said:

"Two strings to my bow! How could George say such a thing to me! I have loved one and only one."

After the turn at the crabapple, George uttered a sort of groan and said:

"Can she—will she ever forgive me? It's more than I can hope for, but I will put my arm about her and tell her how sorry I am, and that no such words shall ever pass my lips again."

Miss Drake gave a start and a jump aside and exclaimed:

"Who—what—where am I? Who is this here?"

And Mr. Egbert gave a backward spring, looked wildly around him and exclaimed:

"Who—what—where am I? How did I come here? Is this you Mabel?"

"Mr. Egbert, what does this mean? The last I remember I was in my bed, and I now wake up to find myself here in your company!"

"Just the same with me, Mabel dear. I went to bed with such an anxious mind that I must have got up in my sleep, and dressed and came here. You once told me that you sometimes walked in your sleep in the full of the moon."

"How queer that we should both be walking in our sleep on the same night! Do you think we talked to each other?"

"I—I think we did, and if you will sit down on this bench I will tell you all I can remember."

And when he had told her, and the katydids and watch dogs and tree toads were still for a moment, she smiled and said:

"Don't be foolish any more—at least not until after we are old married folks!"

Taking Exercise.

The worst error of exercise, the most dangerous fad of physical culture, is not to take enough of it, and to sneer at every form of it that does not bear the dollar mark. By one of those cynical poetic justices of nature the very men who denounce all physical culture and recreation as fads are those who pay the heaviest personal penalty for this delusion. They use the vigor that they have gained in early youth in nature's open air school to chain themselves to the desk, to bury themselves in dungeon-like offices or airless workrooms 12 or 14 hours a day. They "feel fine" and are sure they are going to live to be a hundred; but one day, to their astonishment, a little artery, whose coat has been hardened for 20 years unnoticed, becames so brittle that it snaps suddenly—and down they go with a stroke of paralysis, like a winged duck. It is never safe to jeer at the gods, whether the imaginary ones of Olympus or the real ones of modern science.—Dr. S. Woods Hutchinson, in Outing.

Glass.

There is little or nothing known with certainty in regard to the invention of glass. Some of the oldest specimens are Egyptian and are traced to about 1,500 years before Christ. Transparent glass is believed to have been first used about 750 years before the Christian era. The credit of the invention is a familiar one, by the Phoenician merchants who rested their cooking pots on blocks of natron (subcarbonate of soda) and found glass produced by the union under heat of the alkali and the sand on the shore.—Leslie's.

It takes nerve for a street sweeper to stop an automobile to ask what time it is.

TYPE IS PASSING

"OLD LADY" WILL SHORTLY BE BUT A MEMORY.

In This Day and Generation Father Time Is Outdone to an Extent Undreamed of by the Past Generation.

We of this generation remember her well—the gentle old lady with hair of silver, crowned with honorable years and treasured memories, and slipping quietly into the shadows. In other days no home seemed complete without her presence, and the very dignity of her gentle grace added an indescribable charm to family life. She wore her years as a badge of distinction and did not begrudge exacting Time his toll. Her journey up the hill of life in the blazing sunlight of youth was replete with incidents with whose memory she loved to enrich her twilight hours. She left to others the activities of the present, the recollections of her day were yet of sufficient importance to absorb her interest, and she "went about doing good" in her own unobtrusive way. Her sphere of existence was limited, it is true, but to her retiring nature and old fashioned ideas the familiar intercourse around the fireside appealed as no outside interests could ever do. She is rapidly becoming but a memory. The typical "old lady" of a generation or two ago has passed away forever. Here and there, in a few families who have not outlived the delightful customs that prevailed so extensively only a comparatively few years ago may be found some last exponent of her type, who is loved and honored by all who know her and who exerts in her own way a more lasting influence for good than do her independent sisters in their more aggressive lives.

We have been taught from early youth to reverence old age, and one of our proudest boasts as a civilized nation is that we have remained true to our teachings in this regard at least. In these more engaging times, however, there seems really to be no old age in the former acceptation of the term. It is true that the years add up just the same, but nature seems to have extended her lease of life and rejuvenated the human system. The dainty lace caps that once set so lovingly upon the white hairs have given way before the onslaughts of the hairdresser, and the somber black bonnet that tied with strings has long since been succeeded by the latest creation of the milliner's art. It is just as well, perhaps, that the period of a person's mental as well as physical activity can be lengthened to an almost indefinite extent, speaking comparatively, of course, for just so much more of life's joy will fall to his share, even at the risk of a corresponding increase of its sorrow.

One Way Out.

A many time millionaire says he still remains a bachelor because he fears a girl might wed him for his money alone. Why not try a woman who has no idea of the value of money?—New York Evening Telegram.

Marvelous Discoveries

mark the wonderful progress of the age. Air flights on heavy machines, telegrams without wires, terrible war inventions to kill men, and that wonder of wonders—Dr. King's New Discovery—to save life when threatened by coughs, cols, lagrippe, asthma, croup, bronchitis, hemorrhages, hay fever and whooping cough or lung trouble. For all bronchial affectio s it has no equal. It relieves instantly. Its the surest cure. James M. Black of Ashville, N. C., R. R. No. 4, writes it cured him of an obstinate cough after all other remedies had failed. 50c. and $1.00. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co.

Cures Dyspepsia; Trial Is Free

It is a popular mistake that only wealthy people who eat rich and highly-spiced foods suffer from dyspepsia, or, as it is also known, indigestion. The laborer in the street, the worker in the field also finds himself a victim of this disorder. Among the very greatest sufferers from it are women.

Dyspepsia is indicated by a constant feeling of laziness, by loss of appetite and troubled sleep, by sour stomach and distress after eating, by bad complexion and lusterless eyes.

There is no surer and speedier cure for this trouble than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which dyspeptics have been using successfully for twenty years. This great herb laxative compound cured Capt. Clark, of Buffalo, Ia., of dyspepsia and sour stomach that he had had for forty years, or until the lucky day that he heard of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It cured Joel Adams, of Montgomery, Ala., after suffering continuously for sixteen months. These are only a few of the many. But it is not expensive to be cured with this grand remedy, as it can be bought at any drug store in a 50-cent or $1 bottle.

Your very neighbors are probably lifelong users of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, but if you want to know without expense what it will do for you personally, send your name to Dr. Caldwell and he will be glad to send you a free trial bottle. He is actually anxious to have you make a test of his remedy.

Thousands of families everywhere keep it in the house against such an emergency as constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, biliousness, dyspepsia, heartburn, torpid liver, etc., which may come on a member of the family any day. It is pleasant to the taste, acts gently and does not gripe. It is the great children's laxative tonic.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

FORTUNE IN SWIMMING HOLE

California Lawyer Buys Property for Sentimental Reasons and It Increases in Value.

San Francisco.—George A. Knight, attorney and political orator, is ahead just $45,000 through a romance cherished since his boyhood days.

When a little boy, Mr. Knight learned to swim at a dock on the Eureka water front.

As he grew up, became an attorney and moved to San Francisco he often thought of the spot and wondered if he would ever be successful enough to own it. About five years ago his ambitions were realised. The property at that time was owned by the well known capitalist of Eureka, Thomas Baer.

Mr. Knight one day approached Baer and asked if he would sell the property. Baer replied he would sell it for $27,000, to which price Knight agreed. Within a month from that time the attorney was owner of the wharf and water front site, 32x200 feet in size.

Eureka property increased rapidly in value, and a representative of the Salem Flour Milling company of Oregon called on Mr. Knight and offered him $72,000 for the property.

"I thought if the property was worth that now," said Mr. Knight, "it would be worth a great deal more when the railroad is completed, and I have turned down the offer. Yet I feel pretty proud of my investment and never would have thought of buying the property unless I had learned to swim on the site.

German Machine Guns.

The German army has 16 machine gun batteries, which it has had for some time, and which there appears to be no tendency to increase. It may therefore be assumed that they are designed to fit out the divisions of cavalry which will be organized in the event of war, one for each division.

FOREIGNERS IN THE MOSQUE

Peculiar Disregard of Moslem Feelings Evidenced by Party of Sightseers.

Dr. Albert Bigelow Paine says in describing his visit to a Constantinople mosque:

"Some kind of ceremony was in progress when we arrived, but, as usual in such places, we did not mind. We went right in just the same, and our guides, too, and we talked and chatted and did what we could to break up the services. Old turbaned men of the prophet were kneeling and bowing and praying here and there, and were a good deal in the way. Sometimes we fell over them, but we were charitably disposed and did not think them—at least I didn't, and I don't think any of the party did. We might kick a dog—duck at him, I mean—if we tripped over one, but we do not kick a Moslem—not a live one. We only take his picture and step on him and muss him up, and make a few notes and go.

"I have been wondering what would happen to a party of tourists—Moslems, for instance—who broke into an American church during service, with guides to point and explain, and stared at the people who were saying their prayers and talked them over as if they were wax figures. An American congregation would be annoyed by a mob like that, and would remove it and put it in the calaboose, and then such things wouldn't happen in America. We have cowed our foreign visitors. Besides, there is nothing in an American church that a foreigner would care to see."—Outing.

PAINTED THE HOLY PLACES

How Resourceful Pasha Aided Artist to Get Pictures in Palestine.

Few painters have had more remarkable experiences than Carl Haag, the veteran water color artist, who has just celebrated his ninetieth birthday. Making oriental subjects his special "line," he has traveled all over the east in pursuit of local color and new material, sometimes running no inconsiderable risk in doing so.

This was particularly the case during his travels in Palestine, when even the firman which he possessed from the sultan, permitting him to make sketches of the holy places, hardly availed to protect him at times from native superstition and fanaticism.

Mr. Haag even penetrated into the temple area at Jerusalem, where a Christian usually ventures only at the peril of his life. The pasha in charge of Mr. Haag was, however, a man of resource, and secured his protection by giving it out that he had been ordered by the sultan to make drawings of the mosque, and, further, that those who did not wish to be included in the picture must keep out of sight, with the result that Mr. Haag was left quite unmolested by the superstitious Moslems.

Rat-Catching Industry.

The rats of the Paris sewers, driven from their homes by the great floods, have invaded some quarters of the city in such numbers that special means for their destruction have had to be taken. The regular band of municipal rat-catchers were quite overwhelmed by the magnitude of the task, and their numbers have, therefore, been doubled. The occupation of rat-catching in Paris pays well. Those animals which are caught alive are sent to London and Brussels, whence numerous orders arrive from breeders of rat-catching dogs. The exportation of Parisian rats at present amounts to between 1,500 and 2,000 a day. They are sold for about a dollar a dozen.

FOREIGNERS IN THE MOSQUE

Amusing Disregard of Moslem Feelings Evidenced by Party of Sightseers.

Mr. Albert Bigelow Paine says in describing his visit to a Constantinople mosque:

"Some kind of ceremony was in progress when we arrived, but, as usual in such places, we did not mind. We went right in just the same, and our guides, too, and we talked and loitered and did what we could to break up the services. Old turbaned sons of the prophet were kneeling and bowing and praying here and there, and were a good deal in the way, sometimes we fell over them, but we were charitably disposed and did not kick them—at least I didn't, and I don't think any of the party did. We might kick a dog—sick at him, I mean—if we tripped over one, but we do not kick a Moslem—not a live one. We only take his picture and step on him and muss him up, and make a few notes and go.

"I have been wondering what would happen to a party of tourists—Moslems, for instance—who broke into an American church during services, with guides to point and explain, and stared at the people who were saying their prayers and talked them over as if they were wax figures. An American congregation would be annoyed by a mob like that, and would remove it and put it in the calaboose. But then such things wouldn't happen in America. We have cowed our foreign visitors. Besides, there is nothing in an American church that a foreigner would care to see."—Outing.

PAINTED THE HOLY PLACES

How Resourceful Pasha Aided Artist to Get Pictures in Palestine.

Few painters have had more remarkable experiences than Carl Haag, the veteran water color artist, who has just celebrated his ninetieth birthday. Making orinetal subjects his special "line" he has traveled all over the east in pursuit of local color and raw material, sometimes running no inconsiderable risk in doing so.

This was particularly the case during his travels in Palestine, when even the firman which he possessed from the sultan, permitting him to make sketches of the holy places, hardly availed to protect him at times from native superstition and fanaticism.

Mr Haag even penetrated into the temple area at Jerusalem, where a Christian usually ventures only at the peril of his life. The pasha in charge of Mr. Haag was, however, a man of resource, and secured his protection by giving it out that he had been ordered by the sultan to make drawings of the mosque, and, further, that those who did not wish to be included in the picture must keep out of sight, with the result that Mr. Haag was left quite unmolested by the superstitious Moslems.

Rat-Catching Industry.

The rats of the Paris sewers, driven from their homes by the great floods, have invaded some quarters of the city in such numbers that special means for their destruction have had to be taken. The regular band of municipal rat-catchers were quite overwhelmed by the magnitude of the task, and their numbers have, therefore, been doubled. The occupation of rat-catching in Paris pays well. Those animals which are caught alive are sent to London and Brussels, whence numerous orders arrive from breeders of rat-catching dogs. The exportation of Parisian rats at present amounts to between 1,500 and 2,000 a day. They are sold for about a dollar a dozen.

This is an exact representation of the carton containing a bottle of St. Joseph's Liquid Liver Regulator, but it is much larger than this illustration, and printed in black ink on a yellow carton. Druggists and general merchants sell it at 50 cents a bottle, or you can get it direct from us at the same price. This is a delightful liver medicine—prompt, effective, and exceedingly pleasant to the taste. Try just one bottle to satisfy yourself—and you'll buy more.

Pictures of the Kingdom

Sunday School Lesson for July 3, 1910

Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Matthew 13:31-33, 44-52. Memory verse, 44.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost."—Rom. 14:17.

TIME.—The autumn of A. D. 28.

PLACE.—In a house in Capernaum on the shore of the Sea of Galilee.

Suggestion and Practical Thought.

The Parable or Story of the Mustard Seed.—Vs. 31, 32. "Another parable," showing another aspect of the kingdom of heaven, which the Great Sower had sown in the field of the world.

"The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed, which a man," representing the Son of man as in the previous parables, "sowed in his field." It was therefore good seed, living seed that could produce the harvest.

"Which indeed is the least of all seeds." Not the least of all seeds which botanists know, but the smallest of the seeds the people daily used; and the smallest of these in contrast with the plant which grows from it. "Greatest among herbs, and becometh a tree." Not massive like a fir tree of Lebanon, or oak, but an herb so large "that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof."

The Teaching of this Parable. (1) The growth and success in God's field of this world of the kingdom he has planted. I heard a statesman missionary from India say within a week that the religions of India looked upon the present as the iron age, with their golden age in the past. But with Christianity the golden age is in the future, the kingdom is growing toward its ideal and goal, and growing more and more rapidly.

The Parable of the Leaven.—V. 33. Showing the Method by Which the Kingdom Grows. "The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven." Some of the later writers argue from the fact that leaven is usually the symbol of evil, a corrupting thing, a species of putrefaction, that therefore this parable represents "the fellowship of God in service seen to be marred during the present age by the introduction of a corrupting influence."—G. Campbell Morgan.

"Which a woman took." The Son of man who puts this leaven into the meal is here represented by a woman because breadmaking usually devolved upon women.

This Parable Teaches that besides all the visible manifestations of the Gospel represented by the growth of the mustard seed, there is a deeper underlying progress of the Gospel which operates silently, without observation, but with constantly increasing pervasiveness till the whole mass of mankind, all hearts, all nations, all commerce and business, social life, and political institutions, shall be transformed. The leaven works by personal contact with those who are to be leavened, from individual to individual. It is personal work, personal soul in touch with other souls. The leaven that does the work is a living organism.

Two Stories of Finding Treasures.—Vs. 44-46. These two parables were told to the disciples in the house to which they returned from the seashore.

The Hid Treasure. "The kingdom of heaven is like unto treasure hid in a field." The hiding of treasure is necessary where there are no banks, where the country is frequently overrun by marauders and robbers, where no one can trust another to hold his treasures or to use them in business, and where the rulers are rapacious to obtain the wealth of their subjects. In the unsettled state of the country often the owners never returned, and all knowledge of the treasure was lost.

The Spiritual Treasures in These Two Parables. There are two quite different interpretations of these parables, both of which are natural, both of which may be true, and each one may imply the other. The movement of the parables depends on what is represented by the Treasure and the Pearl, and who by the one who gave all he had to obtain them.

The common interpretation is that we are the seekers for the treasure, and the Treasure and Pearl are the blessings which are found in the kingdom of heaven and only there. They are the treasures of character, usefulness, happiness, and peace; treasures of eternal life, growing more and more in every good quality of the soul till we become "angels excelling in strength," with all the glories, external and internal, that are portrayed in the description of heaven.

The Parable of the Draw Net.—Vs. 47-52 contain explanation of the mystery that good and bad are found in the visible kingdom of God, instead of only the good, and a warning that merely being a member of the visible kingdom will not save him. There will be a separation of the good from the bad, and each will go of necessity to his own place, and the fate which is the fruit of his faith and character.

Another interpretation of the hid treasure, skilfully advocated by Dr. Wolcott Calkins in his brilliant "Parables for Our Time," and by Dr. Morgan, is that Christ is the seeker after the Treasure and the Pearl, which represent the precious souls of men. The treasure is often hidden, like the lost sheep from the ninety and nine, hidden in publicans and sinners and heathen. It is not the search for good men, but for the lost, for human nature in its moral quality and in its spiritual capacity. To find this treasure, Jesus made his whole life subordinate to his finding the treasure."

FIGHT AGAINST BOLL WEEVIL

Pair of Injurious Little Insects Lays Enough Eggs to Reproduce 134,000,000 Individuals.

The boll weevil is undoubtedly the most serious menace the cotton planter has ever faced. Until it arrived there was apparently nothing to prevent a steady increase in cotton products answering to enlarging demands of the world, as it was generally held that within the area now devoted to cotton raising there could be produced double the present crop. This bright outlook faded before the weevil, although the earlier apprehensions of a possible abandonment of cotton raising as a result of its ravages have subsided.

In 1895 the weevil was not known in this country outside of a few counties on the southern Texas coast. By 1903 it had extended northward over much of eastern Texas and in October of that year it established isolated colonies in Louisiana. By 1906 the enemy had entered nearly all of the cotton counties of Texas, had overspread Louisiana and was present in parts of Oklahoma and Arkansas, and it has since invaded Mississippi.

Some idea of the damage wrought may be obtained from a comparison of yields in ten counties that were free from the weevil in 1899, but badly infested in 1902. The yield in the latter year was only 47 per cent. as great as in the former.

The pest is hard to exterminate on account of its habits and rapidity of growth and multiplication. As its name implies, the boll weevil passes nearly all of its life in the fruit of the plant and cannot be reached with poison. From egg to adult stage requires but 14 days, and a single pair will lay enough eggs in a season to reproduce 134,000,000 individuals.

Much good was expected from the introduction of the Guatemalan ant, in its own country the natural enemy of the weevil, but this importation succumbed to changed climatic conditions. A native ant, however, known as Solenopsis geminata, and which travels up and down the cotton stalk, has taken issue with the weevil, first fighting him as an interloper and later hunting him out as an article of diet. According to the bureau of entomology, Solenopsis geminata is responsible for the destruction of more than half the weevils that fall before their natural enemies. Good results have followed the introduction of new cultural methods, such as burning the cotton stalk in the fall as soon as possible after the last of the crop has been gathered, and by inducing speedy maturity of the following season's crop through early planting and the use of fertilizers.

Pigeons Require Care.

Though people have an idea that pigeons are very hardy and can be kept with little or no attention, the facts are that unless their food is of good quality, and their houses are kept clean, they are subject to many diseases. Pigeons are naturally very cleanly, and when allowed their liberty, select only the best food and the varieties that please them, but when they are confined, we must select these things for them if we wish to succeed.

Find Ancient Cannon.

A Rome correspondent informs us that some very interesting discoveries have been made in the course of excavation work around the island of Lido in Venice, where a number of ancient pieces of artillery have been found beneath six feet of mud, says the London Globe. The cannon are all in a state of excellent preservation, though it is clear from their construction that they must date back to a period almost immediately after the discovery of gunpowder and it is believed that they will prove of very great artistic and historic value.

Ventilating the Sickroom.

In ventilating a sick chamber it is often desirable and necessary to leave the window open to secure fresh air. The best way to do this is to tack a piece of muslin across the open window by means of thumb tacks. If the air is chilly this will keep the drafts off the patient and will keep out the dust and dirt, which might otherwise be blown in. If the day is hot and sultry—and these days are the hardest and most trying on a sick person—an ideal way to ventilate, purify and cool the air is to open the window or windows and stretch a piece of muslin across the opening, then lower the shades to where the window is opened and after this has been done thoroughly saturate the muslin with cold water. Then place a large basin or pail of cold water under or near the bed. If this is done it often will enable a restless patient to obtain some much-needed sleep and rest. As soon as the muslin becomes dry wet it

The Size of Antarctica.

It is a somewhat curious fact, if it is a fact, that the last of the terrestrial continents to be explored is the largest mass of raised land in the world. The concentration of attention upon the south pole since Commander Peary landed the other end of our axis makes it highly probable that the antarctic antipode will soon be dangling from some explorer's belt. Incidentally, the south polar continent will be opened, if not to the settler, at least to the mapmaker. We already know something of its fringes at a few points, and Lieutenant Shackleton pushed into it south of Mounts Erebus and Terror for several hundred miles, but the greater portion of its surface is still terra incognita.—Collier's.

Ended All Argument.

"The citizens of Christiania have had a queer experience," writes a correspondent from the Norwegian capital. "An enterprising business concern erected in the Karl Johann street, the principal promenade, a heroic statue of Mercury, for advertising purposes. The figure was so scantily draped that some citizens protested, with the result that the police furnished drapery, which was torn away on the first night. A close watch was placed on the statue, which was once more clothed and again stripped. To end discussion, the police received orders to remove the statue, and now both parties claim a victory."

CORRESPONDENCE.

Maplesville.

Editor Banner—We feel it our patriotic duty to tell of the picnic given by the Methodist Sunday school, Mr. George Fox, Superintendent. He made, by his liberality, everyone have a good time.

The place was in a beautiful grove at Walker's Spring, near the elegant home of the family. Much liberality was shown by Mr. William Walker and Messrs. Whitsell who furnished the meats and teams. Mr. Leveret furnished his surry and Mr. Whitsell his ten oxen team with five hundred pounds of hay in the bottom gave a delightful ride to more than fifty occupants. The barbecue was supervised by Jim Clison, (col.), who is an expert in the most delicious cooking. A blessing was most reverently asked over this dinner by Mr. Stewart. The writer has never seen so much good will as prevailed over this gathering. We hope most ardently there may be a repetition of this picnic a hint to the wise sufficient.

Editor Banner—Being kept from my appointmenton account of rain I thought I would write a little to your paper.

Health here is good except the family of Rev. T. J. Billingsley.

Mrs. Keen and little Alven are in bed with slow fever.

We are having plenty of rain and crops are looking fine.

Our school, though small is doing well under the management of Prof. E. C. Popwell.

I went into my room Wednesday for a few minutes prayerful meditation and I was impressed with the subject of fellowship. It seems to me the subject of subjects. When we begin to think of it it is the need of our country from the cottage home to the President's mansion. More fellowship in the home in the school, in the Sunday school and in the church. In the entire world we need that concert of thought, word and deed for the glory of God and the upbuilding of humanity. I believe every preacher should preach on this subject as soon as he can.

Health of this community is fairly good.

Sunday school is progressing nicely under the management of Mr. W. E. Thomas. Prof. Crumpton is also a faithful worker.

The singing at Prof. Franklin's Saturday night was a grand success. Among those present were Prof. Hammond of Coosa, organist and some young men and ladies from Bibb county, who are guests of Prof. Franklin's family.

There will be an all day singing here Sunday, July 10. The books we expect to use are "Onward Songs" and "Lyrics of Praise." Profs. J. D. Patton and H. M. Eagle are expected. Everybody is invited to come and bring their books and baskets.

Prof. H. M. Eagle's singing school begins here Monday, July 11. We are hoping for one of the best schools that have ever been taught in this county. Prof. Eagle is well known in this county having taught several schools here that have been very elevating to the cause of music.

OBITUARY.

On June 24th 1910 death visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wright and took from them their little girl, Navadene, aged eighteen months and seven days. Navadene was a sweet and loving child, the pride of her loving mother and fond father, who have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement. Oh death! the cruel monster that will at some time come into our homes and take from us our loved ones and leave us to mourn their loss. But alas! calm your fears of the grim reaper for death is the only door by which an entrance to eternal joy and bliss and happiness may be had; the only door of exit from this stage of sorrow, tears and trouble.

"Parents and friends, weep no more,
Navadene's just on before,
Death will soon be shorn of power,
Behold! look forward to the hour."

Lost Valley

Editor Banner:—Please let me have a small space in your valuable paper to say a few words.

The health of this community is very good at present. The farmers are all almost done work, they have fine looking crops too, though we are having some too much rain for them. Our barbecues and all other geatherings are being disturbed by rain, and "wild cat whiskey." I do believe that there is more whiskey drinked at the public geathering than ever before. It is a shame to see our young men and boys doing like they are today, they are going to ruin. Young man, if you ever intend to make a gentleman out of yourself, build up a good character, and a good reputation, you sure will have to drop the whiskey drinking and selling. If you ever build up yourself high enough to get a position with the business man you will have to be a sober man. This is a business world today, and a business man will not have any one to do business for them unless he is a man of a good character.

The leading men of the world today says: The man that intiserpates in alcaholic intemperance will lie and steal, and I sure do believe that too. Now, young man you know that a business man will not give you a position if you are of that character, and young man, a man or boy like that is not noticed by the business class of people any more than a coal black negro of Africa? Now boys let's drop our mean way of doing and try to make a perfect gentleman of ourselves, if we do that we will see a great change in our future business, and every other way you may mention. Now I have seen folks write such letter to the Banner, and some smart fellow on the opposite side would ans. it with a terrable blow, and flower up the whiskey subject so that it would almost make a preacher think that he could talk his way to heaven quicker if he had a pint of booze when he went to fill his appointments, but I think anyone will say that whiskey will ruin anyone that drinks it.

DEATH HAS CLAIMED SENATOR DANIEL

Illustrious Virginian Answers Final Summons.

John W. Daniel, senior senator from Virginia and for more than 30 years Virginia's favorite son, died at the Lynchburg sanitarium, Lynchburg, Va., his death being due to a recurrence of paralysis.

The immediate cause of his death was a cerebral hemorrhage sustained in the right portion of his brain, involving the right side. This was in addition to the paralysis of the left side, which was sustained last winter, while in Florida.

SENATOR DANIEL.

The statesman's illness began with a slight attack of apoplexy in Philadelphia, last October, this keeping him from being in his seat at the opening of congress last December. Only once since that had he appeared before the audience and that was for an informal talk in January.

The end was almost without a struggle. The transition was very rapid, for when the final and complete failure of heart action began, it progressed with great rapidity and in five minutes the patient was dead.

John W. Daniel was elected to the United States senate to succeed General Mahone for the term beginning March 4, 1887, and was serving his fourth term at the time of his death. He was a gallant Confederate soldier, serving as chief of staff to General Jubal Early, with the rank of major. He was thrice wounded during the war, the last wound received in the Wilderness May 6, 1864, crippling him for life. He was born at Lynchburg, September 6, 1842.

GRUESOME WARNING.

Bloody Human Ear In Bottle Sent By Strikers.

Wrapped around a bottle of alcohol in which lay a bloody human ear, Harry Coulby, president of the Pittsburg Steamship Company, received a letter at Cincinnati, O., in which he was threatened with nameless mutilation and death if he refused to accede to the demands of the sailors who have been on strike for two years.

The man to whom the ear belonged has already been identified as Edward Frazier, a non-union sailor who was assaulted in Buffalo, N. Y., recently. After the assault his ear was severed from his head by his assailants. The man was picked up several hours later by the police. He was in a dying condition from loss of blood. Across his chest there was pinned a sheet of paper on which was written: "Don't be a scab!" On receipt of the letter Mr. Coulby turned it, together with the bottle and its gruesome content over to the federal authorities and a search was immediately commenced through every port on the Great Lakes for the perpetrators of the outrage. In the letter, which has been made public, it was explicitly stated that the writers were the same men who had assaulted Frazier.

MADE BIGGEST GAIN.

Census of 1910 Will Show South to Have Population of 32,415,297.

That the census of 1910 will show the southern states, including Missouri and Oklahoma, to have made a gain in population of 21 per cent since 1900 is the estimate of the southern commercial congress. The congress estimates that population to be 32,415,297. The gain of other states of the union during the same period is estimated by the congress to have been 18 1-2 per cent.

The five states of the south, which have made the greatest gain in population, according to the estimate, are Oklahoma, Texas, Missouri, Georgia and Alabama. Oklahoma is said to have gained 1,350,000. The figures were based upon provisional estimates of the census bureau.

Former Senator E. J. Emmons, of Bakersfield, Colo., who was expelled from the senate on February 27, 1905, and later sentenced to five years in prison for accepting a bribe, became a free man when Governor Gillett signed an absolute pardon.

HYDE DENIED NEW TRIAL.

Judge Latshaw Hands Down Decision In Famous Kansas City Case.

Dr. B. C. Hyde, convicted on May 16 last, of poisoning Col. Thomas H. Swope, the millionaire philanthropist, has been denied a new trial by Judge Ralph S. Latshaw, in the criminal court at Kansas City.

Colonel Swope, who died last October, left an estate valued at more than $2,000,000. Dr. Hyde was tried on the specific charge of murdering Colonel Swope by the administration of poison while attending him as a physician.

There are ten other indictments against the prisoner, charging him with killing and attempting to kill various members of the Swope family. The theory of the state was that Hyde desired to kill the other heirs to get possession of the estate through his wife's inheritance. Mrs. Hyde was a niece of Colonel Swope.

The prisoner's attorney immediately filed a motion for the arrest of judgment and the judge set July 5th as the time for arguments. When this motion is disposed of, the matter of appeal to the supreme court and a motion to release Dr. Hyde on bond will be taken up.

DESPERADO DEFIED OFFICERS.

Adair Barricaded In Store Near Falco Is Captured by Posse.

Olan Adair, who, while barricaded in the store of John W. Davis, near Falco, Ala., shot three men of a posse after him, was captured later, without trouble and is held at Falco.

J. H. Givan, who was fired upon from ambush, for which alleged offense Adair was sought, is not seriously injured, nor is either Alexander Givan, brother of the other Givan; B. F. Finley and George Coggswell, the others wounded by Adair in his attempt to avoid arrest.

A BOATING PARTY LOSE THEIR LIVES

Georgia Middy Is One of the Unfortunate Victims.

More than a score of middies are searching the waters of the Severn river for the bodies of Mrs. Nellie E. Bowyer, widow of Joseph Bowyer, and daughter-in-law of Superintendent John M. Bowyer, of the naval academy, and Midshipmen Grigsby Thomas, of Union Point, Ga., and Sherman M. Nason, of Newport, R. I.

The three left the naval academy in a sail boat, and the boat was found drifting a few hours later. In it were portions of the clothing that had been worn by members of the party.

It is believed that the midshipmen took Mrs. Bowyer to the bathing shore used by the naval academy people and attempted to teach her to swim, and, that she getting beyond her depth, all three were drowned.

Mrs. Bowyer was a Miss Dean, of Pittsburg, Pa. Her husband, Joseph Bowyer, died a couple of years ago, and she has ever since made her home with his parents. She was 28 years of age. Each of the midshipmen were about 20 years old, and both were athletes and members of the academy rifle team.

SENATOR M'ENERY DIES.

Prominent Louisiana Statesman Passes Away at New Orleans.

United States Senator Samuel Douglas McEnery died at his home in New Orleans, La.

He had for many years been prominently identified with public affairs.

Senator McEnery arrived from Washington at New Orleans suffering from an attack of indigestion. He was placed in a carriage at the railroad station and taken to his home in St. Mary's street, where physicians were hastily summoned. The senator rallied somewhat after being treated and showed marked improvement, but later his condition took a turn for the worse and he lapsed into unconsciousness, in which state he passed to the beyond.

Senator McEnery was in his 74th year and his health had not been good for several years.

ROSE'S CLOSE CALL.

With Less Than Half a Minute to Spare, Man Is Reprieved.

With less than half a minute to spare, Arthur Rose was saved from the electric chair at Trenton, N. J., by a stay signed by Judge Minturn on a moving train and thrown from the window to the condemned man's lawyer.

Rose was strapped in the chair and the electrician was waiting, his hand on the switch, for the second signal to throw 2,100 volts through the body of the wife murderer, when the cry "Stop! Stop! A stay!" rang through the death chamber.

Never in the history of this state, probably never in the history of the country, has a life been saved by a reprieve in a manner so sensational or by such a narrow margin. Had there been the slightest slip anywhere along the line Rose's lawyer would have found his stay of no use.

THREE CANDIDATES NOW IN THE FIELD

Judge Hart Will Oppose Smith and Brown in Race.

Attorney General John C. Hart has announced his candidacy for governor. He has given out a statement and dispatched notes to Governor Brown and former Governor Hoke Smith informing them of his decision to make the race. William H. Davis, of Burke county, acted as messenger.

His candidacy, he says, is not born of personal ambition, but comes of a desire to pacify "the warring factions" of the state.

Judge Hart became attorney general of Georgia on October 25, 1902, nearly eight years ago, when he was elected without opposition to succeed Boykin Wright, of Augusta, who did not stand for re-election. Mr. Wright had been appointed to fill out the unexpired term of Governor Terrell, when he resigned to make the race for governor.

Before becoming attorney general, Judge Hart was judge of the superior courts of the Ocmulgee circuit, comprising at that time the counties of Greene, Morgan, Jasper, Jones, Wilkinson, Baldwin and Laurens.

Judge Hart represented Greene county in the legislature in 1854-55 and again in 1888-89.

DESPERADO SLAIN.

Troops Storm Bandit's Stronghold and Terminate Fight.

W. H. Bostwick, the desperado who killed three men and wounded three at his home near Ocilla, Sunday, was found dying in his barricaded home at 4 o'clock Monday morning, when the Fitzgerald company of the national guard rushed and captured the home. He died within an hour. The five children who were in the house with him were rescued uninjured. It is supposed that a bullet fired during the fight with the posse struck him. Sheriff McInnis died about the same time.

The Fitzgerald company arrived at 4 a. m. and without waiting for the arrival of the Albany soldiers, promptly rushed the house, which had been the scene of a fierce fire of bullets all night. For fear of hurting the children, the soldiers did not fire. They assembled on all four sides of the house, 200 yards away and at the command "Forward," moved upon the place at double time. The first ones kicked in the door and with drawn revolvers entered. Bostwick was found on the floor, unconscious, and dying. The children, terrified, huddled near. The father had kept them on the floor all night and thus they had escaped the bullets fired by the posse.

The battle between the officers and Bostwick followed an attempt to arrest the desperado on a charge of assault with intent to murder, Bostwick having, it is alleged, shot his brother-in-law, C. G. Fields, some time ago.

CHINATOWN TONG WAR.

Renewal of Hostilities Among Orientals in New York City.

Two Chinamen are dead, a third is badly wounded in a hospital and seven Orientals are under arrest as the result of the renewal of hostilities in the never-dying Tong war in Chinatown. The dead are Shu Foo and Sen Jing. Chu Pan, the third man to be struck by the flying bullets, is expected to recover. He is under guard in the hospital.

Immediately after the shooting a big force of police was thrown into Chinatown, which was closed to outsiders, and the district is being strongly guarded to prevent a renewal of the warfare.

$10,000,000 GAIN SHOWN.

Comparison of Atlanta Clearing House Receipts.

An increase of considerably more than $10,000,000 was made in the Atlanta clearing house receipts during the month which has just passed, over the same month last year. The report for the closing month shows that $36,088,896.58 passed through the clearing house within the past thirty days, as against $27,497,754.07 of June, last year.

This increase is nothing short of phenomenal, being slightly over 32 per cent. Only once since the establishment of the Atlanta clearing house has the increase in percentage been so large. This was in June 1906, over June, 1905.

MINERS ON STRIKE.

Several Lives Lost As Result of Trouble in Pennsylvania.

The Westmoreland coal district is in the throes of a miner's strike, which so far has resulted in several deaths, the use of dynamite, many arrests and much violent disorder. The latest trouble arose at Export, when the homes of two foreign miners, who are said to have remained at work, were dynamited.

An extra heavy guard of police and deputies are on duty in the district.

COLONEL W. H. BIXBY.

United States Army Officer to Raise Battleship Maine.

CUBANS FIGHT DUEL.

Men Battle Until One Falls and Dies, While Other Disappears.

Armed with knives a duel took place in the woods near MacFarlane park in West Tampa, Fla., between Marco Adalo and another Cuban, whose identity has not yet been established. They fought until both had fallen from loss of blood, Adalo dying after proceeding a short distance from where the bloody duel took place. The unknown was able to make his way to a nearby street, where all trace of him was lost.

The two men were seen going into the woods a short distance from the park at an early hour, both gesticulating. The demeanor towards each other was such as to arouse suspicion among the cigar workers who saw them, and at the noon hour a search was made, with the result that evidence of a bloody struggle was found, and later the body of Adalo.

The late Steve Brodie acquired fame as a bridge jumper and long ran a Bowery saloon on the strength of it, but many say it was never proved that he really jumped. Several would-be suicides have been fished out of the river unhurt after jumping, but Otto Eppers is the first to jump with unquestioned witnesses, as a part of a pre-arranged plan.

OPEN-AIR PREACHING

Church of This Kind in the United States Established in New York.

It is said to be the only open-air church on the North American continent to be recently completed for a church on Broadway, New York city. Outdoor preaching, to be sure, is by no means unknown in this country, but the architects have not before made provision for it here as they have in France, Italy and Spain, where pulpits are built on the outside of churches or near by on the grounds. The Grace church structure, designed by William W. Renwick, described in the International Studio by Samuel Howe. This pulpit, Mr. Howe remarks, is well placed. At Tenth street Broadway deflects slightly to the west of the course it holds below, so that the corner is one which in itself is rare in this rectangularly planned city. The spot is known throughout the land and Grace church near to the hearts of many.

The sculptor of the panels for this pulpit is Jules Edouard Roiee to whom the French government gave a special medal for his exquisite rendering of a plaque, "The Dawn of the Twentieth Century." The theme of the panels is the beatitudes, suggesting the underlying philosophy of Christ's teaching as represented in the Sermon on the Mount, preached from the open.

LY JAMAICA HE KNEW OF the Provincialism of Average East erner Evidenced by Visitor to Artist's Studio.

A New York artist, lately returned from Jamaica, had some paintings of Jamaica scenery in his studio. One day a man who had been roaming through the room stopped before one of them and asked:

"What does this represent?"

"A scene in Jamaica," said the artist.

"That's odd," said the man. "I don't remember ever seeing anything like it in Jamaica."

"You have been to Jamaica?" politely inquired the artist.

"Sure!" said the man. "I live there." "In that case you must certainly be acquainted with this scene, since it represents a scene in the principal part of the island."

The man from Jamaica regarded the artist with an air of amusement. Then he said: "I live in Jamaica, and I know every corner in the town. There isn't a bit of it that bears the least resemblance to that picture."

The mention of Jamaica as a town carried away the artist.

"I see," said the artist, "you live in Jamaica, Long Island, don't you?"

"Yes," said the man. "Is there another Jamaica anywhere?"

Old Cannon Found Near Venice.

A Rome correspondent informs us that some very interesting discoveries have been made in the course of excavation work around the island of Pellestrina at Venice, where a number of ancient pieces of artillery have been found beneath six feet of mud, says the London Globe. The cannon are in a state of excellent preservation, though it is clear from their construction that they must date back to a period almost immediately after the discovery of gunpowder, and it is believed that they will prove of very great artistic and historic value.

RAINS IN AUSTRALIA

Heavy Downpour Causes Rivers of Country to Overflow.

Great Havoc Is Wrought and People Are Compelled to Seek Refuge on Roofs and in Trees—One Whole Family Drowned.

Sydney, N. S. W.—The great event of the year thus far in Australia has been the disastrous floods in the northwest of New South Wales caused by a phenomenal rainfall. The various rivers overflowed their banks and poured their contents over the surrounding plains and into adjacent towns. Tamworth was the first to be submerged, then followed Narrabri, Wee Waa, Moree, Warialda and a number of smaller towns. Moree is a thriving town near the Gwydir, 400 miles from Sydney. It is the present terminus of the railway to the northwest and is surrounded by far-stretching plains of porous black soil, rich with luxuriant grass on which browse thousands of sheep.

The mayor of Moree, who happened to live a little distance out of town, was cut off by the flood and had to wade with his family through four feet of water for a corrugated iron roof, where he remained under the sweltering sun for three days till the water subsided. Fortunately he had plenty of provisions in the house, and was lucky enough to catch a drowning sheep, as it drifted past, which was speedily killed and cooked so soon as the stove had sufficiently dried. In this, as in many similar cases, the telephone proved of immense use, enabling the inmates to communicate with the town and to arrange for the sending out of a relief party to rescue a boat load of people, who had capsized in front of the mayor's house and had been forced to remain in the trees all night. In another case a brother and sister were perched on a roof for three days, and a boat was hurriedly constructed in town to take them some food.

Funds were immediately started in Sydney and in different towns for the relief of the sufferers which speedily amounted to thousands of pounds. Almost everybody lost something, many being totally ruined, while several lost their lives. In one case a whole family, including women and children, at Wee Waa, where the flood was at its worst, left their homestead in a boat accompanied by a police constable. The current dashed them against a tree, the boat capsized and the whole party was drowned, excepting only the constable, who is not expected to recover. In another case, which illustrates the wide extent of the country devastated by the flood, a whole boatload was missing for a week, carried hither and thither by the current and seeing nothing but water during the whole time.

Since 1864 no other such calamity has occurred in this part of Australia, and those who remember the flood of that year say that this was still worse. The most remarkable feature about it was the promptitude and celerity with which the people everywhere rose to the occasion, relieved the sufferers, repaired the bridges, mended the roads, burned the carcasses, cleaned their houses, restored their communications, and, in fact, did everything that was humanly possible to undo the damage, which could hardly have been foreseen, and little of which could have been prevented in any case.

Cheering for ancient Greeks, who never had bald heads, or ought never to have had them, the boy students of Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware made a bonfire of their hats the other night. Dancing around the fire they swore never to imperil the hair of their heads again. The girl students applauded the proceedings from a safe distance, but refused to join in the sacrifice. Burn their new spring hats? Well, hardly.

BEHIND THE TIMES

GENTLE CRITICISM OF THE MODERN ENGLISH MOTHER.

Misguided, She Begins Early to Crush All Individuality in Her Daughter—American Girls Are Superior in Charm.

"The odd thing is, that, for all they're so dead anxious to marry their girls, English mothers don't a bit know how to do it. They're right back in the middle ages in their ideas. They think a girl should be good, and quiet, and not too smart, and not too talkative, and not different from any other girl. Above everything on earth, she is not to be conspicuous.

"From what English girls have confided to my sympathetic ear, I should judge that conspicuousness is looked upon over here as one of the seven deadly sins. What is there that a man wants in a wife?

"Ask him and he'll reel you off a catalogue of solid virtues. But watch him, and you'll see him attracted either by beauty (and the English girl could be the most beautiful in the world if she only knew how to dress and do her hair); propinquity—which is the cause of half the marriages in England, especially the unhappy ones (for Englishmen and girls seldom have the chance to 'walk out' with each other, as lower class girls and Americans in every class do, so that they're only too likely to marry the first person they really get a few tete-a-tetes with); or else—what the English mother ignores—individuality, that something in a woman which separates her from the crowd.

"English women generally have their individuality quenched by parents who want their offspring to be lay figures draped to copy mamma. At the best, they seldom develop a marked personality till they are nearly thirty and have lost the bloom of their youth and the cream of what to the American girls are the happiest years of her life.

"One of the most pathetic sights in the world to me is an English ballroom full of young girls, all much of a muchness in white, and all shy, gauche, self-conscious, unfledged—hobbledehoys still, instead of having entered into their kingdom of charming womanhood.

"They have nothing to distinguish them from one another. Why, their very partners can't tell them apart, and have to make careful mental notes of 'gold bangle,' 'good teeth,' or 'stick-up thing in hair!'"—Dora D'Espaigne Chapman, in the New York American.

Millers to Aid Farmers.

Columbus, O.—The millers and farmers of Ohio will co-operate in a movement to bring about an improvement in both the quality and quantity of the wheat output of Ohio. At the meeting of the Ohio Millers' association, it was decided to devote one day of the meeting next fall to a conference with representative farmers of Ohio, with this end in view.

Clothes as Viewed by Scientists.

Now the scientists are making a careful study of our clothes. The earliest garment was probably the shawl, which was also used as a petticoat. Make two rows of stitches up the middle of the petticoat, give one long cut between them and you have trousers. The band on a man's hat is a survival of the fillet wherewith the shawl was bound over the head. The Scotch cap, the bishop's miter and the little boy's sailor hat with their tails and the bonnet strings can be referred to the same origin. The little bow in the hat lining at the end of the lacing had its origin in the time when there were no one-eighth sizes and head coverings could be laced in or let out according to the size of the wearer's head.

Men in uniform wear their feathers on the left side, because when plumes were first used and men drew their swords more frequently they did not want them to get mixed with their feathers. The cocked hat probably began when hats were so large that they were looped up and the habit then became permanent. The helmet of the modern fireman has hardly altered since the Greeks.

The True Cure.

There are two ways of dealing with the evils in the world which we justly deplore and wish to abolish—one, to attack and try to break them down forcibly; the other, to dissolve or exhale them by the active presence of good. The former of these methods appears so much the more direct and obvious that it generally gains the first place in our attention. We see a wrong and our impulse is to crush it; we see an injustice and we long to exterminate it; we observe an unrighteous institution and we desire to overthrow it. The slower and less direct method of overcoming evil with good, of substituting a better way for that which is bad, of devoting the same energy to building up that we would have given to the work of tearing down, obtains a gradual hold over us only with time and experience.

Carving the Grand Canyon.

The popular idea that earthquakes and volcanic explosions played a part in forming the Grand canyon of the Colorado river is thought by the best authorities to be without foundation.

We are now told that the canyon was cut out entirely by the water of the river, and that the most effective tool employed was the quartz sand brought down from the sources of the river in the mountains. This sand is harder than any of the constituents of the rock strata in which the canyon has been carved. Hurled by the swift water against the sides and the bed of the stream, it cuts the rock as easily as a file cuts soft iron.—Harper's Weekly.

Dread "Unseen Power."

A curious story comes from Dunfermline, Scotland. The recent occurrence of four fires in rapid succession in the household of Thomas Watson, has had the effect of terrorizing the family. These outbreaks have each had their origin in a cause which is inscrutable to the occupants of the house, and Mrs. Watson, who hails from the Highlands, imagines that a supernatural agent has been at work. She, with others in the domicile, have lately been living in dread. Afraid to go to bed o' nights, members of the family have sat up to watch for further manifestations of the strange, uncanny, "unseen power."

Fireworks Scare Wild Geese.

The great grain fields of the Sandborn ranch in Shasta county, California, are ingeniously protected at night from the vast flocks of wild geese and other aquatic fowl that do immense damage to crops, by means of a display of fireworks. Skyrockets and Roman candles were bought in large quantities by the management of the ranch, and men are stationed at various points. Whenever a flock is heard "honking" in the distance, several skyrockets or a shower of colored balls from a Roman candle are sent upward, and, as a result, the birds give the ranch a wide berth.

Big Engineer and Little Engine.

Frank Seidler is the biggest engineer on the Williamsport end of the Philadelphia and Reading system, and he has the "littlest" engine. The engine looks like a toy alongside the monsters that handle coal trains or that go pounding along with general freight. It is an engine that was once considered "some pumpkins" on the road, but it has got down to pulling a work train. The big engineer of this tiny old-fashioned engine weighs 320 pounds.—Philadelphia Record.

German Churchgoers.

The Germans are eminently a churchgoing, or at any rate a church-belonging people. According to the last federal census, taken four years ago, the total population was 60,641,278. This church census gives the church membership, Evangelicals and Catholics combined, as 59,741,344. The Evangelicals far outnumber the Catholics, the figures being: Evangelicals, 37,644,852; Catholics, 22,094,492. The Free Thinkers number only 4,270.

Skaters in Army.

A corps of skaters is attached to the Norwegian army, the members being selected for their good physique and their accurate marksmanship, as well as their ability to cover long distances on ice skates. These skaters can be maneuvered on the ice or over the mountain snow fields with as great rapidity as the best trained cavalry. As an instance of their speed, one of the corps some time ago accomplished 120 miles in 18½ hours, and this was done over very mountainous country.

Descriptive Journalism.

David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer of Great Britain, was described in a French newspaper as the "yelling Apache of the British crisis." This is one of the quieter paragraphs in Figaro, of Paris: "The eye of Lloyd George shoots out flames. It is with the inmate majesty of a king of speech that he treads the platform, roaring, stamping yes, howling, while he shakes the mass of his long black hair."

Established His Identity.

Mr. Heys, who has been in New York only a short time, was crossing when one of the cabs of a certain well-known company almost ran over him.

"There!" said he angrily to a passerby who stopped to pick up his hat and incidentally to offer sympathy, "this is the third time today that that cabby has tried to run me down. He's pursued me all over the city. I know it's the same man because his cab is marked with a 'K.'"

Fried Chicken.

"What Brooklyn bridge is to the American section in foreign geographies Maryland fried chicken is to the American section in foreign cook books," said the woman globe trotter. "Each in its own department is the representative institution of our country. Authors of foreign cook books don't think much of American cookery, but they can't afford to slight Maryland fried chicken. Cook books in half of the civilized countries on the globe pay tribute to it, but no two of the recipes are alike."

Youthful Reasoning.

One evening while talking at the supper table, a priest's name happened to be mentioned. Ethel said to her five-year-old brother, who had a cold:

"Charlie, that's the priest who baptized you and poured water on your head."

"Maybe that's how I got my cold," replied Charlie.

Her Explanation.

Mamie is considered the dullest pupil in a public school class. Not long ago the teacher assigned a subject for a composition and was surprised at the comparative excellence of Mamie's work. "Why, Mamie," she remarked, by way of encouragement, "you have done wonderfully well. But, really, was it original?" "No, ma'am," replied Mamie, "I made it up myself."—New York Tribune.

Literature.

"I have read this poem over a dozen times," said the assistant editor of the Highbrow Magazine, "and I can't make head or tail of it." "Good," exclaimed the editor. "We'll hit it up for a feature, together with an announcement denying that true poetry is dead. And don't forget to send a check for $1.25 to the fellow who wrote it."—Lippincott's.

A Problem.

It is reported that six citizens of Birmingham have recently mortgaged their homes to buy automobiles. The purchase price is a mere starter. How in the dickens do they ever expect to pay for repairs and gasoline?

RADIUM AS A CURE

Dr. Abbe Says Giant Cell Sarcoma Yields to Treatment.

Wide Removal of Apparent Disease Is Undoubtedly More Often Curative Than in Other Types of Growing Tumors.

New York.—Dr. Robert Abbe of this city, the foremost advocate in this country of radium as a curative agent in the treatment of cancer, recently read a paper before the Practitioners' society on "Radium as a Specific in Giant Cell Sarcoma," in which he recounted some 11 cases of cancerous tumors of rarther unusual characteristics, all of which apparently had been cured by radium. Some of the patients were present at the meeting and were examined by the physicians present.

The paper is printed in full with details of the cases in the Medical Record. In conclusion, Dr. Abbe says:

"This review of a group of cases of one type of malignant cell growth, all showing peculiar, I may say unique, retrograde changes, tending always to return to the normal, gives a demonstration of the efficacy of radium, as clear to the clinical student as to a demonstration of Euclid on a classroom blackboard.

"There is no similar record in surgery, as far as I know. It may be supplemented by other remarkable cases in radium literature dealing with sarcomata and epitheliomata. The disappearance of a round cell sarcoma of the eyelid, which I have shown before this society, is a notable one.

"Again, in a remarkable destructive sarcoma of the humerus, where the bone has been fractured in the growth, reported by Dr. W. G. Morton of this city, the skiagraphs show the cure by a radium treatment of six weeks. I have recently read a letter from a patient, her arm as well as the sound one for all purposes, washing, ironing, etc., and remains cured for five years.

"We have, then, to face a pathological and surgical problem which needs explanation. Why should an overgrown mass of a certain group of cells of the body, like these narrow cells, grow riotously and constitute a tumor which absorbs healthy structures opposing its expansion and destroy the body in a manner justifying its name 'malignant?' And, again, when the powerful Becquerel rays emitted from radium penetrate the mass, why should the retrograde of all malignant cells proceed with orderly retreat, until the tumor has entirely gone? Or, again, how shall we explain the reassembling of the original cells out of the mass, so as to shape the parts like the jaw bone, the roof of the mouth, the humerus, etc., so that the appearance and functions are restored?

"Is it a bold speculation that permits one to venture in this field of biology when the master minds admit ignorance of what constitutes the vital force which energizes each cell, and constitutes life as a whole. Yet we may be permitted to suggest that there are already known definite facts as to the nature of the rays, that they are electrons emitted with tremendous force, traveling in straight undeviating lines, each carrying an electric charge, if, indeed, they are not themselves electricity; speeding at 70,000 miles a secodd; retarded by dense objects, like masses of lead or steel, or bone or stone, only to escape beyond and resume their travels into space. It is recognized that radioactivity exists everywhere, but it is only when we concentrate it in our powerful little tubes that we can study definite effects.

"The alpha, beta and gamma rays have different electrical charges and different effects. The alpha are suppressed entirely in the glass tube. The beta, carrying negative currents, escape feebly, and the gamma, carrying their own electricity, penetrate everything. It is not conceivable that the riotous outgrowth of cells constituting a tumor may be due to a loss of equilibrium in the balance of electric forces sustaining the normal cell growth, and that the supply of one needed element—possibly positive electricity, possibly negative—will restore the balance, and enable the cells to resume their orderly growth?

"The surgical estimate of giant cell sarcoma is one of a varied degree of malignancy. Wide removal of the apparent disease is undoubtedly more often curative than in other types of actively growing tumors.

"My conviction is that every case of myeloid sarcoma should be given treatment by radium before any operation, and that we may expect many cures."

Mussel Shells Becoming Scarce.

Decker, Ind.—White river mussel shells are being sought by buyers from Iowa at prices ranging from $19 to $36 a ton. They are the best shells found in the United States and are becoming scarce. Four years ago, like other shells, they were a drug on the market at four dollars. Now the "river run" is worth about $27 a ton. Slugs, "river run," are priced at $3.75 an an ounce.

Corsets for Men Barred.

New York.—Corsets for young college students who must take the part of women in college theatricals have been officially tabooed by the dramatic director of the New York university actors. The prohibition follows an attack of syncope suffered by an undergraduate the other night at a dress rehearsal while tightly laced.

PRIZE IN A JUNGLE

Indiana Scientist Brings Back Strange Fish With Legs.

Dangers of All Kinds Are Braved by Hoosier in a Three-Year Trip Through South American Wilds—Tales of Hardship.

Bloomington, Ind.—In the midst of a mass of 30,000 specimens of fish life, now reposing in the preservative of the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburg, is a specimen of animal life which is totally new to present-day scientists, according to a statement given out here by Dr. John D. Haseman, who has just returned after a three-years' trip through the wilds of South America in search of hitherto unknown forms of fish life.

Reticent in the extreme concerning his discovery, which, it is alleged, is the greatest in zoology since the days of Alexander Humboldt, Dr. Haseman would say only that the new species is about eighteen inches long, is blind and has 96 segments in its body.

Dr. Carl H. Eigenmann, head of Indiana zoological department, says that the specimen is neither a fish nor has it four legs. It is known, however, that the species has rudimentary legs, and closely resembles the American salamander. Only one specimen of the "find" is in the possession of the institute.

Speaking of his trip across the wilds of the Paraguay river, through the 2,000-mile stretch of the Amazon valley and into the unknown regions of the coastwise rivers of the southern continent, Dr. Haseman tells almost unbelievable stories of hardship and privation, hunger and disease suffered along with his handful of native guides in the pursuit of the various discoveries in the scientific world, which he says he will soon make public. Dr. Haseman was the only white man in the party.

After journeying almost 10,000 miles along the east coast of the continent, from Bahia to Buenos Ayres, making numerous side trips into the valleys of the coastwise rivers, the former Indiana university student started on a 10,000-mile trip through the very heart of the continent. He followed the Paraguay river from its mouth to the source, then made a 400-mile trip, which took 27 days, in order to get around an intervening range of mountains.

This side expedition was made in a bull cart. The explorer then found the source of the Guapola river, traveled 1,500 miles down it to the Madeira river, then into the valley of the Amazon and down the valley of the "King of Rivers" to its outlet, a distance of more than 1,000 miles.

Most of the long journey was in boats, some of it was on foot, through almost impassable jungles, some of the way was negotiated on log rafts, and at times, when the rivers were dry, the native guides had to pull the boats over hidden rocks.

A close watch had to be kept and barricades built of the boats themselves to keep the Indian along the route from shooting into the party with poisoned arrows.

At times the food supply of the party ran out and they were forced to shoot monkeys for food. At other times a limited supply of dried fish formed the only sustenance of the entire party.

The specimen of the "fish with feet," which is the only one of its sort that scientists have been able to capture, and which is so highly prised that few hints of its true character have leaked out, was captured in the Rio Negro river, near its junction with the Amazon.

Doctor Haseman is the only other scientist besides Johann Natterer, a German naturalist, who undertook a similar expedition in 1825, who has made this South American trip. Natterer's specimens are now in the Vienna museum.

RACES IN "ADOPTED" FAMILY

Russian Doctor in California Adds Yaqui Indian Boy to Collection of Children.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Dr. M. S. Schulz of Long Beach, took legal steps the other day to acquire another member for his "international" family, by making application for permission to adopt Ramond Palamoris, a Yaquis Indian boy eighteen months old.

Doctor Schulz, who is a Russian, has two children of his own. He has adopted a Korean and a mulatto, and is casting about for infants of other races and color to add to his family. He believes that racial differences can be eradicated by providing a proper environment for the children.

The Yaquis boy is the son of an insurgent chief in Sonora, his mother having been captured by Mexican soldiers.

Women's Small Feet.

New York.—The New York woman still holds her proud position at the foot of the feet list. According to one of the biggest shoe dealers in the country, the average size of the foot at Barnard college is smaller than at any other school in the country.

The general run of shoes there are No. 2's, he says, while the University of Missouri co-eds head the list with a 4B. Some of the shoes there run as large as 7B.

The Vassar girls have a steady foundation in an average of 2B. At Radcliffe the average is the same, Wellesley takes 4C as a rule.

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for filling this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this:

Dr. A. E. Robinson, K 1141 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

To Our Friends and Customers:

We can truthfully say our business has shown such a phenomenal increase this year that we doubt there being another business of any kind, in this city that will equal our record. Now, there is a reason for this that explains itself. If we had not sold honest goods at honest prices, with polite and prompt attention, we could not have shown this gain.

To those who were our patrons last year, we could offer no stronger reason for them remaining our customers than to assure them of the same square deal at our store in the future that they have received in the past.

When you are sick, you send for a physician in whose ability you have the greatest confidence. It isn't a matter of friendship then, but the doctor who can cure you is the man you want, and must have. It is just so important, and even more so, that you have his prescriptions filled by a druggist in whose ability and honesty you have the same faith that you have in your doctor.

At our store your prescriptions will be filled by a man of experience and thorough knowledge of his profession, and the fact that no mistake has ever been made at our store, sets the seal of caution on our record.

We buy the best drugs and medicines that are offered for sale regardless of cost, and sell them at the same price others would get for an inferior article. If you have not been our customer, parents and friends have. We have pleased them, why can't we please you?

Rare Coin Found by Gardener.

While excavating recently a gardener of Mobile, Ala., unearthed in the western part of that city a bronze coin. It later came into the possession of C. A. Dodge, a local inventor, who had the coin photographed and sent to the Smithsonian institution, Washington. T. T. Belote, of the division of history of the institution, says that the find is a most valuable one; in fact, so rare that there is no specimen of the coin in the National museum. According to Mr. Belote the coin is of Roman mintage, struck during the reign of Emperor L. Septimus Severus, who ruled from 197 to 211 A. D.

A Fish Out of Water

By Bertha Orville

(Copyright, 1909 by Associated Literary Press.)

Ned Morgan was in a quandary. His sister Edith and his best friend, Tom Winters, had been in that delightful stage of courtship that precedes an engagement when suddenly the situation changed and Tom's visits ceased. The big brother had at first concluded that it was a lovers' quarrel and would, in time, right itself. But Edith's demeanor soon changed that theory. She seemed to be as happy and as intensely interested in her thoughts as she was when first she met Tom.

On the other hand, Tom was in a state of deep despondency. One day he suddenly announced his intention of going west.

"See here, Edith," said Ned, "what's wrong between you and Tom? He's going away, and I am inclined to think it's because you haven't treated him right."

"I have, Ned. When I saw that I didn't care for him in the way he wanted me to, I told him so frankly."

"What occasioned your change of heart?"

She blushed and turned away her eyes.

"Who in the world is the man? The other man. There is one, isn't there, Edith?"

"I—I am not sure," she hesitated, her blue eyes softening in reminiscence.

"But no one comes to see you. You haven't received any attention since you turned Tom down. This is a Jack and Jill town, you know, and there is no one available that I know of."

She was silent.

"You won't tell me, Edith?"

"No," she said decidedly, "not—yet."

Her brother wisely refrained from further questioning. He sought Tom.

"We Rowed Up the Creek."

"So you are going west, Tom?" he asked.

"Yes, a business trip that no one else in the firm wanted to take, but which was welcomed by me under the circumstances."

"I know Edith. This is a passing whim of hers, and she will be all right again by the time you return."

Tom shook his head despondently.

"There is another man."

"Well, it must be a man in a book, then, for no one comes to see her and she is at home alone every evening," the brother told him.

At this intelligence Tom brightened a little and went away with the spark of hope fanned to life again.

Ned grew watchful of his sister. From the fact of her having no evening entertainment he concluded that the other man must be employed at night and able only to pursue his wooing by day. It was quite by accident that he gained knowledge of the affair. He was taking a turn in his car in the country one morning, and passed a small lake resort. Feeling thirsty he ran the car into the grounds up to the pavilion. To his surprise he saw his sister's runabout in the driveway.

"Where is the young lady who came out in the runabout?" he asked of the landlord.

"If 'twas a young lady, ten to one she's out in the sailboat with Jack," was the reply with a significant smile.

"Jack?"

"Jack Berdan. He has charge of the boats here. He's a pretty fair looking chap and since I've had him here the boat trade has more than doubled. All the girls in the country and town have come to think there's nothing like sailing. There's one pretty girl who has been here every morning regularly for ten days."

On his way home Ned evolved a plan of action. In the afternoon he invited a girl he knew to go to the summer resort for a sail.

"Oh, then at last I may see Jack!" she exclaimed, laughing.

"Jack?"

"The picturesque new boatman. The girls all have been out to see him. They say he looks like Romeo. Mother wouldn't let me go out there alone."

Ned had to admit that Jack was certainly of the type to appeal to the artistic and feminine eye. He was slender, supple and lithe and handled the boat with ease and grace. He had dark, foreign-looking eyes, strong features, brown skin, even white teeth and a musical voice. He wore corduroy trousers, blue flannel shirt with turn-down collar and rolled-up sleeves, and tie, a bit of a cap on the back of his head, with a Byronic raven lock on his brow.

When they were in the sailboat Ned tried to draw him into conversation but sailor-like his eyes and thoughts were centered on the boat and sky.

"That is where the fascination lays," thought Ned. "If only he had shown his level by his speech, Edith would have been disillusioned. I guess she is only a worshiper from afar."

"They must keep you pretty busy here," he observed as they landed. "Have to work evenings, I suppose?"

"Yes; that's our busy time," replied Jack. "Once in a while I lay off for a morning. I am going to get up tomorrow and go to the ball game."

"Be sure you do," urged Ned. "It's going to be the game of the season."

He went home, relieved. Jack had omitted all his "g's" and had said "git" for "get." He went early to the game the next morning and secured a seat on the bleachers watching the entrance faithfully. Presently Jack appeared, "dressed up." His attire was just what Ned had hoped it would be.

At luncheon he remarked casually to his sister: "Bessie Lawrence and I went to Round lake for a sail yesterday."

She blushed, and darted a quick glance at him.

"I hear the girls are all wild over the new boatman. I don't wonder. He's about as handsome a chap as I ever saw outside of a picture."

Edith looked relieved and pleased.

"Isn't he beautiful?" she asked enthusiastically, "and can't he handle a boat well?"

"Yes; he's a born sailor. So you have been sailing with him, Edith?"

"Yes, a few times," she said, hesitating.

"Have you been with him anywhere else?"

"Once or twice. We rowed up the creek and—"

"And where else, Edith?" he asked gently.

"I took him in my automobile for a ride."

"And do you think that was just the thing to do? Why not ask him to come to your house, as you did Tom and the others?"

"I thought," she said, reddening under his gaze, "that you would object."

"I would certainly prefer to have you see him here than to be going where he is. I made his acquaintance at the ball game this morning. I shall ask him to call, if you like."

"I don't think I want him to call," she said nervously.

"Why not?" he asked in feigned surprise.

"I don't know just why," she said doubtfully.

"I made inquiries about him and I find that he is a respectable, industrious fellow. I'll ask him to come up after dinner to-night. I want to see him anyway and figure on a sailboat party for next week."

He telephoned to the resort and Jack promised to call at eight o'clock that night. When he was admitted by the maid Edith and Ned were in the library. Edith looked at him and turned away from Ned's dancing eyes. Jack wore bright tan shoes, plaid socks, light trousers, a gaudy waistcoat, a gorgeous tie, a watch chain with a multiplicity of dangling charms, a large pin in his tie and an organization emblem in his lapel. He seemed perfectly at ease, however; much more so than his hostess. And he blithely ignored all the rules of English. After half an hour Ned considered from his sister's countenance that the lesson had been learned.

"Now, Berdan," he said, "let's figure on getting that biggest boat of yours up through the chain of lakes."

"Then, if you want to talk business, I may be excused," said Edith, hastily leaving the room.

Present her brother called to her.

"Our caller had to depart," he said gravely. "He had only two hours' leave. By the way, Edith, he confided in me that he had a girl—a dandy girl, he said."

"Ned," she said, tears of mortification in her eyes, "he looks so different in a boat."

"That is true. He should stay in one. But did you know that Tom returned today? May I telephone and ask him to come up tonight?"

"He won't come," she said hopelessly.

"Let's see," he replied, going to the telephone.

After a moment's conversation, he handed her the receiver.

"Tom wants to speak to you, Edith," he said, leaving the room.

Too Blue, Perhaps.

"There are too many new-fangled colors," said John Sloan, the well-known etcher, at a luncheon at Sherry's. "Shopping in a department store the other day, I heard a lady say to her companion:

"'No, it's the new spring shade of blue I want. It's lighter than navy blue and darker than eton blue—hardly a sky blue nor an electric blue—rather a robin's egg blue, you know, but richer, verging more on indigo blue, of course, not so deep as indigo blue, a trifle nearer turquoise blue than that, but with something of aquamarine blue in it, too, yet not at all like a royal blue, but nearer a baby blue, if anything.'

"Her companion, with a gruff laugh, said:

"'I see the blue you want—it's milk trust milk blue.'"—New York Times.

FOR SUCCESS IN ORGANIZING

Brains Required to Be Great Farmer and to Make Farm Profitable Intelligence Is Needed.

There are men themselves capable of doing great things, and who have such abilities that they might be factors in development, were it not that they lack a single quality. The man who is able to do a great thing may not be able to direct others in the doing of it; or he may not be able to control the persons necessary, says Farm and Ranch. For this reason we often find men of capacities in humble walks, or in positions of little responsibility. It is well to be able to do things, but to be able to do them and to cause others to do them is better.

The power to direct others is not always natural. Sometimes it appears to be with some men, but others achieve such capacities. Some great builders have wonderful faculties for organization, and for control of men. This enables them to work through others, and to use the abilities of numbers. Were there no such men, then much of the world's work must remain undone.

The power for organization does not necessarily include power to control men; and power to control men does not necessarily mean power to organize. Sometimes best work is done when one brain plans and another executes plans.

To be a successful farmer one must have power to plan, to organize forces and then to direct and control the men who do the work. It requires brains to be a great farmer. And to make a small farm profitable requires intelligence of no mean order.

Whether one farms, or does other things, the necessity for organization is always present. The man who matures his plans carefully and then organizes his forces to carry them out has much advantage over the man who does not mature his plans.

An old farmer who has succeeded told his young friend: "You work too much. Work half as much, plan the rest of the time and make it part of your work to carry out the plans."

Plant melon seed and cucumber seed in the box in the kitchen window.

PURPURAEMORRHAGICA KILLS

English Jury Declares That Rare Malady Accelerated the Death of a Miner.

London.—A case of alleged purpuraemorrhagica—or black blister—was inquired into by the Walsall deputy coroner.

A man named Edward Booker, on arriving home from his work at the Holly Bank Colliery company's Sneyd pit, had a black eye and complained that a "tree" had flown out and hit him. Next day he developed black blisters in the mouth, which extended over his body and caused death.

Dr. Longmore stated that this was a disease called purpuraemorrhagica, which was so obscure that "Coates' Pathology," one of the best known pathological works, did not even mention it; and, further, that it was brought on by the blow.

The jury returned a verdict of death from purpuraemorrhagica, accelerated by injuries received while at work.

Best Stomach Remedy Free

It is an old saying that if the stomach is sound the whole body is safe, because so much depends upon the proper working of the stomach. Many persons find themselves with a disorder of the stomach which produces dyspepsia or a peculiar state of biliousness.

If you suffer from both stomach trouble and constipation you are on the way to a very serious disease. From just such conditions come appendicitis, rheumatism, skin diseases and similar disorders, because the waste matter that should have been expelled from the system through the bowels has found its way into the blood and vitiated it. What is needed at this point is not simply a violent cathartic tablet or salt, which usually does more harm than good, but a gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which people have been using for these ailments for nearly a quarter of a century. It cured J. C. Lambert, of Warrensburg, Mo., of stomach trouble of long standing, also William Voll, of 963 Ellis-men St., Louisville, Ky., who had the trouble for fifteen years.

However, if you have stomach trouble you want to know from personal experience what Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do for you. If so, send your name to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you. You are urged to send for the free bottle, as the results from it will be the best recommendation of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Then you will do as over two million people did last year—go to your druggist and buy a regular bottle at 50 cents or $1, according to the size you prefer. We could mention hundreds and hundreds of families who are never without it. You can never tell when some member of the family will need a laxative, and then no time should be lost taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

JUST ONE SLIGHT MISTAKE

Why Mr. Newlywed Used a Spoon to Partake of His Favorite Rhubarb Pie.

The Easter bride explained exultantly that her biscuits were not sinkers; that the first steak was not charred; that she had not filled the salt cellars with sugar nor put the potatoes to boil in a pot without water.

"Everything went lovely," she said. "I cooked the eggs for breakfast to perfection, broiled the ham just right, had the grape fruit properly cold, the coffee hot and strong and made a pan of delightful rye muffins. Will ate seven, and it wasn't in a spirit of recklessness, either. He has to be careful of his digestion, because at one time he tried to live on health foods.

"But of course one can't help making a little blunder. Usually it is due to anxiety. Will said that of all pies, next to green apple pie, of course, he liked rhubarb—if he didn't get too much of it. So as rhubarb is coming in very nice now I made up some crust and got a few bundles of stalks. The crust was fine. I could tell by the looks it was just short enough and would digest as easily as milk. I was very careful, ever so careful, to get the right amount of sugar in, to get the crust crimped around the edge and to touch it over with the white of an egg. When it came out of the oven it looked delightful and smelled delicious.

"I ran a knife around the edge to lift it and when the knife came out my heart sank. There were juice and fragments of rhubarb on it. Then I tried to slip the pie onto a plate. It wouldn't slip. I ran the knife in again and this time the crust lifted up. I tried and tried and tried. But that pie would not come out of the pan."

"It ran over," said one of her friends. "You put too much sugar in."

"Your crust was too tender or too thin and it broke," said another.

The bride shook her head sorrowfully.

"The crust was all right," she said, "but I forgot to put in a bottom crust. So we ate that bottomless pie with a spoon."

The New Art.

A fashionable painter, noted for his prolific output, was discussing at a studio tea in New York a recent scandal in the picture trade.

"Look here, old man," said G. Innis Kerr, the etcher, "do you paint all your own pictures?"

"I do," the other answered, hotly, "and with my own hands, too."

"And what do you pay your hands?" Mr. Kerr inquired. "I'm thinking of starting an art factory myself."

BARRETT ON FARMERS' UNION

President of Big Agricultural Organization Gives Credit for Awakening of Farmer and Nation.

In making his address of welcome to the members of the Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union of America, recently in convention at St. Louis, President C. S. Barrett, touching on the awakening of the farmer, said, in part, as follows:

The era of sleep is at an end! The era of wakefulness to self-duty, to the obligation of self-help, to the obligation of duty to country is already dawning. I do not say that the farmer as a class, is roused to his national importance and to his national obligations. But I do assert, with all the emphasis at my command, and supported by all the experience of a lifetime, that the leaven of readjustment, of revolutionary change, is stirring throughout the mass of the American farmers.

And if the farmer is awakening, the nation is no less degree wakening also. It is seeing that its life blood comes from the soil, that its present welfare and its destiny are builded upon the soil. It is sensing the truth that neglect of the farmer means neglect of the nation, a blow at the material, intellectual and moral assets which uphold our institutions today and which must tomorrow guard them against invasion and decay.

So that today, America anxiously watches and waits upon the farmer. Agricultural schools and colleges, most of them grievously ineffectual, multiply. The nation and the individual states maintain agricultural departments devoted to his interests, and bombarding him continually with bulletins, advice and admonition. The newspapers bristle with counsel to him. Politicians, publicists and students enthuse and agonize over him from rostrum and forum and legislative hall. It can be stated in one sentence, that the finger of the nation is pointing today but in one direction—and that is at the figure of the man behind the plow, to whom they are looking to redeem them from a sky scraping cost of living, and, in a way, from the menace of unrest that broods like a pall over many of our cities.

It is a psychological moment of an awakened conscience from one boundary of America to another. We are scourging vandalism, graft and general evil from politics. We are standing more resolutely each day for a literal interpretation of the doctrine of the "square deal." We are determined that the people and not the politicians shall rule. We are discovering that, after all, the golden rule is not a beautiful abstraction, but the most sensible and business-like of realties. So we are substituting the neglect of decades meted to the farmer, for concentrated attention, and for the chronic misunderstanding of him, an earnest effort at understanding.

I think that, in an instrumental degree, the Farmers' union is responsible both for the awakened farmer and the awakened nation, as regards the farmer. In the six years of our national existence, we have steadily worked away upon the problem at its foundation—the home of the farmer, the viewpoint of the farmer, and above all, basing all our efforts upon a deep personal study of the farmer.

The New Art.

A fashionable painter, noted for his prolific output, was discussing at a studio tea in New York a recent scandal in the picture trade.

"Look here, old man," said G. Innis Kerr, the etcher, "do you paint all your own pictures?"

"I do," the other answered, hotly, "and with my own hands, too."

"And what do you pay your hands?" Mr. Kerr inquired. "I'm thinking of starting an art factory myself."

QUARTERLY REVIEW

Sunday School Lesson for July 10, 1910
Specially Arranged for This Paper

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life."—John 6:63.

The purpose of giving so many forms of review as the following is that the teacher may select the form that appeals to him most, or that he thinks will be most useful with his class. Sometimes it will be best to combine two or more plans.

1. A "PUT-YOURSELF-IN-THEIR-PLACE" REVIEW.

Make a list of persons concerned with these lessons, and give each scholar a list in advance, for him to answer the questions, "What lessons should the disciples have learned from these events? And the Pharisees? And Herod? And John the Baptist? And Peter? And the people of Capernaum? And the lad with the lunch? And the Canaanitish woman?" etc. To answer these questions the scholar will be obliged to bring together all the lessons in which each character appears.

2. A "SEVEN-GREAT-CHAPTERS" REVIEW.

If there are seven scholars in your class, assign to each of them one of the seven chapters of Matthew which we are to review. He is to write out a list of questions on his chapter, the teacher helping him if necessary, and these questions are to be asked the class on Sunday. Thus all will study all the chapters, to answer the questions, while each will make a special study of the chapter on which he prepares questions. Of course, if you have fewer than seven scholars, you will give some scholars two chapters. If you have more than seven scholars, divide some of the chapters.

3. A "QUESTION-EXCHANGE" REVIEW.

Every scholar is to write out, at home, two questions of his own on each lesson we are reviewing. His questions are to be on the points that he considers the most difficult, and each question is to be written on a separate slip of paper. In the class these questions will all be jumbled together in a box, and the scholars will draw them in turn and answer them. If desired, a record may be kept of the number that each scholar answers correctly.

4. A PICTURE REVIEW.

If you have been using in your teaching Wilde's Bible Pictures, you can make a pleasant review by fastening a tape to the top of each and putting them all in a portfolio, the tapes alone projecting. You will have removed or covered up all indications on the pictures of what lesson each refers to. The scholars will draw these pictures forth by the tapes, one at a time, each scholar telling all he can about the lesson whose picture he has drawn, and the other scholars listening carefully, so as to add the points he may omit. If you have time, repeat the review in the same way, except that the second time, as each scholar draws out his picture, the rest will question him about that lesson.

5. THE "1881-YEARS-LATER" REVIEW.

Each scholar, in preparation for this review, is to go over the lessons and to find for each lesson some modern application—some suggestion for our daily lives or for society or the nation and the world in 1910. These lists are to be brought to the class and read aloud, except so far as they may contain duplicate thoughts.

6. A "BROAD-VIEWS" REVIEW.

The teacher will propose to the class, a week in advance, a number of subjects, each of which calls for a wide survey of all the lessons. Every scholar is to select one of the topics and examine all the lessons to get light upon it, reporting the results to the class the next Sunday. Here are some subjects that you may use: The miraculous power possessed by Christ. What these lessons show about the nature and character of Christ. What the events of these lessons taught the disciples. What Christ, in these lessons, taught about our duty to one another and to God. How Christ in these lessons showed the love of God to men. How Christ in these events showed his courage. The most helpful verse or saying in each lesson.

7. A "WORKS-AND-WORDS" REVIEW.

Ask each scholar to make a chart at home, covering the entire series of 13 lessons that relate to Christ. Let them classify each lesson according as Christ's "works" or "words" are prominent in it, or both, and let them add the other facts given in the following chart. Explain what you want very clearly, and compare the charts in the class, lesson by lesson.

Fighting is hard work, whatever sort of fighting it is. You cannot fight without wounds of body, heart, or soul.

Happiness in Unselfishness.

Some of the best and happiest hours possible for a man's life are held in trust for him, so to speak, by his fellow men. He cannot get them or enjoy them by himself, and if he does not love and serve his kind, he will inevitably miss them, and be the weaker and poorer for the loss.—New Guide.

The truest love must ever seek the highest good of its object; sometimes even with forgetfulness of important smaller advantages.

SHEEP AND THE REED FLUTE

Herders of Palestine Have Accustomed Their Animals to the Sound of Weird Music.

The pastoral life of the Palestine peasant has always been a subject of interest and a pleasant study. The shepherd is seen at his best in the spring when he has the care of both sheep and lambs and when all his thoughts are centered on his seemingly indolent occupation.

Work for the shepherd begins in earnest with the lambing season, which commences early in January and continues for two or three months; during that time it is no unusual sight to see the shepherd with several newly born lambs or kids stored away in the capacious folds of his bosom and the mothers in close attendance.

"When heavy storms of snow or rain come on the shelter of some cave has to be sought and a careful watch against the attacks of wild animals kept. This watchfulness is not relaxed on a fine day, and the long hours on the hillsides or plains are whiled away in making music on the reed flute, of which every shepherd is the maker and player.

The music is an assurance to the sheep that the shepherd is on the alert; let the music cease for any length of time and the flock will stop grazing and look around for their caretaker and leader. At night the sheep are folded around the village or camp to which they belong. The fold is a large inclosure, the wall of which is made up of good sized stones piled one on another. There is only one entrance, which is narrow, for the sheep as they enter have to "pass under the rod" so that the owner may count them and see that none are missing.

To find good pasture and a quiet resting place is the daily duty of the shepherd, and in the long summer days the flock rests during the heat by some stream or under the shadow of a great rock. Each sheep has its name, to which it will respond on being called by its keeper. In southern Palestine the flocks are tended by girls and women, but in other parts by youths and men.—Sunday at Home.

Sirius the Master Sun?

Astronomers once believed that the entire starry universe revolved around a center of attraction and the star named Alcyone, in the group of the Pleiades, was selected by Maedler as marking that great center. It has long been known, however, that Maedler's conclusion, which was based on the apparent motions of the stars, was incorrect and if any universal center exists it has not yet been discovered. In fact, many of the stars seem to be moving in straight lines, some in one direction and some in another; and among these is our own sun. But it is possible that further observations will show that all the stars are really moving in curved lines. In the meantime it has been found that there are certain groups or sets of stars which appear to travel together. To what set, if any, the sun belongs, we do not yet know, but Delauney has presented reasons for thinking that those stars whose distances have been measured (that is to say, those which are nearest to us), group themselves around Sirius, the dog star, in a manner similar to that in which the inner planets are grouped around the sun. If this be correct, Sirius may possibly be the master sun of which our orb of day is a distant satellite.—Harper's Weekly.

Microbe Causes Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, known to medical men as tetanus, is one of those terrible maladies which occasion great suffering and baffle the best attempts of the profession to successfully treat them. Commencing with stiffness of the jaw muscles, tetanus quickly goes on to produce violent convulsions, which utterly exhaust its victim's strength, while preventing him from taking food, owing to his being unable to open his mouth; hence its more popular designation of "lockjaw." Investigations have shown that this dreadful disease is due to a microbe which commonly exists in ordinary soil and the surface mud of the streets, which habitat explains the reason why tetanus frequently attacks persons who have been injured in street accidents and had their wounds contaminated with refuse and dust from the roadway. Although no certain cure for tetanus is yet known, progress is being made with injections of "anti-tetanic serum."

The Father of Waters.

It was in the year 1519—120 years before the Mayflower reached Plymouth rock—that the Mississippi was first seen by the eyes of a white man. Proof was already at hand that Florida was not an island, for in 1519 Alvarez de Pineda had followed that coast as far as the site of Tampico in Mexico, where he found Cortes and his men. Pineda then turned back and after a while entered the mouth of the Mississippi, which he called Rio de Santa Espiritu. He seems to have been the first European to sail upon this great river. How far he ascended it is not clear, but he spent six weeks upon its banks trading with the Indians.—John Fiske.

Breaking the News.

The widow—Wouldn't you like me to read your palm?

The Man—Delighted! Now, tell me something of my future.

The Widow—Your future is to be a very happy one.

The Man—How do you know?

The Widow—I am going to marry you.—Houston Post.

Isaiah 1:23—Thy princes are companions of thieves; every one loveth gifts and runs after rewards.

Isaiah 5:23—Woe unto them that justify the wicked for reward, and deprive the righteous of justice.

Prov. 17:23—A wicked man taketh a gift out of the bosom (pocket) to pervert the ways of judgment.

Mistook Use of Brushes.

Shoe brushes, made of red and black felt, have been added to the paraphernalia of a New York hotel. These were placed in the bathrooms. The other day a traveler from the west, in a hurry to join some friends for dinner, mistook the new article for a bath brush and used it vigorously, with the result that the water turned to a fiery red. Then he discovered that he was covered with red and black stripes. His efforts to remove the stripes failed and he rang for the manager. After a few hurried words there was some explanation and the victim of circumstances managed to meet his engagement. Just how the stripes were removed was not a matter of public record. The manager says he supposes he will have to put signs on the shoe brushes or chain them to the floor.

WAS NO NOVELTY TO HIM

From His Statement, Irish Visitor Evidently Was Thoroughly Familiar With Lobsters.

The congressman with a red necktie was entertaining a friend who had formerly arrived from the "Old Sod," but had attained fame as the man who had carried "the fourteenth precinct in the twenty-second ward." With such a visitor to entertain, the congressman thought the best thing was to take him to Harvey's Lobster palace. The gathering there somewhat impressed Pat, but when the waiter placed before him a great, rich, red lobster, set down with an airy and nonchalant wave of his hand, Pat's eyes opened a trifle wider than usual with astonishment.

"You did not get anything like that in your native town," remarked the entertainer. "These red lobsters are considered a delicacy suited to the palace of a king, and I understand were in high favor ever since the time when Nero insisted on having them for every meal—have you ever been one before?"

"Ah, go on wid ye," was the reply. "Seen one? Isn't the coast of Ireland red with those fish—although a few of them have escaped lately and come across and got into congress in Washington?"—Joseph Mitchell Chapple, in "Affairs at Washington," May National Magazine.

The sprinkler has not been much evidence lately, but then it has been needed.—Dame Nature attended to the laying of the dust, for "the rain it raineth every day."

In a short time we shall be getting the census returns, and it's a pretty safe bet that Clanton will run up about the 1200 mark. An increase of 100 per cent in ten years is something to be proud of—but perhaps we had better not halloo too loud before we see.

An effort is being made in Montgomery to run a night train from Birmingham to that city, leaving the latter place about midnight. It would be a desirable thing for Clantonians, who would be able to run up to Birmingham on the evening accomodation, take in the theatre or other amusements and return the same night, or at least get home in the early morning. It is to be hoped the movement will be successful.

It does not seem to be lovely in the Republican party of Chilton county at the present time, and it is quite interesting to note passing events. 'Tis but a little while to the primary, however, when we will have definite information as to the situation.

The Free Lance has changed its name to the Socialist View—a more appropriate title, although it bears evidence of its free lance proclivities.

While we have been having too much rain recently, the weather has not been extremely hot in this section of the country, but in northern cities the heat has been unbearable and numerous deaths from prostration are reported. Let us be thankful for the happy medium—we never suffer from either extreme of heat or cold.

Last Saturday evening as Mr. R. Langston was driving along the road to his home at Pletcher, with a fine watermelon in his buggy, which had been presented to him, he espied three or four boys, and afterward looking to see if the melon was alright, discovered it had gone from his buggy. Turning his horse around he drove back and found the boys with the melon and accused them of taking it from the buggy, but they claimed it had fallen out of the buggy. The melon had not been cut, so resuming his way Mr. Langston went on his way rejoicing.

The Republican convention at Birmingham on Tuesday put out a full ticket and we now have a fight before us. There is no doubt, however, of Democratic success in the election in November, but there will be an interesting campaign until then.

A good clean discussion of the principles of the two political parties will do much to enlighten the voters and will arouse the enthusiasm of the voters.

There are several good things in the platform, among which may be noted the clause referring to the poll tax provision of the election law, which they demand the repeal of.

On the liquor question the platform takes somewhat of a straddle, but the whole is fairly reasonable.

At the head of the ticket was a prohibition amendment man, while the man on the list was an anti-...

THE COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

For six years the County Sunday school Association has been growing steadily, building into itself the interest and strength of the men and women who are the life of the Sunday schools of Chilton.

The Convention held in Verbena July 5-6, is the first mid-week meeting in the association's history and is a step forward in up-to-date usage. Twenty-five schools were represented by fifty-seven delegates and, since the week-day meeting is so successful for the county, it is "devoutly hoped" this innovation will prove practicable for the district conventions.

In addition to local county talent composing the program, Miss Minnie Kennedy and Mr. Leon Palmer were present, adding very greatly to the interest and helpful instruction of the meeting. The reports of the district presidents show that a healthy ambition pervades Chilton to get into the "Gold star" rank. This will be achieved when every school in the county sends a report, makes a contribution however small, and is represented on at least one district meeting during the year. It is possible and even easy for every school to do this and it is earnestly desired that each school adopt the motto that animates the state association, "we can do it and we will." Then will Chilton take the place that is rightfully hers with the front rank counties of Alabama.

The county has pledged $130.00 for state work for 1910. The president is allowed $10.00 for expenses, the secretary $10.10 and the superintendents of the four departments, Missions, Elementary, Temperance and Teacher Training school leave $5.00 each for necessary postage and therefore it takes $170.00 for actual "running" expenses and $10.00 surplus for extras, programs, expenses of speakers from out the county, etc. This amount has been proportioned among the districts according to their strength and most of the schools in 5 districts pledged, at the conventions in the spring, their share of this and some have already paid their pledges. We hope to pay the state pledge as soon as possible and hope that as many schools as can conveniently do so will pay their pledges by September 1st.

The following officers were elected: President, Dr. A. K. Horn, Thorsby—Secretary, Miss M. C. Gibson, Verbena. Executive Committee—Chairman, E. L. Thornton, Mountain Creek. Judge L. H. Reynolds, S. E. Norton, Thorsby. J. C. Abernathy, Mountain Creek. W. T. Herrod, Plantersville. Department Superintendents, Missions, Miss Nelia Johnson, Jemison. Temperance, Judge L. H. Reynolds Elementary, Mrs. S. E. Norton, Thorsby. Teacher Training, J. O. Williams, Clanton.

Following is an extract from the report of the Committee on resolutions, "we express to the citizens of Verbena and the surrounding country, by a rising vote, our indebtedness to them for their cordial welcome, many courtesies and abundant hospitality."

OBITUARY.

The receding tide of life hath kissed the day's last beam and borne from earth's shores another immortal being. Once again we have paused at the brink of an openen grave and poured from our hearts torrents of tears; once again we have stood in the presence of the dead, and looking into the great eye, heart and soul of God committed unto his loving care another of life's jewels.

Mrs. Mary Augusta Middlebrooks was born September 29th, 1851, in the southern part of Chilton county. She passed peacefully into that higher life as the shadows were growing in length, Tuesday, June 7th, 1910, at Brent, Alabama.

Our loved and dear one, who is sleeping in a silent grave, long wondered in darkness but in her wonderings, one day passing calvary she bathed in a fountain of blood; going on to a new made grave she saw the stone rolled away; the grave standing opened; the within lighted with the brilliance of heaven, and she heard the sweet voice of an angel whispering the drama of love, "He is not here; He is risen."

MR. TAFT SHIES AT THE TARIFF ISSUE

Politicians Credit President With Shrewd Move.

The tariff is not to be an issue in the 1912 national campaign if President Taft can help it. Political leaders credit President Taft with one of the shrewdest moves ever made in politics, to remove the troublesome tariff question out of the next national campaign.

When President Taft commenced his campaign for a national tariff board, which would investigate the workings of the tariff law and report its findings to the president, instead of congress, it was generally thought that President Taft was anxious to get in close personal touch with the benefits and the abuses of the Payne-Aldrich law. It was not guessed at the time that another reason lay behind the move for the board.

Now it is evident that the tariff board will take at least two years for its work before its report is made. The report will be secret and no one will know what it contains save the president and the members of the board.

In the meantime should the democrats attempt to hinge their campaign upon the tariff, republican leaders may be able to offset this attack in some degree by saying:

"The tariff is being investigated now by the national board. Its report will be made to President Taft. The president will mold a bill to remedy its defects and his ability to push legislation is too well known for comment."

At the 1911 session of congress it is believed that the insurgents will bring up the question of tariff revision, but their efforts along this line will be balked by the fact that the tariff board is at work.

A RETURN MATCH.

It Is Said Jeffries May Ask Same With Johnson.

Jim Jeffries may ask for a return match with Jack Johnson, is a statement contained in a Los Angeles dispatch received at New York. The information, which is said to come from reliable sources, says that Jeffries is credited with declaring that he would insist upon a return match with Johnson within six months following the return from his hunting trip in the mountains.

Jeffries, it is said, claims that if he can go in the ring in as good condition as he was a few days before the fight at Reno, he could defeat Johnson. Sam Berger, manager for Jeffries, will make a statement later.

"TO THE TALL TIMBER."

Virginia Bank Cashier Said To Have Stolen $22,000.

Cash to the amount of $15,000 and $7,000 worth of unsigned treasury certificates have disappeared from the vaults of the Citizens' National bank, Clintwood, Va., and a reward of $1,000 has been offered by the officers of the institution for the arrest of Walter C. D. Sutherland, cashier of the bank, who has not been seen here since Saturday night.

Sutherland hired a horse Saturday night and told his friends, it is alleged, that he was going to ride to Stration to spend the Fourth with relatives. When he did not appear at the bank Tuesday morning inquiry by the officials developed the fact, it is said, that the young man had not visited Stration. No trace has yet been found of Sutherland or the horse he rode.

It was not until the bank vault, whose time clock has been set for ninety-six hours, could be opened, that the officials discovered the loss. In the vault they found a note saying "Gone to the tall timbers." The name of the missing cashier, it is said, was signed to it.

LYNCHING IN OHIO.

Anti-Saloon Detective Strung Up By Enraged Mob.

Carl Etherington, 23 years old, employed Thursday night by the State Anti-Saloon League as a blind tiger raider, was lynched at Newark, following a day of almost continuous rioting. The heavy doors of the Licking county jail were battered down, and Etherington was dragged from his cell. He was shot, kicked and bruised before the street was reached, and the finish followed quickly.

Etherington, several hours before, confessed he killed William Howard, proprietor of the "Last Chance" restaurant, and former chief of police, in a raid of alleged "speak easies" in a raiding scuffle and narrowly escaped lynching at that time. When news from the Hospital that Howard had died passed over the city, the fury of the mob took definite form.

Large battering rams were directed against the doors of the jail, and the deputies were powerless. The doors fell after nearly an hour's attack.

Etherington was dragged forth and hung by the mob.

$300,000 FIRE LOSS.

Business and Residential Section of Benton, Pa., Is Wiped Out.

A fire which did damage amounting to approximately $300,000 destroyed 60 buildings, made 30 families homeless and wiped out the business and residential section of Benton, Columbia county. An exploding firecracker thrown among the straw in the barn of George Crossley was the cause of the fire.

The fire broke out in the afternoon and it was until late at night before the flames were under control. Fanned by a high wind, the flames swept through a residential street and soon reached the business section of the town.

BROOKINS BREAKS ALTITUDE RECORD

He Attains Height of 6,175 Feet In Biplane.

Walter Brookins, in a Wright biplane, broke the world's altitude record at Atlantic City, N. J., when he attained a height of 6,175 feet. He used his last drop of gasoline at his highest altitude and was still climbing when his engine missed explosion.

The aviator brought his machine back to level to get the last drop of fuel out of the storage tank to reach the line of vision of engineers on the beach.

Reaching the imaginary line, Brookins started to glide to earth, and his engine stopped entirely when he was at 5,000 feet and still over the ocean. His circling glide to the beach, which the crowd believed to be a bit of fancy flying, was done to save himself from diving into the sea.

Brookins was ready to collapse when he reached the ground, and did not tell of his plight in the air until midnight after he had partly recovered.

It is expected that the record will stand without protest.

By his feat Brookins wins the $5,000 prize offered by the Atlantic City aero club for breaking the world's record unless a higher altitude is reached before the end of the present meet.

COST OF CARRYING MAIL.

Hitchcock Has Experts at Work Investigating the Railroad Rates.

Postmaster General Hitchcock will spend the greater part of his summer vacation figuring on a way to reduce the cost of hauling the mails. In a few weeks the postoffice department will be able to determine definately what it costs to handle the United States mail.

The work of compiling this information is under way now. When the postmaster general recently announced that an increase in postage would be a good thing for certain classes of mail matter, newspapers and magazines commenced a crusade, giving figures to show that the postoffice department was being run at a loss where profit could be made if it was run on a business basis.

A fight was made in congress to have the matter of railroad mail rates investigated, but those behind the movement were not successful. However it is possible that a congressional investigation may be urged at the next session. At any rate, congress will likely be asked to adjust the rates and lower the tariffs which railroads have been demanding for the handling of the United States mails.

BROWNLOW DEAD.

Well Known Tennessee Congressman Passes Away.

Congressman Walter Preston Brownlow died at Johnson City, Tenn., Friday, of Bright's disease.

Mr. Brownlow was 60 years old. He represented the first Tennessee district seven terms in succession, and had been nominated for another term. He made a record surpassing all other congressmen from the south in point of achievements in the way of appropriations for his district. His death will result in a state political confusion, and a struggle is looked for between the Brownlow and Evans republican factions. Mr. Brownlow leaves a widow and five children.

50,000 PERSONS GO OUT ON BIG STRIKE

Garment Workers Said to Be Out In New York.

Fifty thousand garment and cloakmakers, of whom eight thousand are women, walked out at New York at the call of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union, which demands an eight-hour day, an increase in wages and a guarantee that contractors stand behind sub-contractors for wage payments.

The fight thus far is purely local, but officers of the union said that if the employers attempted to sublet their work to other cities, notably Chicago, or Philadelphia and Cleveland, the union would call a strike there also.

The 1,100 factories in New York employ 100,000 hands, of which half are organized. The strikers hope to draw many of the non-union workers out by sympathetic strike.

BAR FIGHT FILMS.

Pictures of Jeffries-Johnson Fight to Be Tabooed by Many Cities.

That the moving picture syndicate owning the Jeffries-Johnson fight films will resort to the courts of the several states to determine their right to produce the pictures was indicated at Philadelphia when one of the best known moving picture men in the country who has big interest in the syndicate said that the agitation against the displaying of the pictures would be fought.

He said that too much money had been invested by the syndicate which represented 12 separate interests, to stand by and see the fight pictures prohibited without making a contest to determine the right of the city authorities to stop the display.

Mayor Reyburn, of Philadelphia, said that there will be no interference with the pictures in that city.

While a few cities may let the pictures be displayed, the great majority of places will bar them. Atlanta, Ga., and other Southern cities have already placed an embargo on them.

Even England, it is said, may bar the display of the fight films.

A SANE FOURTH.

Total of 28 Dead Reported Against a Total of 44 Last July Fourth.

The restrained observance of the Fourth of July has resulted in a material decrease in the number of casualties in the country, according to figures compiled by the Chicago Tribune.

This year's list of dead throughout the country so far reached is 28. Last year the same total was 44. The whole number of injured last year was 2,361. This year there were only 1,785.

Only One Killed in New York.

Five persons were killed July the Fourth, 1909, and but one death was due to fireworks in New York city. Three hundred and thirteen were hurt by fireworks, cannons and pistols last year and only 89 Monday last; there were 116 fires a year ago; Monday there were but 38, all insignificant. This is a showing over which the advocates of a safe and sane Fourth are entitled to boast.

EXTRAORDINARY AFFAIR.

Jockey, Riddled by Bullets, Falls Dead In Midst of Race.

An extraordinary affair is reported from Braila, in Roumania. During a race meeting there, largely attended by the sporting community from Bucharest, it was observed that a jockey named Gallas was holding back his horse.

There were excited protests, in the midst of which several persons in a state of fury drew revolvers and fired at the jockey who was riddled with bullets and fell dead. The murderers fled, and so far have not been arrested.

AVIATOR KILLED.

Wings of Machine Doubled Up and Aviator Wachter Fell to Death.

The opening of the second aviation meeting at Rheims, France, on the historic field at Bethany was marked by a fatal accident, Aviator Wachter being killed. Wachter was the first of the contestants to appear for practice. In his Antoinette monoplane he battled along with the gale, amid the enthusiasm of the spectators until the rain compelled him to make a descent. He resumed his flights in the afternoon and was flying magnificently, when suddenly an explosion was heard. The wings of the machine doubled up and the monoplane dropped to the earth with lightning speed. The aviator was killed instantly in full view of the spectators, among whom were his wife and little daughter.

The accident is attributed to the breaking of the wire stays.

It took the barber about two hours in a hot, stuffy court room to comply with the court's decree.

The formal demand of the Italian government for the extradition of Porter Charlton has been forwarded by the foreign office of the Italian embassy at Washington. NEWS FROM NATION'S CAPITAL In a laudable effort to encourage the investment of American capital in Porto Rico and diversify the industries of that territory, the bureau of Insular affairs has issued a statement presenting in alluring terms the possibilities of growing, manufacturing and exporting cocoanuts and their by-products. It is said the nut thrives better there than anywhere else in the West Indies; that the trees grow wild along the sandy coast, requiring no care and thrive where other trees would die. A tree produces 100 nuts per year, sold on the tree at 1 cent each, or were gathered at $18 or $20 per 1,000, and they sell at a profit of more than 100 per cent in New York.

Joe Jackson, the hard-hitting outfielder of the New Orleans Pelicans, was the first Southern League hitter to pass the 100 mark in the number of hits made. Jud Daley, of Montgomery, is the second man, with 93 hits, and Molesworth, the Birmingham manager, comes third, with 92. The others are strewn out behind.

London Museum Curator Tells of Many Characteristics of Race of That Period.

London.—Curator Keith of the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons has deduced some mental and physical characteristics of prehistoric woman from a skull found years ago at Gibraltar, which is now in the museum. Professor Keith says he has little doubt that the skull is that of a woman. Judging from the size of the brain she must have been shrewd and probably of considerable spirit. He adds:

"I can reckon pretty accurately the time she lived. It must have been at least 500,000 years ago. From the jaws and the fact that the muscles of mastication were remarkably strong it is possible to deduce the kind of food she ate. It was probably large nuts, roots and stuff needing much mastication to extract the nourishment. Hence the unusual development of the jaw muscles.

"People of that date were undoubtedly long armed. Their legs were short and abnormally strong. Their brains were far larger than previously conceded. It seems reasonably certain that they could talk. Examination of the brain cavity shows the cells controlling speech were there. The skull indicates that the woman had a large nose. Her eyes must have been prominent. The palate was one-third larger than that of the woman of today."

MENDS A BOY'S BROKEN BACK

Physicians Entertain Hope for Recovery of Youth Injured While Diving.

Providence, R. I.—One of the most delicate surgical operations ever performed in this city took place the other day when Harlan Ness, the seven-teen-year-old son of John Ness, a manufacturer of Ware, Mass., was operated on for fracture of the spine.

While diving at Buttonwood, R. I., last Friday, the boy dived into shallow water and struck on his head, breaking the spinal column between the third and fourth vertebrae.

The operation was performed at his father's summer residence by Dr. Thomas F. Black, assisted by Drs. Eugene Kingman, William McDonald, Jr., and S. H. Long. The most critical part of the operation was that of stitching the bones together by wire. After the boy recovered from the other, Dr. Black said that he entertained hopes for the lad's recovery.

PINS ARE GORGEOUS

MOCK JEWELS FLASH ON DEVICES THAT HOLD HAT.

Utmost Elaboration Allowed, Indeed, Called for, in the Matter of Hatpins — Many Are Extremely High in Price.

Much glitter of rhinestones and glow of mock jewels has come upon us in the matter of hatpins. Far from the lowly, inconspicuous article, with the small black or white head which was wont to conceal itself among millinery trimmings in other days, are the pins of today. For several years hatpins have been growing more and more elaborate, more and more high in price, and varied in design. They are now an important feature of the jeweler's stock. Milliners as a rule, carry a limited stock and it is in the department store that the popular styles flourish in all their glittering glory.

It is not so long ago that a handsome rhinestone pin, with the head a good sized ball of well set stones, was a luxury of those with money to spare. It was much observed (one couldn't miss it), and gifted with the old, infallible fascination of sparkle and light. Every girl that beheld developed a yearning for the dazzling trifle, which was the finishing touch, the dot on the "i," of its possessor's well-managed costume. For she who can afford (or acquire) hatpins "at from $5.00 up" usually manages the rest of her toilette on the same scale.

It doesn't take the thrifty manufacturer long to discover which way the wind blows, hatpin-ward, or any other-ward. Witness to this the aggressive onrush of pins set with brilliants alone and pins set with brilliants in conjunction with other decorative features. The hatpin is no longer inconspicuous, it is extremely pretentious. Many of the patterns are very pretty and a great number show combinations of shell, enamel and brilliants very well set up. Some handsome ones show combinations of gold and rhinestone surrounding colored stones, in really worthy designs. All the forms ever thought of in brooches are doing duty to provide variety in their designs. Old brooches, indeed, have been brought out and mounted on pins, renewing their usefulness and leading the march in luxurious dress accessories, another step forward.

SAYS NO CANCER IN FISHES

Dr. Bashford, Noted English Expert, Declares Finny Tribe Is Swept Away by Goitre.

London.—Cancer experts on this side think there must be some mistake in Mr. Taft's special message to congress in which he asked for an appropriation of $50,000 for the investigation of cancer in fishes. Cabled reports make the president say that "close investigation of the subject of cancer in fishes, which are frequently swept away by epidemics of that disease, may give us light upon this dreadful human scourge." Dr. Bashford, director of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund, says that there must be some misconception here.

"Fishes are swept away by goitre, not by cancer," he says. "The misconception has arisen because cancer sometimes follows upon goitre.

"I do not mean that cancer does not attack fishes, but the subject which has given rise to Mr. Taft's request for another laboratory is that of goitre, upon which aspect of the question the Imperial Cancer Research fund has been engaged for a long time past. As a result of investigations spread over the entire British empire, which began in 1902, it was found that the disease existed throughout the vertebrate scale.

"In particular, it was found that trout which were kept in hatcheries for stock purposes were very liable to a disease of the thyroid gland, very similar to goitre, and this not infrequently went on to the development of cancer. Cancer, as distinct from that which follows upon goitre, has been found in fish from the sea, but never in any frequency which would justify the theory of an epidemic. As a matter of fact, investigators consider it to be established that cancer is not infectious."

Care of Cane Fruits.

Blackberries are easily raised in Illinois soils. The fall is the best time for planting. Set in rows about nine feet apart, three feet in row. Commence cultivation as soon as ground is in proper condition in the spring. Cultivate deep in the early part of the season. Later practise shallow cultivation with a harrow. Dust mulch is better and cheaper than straw. The latter also tends to harbor mice and insects. Bushes should be trimmed twice a year, being cut back the second spring to a height of 3 to 3½ feet. After picking is over cut out old canes and all small and weak growths.

Pruning Grapes.

Each variety of grapes is a law unto itself when it comes to pruning. The Delaware needs but little, the Ives much and the Concord is in the middle line. Study your varieties if you wish to have best results.

Selling Fruits.

Set varieties of all the fruits suited to your soil, climate and market. If you propose to have a surplus ask the consumer what he wants—his palate must be tickled if you expect to get his money.

A Woman Praises U-Ra-Cura

I am enjoying good health again after suffering several years from kidney and bladder trouble. I would like to recommend it to everyone suffering from similar troubles." Druggists sell it at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Send for book of particulars to Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

The "Singing Dog."

In Sammy, a handsome collie, Ludwig Carlsen of Montclair, N. J., possesses a self-educated canine tenor soloist. Every morning when the bell on St. John's Episcopal church, near the dog's home, begins ringing, Sammy takes up a position not far from the edifice and begins an accompaniment that has none of the concordance of the ordinary canine howl. It is a musical voice which Sammy blends with the deep notes of the bell, and it has been observed that the dog is exactly in tune with the metallic sounds that come from the church belfry.

At noon the collie makes tracks for a lumber plant operated by his owner. Here the dog accompanies the whistle, which is blown at midday, and here, too, he always achieves perfect harmony. The dog also joins his voice with the town curfew bell at nine o'clock at night.

Persons who have studied the dog's performances say that in the beginning his voice was harsh and not attuned to the bells or the whistles, but devotion to practice and love of harmony have made him an accomplished canine vocalist.

Natural and Supernatural.

The strict meaning of the word "supernatural" is "over" or "above" the natural; but where the natural ends and the supernatural begins is a matter that is still in the courts. The wisest minds of the race have been debating the question for ten thousand years or more, and the subject is still far from being settled. The best definition of nature known to us is to be found in John Stuart Mills' "Three Essays on Religion," and is as follows: "Nature is a collective name for all facts, actual and possible; or a name for the Mode, partly known to us and partly unknown, in which all things take place." It will be observed from this definition that in Mills' opinion nature is all, the so-called supernatural being but the "unknown" side of the natural.

The Board of Registrars will meet at Clanton on Friday and Saturday, July 22 and 23. While primarily this meeting is for the benefit of those desiring to vote in the Republican primary, anyone can register at that time, providing they are eligible.

The invasion of Alabama by the boll weevil is inevitable. Energy that once was spent in speculation has been turned toward experiments in prevention and the results of these experiments will be revealed at the Farmers' Summer School at Auburn, July 23 to 31.

Nominating a strong prohibitionist for governor and a consistent anti-prohibitionist for lieutenant governor and adopting a liquor plank upon which either can stand without any embarassment, the Republicans of Alabama launched what they consider a wedge which will divide the Democratic party and capture 50,000 prohibition democrats who voted for Mallory, and extend the following invitation: "To every patriotic Alabamian who has heretofore alligred himself with the democratic party, now distracted, disappointed and disgusted with the vascillating and treacherous policies of its so-called leaders, we extend a welcome to the party of peace, progress and prosperity."—Age-Herald.

The following nominations were made, perhaps the strongest ticket ever put up by the Republican party in Alabama:

For Governor — Joseph O. Thompson of Jefferson.

For Lieutenant Governor—G. O. Chenault of Lawrence.

For Treasurer—J. F. Sutterer of Cullman.

For Attorney General—Alex C. Birch of Birmingham.

For Auditor—John B. Shields of Walker.

For Secretary of State—Thomas Bingham of Montgomery.

For Commissioner of Agriculture—B. B. Cox of Mobile.

For Superintendent of Education—J. C. Walker of Randolph.

For Railroad Commissioner—J T. McEniry of Bessemer and Frank Lathrop of St. Clair.

"The liquor question has been brought prominently before the people of Alabama during the past year. We subscribe to the principles announced by the Montgomery conference of citizens relating to the liquor question. and we, therefore declare in favor of a full and fair trial of the present prohibition laws, unless the people, after such trial, in their wisdom, determine that they have proven a failure, and see fit to alter, amend or repeal the same."

About four hundred delegates were present and harmony prevailed throughout.

Auburn has some new ideas in peach culture to show the farmers of Alabama at the farmers' summer school which will be held here for a week, from July 23 to July 30.

Prof. P. F. Williams of the department of horticulture, with his staff, has been engaged, during the last year, with experiments looking toward the thwarting of peach pests, especially the two most pernicious enemies of Alabama peach growers—the brown rot and the curculio. The experiments have resulted in the determination of the great efficiency of a self boiled lime-sulphur wash as a cure for the brown rot, and spraying demonstrations will be made which will interest every peach grower. Experiments in curculio treatment have also been rewarded with a fair degree of success, and men of the horticultural department at Auburn promise something of value in their contributions to the summer school course of lectures and demonstrations.

The State Normal School at Jacksonville.

Attention is called to the advertisement of the Jacksonville Normal in this issue. Facts gleaned from the report of the President show it is maintaining its wonderful record of service to the state.

It has 19 teachers with a total enrollment of 641 pupils counting the training school. The average age of the pupils was over 21 years. There were 185 over 20 years of age; 31 over 25; 9 over 30; 3 over 35; 2 over 40; 2 over 45 and 2 over 50. There were 216 females and 209 males, making 425 teachers enrolled in the four classes of the Normal from 58 counties of Alabama.

The counties most largely represented were Calhoun 88; Jefferson 22; Walker 22; Marshall 16; Cleburne 16; Winston 13; St. Clair 12; Fayette 11; Franklin 11; Tuscaloosa 11; Lamar 10; Lawrence 10 and Cullman 10.

Divided by grades there were 29 seniors holding first grade; 147 holding second grade and studying for first; 163 holding third and studying for second; and 75 studying for third. Chilton county had 6 students enrolled there.

THIN MILK

Scott's Emulsion

makes the mother strong and well; increases and enriches the baby's food.

The Dairy Industry of the United States.

According to the last year book of the Department of Agriculture, there are 21,770,000 milch cows in the United States, and these are worth $702,918,000 00. The magnitude of the industry can perhaps be best understood when it is considered that these cows produce yearly about $1,000,000,00 .00 worth of dairy products.

There is no other branch of diversified agriculture so important to the progress of a community. The fertility of the soil can best be maintained by the liberal use of barnyard manure and the dairy herd not only makes this possible, but dairying is also more remunerative than other branches of farming when properly carried on.

Dairying has made wonderful progress since the advent of the modern creamery and the consumer of butter has not only been benefitted by being furnished a more wholesome and palatable article of food, but the wife in the farm home has been relieved of the drudgery incident to making butter on the farm. Where formerly the cream was ripened and churned into butter under conditions not conducive to fine quality in the finished product and in the majority of cases by unskilled hands, now the most of the milk or cream is delivered to a modern creamery where conditions are suited to the purpose of making butter, and the result has been a wonderful improvement in the quality of our dairy products. As the quality has improved consumption has increased and the progress of dairying has been remarkable during the past decade.

The perpetuity of the country's greatness depends upon increasing the production of farm products from year to year, a result which not only furnishes our people with food but maintaines the prosperity of our farming communities. Increase in production can only come through improves methods of agriculture and soil improvement. When it is considered that the dairy cow is the foundation for soil improvement and farming prosperity, her importance is better understood, and interest in her should not be confined to her owner. She is an important factor in the development and prosperity of our country.

Relation of Live Stock to Farm Prices.

The price of land is high mainly because the price of corn is high, and the price of corn is high chiefly because so much of it is in demand for the purpose of feeding live stock, while there is a world shortage of live stock, which keeps up both relative demand and prices for meats in all countries, because population everywhere is growing faster than the supply of meat animals.

It follows, therefore, that if the farmers of the United States would continue to receive remunerative prices for their annual corn crops, and if they would maintain the present general values of farm lands throughout the country, they must keep up or increase the supply of live stock on farms.

Of course there is always the added and very important consideration of preserving land values by preserving and increasing the fertility of the soil, which can be naturally and permanently done only by raising plenty of live stock on the farm, as every up-to-date farmer knows.

In short, to increase and improve the supply of live stock in the country, especially of meat animals, is absolutely essential to keeping up the production and price of corn; to maintaining the value of lands, and to preserving the fertility of the soil; while all of these are necessary to continued agricultural prosperity, which is now well recognized as the basis of the general prosperity of all classes and of all business interests throughout the nation.—From "Live Stock and Land Values," by A. G. Leonard, in the American Review of Reviews for July.

A Message of Condolence.

On July 6th, 1910, after an illness of only eight days, the still hand of death was placed on Mrs. Mary Jane Bean, and bore her spirit from this land of sorrow to that home of peace and happiness.

Mrs. Bean, nee Mary Jane Lindsay, was born in Tallapoosa county on Dec. 25th, 1846, and married P. C. Bean in 1858. Her former home was in Jemison but at the time of her death she was living in Birmingham. For twenty-five years she was a loyal member of the M. E. church, south, of Jemison, being raised in a home where the fires burned upon the altar of God. She professed faith in Christ at an early age and has ever been ready to discharge her duty faithfully. Knowing of this unceasing devotion to God, why then relatives and friends, mourn her loss so deeply. May her patient, spirit be your constant guide to a better life and a happy meeting in the sweet by and by. She died a triumphant death, with her hope centered on God. She leaves eight children to mourn her loss. Interment took place at Collins Chapel. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. R. J. Mills.

May the white wings of consolation sweep o'er the bereft ones and guide them to a higher home is my earnest prayer. A FRIEND.

HORSELESS FUNERAL

Big Automobile Serves as Hearse and Coach for Mourners.

So Unusual Was Scene That Everybody Gave It Some Attention—Fits Nicely in Case of Long-Distance Funeral Affairs.

New York.—There was a horseless funeral at the Grand Central station the other day. So unusual was the scene that almost everybody seemed to give it some attention, and even the horses sniffed at the strange looking vehicle, perhaps with feelings of jealousy at this latest evidence of the passing of their usefulness.

The center of interest was the funeral car, a big black automobile built somewhat on the lines of a Fifth avenue motor bus. It was an immense machine, and as it drew up silently at a side entrance other traffic had to halt. The solemn black of its big limousine body proclaimed its purpose in a way, but except for the fact that the driver's seat was unusually high it might have passed for an extraordinarily large limousine car.

As soon as the car had reached the curb the driver alighted and stood deferentially at the front end of the machine. A moment later there appeared the funeral party, led by the undertaker and his men bearing the coffin.

The mourners, a party of ten, took their seats in the car, these seats being individual chairs of black leather. Then the front of the machine underneath the driver's seat was opened, the coffin was lifted up and slid in. Next some flowers were put in the hearse part of the car and the front doors closed.

Then the driver and the undertaker mounted the front seat, there was the sharp ring of a warning bell, and as traffic halted again the big funeral car quietly swung around and into Forty-second street.

This funeral car had seats for 12 mourners in its limousine part and could carry three on the driver's seat. Hence it takes the place of a hearse and three carriages.

"We haven't had this very long," said the driver just before the funeral party appeared, "but we're already kept busy with it about all the time. Only this morning, for example, we took a funeral to Elizabeth and now this afternoon we are bound for Greenwood.

"You see it fits in pretty nicely in the case of long-distance funerals. Take the case of a funeral at Kensico, up in Westchester, or even Woodlawn. Before it used to be necessary to take a train, which meant a hearse and carriages at both ends, to say nothing of the publicity of riding in a railroad car, that is, unless the party was large enough and could afford the special funeral car the railroad operates. Now we take the entire funeral, casket and all, from the house or church to Kensico in less than three hours.

"Take the case of a person dying in some other city and being buried here. Only the family come with the body and they want to be taken quickly and quietly to the cemetery. We can make Greenwood in less than an hour. In two hours they can be on the train going home again.

"Of course there are still some persons who fid it hard to accept it in place of the old way they have known so long. One man recently complained that it didn't seem solemn enough and seemed like taking liberties with the dead; but to one such complaint we've had any number of congratulations on the new method from the people who have said that it has done away with the most trying features of what has always been such an ordeal, namely an out-of-town funeral.

"Before long the hearses will begin to go just like the hansom cabs, though for big local funerals I suppose hearses will be used for a long time yet."

BROOM GOES WITH THE CHILD

Clever Idea of New York Mother Saves Clothes of Passengers on Street Cars.

New York.—A young woman leading a small boy entered a well-filled car and as the child climbed to his seat and got on his feet left dusty marks on the dress of the woman in the next seat who promptly looked daggers at the newcomer.

"So sorry," said the mother politely, "use this." She opened her handbag and offered a small whisk broom.

"What a clever idea," said the first woman, completely appeased, as she whisked off the dust.

"It goes with the child," calmly explained the mother.

Washington's Fish Industry.

Tacoma, Wash.—Fishing is an important industry in the state of Washington, and it is yearly increasing. Last year the value of fish taken from the rivers and lakes of the state was $13,000,000. The fisheries of Washington are great wealth producers. The fishing industry stands third in value of outputs, lumber being the first and wheat second.

Some day the fruit industry may overtake the fisheries in point of value of product, and it is not improbable that the fish industry will exceed the wheat when the wheat farms have been cut up for more intensive agriculture.

SCHOOL GIRLS FOR THE FARM

Lend a Far More Willing Ear to the Call of the Land Than Do the Boys.

Chicago.—Girls in the middle grades in Chicago lend a far more willing ear to the call of the land than the boys. The latter are about evenly divided between their yearning for the freedom of the great out of doors and their loyalty to city bred instincts, and the street car and the nickel theaters are the deciding factors with most of them. These facts developed after a talk the other day to about 100 boys and girls from Chicago schools by Edmund E. Perkins, reclamation expert of the United States government, in charge of the Chicago office.

Colored lantern slides gave point to Mr. Perkins' talk and were watched quietly until there was flashed upon the screen a scene in Yellowstone park, wherein a huge bear smiled (if bears may be said to smile) at the spectators out of the picture. This awakened sudden interest and exclamations of "Ain't he a big one?" "Gee, I'd hate to meet him!" etc. The girls, singularly, just laughed at him.

"Our country, you know, is only a child itself, compared to other nations," said the lecturer. "And, like you boys and girls, we have been spending all our 'pocket money' for 'toys, candy, peannts, dolls,' etc., without saving a bit. Now, we've grown older, we have begun to see we must save a little or we won't have any left. Our 'pocket money' is our valuable lands, trees, etc."

After it was over the children were asked for their views. Each of three girls, about 15 years old, who said they lived in the middle West side, said, with a sigh, "I only wish I could live in a nice place like that, where you could get out of doors and get fresh air and have fresh things to eat."

To which all the other girls, about 40 in all, added eager assent. The boys were divided, however. One said:

"Give me the city, where you can have street cars and go to see nickel shows and things. You can sell papers and make money here, too."

PLAN TO BRIBE WASHINGTON

Old Paper Discloses Suggestion Dukedom and Revenue to Maintain It Be Offered to Him.

London.—Some interesting papers are to be found in the newly published volume of the Historical Manuscripts commission, which contains many documents from among the treasures of Mrs. Stopford-Sackville of Drayton House, Northamptonshire.

Lord George Sackville, to whom almost all the letters quoted are addressed, was secretary of state for the colonies from 1775 to 1782, and received most important dispatches from the seat of the war of independence—from Admiral Rodney, for example.

A long paper by Sir John Dalrymple contains a notable suggestion that jars somewhat on our fuller historical knowledge of Washington's disposition. It was nothing less than that the king should write a private letter to Washington offering him a dukedom and the revenue to maintain it, provided that he would ask "terms for America fair and just," such terms to be granted by the British. Lloyd Delany, the bosom friend of Washington, and at that time in London, was suggested as messenger.

A host of other engrossing incidents of all kinds—connected and unconnected with the war—are in these manscripts, which include important letters from Gen. Wolfe.

POLICE DOG CALLED MARVEL

Criminals in Russian City Say Animal Is Possessed of Evil Spirit—Amazes Crowd.

Moscow.—The criminal classes are beginning to believe that a police dog called Tref is possessed of an evil spirit. It was rumored in the night shelters and criminal dens that Tref was on the track of certain robbers. A number of bank notes and other valuables had been stolen from a man named Pokrofsky. Tref was put on the scent of the thief, and after taking a circuitous course entered a night shelter and made straight for an old coat, in which $250, stolen from M. Pokrofsky, was found. Tref then went to a shop where silver articles stolen from M. Pokrofsky were discovered. A cabman at this time complained that he had been robbed of a fur coat. Tref within a few minutes found it concealed in a courtyard. This last exploit was witnessed by a crowd of amazed spectators.

American Hunting Best.

Chicago.—The United States and Canada afford a greater area for hunting and fishing than any other part of the globe, and the game is more exciting and interesting than that found in any other country, according to Count Gorsko Skorsvewski of Berlin. The count was in Washington the other day on his way back to Europe after a nine weeks' hunt through the northwest.

Postmaster Wanted.

Saltsburg, Pa.—A job paying 18 cents a day is offered by the United States government to any one who wishes to become postmaster at Wheatfield, near here. Last year the postoffice paid $64.

His Effective Plea.

A story is told of a prisoner before Lord Justice Fitzgibbon, at the time when the latter was one of the justices of appeals of Ireland, whose ready wit probably saved his neck.

Lord Fitzgibbon was holding assizes in Tipperary county when a man was brought before him on indictment for murder. The case was proved that the victim came to his death by being hit with a stick in the hands of the defendant, but the doctor testified that he had what they called in medical parlance a "paper skull."

The case looked dark for the prisoner, however, and the jury returned a verdict of guilty. As the man was brought before the court for sentence it was noticed that his lordship had his black cap in his hand.

"Have you anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced upon you?" demanded Lord Fitzgibbon.

The man looked for a moment and then said, "No, your lordship, I have nothing to say, but I should like to ask one question."

"What is that, my man?" said Fitzgibbon.

"I should like to know what a man with a head like that was doing in Tipperary?"

The black cap was put away and a prison sentence imposed.—Youth's Companion.

The Artist's Compensation.

Save a few business concerns, great concerns, Harrod's, the army and navy stores and the like, what a strange welter is in our whole system of payment for work—more especially in the higher branches of work! Art and literary work are terrible examples of this confusion and want of science. The payments to many of the best workers in those barren fields are so bad that a man is quite sanguine if he sees not at the end of his career the madhouse of the pauper's grave.

If he paint without genius, a painter may, by attracting an ignorant public, make himself secure. If he write without individuality or real force, the writer may likewise make himself secure by driving hard bargains with those who buy and sell his wares. But for the most part, good work in these branches is the work of sensitive men who are little children in money matters and who shrink from bargaining. Politics and public life and business make a much better game than art or letters.—London Saturday Review.

Amount of Sleep Required.

A woman requires at least seven hours' sleep for the building up of her system. Two more hours will recuperate her body, and an extra hour or two will restore her complexion, make her eyes bright, and keep her form elastic. The woman who wants to derive the fullest benefit from her beauty sleep will compose her mind before sinking off into slumber.

Neatness Essential.

Neatness is an essential to beauty. The woman who is not critical as to her neck, the one who dresses her hair elaborately but is neglectful about her finger nails, the one who puts on a dainty blouse and fastens it carelessly, and the woman who gets herself up without regard for the conventions of dress; one and all of these women will not make a good appearance.

An Excellent Family Medicine

Nearly every person and all families need a liver medicine. In the whole list of so-called Liver Medicines none in point of ease of action and curative virtues bears any resemblance to GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR. It keeps the liver in good order, dispells gloom and wards off various sickness. An occasional dose of this standard remedy will save suffering and needless expense. It is a thoroughly reliable liver medicine. Druggists sell it at 25 cents for a large tin box. Send for booklet. Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

An Indigestion Remedy Free

Many people who are otherwise healthy suffer from indigestion, or dyspepsia. When you consider that the stomach and allied digestive organs are the most important organs of the body, it would seem that a disorder there is to be taken very seriously.

Dyspeptics cannot eat the things they like; food sours in the stomach; then chronic constipation begins, or, as is often the case, you have been constipated all along, and the stools are forced and irregular.

But there is no use letting indigestion go until it becomes chronic and undermines your health. It is good advice to suggest to you that you go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the wonderful cure for stomach, liver and bowel troubles. That is what C. Fowler, of Carson City, Mich., did and he is well today. Others who did the same and are cured are Ida A. Fortune, of Grand Junction, Tenn., B. F. Thompson, of Shenandoah, Ia., who actually considers that it saved his life. You can obtain a 50-cent or $1 bottle of the druggist, and, taken according to directions, it will probably be all you need. It is a liquid, acts gently, never gripes, and besides the laxative effect, contains exceptional tonic properties which tone the stomach, and that is what is especially needed in indigestion.

All sufferers from indigestion who have never used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can obtain a free test bottle by writing the doctor. It will be sent direct to your home without any charge. In this way thousands have proven to their own satisfaction Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the very remedy they needed to cure indigestion. When once you use this grand remedy you will throw violent cathartics, tablets, salts, etc., away.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

SOLDIERS AND WILL POWER

Proof of at Least One Benefit That Comes as the Result of Military Training.

That military training strengthens the power of the will was shown by recent experiments in Austria. To determine what effect the fatigue resulting from a long march might have upon the shooting efficiency of trained soldiers, the Austrian school of musketry recently had a cyclist detachment of 50 men, all over two years' service, do 65 miles in eight hours, the return journey being against a strong head wind. Before and after the march they each fired ten rounds at a target representing a section of 26 men in skirmishing order lying down at 500 paces. Before the march the detachment made 40 hits on 19 figures; after the march, 38 hits on 16 figures.

The experiment was then repeated with a section of 42 noncommissioned officers, before and after a 23 hours' exercise in the field, during which 33 miles were covered. This section, consisting principally of marksmen, made 81 hits on 21 out of 26 figures before starting and 62 hits on 20 figures after their return.

But the raw recruit, when subjected to a similar test of endurance, fails to hit the target at all. He is incapable of the effort of will and firm resolve to hit which renders the trained soldier a formidable antagonist, even when his strength is exhausted by hunger and fatigue.

The Chantecler Veil.

The Chantecler fad is now so well established that one is not at all surprised to meet a pretty girl carrying a full-grown fine specimen of a leghorn fowl seated comfortably on top of her hat; and even my lady's parasols and her silk stockings are embroidered with crowing cocks—all in accordance, of course, with the new French play which deals with the love affair of a Chantecler and Mlle. Hen Pheasant. The very latest notion is the Chantecler veil, in the meshes of which are woven lively little roosters in Chantilly lace effect, the ground being a rather open net and the roosters showing quite plainly when draped on the face.

FAIR AT FRENCH CAPITAL

Quaint Gathering, With Misleading Name, a Feature of Gay City of Paris.

A great feature of the present week in the ham fair—which is held on the Boulevard Richard Le Noir. The name of this fair is wholly misleading, for as far as I have seen hams are the very last thing any one buys there.

Old brass and copper curios, quaint jewelry, rare china, lace tapestries and books are what most people go out for to look, and a sight not to be easily forgotten is the long wide boulevard lined with ramshackle stalls laden with every possible kind of lumber and presided over by the most rapacious of brocanteurs.

Out of piles of valueless lumber Americans and English diligently seek for their pet kind of curios and there is not an artist in Paris who cannot point to some bit of furniture in his or her studio and say with pride, "I got that for five francs at the ham fair."

No one ever pays more than five francs, I notice, but, alas, every year these five franc bargains are becoming more rare, and even as housekeeping in Paris grows more and more costly so does the furnishing of one's house to keep.—London Queen.

Waiting for the Gas.

They had just moved from one flat to another and everything was torn up.

To make matters worse the gas man hadn't been out to turn on the gas which undoubtedly had been shut off since last tenant had moved out, and there were no electric lights in the flat. They didn't want to buy an outfit of oil lamps for so short a time and were getting along the best they could with candles.

Each morning they called up the gas office and the clerk said there would be a man out that day, but it was more than a week before he finally showed up.

Then he knocked on the door and announced with a grin of sullen disgust: "That gas has been turned on all the while. 'Tain't never been turned off since them other folks was here."

The new arrivals had never thought of trying it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sleep.

The first sleep is the soundest—after the first hour the intensity of sleep slowly diminishes—hence the value of forty winks after dinner in quickly recuperating shattered powers. Temperature and vitality are lowest at about 2:00 a. m., so that two hours' sleep before midnight are worth four thereafter. Nature has no rule as to the length of sleep, except that men need less than women, since women are the more sensitive creatures and a woman's heart beats five times more in a minute than a man's. Sleep should be just so long that when you wake in the morning a stretch and a yawn only are necessary to land you in a daytime of bounding vigor. Prior to early rising, it is comforting to hear Dr. Bryce say that it is a habit that has gone far to wreck the constitutions of many a growing youth.

Education and Efficiency.

Nowhere for many years continuously has the education machine worked more untiringly than in London. Yet of the skilled labor of London two-thirds is done by men and boys from the provinces, while seven out of every ten dock laborers and 80 and 90 per cent of those who take refuge in night shelters are London born and bred. What does this mean? Is it merely the fierce competition caused by the compelling attractions of London, with its glitter of gaiety? Or does it prove some fatal weakness in the London schools?—London Saturday Review.

HORTICULTURE

HORTICULTURAL NOTES.

More trees are harmed than helped by pruning. This is a broad statement, but we believe it is true.

In planting mixed sweet peas, you can tell whether the flower will be light or dark by the color of the seed.

To set apple trees of the standard sorts closer than 30 feet is giving them less soil and air room than they should have.

The quickest fruit to give returns is strawberries, and it comes early in the season. Now is a good time to set out the plants.

No man should attempt to prune a tree until he has learned what is to be accomplished by pruning, and how to do it properly.

In the south, crimson clover sown in the fall and turned under in the spring has proven to be an excellent orchard treatment.

Every bright day spray forcibly any plants that may be ever so slightly attacked by red spider and any doubtful places near the heating pipes in the rose house.

The spikes of Odontoglossum citrosmum will soon be showing in the tips of the new growth. When this occurs give the plants a thorough soaking of water, but not before.

It is useless to put most seeds into the ground until it is warmed up and dry enough to work up light. Corn planting time is about the average time for most flower seeds.

Where there are herbaceous plants in protectors look over them on mild days and remove anything of a decaying nature. From now on they must have air, except during the very coldest weather.

The sweet pea is a notable exception. The earlier it can be tucked into the ground the better. Do not wait for fine weather, but in the first pleasant days work up the soil as well as possible and plant the seeds.

PROPER WAY TO SET TREES

Interesting Experiments in England Show That Most Successful Method Is by Ramming.

Some interesting experiments have been made at Worburn farm and other places in England to demonstrate the proper way to set trees.

According to these reports from England the correct method is to make

Not Rammed. Rammed.
Gascoyne.

a small hole, double the roots up any old way, jam the tree in, ram down the soil as hard as if one were setting a fence post.

The result of these experiments show that 59 per cent. of the trees planted in this way showed in favor of the ramming, 27 per cent. showed no difference at all and 14 per cent. were against this method and in favor of planting in a large hole and spreading the roots out carefully. Trees that were jammed into the ground showed a copious development of fibrous roots.

Not Rammed. Rammed.
Marie Louise.

The illustrations given herewith give some idea of the action of the roots under the different methods.

Experiments further show that the fibrous and small roots produced in the nursery before digging play no great part as roots during the subsequent life of the tree.

Packing Apples.

The German government has issued a decree which in effect permits American apples packed in barrels in the head of which excelsior or paper is placed to prevent damage in shipment to enter the country without the payment of the tariff rate provided. Hitherto apples so packed have paid the increased duty applicable to "fruit doubly wrapped." The removal of the extra duty will relieve a burdensome duty on American apples.

Pruning Small Fruit.

The currant and gooseberry need pruning. This is best done when the four or five year old wood is cut out. Sometimes if there are too many new shoots, they can be thinned to advantage.

The Codling Moth.

Get ready to fight the codling moth which causes wormy apples. In the meantime, fruit growers should prepare themselves for the campaign by ordering a first-class spray pump and the necessary attachments.

FARM AND GARDEN

FARM NOTES.

The strong odor of the coal tar dip is one of its drawbacks.

No other work on the farm pays better than that spent in judicious draining.

A little figuring will help us to see that it will pay to raise our own feed.

All farmers should be informed on what in a general way constitutes a balanced ration.

Blackleg in the potato is comparatively a new trouble with which American growers will have to contend.

Dressings, say twice a season, of nitrate of soda at the rate of 250 pounds per acre would make a wonderful difference in the garden.

The details of ordinary bee keeping are easily learned by the interested novice and every day's experience with the bees gives increase of knowledge and skill.

Here is a point to remember: 500 pounds of hen manure contain as much nitrogen as 2,000 pounds of stable manure. But never mix hen manure with wood ashes.

The city hucksters have marketing down to a fine point. They buy their vegetables wholesale and then sort and pack in boxes, baskets and tie in bunches, adding greatly to their attractiveness and naturally, the price.

Sweet potatoes may be transplanted when the ground is warm enough to germinate lima beans. Transplant them as early as the temperature of the soil and the weather will permit, so vines may be used for the remainder of the patch.

There is much pleasure during long winter nights in popping corn and making "honey boy." Plant popcorn and be ready for this event next winter. Good popcorn is sometimes profitable as a money crop. Give the children a popcorn patch.

HARNESS VISE IS ESSENTIAL

Detailed Instructions for Constructing Implement That Is Held Solidly in Position.

A good harness vise can easily be constructed by following instructions given below:

A and B are one-inch pieces, 3 inches wide, 3 feet 5 inches long. C is a 2-inch piece, 6 inches wide, 11½ inches long on top and 1 foot 2 inches on the bottom, sawed on a slant, so that the pieces A and B will meet at the top. Nail A and B to C at the bottom. D is a bolt 6 inches long put in 12 inches from the top. F is 12 inches long and 1½ by 1½ inches wide. Mortise in piece B 8 inches from top and put a bolt through it and piece B to hold it in place. First nail A and B to C, then put piece F in place. Next put the bolt D and screw it up as tight as wanted. F is used to spread the jaws when you want to open it.

Use a seat when working. It can be made in connection with the vise. Take two pieces of fence board 1 foot 5 inches long. Nail two pieces No. 3 six inches high. Then set the ends of the boards on piece C. This makes a little platform. Then take a piece of 4 by 4, 2 feet long. Nail a piece of fence-board on the top, making it like a milk-stool. Then by sitting on the stool on the platform it holds the vise solidly in position.

HOLDING BOTTLES AND CANS

A piece of ordinary wire, about No. 12 gauge, bent in the shape known in the illustration and fastened to the wall with a couple of screws will make a handy clip for holding a bottle or an oil can, says Farm Press. This device fastened in a tool box of an automobile, using the bottom in the place of a shelf, will hold the oil can and prevent its being turned over. Such a clip is useful for tinners to hold the acid bottle in a handy place and keep it off the bench.

Poor Old Scientists.

Four venerable scientists from the session that had just closed of the American Philosophical society went out into Fifth street.

Only men who have distinguished themselves are selected to membership in this society, and each of the members looks distinguished. The four massive heads were covered with snowy white hair.

"Gee, fellows, look at de highbrows!" shouted a newsboy, as he caught sight of the four comrades in science strolling up the street.

"Highbrows, highbrows!" sang out other newsboys, running across Independence square and from intersecting streets. Soon a cavalcade of mocking youngsters surrounded the philosophers, who were forced to climb on a street car to escape the unwelcome attentions of the irreverent and ribald youths.—Philadelphia Times.

Musical Sense of Insects.

Interesting facts with regard to the musical perceptions of the water flea were mentioned at the Royal society's meeting by Mr. F. J. Cole.

The insect is particularly sensitive to certain notes on the tenor trombone. When imprisoned in a microscope live box it preserves a stolid indifference to most musical sounds. It is only when the B flat below the middle C of the trombone is in full blast that it expresses its displeasure by "fixing its first pair of anteunae under its body."

One isolated specimen, however, was evidently irritated by every note of the instrument, while many appear to have been entirely tone deaf.—London Daily Mail.

Fish Wear Out a Bridge.

John Shafer, Jr., deputy in the office of County Surveyor Frank Haycock of Hennepin county, says that fish have butted and rubbed up against the piles of the bridge at Orono, Lake Minnetonka, until that aged edifice has become weakened, necessitating its closing.

Shafer and Edward Terrell, another deputy, were sent out to inspect the span.

"Yes, sir," said Shafer, "those fish kept on butting up against that pier until the wood was almost worn away. In order to get there we had to pound the water around the place to keep the finny things away until we could finish our inspection.

"Why those fish are so numerous at Minnetonka this year that they get pushed through the narrow passage so swift that they simply wear the wood."—St. Paul Dispatch.

HORSELESS FUNERAL

Big Automobile Serves as Hearse and Coach for Mourners.

So Unusual Was Scene That Everybody Gave It Some Attention—Fits Nicely in Case of Long-Distance Funeral Affairs.

New York.—There was a horseless funeral at the Grand Central station the other day. So unusual was the scene that almost everybody seemed to give it some attention, and even the horses sniffed at the strange looking vehicle, perhaps with feelings of jealousy at this latest evidence of the passing of their usefulness.

The center of interest was the funeral car, a big black automobile built somewhat on the lines of a Fifth avenue motor bus. It was an immense machine, and as it drew up silently at a side entrance other traffic had to halt. The solemn black of its big limousine body proclaimed its purpose in a way, but except for the fact that the driver's seat was unusually high it might have passed for an extraordinarily large limousine car.

As soon as the car had reached the curb the driver alighted and stood deferentially at the front end of the machine. A moment later there appeared the funeral party, led by the undertaker and his men bearing the coffin.

The mourners, a party of ten, took their seats in the car, these seats being individual chairs of black leather. Then the front of the machine underneath the driver's seat was opened, the coffin was lifted up and slid in. Next some flowers were put in the hearse part of the car and the front doors closed.

Then the driver and the undertaker mounted the front seat, there was the sharp ring of a warning bell, and as traffic halted again the big funeral car quietly swung around and into Forty-second street.

This funeral car had seats for 12 mourners in its limousine part and could carry three on the driver's seat. Hence it takes the place of a hearse and three carriages.

"We haven't had this very long," said the driver just before the funeral party appeared, "but we're already kept busy with it about all the time. Only this morning, for example, we took a funeral to Elizabeth and now this afternoon we are bound for Greenwood.

"You see it fits in pretty nicely in the case of long-distance funerals. Take the case of a funeral at Kensico, up in Westchester, or even Woodlawn. Before it used to be necessary to take a train, which meant a hearse and carriages at both ends, to say nothing of the publicity of riding in a railroad car, that is, unless the party was large enough and could afford the special funeral car the railroad operates. Now we take the entire funeral, casket and all, from the house or church to Kensico in less than three hours.

"Take the case of a person dying in some other city and being buried here. Only the family come with the body and they want to be taken quickly and quietly to the cemetery. We can make Greenwood in less than an hour. In two hours they can be on the train going home again.

"Of course there are still some persons who fid it hard to accept it in place of the old way they have known so long. One man recently complained that it didn't seem solemn enough and seemed like taking liberties with the dead; but to one such complaint we've had any number of congratulations on the new method from the people who have said that it has done away with the most trying features of what has always been such an ordeal, namely an out-of-town funeral.

"Before long the hearses will begin to go just like the hansom cabs, though for big local funerals I suppose hearses will be used for a long time yet."

BROOM GOES WITH THE CHILD

Clever Idea of New York Mother Saves Clothes of Passengers on Street Cars.

New York.—A young woman leading a small boy entered a well-filled car and as the child climbed to his seat and got on his feet left dusty marks on the dress of the woman in the next seat who promptly looked daggers at the newcomer.

"So sorry," said the mother politely, "use this." She opened her handbag and offered a small whisk broom.

"What a clever idea," said the first woman, completely appeased, as she whisked off the dust.

"It goes with the child," calmly explained the mother.

Washington's Fish Industry.

Tacoma, Wash.—Fishing is an important industry in the state of Washington, and it is yearly increasing. Last year the value of fish taken from the rivers and lakes of the state was $13,000,000. The fisheries of Washington are great wealth producers. The fishing industry stands third in value of outputs, lumber being the first and wheat second.

Some day the fruit industry may overtake the fisheries in point of value of product, and it is not improbable that the fish industry will exceed the wheat when the wheat farms have been cut up for more intensive agriculture.

SCHOOL GIRLS FOR THE FARM

Lend a Far More Willing Ear to the Call of the Land Than Do the Boys.

Chicago.—Girls in the middle grades in Chicago lend a far more willing ear to the call of the land than the boys. The latter are about evenly divided between their yearning for the freedom of the great out of doors and their loyalty to city bred instincts, and the street car and the nickel theaters are the deciding factors with most of them. These facts developed after a talk the other day to about 100 boys and girls from Chicago schools by Edmund E. Perkins, reclamation expert of the United States government, in charge of the Chicago office.

Colored lantern slides gave point to Mr. Perkins' talk and were watched quietly until there was flashed upon the screen a scene in Yellowstone park, wherein a huge bear smiled (if bears may be said to smile) at the spectators out of the picture. This awakened sudden interest and exclamations of "Ain't he a big one?" "Gee, I'd hate to meet him!" etc. The girls, singularly, just laughed at him.

"Our country, you know, is only a child itself, compared to other nations," said the lecturer. "And, like you boys and girls, we have been spending all our 'pocket money' for 'toys, candy, peanuts, dolls,' etc., without saving a bit. Now, we've grown older, we have begun to see we must save a little or we won't have any left. Our 'pocket money' is our valuable lands, trees, etc."

After it was over the children were asked for their views. Each of three girls, about 15 years old, who said they lived in the middle West side, said, with a sigh, "I only wish I could live in a nice place like that, where you could get out of doors and get fresh air and have fresh things to eat."

To which all the other girls, about 40 in all, added eager assent. The boys were divided, however. One said:

"Give me the city, where you can have street cars and go to see nickel shows and things. You can sell papers and make money here, too."

PLAN TO BRIBE WASHINGTON

Old Paper Discloses Suggestion Dukedom and Revenue to Maintain It Be Offered to Him.

London.—Some interesting papers are to be found in the newly published volume of the Historical Manuscripts commission, which contains many documents from among the treasures of Mrs. Stopford-Sackville of Drayton House, Northamptonshire.

Lord George Sackville, to whom almost all the letters quoted are addressed, was secretary of state for the colonies from 1775 to 1782, and received most important dispatches from the seat of the war of independence—from Admiral Rodney, for example.

A long paper by Sir John Dalrymple contains a notable suggestion that jars somewhat on our fuller historical knowledge of Washington's disposition. It was nothing less than that the king should write a private letter to Washington offering him a dukedom and the revenue to maintain it, provided that he would ask "terms for America fair and just," such terms to be granted by the British. Lloyd Delany, the bosom friend of Washington, and at that time in London, was suggested as messenger.

A host of other engrossing incidents of all kinds—connected and unconnected with the war—are in these manscripts, which include important letters from Gen. Wolfe.

POLICE DOG CALLED MARVEL

Criminals in Russian City Say Animal Is Possessed of Evil Spirit—Amazes Crowd.

Moscow.—The criminal classes are beginning to believe that a police dog called Tref is possessed of an evil spirit. It was rumored in the night shelters and criminal dens that Tref was on the track of certain robbers. A number of bank notes and other valuables had been stolen from a man named Pokrofsky. Tref was put on the scent of the thief, and after taking a circuitous course entered a night shelter and made straight for an old coat, in which $250, stolen from M. Pokrofsky, was found. Tref then went to a shop where silver articles stolen from M. Pokrofsky were discovered. A cabman at this time complained that he had been robbed of a fur coat. Tref within a few minutes found it concealed in a courtyard. This last exploit was witnessed by a crowd of amazed spectators.

American Hunting Best.

Chicago.—The United States and Canada afford a greater area for hunting and fishing than any other part of the globe, and the game is more exciting and interesting than that found in any other country, according to Count Gorsko Skoravewski of Berlin. The count was in Washington the other day on his way back to Europe after a nine weeks' hunt through the northwest.

Postmaster Wanted.

Saltsburg, Pa.—A job paying 18 cents a day is offered by the United States government to any one who wishes to become postmaster at Wheatfield, near here. Last year the postoffice paid $64.

His Effective Plea.

A story is told of a prisoner before Lord Justice Fitzgibbon, at the time when the latter was one of the justices of appeals of Ireland, whose ready wit probably saved his neck.

Lord Fitzgibbon was holding assizes in Tipperary county when a man was brought before him on indictment for murder. The case was proved that the victim came to his death by being hit with a stick in the hands of the defendant, but the doctor testified that he had what they called in medical parlance a "paper skull."

The case looked dark for the prisoner, however, and the jury returned a verdict of guilty. As the man was brought before the court for sentence it was noticed that his lordship had his black cap in his hand.

"Have you anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced upon you?" demanded Lord Fitzgibbon.

The man looked for a moment and then said, "No, your lordship, I have nothing to say, but I should like to ask one question."

"What is that, my man?" said Fitzgibbon.

"I should like to know what a man with a head like that was doing in Tipperary?"

The black cap was put away and a prison sentence imposed.—Youth's Companion.

The Artist's Compensation.

Save a few business concerns, great concerns, Harrod's, the army and navy stores and the like, what a strange welter is in our whole system of payment for work—more especially in the higher branches of work! Art and literary work are terrible examples of this confusion and want of science. The payments to many of the best workers in those barren fields are so bad that a man is quite sanguine if he sees not at the end of his career the madhouse of the pauper's grave.

If he paint without genius, a painter may, by attracting an ignorant public, make himself secure. If he write without individuality or real force, the writer may likewise make himself secure by driving hard bargains with those who buy and sell his wares. But for the most part, good work in these branches is the work of sensitive men who are little children in money matters and who shrink from bargaining. Politics and public life and business make a much better game than art or letters.—London Saturday Review.

Amount of Sleep Required.

A woman requires at least seven hours' sleep for the building up of her system. Two more hours will recuperate her body, and an extra hour or two will restore her complexion, make her eyes bright, and keep her form elastic. The woman who wants to derive the fullest benefit from her beauty sleep will compose her mind before sinking off into slumber.

Neatness Essential.

Neatness is an essential to beauty. The woman who is not critical as to her neck, the one who dresses her hair elaborately but is neglectful about her finger nails, the one who puts on a dainty blouse and fastens it carelessly, and the woman who gets herself up without regard for the conventions of dress; one and all of these women will not make a good appearance.

An Indigestion Remedy Free

Many people who are otherwise healthy suffer from indigestion, or dyspepsia. When you consider that the stomach and allied digestive organs are the most important organs of the body, it would seem that a disorder there is to be taken very seriously.

Dyspeptics cannot eat the things they like; food sours in the stomach; then chronic constipation begins, or, as is often the case, you have been constipated all along, and the stools are forced and irregular.

But there is no use letting indigestion go until it becomes chronic and undermines your health. It is good advice to suggest to you that you go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the wonderful cure for stomach, liver and bowel troubles. That is what C. Fowler, of Carson City, Mich., did and he is well today. Others who did the same and are cured are Ida A. Fortune, of Grand Junction, Tenn., B. F. Thompson, of Shenandoah, Ia., who actually considers that it saved his life. You can obtain a 50-cent or $1 bottle of the druggist, and, taken according to directions, it will probably be all you need. It is a liquid, acts gently, never gripes, and besides the laxative effect, contains exceptional tonic properties which tone the stomach, and that is what is especially needed in indigestion.

All sufferers from indigestion who have never used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can obtain a free test bottle by writing the doctor. It will be sent direct to your home without any charge. In this way thousands have proven to their own satisfaction Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the very remedy they needed to cure indigestion. When once you use this grand remedy you will throw violent cathartics, tablets, salts, etc., away.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

SOLDIERS AND WILL POWER

Proof of at Least One Benefit That Comes as the Result of Military Training.

That military training strengthens the power of the will was shown by recent experiments in Austria. To determine what effect the fatigue resulting from a long march might have upon the shooting efficiency of trained soldiers, the Austrian school of musketry recently had a cyclist detachment of 50 men, all over two years' service, do 65 miles in eight hours, the return journey being against a strong head wind. Before and after the march they each fired ten rounds at a target representing a section of 26 men in skirmishing order lying down at 500 paces. Before the march the detachment made 40 hits on 19 figures; after the march, 38 hits on 16 figures.

The experiment was then repeated with a section of 42 noncommissioned officers, before and after a 23 hours' exercise in the field, during which 33 miles were covered. This section, consisting principally of marksmen, made 81 hits on 21 out of 26 figures before starting and 62 hits on 20 figures after their return.

But the raw recruit, when subjected to a similar test of endurance, fails to hit the target at all. He is incapable of the effort of will and firm resolve to hit which renders the trained soldier a formidable antagonist, even when his strength is exhausted by hunger and fatigue.

The Chantecler Veil.

The Chantecler fad is now so well established that one is not at all surprised to meet a pretty girl carrying a full-grown fine specimen of a leghorn fowl seated comfortably on top of her hat; and even my lady's parasols and her silk stockings are embroidered with crowing cocks—all in accordance, of course, with the new French play which deals with the love affair of a Chantecler and Mlle. Hen Pheasant. The very latest notion is the Chantecler veil, in the meshes of which are woven lively little roosters in Chantilly lace effect, the ground being a rather open net and the roosters showing quite plainly when draped on the face.

FAIR AT FRENCH CAPITAL

Ancient Gathering, With Misleading Name, a Feature of Gay City of Paris.

A great feature of the present week is the ham fair which is held on the Boulevard Richard Le Noir. The name of this fair is wholly misleading, for as far as I have seen hams are the very last thing any one buys there.

Old brass and copper curios, quaint jewelry, rare china, lace tapestries and books are what most people go out for to seek, and a sight not to be easily forgotten is the long, wide boulevard lined with ramshackle stalls laden with every possible kind of lumber and presided over by the most rapacious of brocanteurs.

Out of piles of valueless lumber Americans and English diligently seek for their pet kind of curios and there is not an artist in Paris who cannot point to some bit of furniture in his or her studio and say with pride, "I got that for five francs at the ham fair."

No one ever pays more than five francs, I notice, but, alas, every year these five franc bargains are become more rare, and even as housekeeping in Paris grows more and more costly so does the furnishing of one's house to keep.—London Queen.

Waiting for the Gas.

They had just moved from one flat to another and everything was torn up.

To make matters worse the gas man hadn't been out to turn on the gas which undoubtedly had been shut off since last tenant had moved out, and there were no electric lights in the flat. They didn't want to buy an outfit of oil lamps for so short a time and were getting along the best they could with candles.

Each morning they called up the gas office and the clerk said there would be a man out that day, but it was more than a week before he finally showed up.

Then he knocked on the door and announced with a grin of sullen disgust: "That gas has been turned on all the while. 'Tain't never been turned off since them other folks was here."

The new arrivals had never thought of trying it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sleep.

The first sleep is the soundest—after the first hour the intensity of sleep slowly diminishes—hence the value of forty winks after dinner in quickly recuperating shattered powers. Temperature and vitality are lowest at about 2:00 a. m., so that two hours' sleep before midnight are worth four thereafter. Nature has no rule as to the length of sleep, except that men need less than women, since women are the more sensitive creatures and a woman's heart beats five times more in a minute than a man's. Sleep should be just so long that when you wake in the morning a stretch and a yawn only are necessary to land you in a daytime of bounding vigor. Trust to early rising. It is comforting to hear Dr. Bryce say that it is a habit that has gone far to wreck the constitutions of many a growing youth.

Education and Efficiency.

Nowhere for many years continuously has the education machine worked more untiringly than in London. Yet of the skilled labor of London two-thirds is done by men and women from the provinces, while four-fifths out of every ten dock laborers and 90 and 90 per cent of those who seek refuge in night shelters are London born and bred. What does this mean? Is it merely the fierce competition caused by the compelling attractions of London, with its glitter of gold? Or does it prove some fatal weakness in the London schools?—London Saturday Review.

FAIR AT FRENCH CAPITAL.

Animal Gathering, With Misleading Name, a Feature of Gay City of Paris.

A great feature of the present week is the ham fair which is held on the Boulevard Richard Le Noir. The name of this fair is wholly misleading, for so far as I have seen hams are the very last thing any one buys there.

Old brass and copper curios, quaint jewelry, rare china, lace, tapestries and books are what most people go out for to look, and a sight not to be easily forgotten is the long, wide boulevard lined with ramshackle stalls laden with every possible kind of lumber and presided over by the most rapacious of brocanteurs.

Out of piles of valueless lumber Americans and English diligently seek for their pet kind of curios, and there is not an artist in Paris who cannot point to some bit of furniture in his or her studio and say with pride, "I got that for five francs at the ham fair."

No one ever pays more than five francs, I notice, but, alas, every year these five franc bargains are becoming more rare, and even as housekeeping in Paris grows more and more costly so does the furnishing of one's house to keep.—London Queen.

Waiting for the Gas.

They had just moved from one flat to another and everything was torn up.

To make matters worse the gas man hadn't been out to turn on the gas which undoubtedly had been shut off since the tenant had moved out, and there were no electric lights in the flat. They didn't want to buy an outfit of oil lamps for so short a time and were getting along the best they could with candles.

Each morning they called up the gas office and the clerk said there would be a man out that day, but it was more than a week before he finally showed up.

Then he knocked on the door and announced with a grin of sullen disgust: "That gas has been turned on all the while. 'Tain't never been turned off since them other folks was here."

The new arrivals had never thought of trying it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sleep.

The first sleep is the soundest—after the first hour the intensity of sleep slowly diminishes—hence the value of forty winks after dinner in quickly recuperating shattered powers. Temperature and vitality are lowest at about 2:00 a. m., so that two hours' sleep before midnight are worth four thereafter. Nature has no rule as to the length of sleep, except that men need less than women, since women are the more sensitive creatures and a woman's heart beats five times more in a minute than a man's. Sleep should be just so long that when you wake in the morning a stretch and a yawn only are necessary to land you in a daytime of bounding vigor. As to early rising, it is comforting to hear Dr. Bryce say that it is a habit that has gone far to wreck the constitutions of many a growing youth.

Education and Efficiency.

Nowhere for many years continuously has the education machine worked more untiringly than in London. Yet of the skilled labor of London two-thirds is done by men and women from the provinces, while seven out of every ten dock laborers and 80 and 90 per cent. of those who seek refuge in night shelters are London born and bred. What does this mean? Is it merely the fierce competition caused by the compelling attraction of London, with its glitter of lights? Or does it prove some fatal weakness in the London schools?—London Saturday Review.

HORTICULTURE

HORTICULTURAL NOTES.

More trees are harmed than helped by pruning. This is a broad statement, but we believe it is true.

In planting mixed sweet peas, you can tell whether the flower will be light or dark by the color of the seed.

To set apple trees of the standard sorts closer than 30 feet is giving them less soil and air room than they should have.

The quickest fruit to give returns is strawberries, and it comes early in the season. Now is a good time to set out the plants.

No man should attempt to prune a tree until he has learned what is to be accomplished by pruning, and how to do it properly.

In the south, crimson clover sown in the fall and turned under in the spring has proven to be an excellent orchard treatment.

Every bright day spray forcibly any plants that may be ever so slightly attacked by red spider and any doubtful places near the heating pipes in the rose house.

The spikes of Odontoglossum citrosmum will soon be showing in the tips of the new growth. When this occurs give the plants a thorough soaking of water, but not before.

It is useless to put most seeds into the ground until it is warmed up and dry enough to work up light. Corn planting time is about the average time for most flower seeds.

Where there are herbaceous plants in protectors look over them on mild days and remove anything of a decaying nature. From now on they must have air, except during the very coldest weather.

The sweet pea is a notable exception. The earlier it can be tucked into the ground the better. Do not wait for fine weather, but in the first pleasant days work up the soil as well as possible and plant the seeds.

PROPER WAY TO SET TREES

Interesting Experiments in England Show That Most Successful Method Is by Ramming.

Some interesting experiments have been made at Worburn farm and other places in England to demonstrate the proper way to set trees.

According to these reports from England the correct method is to make

Not Rammed. Rammed.
Gascoyne.

a small hole, double the roots up any old way, jam the tree in, ram down the soil as hard as if one were setting a fence post.

The result of these experiments show that 59 per cent. of the trees planted in this way showed in favor of the ramming, 27 per cent. showed no difference at all and 14 per cent. were against this method and in favor of planting in a large hole and spreading the roots out carefully. Trees that were jammed into the ground showed a copious development of fibrous roots.

Not Rammed. Rammed.
Marie Louise.

The illustrations given herewith give some idea of the action of the roots under the different methods.

Experiments further show that the fibrous and small roots produced in the nursery before digging play no great part as roots during the subsequent life of the tree.

Packing Apples.

The German government has issued a decree which in effect permits American apples packed in barrels in the head of which excelsior or paper is placed to prevent damage in shipment to enter the country without the payment of the tariff rate provided. Hitherto apples so packed have paid the increased duty applicable to "fruit doubly wrapped." The removal of the extra duty will relieve a burdensome duty on American apples.

Pruning Small Fruit.

The currant and gooseberry need pruning. This is best done when the four or five year old wood is cut out. Sometimes if there are too many new shoots, they can be thinned to advantage.

The Codling Moth.

Get ready to fight the codling moth which causes wormy apples. In the meantime, fruit growers should prepare themselves for the campaign by ordering a first-class spray pump and the necessary attachments.

FARM AND GARDEN

FARM NOTES.

The strong odor of the coal tar dip is one of its drawbacks.

No other work on the farm pays better than that spent in judicious draining.

A little figuring will help us to see that it will pay to raise our own feed.

All farmers should be informed on what in a general way constitutes a balanced ration.

Blackleg in the potato is comparatively a new trouble with which American growers will have to contend.

Dressings, say twice a season, of nitrate of soda at the rate of 250 pounds per acre would make a wonderful difference in the garden.

The details of ordinary bee keeping are easily learned by the interested novice and every day's experience with the bees gives increase of knowledge and skill.

Here is a point to remember: 500 pounds of hen manure contain as much nitrogen as 2,000 pounds of stable manure. But never mix hen manure with wood ashes.

The city hucksters have marketing down to a fine point. They buy their vegetables wholesale and then sort and pack in boxes, baskets and tie in bunches, adding greatly to their attractiveness and naturally, the price.

Sweet potatoes may be transplanted when the ground is warm enough to germinate lima beans. Transplant them as early as the temperature of the soil and the weather will permit, so vines may be used for the remainder of the patch.

There is much pleasure during long winter nights in popping corn and making "honey boy." Plant popcorn and be ready for this event next winter. Good popcorn is sometimes profitable as a money crop. Give the children a popcorn patch.

HARNESS VISE IS ESSENTIAL

Detailed Instructions for Constructing Implement That Is Held Solidly in Position.

A good harness vise can easily be constructed by following instructions given below:

A and B are one-inch pieces, 3 inches wide, 3 feet 5 inches long. C is a 2-inch piece, 6 inches wide, 11½ inches long on top and 1 foot 2 inches on the bottom, sawed on a slant, so that the pieces A and B will meet at the top. Nail A and B to C at the bottom. D is a bolt 6 inches long put in 12 inches from the top. F is 12 inches long and 1½ by 1½ inches wide. Mortise in piece B 8 inches from top and put a bolt through it and piece B to hold it in place. First nail A and B to C, then put piece F in place. Next put the bolt D and screw it up as tight as wanted. F is used to spread the jaws when you want to open it.

Use a seat when working. It can be made in connection with the vise. Take two pieces of fence board 1 foot 5 inches long. Nail two pieces No. 3 six inches high. Then set the ends of the boards on piece C. This makes a little platform. Then take a piece of 4 by 4, 2 feet long. Nail a piece of fence-board on the top, making it like a milk-stool. Then by sitting on the stool on the platform it holds the vise solidly in position.

HOLDING BOTTLES AND CANS

Device Made of Ordinary No. 12 Wire, Fastened Into Wall Will Make Handy Clip on Farm.

A piece of ordinary wire, about No. 12 gauge, bent in the shape known in the illustration and fastened to the wall with a couple of screws will make a handy clip for holding a bottle or an oil can, says Farm Press. This device fastened in a tool box of an automobile, using the bottom in the place of a shelf, will hold the oil can and prevent its being turned over. Such a clip is useful for timbers to hold the acid bottle in a handy place and keep it off the bench.

Feeding the Calf.

Don't forget that a calf will begin to eat nicely cured clover or alfalfa hay when very young and it is good for it to have something of the kind within reach all the time.

Neglected Colds and Coughs are the cause of many cases of Pneumonia and Consumption. No matter how slight your Cough or Cold may be, cure it before it has a chance to do any harm.

Poor Old Scientists.

Four venerable scientists from the session that had just closed of the American Philosophical society went out into Fifth street.

Only men who have distinguished themselves are selected to membership in this society, and each of the members looks distinguished. The four massive heads were covered with snowy white hair.

"Gee, fellows, look at de highbrows!" shouted a newsboy, as he caught sight of the four comrades in science strolling up the street.

"Highbrows, highbrows!" sang out other newsboys, running across Independence square and from intersecting streets. Soon a cavalcade of mocking youngsters surrounded the philosophers, who were forced to climb on a street car to escape the unwelcome attentions of the irreverent and ribald youths.—Philadelphia Times.

Musical Sense of Insects.

Interesting facts with regard to the musical perceptions of the water flea were mentioned at the Royal society's meeting by Mr. F. J. Cole.

The insect is particularly sensitive to certain notes on the tenor trombone. When imprisoned in a microscope live box it preserves a stolid indifference to most musical sounds. It is only when the B flat below the middle C of the trombone is in full blast that it expresses its displeasure by "fixing its first pair of anteunae under its body."

One isolated specimen, however, was evidently irritated by every note of the instrument, while many appear to have been entirely tone deaf.—London Daily Mail.

Fish Wear Out a Bridge.

John Shafer, Jr., deputy in the office of County Surveyor Frank Haycock of Hennepin county, says that fish have butted and rubbed up against the piles of the bridge at Orono, Lake Minnetonka, until that aged edifice has become weakened, necessitating its closing.

Shafer and Edward Terrell, another deputy, were sent out to inspect the span.

"Yes, sir," said Shafer, "those fish kept on butting up against that pier until the wood was almost worn away. In order to get there we had to pound the water around the place to keep the finny things away until we could finish our inspection.

"Why those fish are so numerous at Minnetonka this year that they get pushed through the narrow passage so swift that they simply wear the wood."—St. Paul Dispatch.

We have received the official Gazette of the United States Patent Office of June 28, 1910, from which we learn that a patent for wagon brake, No. 530456, was granted Henry M. Mahan of Clanton. This brake possesses many advantages over the old style long in use, and is destined to be a source of large revenue to its inventor, our townsman, Mr. Mahan.

Once upon a time there was a Big Boss who carried everything before him—it was get out of my way or over you go—and all were getting so used to it that they stood aside to let the Big Boss go on. And he went on and on until suddenly there was a halt called and it looks rather doubtful but that there may be a stoppage in the forward march.

The Big Boss had been elected to office more than once—as most big bosses have a knack of doing—and prior to his election to his last office he said something like this:

"Now, boys, if you will elect me to this office, I won't ask you for a second term. One term is enough for me."

And the good boys duly elected him for that one term, and it is not to be denied but that he filled the office in a creditable manner.

But as time went on a change came o'er the spirit of his dream, and he thought he would like a second term, and he didn't forget to ask for it, presumably his memory was short and he had forgotten about only wanting the office one term.

But he had taken the wrong course in some particulars at least during his term of office—made some bad breaks as it were—and some there were who thought it might be best to make a change, and out came another candidate in opposition to the Big Boss. Some folks thought he had lots of temerity, but he thought it was worth a trial anyway, and now it looks as if it might turn out that way.

As was to have been expected there was a split in the camp; many of his old friends stood by the Big Boss, but quite a number have gone over to the new man, and whether the Big Boss has enough of his old friends left to re-elect him is a very open question. Others have struck out in a new direction, and seek fresh fields and pastures new.

There are big bosses and little bosses and would-be bosses, but which of them is going to prove the real boss of the future is more than anyone can tell at the present moment.

Editor Banner—I wish to state through the columns of your paper that there will be an all day singing at this place the fourth Sunday in July. The books expected to be used are "Onward Songs" and "Lyrics of Praise." Profs. J. D. Patton and H. B. Eagle are expected to be here with their classes. Let everybody come and bring your books and baskets well filled. For fear that some few of our own people in the community do not understand how it came about just after having a singing a few days past. I am under the impression that Prof. Patton has selected his places at which he might sing while engaged in the work of teaching in Chilton. Now, could we afford to miss hearing him. I have had the pleasure of hearing him before and earnestly hope that every person in the community will be out to hear this great singer.

TO INDORSE PAYNE TARIFF AND TAFT

Ohio Indorsement Model For Other States.

President Taft has been told that the Ohio republican state platform to be adopted at Columbus the latter part of this month would contain a ringing indorsement of the entire Taft administration, including the Payne-Aldrich tariff law. It is proposed that the form of indorsement written into the Ohio platform shall serve as a model to other states that intend standing loyally by Mr. Taft.

The Ohio platform, taken in connection with the keynote speech to be delivered at the convention by Representative Nicholas Longworth as temporary chairman, will serve as an index to the campaign to be waged throughout the country by the republicans this fall. The issues for the congressional campaign will be set forth clearly. They will include an indorsement of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law as a step in the right direction. The tariff commission feature of the bill, by which it is proposed in the near future to put the tariff on a scientific basis of protection, gauged by the actual difference in the cost of production at home and abroad, will be brought out most prominently.

THRONE TOTTERING?

Widespread Revolutionary Plots Discovered in Spain.

The discovery of a revolutionary plot affecting every important city in Spain has startled the government and a meeting of all the cabinet officers was immediately called by Premier Canelajas. The throne is tottering, according to authentic reports, and the government has ordered all troops in readiness for instant service.

The situation at Barcelona, chief anarchist headquarters, is worse according to semi-official statements, than it has been since the height of the riots following the execution of Francisco Ferrer.

KING ALFONSO.

The discovery of a plot on the life of King Alfonso at Valladolid, where he was en route to Segovia, is but a part of the general revolutionary scheme, but it is on that that the order for the arrest of every known anarchist is based. The guard about the palace has been doubled, and the king's personal body guard was still further increased, in spite of his protestations.

The government's opposition to the Catholic church has done little to placate the extreme radicals, particularly at Barcelona, acording to current reports.

$2,000,000 DAMAGE.

Enormous Loss From Cloudbursts in Kentucky and Indiana.

Widespread damage in several counties in Kentucky and Indiana has resulted from the cloudbursts which broke after three weeks of almost daily rain. Henderson, Union, Webster and Nicholas counties in Kentucky suffered most. Estimates of the damage have been variously estimated, but it is known that it is very heavy.

A quarter of a mile of the Louisville and Nashville railroad track between Paris and Maysville was washed away, and three steel bridges were totally wrecked, according to reports received. Many houses were carried off by the waters and a large acreage of tobacco, corn and wheat is a complete loss. Live stock also suffered heavily.

TAKES M. A. DEGREE.

Miss Dorothy Jones' Great Record at Ann Harbor, Mich.

It was announced at Ann Harbor, Mich., that the youngest person ever to take a master of arts degree from the University of Michigan, and possibly from any other university in the United States, is Miss Dorothy Jones, of Harrisburg, Pa.

She was 17 years old when she passed her examinations here recently. Previous to coming to Ann Harbor, Miss Jones was a college student for three years at Carlisle, Pa.

SOUTH FORGING AHEAD.

Many Important Industrial Deals Closed in Past Few Days.

Reports to the Baltimore Manufacturers' Record show that during the past week many important deals have been closed in the south involving large purchases of timber and coal lands for development and wet lands for reclamation, and that a good many important industrial enterprises, including cotton mills, oil mills and miscellaneous undertakings, have been organized.

There is increasing activity throughout the south in the construction of good roads, and in every state there is growing interest in the issuing of bonds for this purpose, indicating a determination on the part of the people of the whole south to broaden the campaign for the building of roads.

Contracts have been let for the construction of drainage canals in Mississippi to reclaim 250,000 acres of land, this being reported as the largest single undertaking made in the south, with the exception of the Everglades of Florida. In Louisiana contracts have been made by western people for the reclamation of wet lands recently purchased, and for this purpose a $700,000 company has been organized. A special dispatch from Texas reports the sale to local people of 40,000 acres of timber land, while a 30,000-acre tract of timber land in Louisiana has been taken by western buyers. The Texas company, of Houston, has contracted for 200 miles of 6-inch and 4-inch steel pipe for its proposed new oil pipe line in the southwest. A Chicago packing company has completed its plans for the construction at Wichita Falls, Texas, of a meat packing plant to cost about $200,000, the various buildings to be of reinforced concrete.

These facts, with many others, indicate the broad sweep of developments in the south.

HART HAS RETIRED FROM THE RACE

Will Not Be In Running For Governorship.

Judge John C. Hart has retired from the race for governor in Georgia.

Three weeks after his announcement and on the very day his resignation from the office of attorney general of Georgia took effect and his successor was sworn in, he issued a formal statement announcing his withdrawal.

This practically leaves the field to Governor Joseph M. Brown and Hoke Smith, who will fight over the campaign of two years ago.

Likewise, its effect will be to make unnecessary the application of the primary prorating rule and to remove that rule as an issue in the campaign, since Brown or Smith is almost sure to receive a majority in every county.

Almost as abrupt and unexpected as his entrance into the race was Judge Hart's retirement.

It is said he practically admits that he misjudged the present temper of the people of the state; that instead of wanting peace, they want war.

FIVE AERONAUTS KILLED.

They Fell Hundreds of Feet, Meeting Instant Death.

Oscar Erbsloch, the German aeronaut, who won the international balloon race at St. Louis in 1907, and four companions were killed at Leichlingen, Rhenish Prussia, when the dirigible balloon Erbsloch burst at a height of several hundred feet and dropped to the earth a crumpled mass.

The craft was of the non-rigid type, 176 feet in length and 33 feet in diameter. The motors were of 125 horse power and drove the air ship at a speed of 28½ miles an hour. The German war department recently purchased one of Erbsloch's balloons.

The cause of the accident is a matter of conjecture, but it is believed that the bursting of the bag was due to expansion by the warm sunshine. The wreckage fell so heavily that the gondola was broken to bits and the motor buried in the ground. The victims were frightfully torn.

AIR RIDING CRAFT

Knoxville Exposition to Have First Comprehensive Exhibit.

The first shipment of aeroplanes via the Southern railway from the west and what is believed to be the first freight movement of this character in the south, will be the exhibit from the Wright Brothers' factory at Dayton, Ohio, which will be an attractive feature of the Appalachian Exposition to be held at Knoxville, Tenn., September 12 to October 12.

The machines to be displayed at Knoxville by the Wright Brothers will move from New York to Knoxville over the lines of the C. N. O. and T. P. and the Southern railway, and while southern traffic officials are not expecting a steady movement of aeroplanes in the immediate future, they are taking pleasure in the fact that they will handle this car.

The Knoxville exposition will have the distinction of being one of the first to have a comprehensive display of air-riding craft.

ENGLISH AVIATOR MET TRAGIC FATE

Flying Tournament Results In Death of a Lord's Son.

The first flying tournament of the year in England was brought to a tragic close by the dramatic death of the most daring and popular British aviator, the Hon. Chas. H. Rolls, third son of Lord Llangattock, at Bournemouth, Eng. In the presence of a great company of spectators, most of whom were ladies and children, and many personal friends of the young aviator, the Wright bi-plane, on which he was flying, fell suddenly with a terrific speed from a height of 100 feet. It struck the ground close to the crowded grand stand, smashed into a tangled mass and before the doctors and their attendants could reach the spot, Rolls was dead.

The event in which Rolls was competing was a prize for the aviator alighting nearest a given mark. The goal was directly in front of the grand stand, where the spectators were massed. He had risen to a good height, then shut off his motor and was gliding in a broad circle toward the mark.

Without warning the tail piece of the bi-plane snapped off. The machine gave a sudden lurch and the frame work crumpled up in the air. When it struck the ground it was smashed to splinters. The doctors found that Rolls had sustained a fractured skull. The wreck of the machine and twisted stays surrounded the body so that there was difficulty in extricating him.

TO WIELD BIG STICK.

United States May Take Charge of Affairs in Nicaragua.

The United States is preparing to issue to the world the following reasons why it will wield the "Big Stick" on Nicaragua unless conditions there are speedily bettered. It is semi-officially reported:

The gunboat Venus was released after being held up in a United States port on false statements by the Madriz government.

The bombardment of Prinzapulca, an unfortified town, injured American interests and menaced the lives of American citizens. The United States was flouted when William Pittman, of Boston, Mass., was captured at Bluefields, removed to Managua and mistreated in spite of Madriz's pledges to the United States.

Madriz has acted as trouble-maker in stirring up anti-American feeling in Central and South America. Dr. U. A. Burgheim, of Texas, has been detained without cause and held a prisoner of war. Americans in western Nicaragua have been threatened with death or ruin.

The general opinion here is that the sending of the gunboat Vicksburg to Corinto, just announced by Secretary Knox, is the answer of the United States to the plea for recognition of Madriz. It is believed that the sending of marines to Nicaragua can not be much longer avoided and when they go this time it will be in sufficient force and under orders to regulate affairs there with a firm hand.

Intervention by the United States is the only answer to the vexed Nicaraguan problem, experts on the Central American situation declare, and if the United States does not step in, the rapidly growing condition of demoralization there will compel Germany or England to do so in spite of the Monroe doctrine.

TO PROTECT AMERICANS.

Gunboat Vicksburg Ordered to Proceed to Nicaragua.

For the purpose of protecting American interests and insuring the safety of William E. Pittman, American engineer captured and held prisoner by Madriz, Secretary Knox has ordered the gunboat Vicksburg to Corinto, near Nicaragua. Heretofore the United States has not been represented by a gunboat on the Pacific coast of Nicaragua, and it is deemed necessary to take this action by reason of the high-handed methods recently employed by Madriz in his treatment of Pittman and for the purpose of protecting the lives of Americans here.

Pittman was surreptitiously moved by Madriz, after his capture, from Bluefields to Managua, where, it is reported, he is being slowly starved to death in a filthy prison cell.

PERFECT ORGANIZATION.

Sea Island Staple Growers Form Association for Mutual Benefit.

Sea Island cotton growers from three states met at Waycross, Ga., and perfected an organization under the name of the Union Sea Island Cotton company, which will have headquarters at Savannah and which purposes to build a large warehouse there with branches at various points.

The purpose of the union is to secure for the producer the best possible prices for both long and short staple cotton. Reports on crop conditions by members of the company are to the effect that the Georgia crop will be 75 per cent of the normal, and that of Florida 90 per cent.

CURTIS MAKES RECORD.

American Mark for Fifty Miles Made by Aviator.

Glenn Curtiss has recently set an American record for a fifty-mile flight in an aeroplane Monday afternoon at Atlantic City, N. J., by covering half a hundred measured miles in five-mile laps, along the beach, in elapsed time of 1 hour, 14 minutes, 59 seconds. Curtiss was in the air one hour and thirty minutes, and spent one hour, twenty-one minutes and five seconds on the course, six minutes and six seconds being deducted for the turn at the two ends of the two and one-half-mile course.

In the early evening Curtiss set a new mark for quick climbing by sweeping his machine 1,000 feet in the air in five minutes and fifty-one seconds.

BANDIT SHOT DEAD.

Two Men Try to Hold Up Young Chap Just Leaving Sweetheart.

A bandit was shot and killed at Chicago by Elmer Cooper, a motorcycle salesman. Cooper had just taken leave of his fiance, Miss Catheryn Rush, when he was held up by two men.

Cooper, after being knocked down, drew his revolver and fired. He shot one of the bandits through the forehead. The wounded man fell to the ground, while his companion fled.

An element of mystery was injected in the case when Cooper told the police that it was the second attack since July 3. The first attack occurred when he was leaving the home of Miss Rush. On the night of July 3, he said, he had been waylaid and an attempt made to beat him. On this occasion, however, he said, there were three young men, fairly well dressed. To guard against another attack he had purchased a revolver.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES

Complaint has been filed with the interstate commerce commission at Washington by Louisville, Ky., lumber merchants, who united in protesting against rates charged on lumber by railroads operating between points in southern states and Louisville. The merchants declare the industry of hardwood lumber to be the most important in Southeastern territory. The present rates, they allege, are unreasonable and an impediment to the progress of the lumber industry.

Ten thousand dollars in the Central Trust Company of Illinois savings account, commercial account only slightly less, and notes for interest constitute all that is left of the $750,000 which, the Illinois Central alleges, Henry C. Ostermann obtained from it by fraud. The Illinois Central has entered suit to determine whether Ostermann had segregated his assets and placed them beyond a possible judgment in the case. Ostermann, a former Illinois Central conductor, attracted attention last year by lavish use of money in luxurious hotels in different cities.

Nearly 25,000 of the immigrants who arrived at United States ports during the fiscal year ended June 30 last, were denied admission by immigration officials and were compelled to return to the countries from which they came. The fiscal year 1910 was a "million immigrant year," the first for several years, the total number admitted being 1,041,570.

Savannah's conscience fund is richer by $1,500 as the result of an unknown man's regrets. The money was handed to Mayor Tiedeman on the city's main street by a prominent minister, who declared it had been taken from the city by one who wished to keep his name a secret. The minister was made intermediary after giving his word of secrecy.

Cheered by an audience of progressive republicans as the "people's candidate for governor of Ohio," James R. Garfield, at Cleveland, O., opened the fight to place Ohio in the insurgent column. In a two hours' speech, in which he avowed himself an "insurgent" and eulogized the section of congress which is known by that name, the former secretary of the interior set forth the platform upon which the "progressive" republicans of Ohio will enter the fall campaign.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Barbert, of Pensacola, Fla., received from Governor Gilchrist a handsome spoon bearing the seal of the state of Florida. Married 19 years ago, the wife, now only 37 years old, Mr. and Mrs. Barbert are the parents of 13 children. Six of the children are twins. Governor Gilchrist suggested that the legislature pass an act allowing the parents a pension.

Four hundred thousand spectators witnessed at New York the most spectacular pier fire since the Hoboken disaster ten years ago, in which 150 lives were lost. As far as can be ascertained, two men perished during today's conflagration. The monetary loss will run between $750,000 and $1,000,000. Pier 14 of the Metropolitan steamship line on the Hudson river at the foot of Fulton street, was practically destroyed. The structure cost $300,000.

The American consul, Thomas P. Moffatt, has issued instructions to the American naval commanders at Bluefields to observe the strictest precautions that no personal communication be held with Bluefields Bluff, on account of the grave fears that yellow fever is prevalent there. The bluff is held by the Madriz forces, and numerous deaths have recently occurred among the Madriz soldiers.

That Atlanta will be the meeting place of the Southern Commercial Congress when it convenes in the fall is now absolutely assured. The organization is composed of the most prominent business men in the south, and as the convention will bring together several hundred of these progressive men, it will be one of the most important of the year.

The republican convention of the Eighth Congressional district, held in Decatur, Ala., nominated George Moffet as candidate for congress, to oppose Judge William Richardson, of Huntsville, democratic nominee.

Bishop E. W. Lampton, of the African Methodist church, died at his home in Petoskey, Mich. The funeral will be held in Greenville, Miss., Bishop H. M. Turner, of Atlanta, officiating.

More than 2,000 track laborers on the Illinois Central railroad between Louisville and Cairo struck for a pay increase of 25 cents a day. The men have been getting $1.25.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES

A waste of smoking ruins extending for two miles and seven isolated buildings represents the town of Campbellton and the nearby village of Richardsville, N. B., which was overwhelmed by fire driven before a gale. Two lives were lost during the ten hours the fire raged. Dr. Beverly Sproule, a dentist, while aiding with his automobile in rescuing women and children, was burned to death by an explosion of gasoline. An infant was suffocated in the dense smoke.

Found guilty of conspiring to secure the confirmation by the board of aldermen of the appointment of James A. Hamilton as chief of the Lawrence fire department, at Salem, Mass., and of conspiring later to secure Hamilton's removal from that position, William P. White, mayor of Lawrence, was sentenced to serve three years in the house of correction and pay a fine of $1,000.

Fire, which in all probability was caused by a live wire falling from the ceiling, practically destroyed the stock of goods in the general store of H. M. Miller, on North Washington street, Albany, Ga. The fire had evidently ben burning for some time when discovered. Miller estimates the value of his stock at $18,000, and carried insurance of $4,500.

Near Pound Gap, on the Virginia-Kentucky border, Wesley Dorton, aged 1, shot and killed his brother John, aged 16, as a result of a dispute over a game of marbles. Following the tragedy Wesley turned the weapon upon himself and inflicted a wound in his left breast which may cause his death.

An owl wrecked the plant of the Central Colorado Power Company, at Boulder, Colo., and plunged the city into darkness. The bird hooked a claw about negative and positive wires, causing a short circuit and burning out the plant.

Moving pictures depicting train robberies, safe cracking and other crimes must not be shown hereafter in Pittsburg. Director of Public Safety John M. Morin has notified all managers of moving picture shows that these films will not be permitted under penalty of revocation of license.

The body of Col. Silas E. Comfort, vice president of the Pennsylvania Military college, was found in Leiperville creek, in the rear of the Colonial hotel, Leiperville, near Chester, Pa. Foul play is suspected.

Two University of Illinois students, Robert Chambers, of Oakland City, and Jesse Treakes, of Peoria, Ill., were killed by lightning on the summit of Mount Pisgah, Colo.

Holmes Johnson, Jr., son of F. Holmes Johnson, well-known attorney of Grays, Ga., was run over and killed by a freight train on the Central of Georgia railway near Grays, Ga. Young Johnson was riding between the freight cars en route to his father's peach orchard when a sudden jolt of the engine caused him to lose his hold, throwing him beneath the wheels. Death was instantaneous.

NOTES FROM NATION'S CAPITAL

Complaint has been filed with the interstate commerce commission by the National League of Commission Merchants against freight rate charges by the Atlantic Coast Line railroad and its affiliated lines on car and less than car lot shipments from Charleston, S. The big abattoir, the boiler house and the power plant of the Columbia Cotton Oil and Provision Corporation, one of the largest and most important industries in the vicinity of Washington, near Arlington, Va., were destroyed by fire. Loss estimated at $200,000, covered by an insurance of about $100,000. The fire was caused by an explosion in the abattoir.

A Washington dispatch says owing to the fact that letters mailed by Mrs. Frances F. Cleveland, widow of the late President Cleveland, have been charged with postage due at the postoffice to which they were addressed, the postmaster general has issued an order calling attention of postmasters to the bill passed at the last session of congress whereby Mrs. Cleveland's letters, as well as those of Mrs. Mary Lord Harrison, widow of the late President Harrison, are entitled to transmission free of charge.

W. Frank "Jack" Horner, widely known in baseball circles, died at New Orleans at a local hotel as a result of an accident in the baths of the hotel. Entering the baths with friends shortly before 9 a. m. Horner slipped on a marble step and fell to the floor, fracturing his skull. He never regained consciousness. He was on his way to San Antonio, traveling in the interest of the Detroit baseball club, for which he served as a scout in hunting for promising young players in the south. He was a very popular sporting man in the south.

Pitcher Rube Geyer, of the St. Louis Nationals, has been in Lancaster, Ohio, for several days taking an X-ray treatment for his arm that has been bothering him all season. He says he is ready to go in and work now.

A special from Fort Dodge stated that Frank Gotch, in an interview there emphatically declared he would not fight Johnson. "I am well satisfied with the mat honors I have won," declared the champion wrestler.

In the race for the Zetland plate at New Market, Eng., August Belmont's Merry Task finished first. The Jubilee handicap of 100 sovereigns for 3-year-olds and up, distance six furlongs of the Bunbury mile, was won by H. P. Whitney's Perseus III.

Recently Known to Be Responsible for Spread of This Dreaded Disease.

The heavily killed 1,924 Yaffee [illegible] soldiers during the Spanish-American war, through the medium of typhoid fever, more than were killed and wounded by Spanish bullets. There were 22,430 out of 113,513 soldiers, or one man out of seven of the entire force of the United States army attacked with the disease.

It has been known for many years that typhoid fever was caused by germs taken through the mouth, but it was not until the Spanish-American war that the housefly was known to be largely responsible for its spread.

At Camp Ramsey, Minn., where the Fifteenth Minnesota was in camp, what became known as Ryfield company was detailed when the regiment left for Georgia to police the camp. Thirty members of the company were taken ill with typhoid fever within a day and within a week the number increased to 50 - nearly half the company. More than 20 men of the flower of the company died. The sudden epidemic has since been charged to the presence of myriads of flies which swarmed the deserted company streets and carried decayed refuse to the cook tent.

TO DECORATE THE LAMPSHADE

By the Use of Water Colors Very Pretty Effects May Be Attained Even by the Amateur.

Lampshade decoration is not necessarily reserved for the artist; it may be accomplished by the merest dabbler in water colors.

Given a plain, well-covered shade and some conventional design to fit it (or one that can be made to fit), a pencil and some of the transfer paper that comes will soon convey the design to the shade.

An outline is enough, because an ordinary sense of color and knowledge of flowers will help in the painting process.

Tall iris stalks and blooms, cattails with their leaves or the conventional Tudor rose shaped for each section of the shade will, any one, prove effective in water color and probably bring the shade into harmony with the room.

COME IN NUMEROUS SHAPES

Picturesque and Extremely Comfortable Are the Various Designs for Lawn Shelters.

Charming lawn shelters of canvas and wicker are three sided with a roof or canopy of the canvas. There are many different designs in these shelters, one of the most attractive being made with a seat which extends along all three sides. This seat is of canvas with wicker standards and ends, and is fitted with a mattress and upholstery. There are separate cushions in abundance. Between the two end seats there is room for a low wicker table, which holds tea things on top and a closet for provisions or iced drinks underneath. A wicker rack along the long side of the shelter holds magazines and books.

Another Lawn shelter for the country place is like a huge umbrella fastened to an upright standard about which is built a circular table for holding a tea tray, magazines, books, etc. Under this table also are closets for ice pails, tea things, glasses, etc. The canvas umbrella is matched in color and design by the cushions with which the wicker chairs and benches are equipped.

The old English patterns for garden furniture are very popular just at present. Teakwood is also being much used for veranda and garden furniture.

HER GENTLE HINTS

It Took Him a Long Time to Get Wise.

"Ah!" she said, entering the room. "Are you ready?"

"Yes," piped John, picking up his hat and rising to his feet. "I'm ready."

She put her black carseul coat on one chair, her ermine boa on another, her vanity bag on a third and herself on a fourth.

"Come," she said, "I'll let you button my gloves."

And as John comes awkwardly forward and starts on his appointed task, let us carefully consider this matter of buttoning a lady's gloves. In the first place, she was seated and John was bending over her, a dangerous position and most naturally to be relieved by kneeling on the floor at her feet or sitting on the arm of her chair. Then again, as everyone knows, it is not the easiest thing in the world to button a black button on a pair of black gloves at night, and John had to bend over further and further while she gave him tender little glances from time to time as though to encourage him and to see that he was not growing discontetnted with his work. Further and further he bent over, and more and more tender grew her glances until at last he drew a full breath and said:

"There!"

"How nice you did it!" she whispered. "I don't know how to thank you!"

"Oh, that's all right," he said.

And turning to her impedimenta he added:

"Shall I help you with your coat?"

"I wish you'd do something else for me first," she bashfully said. "Do you mind, John?"

"What is it?" he asked first.

"I think—I don't know, but I think—that one of the buttons on the back of my waist has come undone. Do you mind, John?"

And as she turns around and resigns herself to him with a pretty little air of helplessness, let us give a modicum of thought to this somewhat intricate subject as well. In the first place, every time he nearly had the button where he wanted it, she drew her shoulders forward a bit and he had to start all over again. It was an exceptionally pretty waist; a gold and amethyst chain hung over the back of her shoulders; a string of pearls encircled her throat and ended in a little clasp at the back; the riot of her back hair was partly confined by a knubbly tortoise shell ornament, and various little curls threw themselves around in an ecstacy whenever they had a chance. Then, again, she kept turning around to see how he was progressing, and glancing at him over her shoulder, and turning back quickly when she caught his eye, and putting her head on one side and looking coy. Ah, very, very coy she looked, and especially so when he murmured:

"That's it."

But her only response was to put her head a little further on one side and to look coyer than ever.

"It's buttoned," he said.

"Tee-hee!" she giggled. "Tee-hee-hee!

"Now you can help with my coat!"

And as he helps her with her coat let us take thought together and reflect upon this phase of the question, too. Helping a girl with her coat can be divided into three stanzas: holding, tucking in the sleeves, adjusting. So in the first place, John held it, but it was in vain that she tried to find the sleeves and at last John had to take her hands and guide them into their places. Next, she turned around, pink and rosy, so that John could tuck in the sleeves of the waist. Very pink was her face, and very rosy, and very close to John's, but John only blinked his eyes and when it came to the third stanza he refused to sing at all and left her to adjust the coat herself, smoothing it over the shoulders and pressing it in at the waist as though she liked to do it herself and wouldn't let John do it, even if he went down on his knees and asked her with tears in his eyes.

"And now my boa," she smiled.

He slung it around her neck in a sheepish manner but it seemed to her just possible—just barely possible—that his finger touched her clumsily under her chin; a suspicion that was confirmed by the brick-red tints of John as he picked up his hat again.

"Now I'll turn the gas out."

And down—down—down went the gas to the nearest point of light, where it remained for a good 30 seconds and then suddenly turned up again.

"Oh, there you are!" she cried.

"Why, where did you think I was?" asked John, from the doorway.

"Never you mind!" she exclaimed, and down—down—down went the gas, only to flare up again after an interval.

"I thought I heard you tiptoeing over here," she accused him.

"No, no," said John. "I—I was right here al the time."

So for the third time she doused the glim and her expectancy was at last rewarded by the tumult of John's shy approach. Yet, although his first tiptoeing step kicked a hassock across the room and his second nearly knocked a cabinet table over, he must have surprised her after all, for when a certain chirp had chirped she cried in utter, utter astonishment:

"Why, John! How dare you!"

Adding, though:

"But somehow I always knew you loved me!"

And concluding:

"Mother will be so pleased when I tell her."

POPULAR FLOWER OF WINTER

Chrysanthemum, Because of Immense Size, Gracefulness and Long Stem, Makes It King.

(By H. E. STECKBRIDGE.)

The chrysanthemum stands as the most popular flower of early winter and with scabe it is the most popular and best loved flower of the season.

Its immense size, gracefulness of petal arrangement, and exceedingly long stem make it beyond question one of the most regal of all cut flowers.

It is a flower with distinct character, and stands in a class by itself with no competitors. Coming at a season when all garden flowers have been killed by frost, and just before roses, carnations and violets have started to do their best under glass, it bountifully and superbly fills a gap in the cut flower season that no other flower could possibly do.

November can be said to be the month for chrysanthemums. Few blossom before and few after this month.

They have only one season for blooming, and when this season is over the parent plants are worthless except for cuttings for the propagation of new plants for the next year's blooms.

Stages of Chrysanthemum.

There are early and late varieties, just as with other plants, yet the season for blooming never expands beyond certain limits.

No manner of care or forcing will make them blossom before cool weather, and no manner of retarding will hold the blossoms back till later than Christmas, provided the young plants are started at the same time in late winter or early spring.

On the other hand, they respond to rich soil and good treatment, but the result is strong, long stems and tiny blossoms, rather than a gain in the time of blooming.

Length of stem is one of the great marks in the measure of value for cut flowers as viewed by the cut-flower-loving public of today.

The longer the stem, the higher the price, other points being equal. Nor is this a mere whim of public taste, but a rational choice, since a flower with a long stem, full of sap and crude or elaborated blossom food, will last longer than the one with a short stem or no stem at all.

Flowers with stems a foot long or more will last from one to three weeks or more in a vase of water, while those with very short or no stems do well to last a day or two.

The chrysanthemum as grown today with a single terminal blossom has the longest stem of any commercial flower that is generally sold in our country.

The illustrations shown herewith are from a photograph accompanying an article on debudding, by G. H. Taylor, published in the Garden Magazine. Copyrighted by Doubleday, Page & Co.

The best quality of chrysanthemum blooms are generally produced by terminal buds, but crown buds give the larger flowers. Figs 4 and 6 crown buds; figs. 1, 2 and 10 terminal buds; figs. 5, 6, 7 show methods of pinching, and when to do it. Fig 3 a terminal cluster after debudding. Figs. 9 and 10 show how debudding makes the solitary bloom larger than when several buds are left on the stem. Fig 8 development of Fig. 7.

Napoleon's Elba Flag.

Lord Archibald Campbell has presented to the army museum in Paris a curious relic of Napoleon. This is the flag which the latter flew in the isle of Elba during his captivity there. The flag is square, white and fringed with gold, bearing three gold bees and a diagonal scarlet stripe. The staff carries a white and scarlet scarf, having also three gold bees. Napoleon does not seem to have used the flag he invented elsewhere than in the isle of Elba, where he was a dethroned and captive monarch. In France, although bees were always his emblem, and were embroidered on his state robes, his standard was the tricolor.

TANGIER "HOLYMAN"

HAD LEARNED THE METHODS OF BARNUM AND BAILEY.

American Experience Aided Charlatan in Gaining the Reverence and Small Coin of His Fellow Believers.

"There is hardly anything more enjoyable than to find an unexpected bit of the west in places thousands of miles and hundreds of years from the United States," said a New York man, according to the Sun of that city.

"My wife and I went to Tangier from Gibraltar. The day after our arrival we paid an early visit to the market. Suddenly, as we stood looking on, there was a commotion in the crowd, which parted right and left. I could hear the clash of cymbals, but was amazed to see men bowing almost to the ground as they made way. In the lane thus created appeared a tall man wearing a long robe of many colors and a necklace of charms. He kept his eyes turned heavenward as he walked, keeping up a clashing with a pair of cymbals as he proceeded. At his girdle was a gourd into which some of the multitude tossed copper coins. My courier told me that he was a dervish, a holy man from the Sudan.

"I thought the dervish would make a good subject for my camera, but the courier said he doubted whether it could be arranged, as all good Mussulmans had religious scruples against being photographed. I insisted, and the courier said he would do his best.

"So we followed along after the dervish, through a little side street into a broader one, and having turned the corner the courier approached the dervish and exchanged a few words with him. The holy man looked to see whether any Mohammedans were looking on, and there being none in sight he nodded in a dignified manner. He posed while my wife and I took several good snapshots of him.

"I went up to give him a small token of thanks and was surprised when, after looking at me a moment, he said: 'English?'

"'No,' I replied, 'American.'

"'Ah! American!' he cried. 'Me America,' he continued, pointing toward himself. 'New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, St. Louis. Six months Barnum & Bailey.' He smiled all over as he took what I offered him, then bowing in a dignified fashion he went off, casting his eyes toward the sky and clanking his cymbals as he went.

"The next morning we went to the market again. Suddenly again we heard the cymbals clashing, and saw the crowd part, and almost prostrate itself, and in a second our dervish friend of the day before appeared again, his eyes piously cast toward heaven.

"We were sitting on our donkeys and watching him in some curiosity as he neared us. Just as he got opposite he turned his head in our direction. He caught my eye and the lid of his left optic closed in one long, eloquent wink."

Gets Stingier With Age.

No man who has made money gets courage enough to relinquish it voluntarily; he gets stingier as he gets older.—Joseph Fels.

Foolish Flings at Farmer.

"There is no form of injury makes me madder than does the attempt of a city comedian to make a joke at the expense of the modern farmer," says Fred Sharon. "The chances are that the 'farmer,' the butt of the alleged joke, has ten dollars where the so-called comedian has ten cents, and that he is a much better educated man.

"I was in a playhouse the other night with a farmer friend from Mentor, when one of those comedians came out and sang a silly song about the poverty and parsimony of the man on the farm.

"My farmer friend smiled innocently. 'Well,' he said, 'my farm brought me in over $4,800 last year and my wife and I have just expended $900 on a trip to California. That may be "poverty and parsimony," but those ain't the definition given those words in the dictionary in my library down home.'"

Boll Weevil Hard to Kill.

Experimenting with the boll weevil, a Texas farmer caught a lively one and placed it in water where it would freeze to death during the night. Next morning he found the water had frozen solid and the weevil was in the cake of ice, and the farmer congratulated himself on the discovery that cold would kill the weevil. But when the ice melted the bug walked around as lively as before freezing, and that farmer is convinced that freezing is not the proper means to exterminate the insect. He threw the weevil into a hot fire, and at last accounts was watching to see if it would come out alive.—Centerville (Tex.) Jeffersonian.

ABOUT NEWSPAPERS.

Says the Andalusia Star: One first-class newspaper, liberally patronized will do more for the upbuilding of a community than a half dozen newspapers that eke out a miserable existence. With increased number of factions. The greatest curse that could be fall a growing city is the establishment of too many newspapers. The Star sights Anderson, S. C., a town of 15,000 people, with but one newspaper, but it is best for the town.

This is all good advice, but it is advice that is never taken.

There are numbers of men in every town who feel like that the town is going to ruin for the lack of a good live newspaper. These men will give encouragement to prospectives, and will say good things about them till his money, or somebody else's, is invested in the outfit, and then the backers don't back.—Dothan Eagle.

A good example of what Alabama can do in peach raising was shown in the office of the Commissioner of Agriculture Saturday. John Winslow, of Thorsby, sent in two sample lots of Elberta peaches. One lot was marked as having been sprayed, the second lot being left, practically, to itself. The difference was marked. The sprayed peaches were twice as big as the others, were free from worms and as pretty a lot of fruit as could be shown in the market.

The best of the sprayed peaches will be put in alcohol and kept as an exhibit by the department—Advertiser.

ALL DRUGGISTS

ALABAMA STATE FAIR.

There is every indication, now, that the Alabama State Fair to be held in Birmingham October 6th-15th next, is to be a most successful one. The management has introduced some very original features this year. Birmingham and Jefferson county have been eliminated from competition with other parts of the State. Splendid premiums have been offered for county agricultural exhibits, for poultry, for industrial exhibits and livestock, and the judges in each department will be people from outside the State, whose decisions will not be biased in any way by local influences.

The Fair Association showed great wisdom in securing the co-operation of Captain R. F. Kolb, who was, at one time, Commissioner of Agriculture of the State, and who has been again nominated and will doubtless be elected to that office. Heretofore, the State Fair has only had from four to six county exhibits in agriculture. So far, Captain Kolb has secured thirteen county exhibits, and it is expected that several more counties will fall into line.

There is no better way that any county can advertise its resources and advantages than by a comprehensive exhibit at the State Fair. There will be thousands of visitors at the Fair from all over the country, and a county exhibit will be really a show window of the county's products.

A fine model dairy, and model dairy barn will be under the charge of a United States Government expert, and demonstrations in the most up-to-date way of handling cattle, milk and butter will be shown.

The amusement features have not been overlooked, and will be on a more gorgeous scale than heretofore. The Association is spending about $20,000 for amusements, which will include $1,000 worth of fireworks each night. The fireworks will be put on as an accompaniment to Pain's Pyrotechnic Spectacle, "The Destruction of Pompeii," in which there will be a cast of over 100 people.

The railroads will all put on greatly reduced rates, and a big crowd is expected.

Singing Convention at Birmingham.

"With nothing more than a strong pair of lungs and a blue-bound book, each singer joined the throng in the middle of the arena and floated the plaintive harmonies to the rafters. Each of the several leaders would take turn about in conducting the singing.

"Brother R. J. Langston of Chilton county was introduced. He was apparently known to many for a smiling ripple broke over those assembled as a tall, wiry man with spectacles on his nose and a deep earnestness in his eyes, arose and said 'howdy'.

"'You all will have to let me pick my tunes,' said Brother Langston as he thumbed the pages of his blue bound book. 'I don't know music much, but I never saw the time when I couldn't sing.'

"'I have an old tune here,' he continued, 'that I used to hear 'em sing at home when I was playin' around the fireplace in kilts. I wish you all would sing it.' Then with a musical 'ah-ah' the key was sounded. A soft melody was heard carried by the sopranos and tenors, with the bass voices furnishing a resonant background.

'O, won't you come and go with me
I'm bound for Canaan land
A fair and shining shore it is,
I'm bound for Canaan land.'

"White-haired fathers sang, harkening back to the days when first their fathers had taught them the air. Younger men sang, inspired by the zeal and earnestness of their elders and the weird pathos of the music. The music stopped and again Brother Langston sounded his musical 'ah-ah'.

"This time it was 'Rock of Ages.' Not the 'Rock of Ages' so often heard in church and Sunday school, but a low pitched song, almost a monotone, but awe-inspiring in its cadences. One could almost see the rock itself, swept by storm, but still firm, to which the drowning soul clung for life."—Birmingham News.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye for ever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back of the head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for filling this prescription but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this:

Dr. A. E. Robinson, K 1141 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies but it has great healing and painconquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

ONE ON UNCLE HENRY

He Generously Cost Him a Neat Penny

"By gracious, as the feller said, marriage is no lottery," remarked Uncle Henry, peeking around the tip of his left ear to be sure she didn't hear him. "No, sir, by gum, because there's nothing in a lottery to prevent your tearing up your ticket when you lose.

"See what I mean, son? You can't beat it. Woman, woman, lovely woman! Only the forethought of wise and beneficent Providence, which prevented her from ever learning to throw straight, makes life worth living. It's so, by gracious!

"Get the idea? They've got your number from the start. They look different, think different, act different, and are different from men. Well, then, how you going to beat it? Eh? Certainly you can't.

"They've got you going and coming because they know what you hold and what you are going to draw. They know the man who makes the cards. They kid you along until you get to feeling good and then—and then—

"Son, I've been up against this game for years, but this is the ultimate, eternal limit. See thise tobacco coupons? Bunch of 'em, huh? Well, sir, there is what gets my goat.

"There's exhibit A. Here, take 'em, put 'em in your pocket. Any more I get are going over the same route. I'm done. I know when I get mine good and plenty, and I've got it.

"Say, I'm so mad I can't talk and I'm tired of making gestures. Heaven is my home, but if they ever hear up in heaven some of the things I'm saying inside now I'll never get home.

"Here's the idea. Listen to this. Don't go 'way; I'm going to tell you something that'll make your eyes cross.

"I'm a smoker. I'm no smokestack, see? I smoke a few cigars—four or five a day—good smokes. All the tobacco stores, pretty nearly, give coupons. I save 'em. Some of 'em blue; some of 'em green. You know. Regular coupons.

"Other day I got a prize list, see? Read it over. Say, son, it's full of good things. Seems like every doggoned thing I ever wanted is there. Bet you the guy that picked out that bunch knew his business. Regular wise old owl.

"Now listen. I read it all over and was just about deciding on a cocobola hairbrush when all of a sudden my better nature came to the front. Son, make a wish. Never give way to your better nature. It's sure to get you in trouble.

"'No,' I says, says I. 'I had the fun smoking the cigars. Now I'll be a sport. It was my money, and I'll bet they stung me more than the price of the prize in reducing the weight of the cigar, but I'm game. Home to the wife of my bosom,' I says. Besides, I thinks when she sees the women's things she can get with those coupons it will put me in soft. Soft? Did it? Say, I'm telling this story.

"I wraps the coupons up in a nice bundle and I gets a new book from the store all about what swell things women can get. And mind you there's not 25 cents additional gag like there used to be when I was a kind. Well, anyhow, I took the whole outfit home.

"'There,' says I to my wife. 'See what I brought to you. Look over that catalogue of things you can get. I've brought the entire thing home to you. Take your time. Read the book all through. And then leave it on the bureau,' I says, 'because I'd like to look it over again myself.'

"Say, son, she took 'em. 'I can see you are not well,' she says—just like that. 'I'm always suspicious of you, Henry, when you begin to get generous,' she says. Now wouldn't that take the wind out of your sails?

"Well, sir, I could see she liked the prize list. She read it, and read it, and she didn't say anything at all. Then she counted the coupons. Ever see a woman count anything? Well, she had those coupons all over the table, all over the floor, all over the chairs. It took her half an hour to count them.

"'Henry,' she says, 'give me your pencil.' I gave it to her. She licked the end of it—women always do—and began to figure. She figured all over the book, all over the newspaper, all over the coupons. At last she says: 'Two hundred and fifty,' she says.

"By gracious, she hit it right, too. I don't know how she did it, but there were just that many. 'Henry,' she says, 'how much do you have to spend in the store to get one of these coupons?' she says. I told her a quarter.

"Then she figured again and broke the pencil. I put a new point on it and she kept on figuring. At last she sniffs and says: '$62.50,' she says—just like that. 'Sixty-two dollars and fifty cents,' she says. 'You have spent $62.50 for tobacco when you have been telling me you couldn't afford to buy me any more hats, and you would not get my watch that I dropped fixed because it cost $7.

"'So,' she says, 'I've got to the bottom of this. There is where the money goes. Sixty-two dollars and fifty cents you spent for tobacco. No wonder you are always so poor. And now you want to make me a roundabout present of a pair of 60-cent curtains to hang in the parlor and get all smelled up with more of your tobacco smoke. Henry, give me $25 for a new hat immediately.'

"Say, son, honest, I'm tired thinking about it. I gave her the money and I bundled up the coupons. She wanted to keep them too. Take 'em and go get something with 'em. I haven't got the interest I did have.

"But, say, honest, can you beat it?"

BOLL WEEVIL MUST BE MET

Farmers of South Should Be Prepared to Battle With the Injurious Little Insect.

There is a saying that there is nothing certain in life but death. But we of the southern agricultural states might change this saying and say "There is nothing certain but death, and the coming of the boll weevil," writes Lee M. Otts in Birmingham Age-Herald.

It being certain that the boll weevil is coming, and by the estimates made by the government it will not be a very great while before it will be with us, then, it certainly behooves those who will be affected by its coming to prepare for it, to try to so circumstance themselves that its coming will do them the least possible harm.

In this day of "scientific farming," thanks to the efforts of our state and federal governments, the farmers can readily learn how to fix themselves so as not to be ruined by this pest. Any farmer can, with but little trouble, ascertain for what his lands are the best suited. Having found this out, it only remains for him to get up the courage to get away from the cotton and go to that kind of farming that he is told can be successfully and profitably done on his land.

In many portions of Alabama it has been demonstrated that alfalfa can and is being profitably grown. Many men have already made fortunes by planting fields of alfalfa that formerly planted in cotton yielded only enough income to keep up his family.

Hand in hand with the growing of this hay crop should and no doubt will go the raising of cattle, sheep and hogs. When Alabama is able to raise its own meat instead of doing as it has done for years past, sending each year thousands and thousands of dollars out of the state for its supply, then it will indeed be a garden spot.

We have mentioned alfalfa and stock raising, not that they are by any means the only crops that can be made to take the place of cotton, but we mention them only in an illustrative way. The point we wish to impress upon those who read this is that it is necessary to find out what crop your lands are the best adapted to, and then get to work to raise those crops, for the raising of cotton when the boll weevil is here cannot be followed so as to make a profit.

One of the greatest needs of the state at this time is good roads, and if the people can but be made to see and realize the importance of this, so that they will be able to reconcile themselves to the expenditure of the money necessary to the building of good roads, then prosperity will come, for with the building of the roads a citizenship will seek homes on the farms that will bring from the ground its richest blessings.

As a proof that other crops than alfalfa can be successfully raised on lands heretofore worn out by cotton culture, let any one see the trucking that is done in the neighborhood of Epes and Cuba. Acres that formerly produced nothing but mortgages after a cotton crop or two had been raised thereon, now are making for their owners bank accounts and happiness in the contentment and satisfaction that comes from owing no man.

Some may say that my theory of using the lands for other than cotton culture is all very good, but that the people are not able to undertake anything else. I insist that it is not a question of ability, but it is a question of awakening. If a community knew that an invading army was marching on it, the people would not stop to question the cost of a proper and adequate defense against the invasion, but would immediately summon all aid possible, and get ready to repel the invasion. While no army of men is about to invade our land, yet an army of invasion is coming against us, and it is time to be making our plans of defense. Wake up to a full realization of the results of the invasion by the boll weevils—everywhere it has gone it has carried with it an almost complete destruction of the cotton crop—and caused such depressions in business as to bring about a panic—and you will see the necessity for action.

Now I am not a pessimist, but on the other hand am an exceedingly hopeful optimist; but I remember a motto that was given me when a young man by a learned judge, now deceased: "Hope for the best, prepare for the worst and submit to the inevitable." After reaching maturer years I have come to realize that this was a good rule of life, but the greatest trouble I have had in life has been to see "the worst" ahead of time, so as to be prepared for it. In the case of the boll weevil the farmers are given ample time in which to prepare for the coming. The government has sounded the note of warning, and woe will be the lot of him who heeds it not.

Handling Potato Crop.

Potato growers should engage help and prepare to take care of the crop as soon as the tubers are ready for market. Early potatoes usually bring better prices upon the local market than those that are delayed in reaching the consumer.

Nut Growing Industry.

Nut growing in the southwest is an awakening industry, and will claim more attention later on. People are learning more of the value of the simpler foods and we see a return to the nut and vegetable diet of our great forerunners, Adam and Eve.

SAYS THE FELLOW ON TOP

Wage Earner Must Cut Out Luxuries Before He Has Right to Ask for Sympathy.

"How do you account for the high cost of living?"

The ruminant gentleman addressed, glanced at a check for $2.85, representing the cost of his modest meal, handed the waiter $10, with instructions to keep the change; pulled out a cigar that the interviewer recognized as a 50-center, and leaned back in his chair.

"All rubbish," he said. "People live beyond their means and then grow about it. It's their own fault."

"I see. You believe that everybody should save part of his income?"

"Exactly."

"Umph-umph. Sounds reasonable. But what proportion of it do you think he should salt down? Suppose, for instance, the man earns $1.10 a day, and has a wife and five children, and some of the babies get sick occasionally, and the older ones need clothes in which to go to school, and the landlord wants his rent right on the nail, and a pair of kid's shoes lasts a month, and the instalment on the sewing machine is 50 cents every two weeks, and he carries enough insurance to bury him, and enough medicine for his wife is half a dollar a throw, and everything that the members of his household eat and drink and wear costs more than it used to, and gets higher all the time, do you think he ought to save a very large proportion of his income?"

"You do not state the case fairly. Doubtless the man has vices. I am certain he smokes."

"I forgot that. Yes, he pays five cents a package for tobacco and a package lasts ten days."

"Ha! Shiftless fellow. And, of course, he has the nerve to complain. He'll cut out luxuries before he gets any sympathy from me."

Immigrants Sold at Dock.

It is pointed out by the London Chronicle that although the modern immigrant to American ports may be "sold" in a way, he is never sold in the same sense as were those immigrants of the eighteenth century whose fate one gathers from an advertisement in a New York paper of 1774. The advertisement runs: "Servants just arrived from Scotland, to be sold on board the Commerce, Capt. Ferguson, master, lying at the ferry stairs, among which are a number of weavers, tailors, blacksmiths, nailers, shoemakers, butchers, hatters and spinsters, 14 to 35 years of age. For terms apply to Henry White or said master on board."

The Story of Your Teeth.

Ever hear of tooth seeds? Newborn babies have them in little sacs in their gums, the milk teeth on top. The baby begins cutting its first teeth at an average age of eight months. The milk teeth are 20 in number, and the permanent teeth 32. The milk teeth are gradually absorbed by the growing second teeth, so that sometimes the roots are practically removed. There are three sections to a tooth—the inside pulp cavity, the dentine and the outside enamel. The ache is always in the pulp cavity.

An Excellent Family Medicine

Nearly every person and all families need a liver medicine. In the whole list of so-called Liver Medicines none in point of ease of action and curative virtues bears any resemblance to GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR. It keeps the liver in good order, dispells gloom and wards off various sickness. An occasional dose of this standard remedy will save suffering and needless expense. It is a thoroughly reliable liver medicine. Druggists sell it at 25 cents for a large tin box. Send for booklet. Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Liver Trouble Remedy Free

Any intelligent person can be his own doctor in the ordinary case of liver trouble, for the symptoms cannot be mistaken. If the white of the eye becomes yellowish, if the skin becomes sallow, if pimples and blotches appear, if the bowels do not move, if you have sick headache, if you are bilious, you may be sure that your liver is torpid or inactive.

The quickest and surest remedy yet found for the cure of liver trouble or any of its symptoms is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the great herb laxative compound. This wonderful remedy is not only a laxative, but a tonic as well. It will start the flow of gastric juice, thereby soon enabling the liver to do its work naturally. A bottle of this great liver remedy can be bought of any druggist for 50 cents or $1, and in many cases a single bottle has cured a chronic case.

For example, John W. Lee, 619 S. Pennsylvania ave., Indianapolis, Ind., had a stubborn and very long-standing case of liver trouble, with pimples, blotches, jaundice, etc., and it cured him. Mrs. B. Flinchum, Jackson, Ky., says the same of it. Thousands of families keep it in the house against just such an emergency, as you can never tell when some member of the family will need a good laxative.

In order to have you or any other sufferer from the liver make a test of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin without personal expense, Dr. Caldwell will send you a free test bottle if you will send your name and address. The sample will show you how pleasant it is to take, how gently it works. It will start you on the cure of your trouble and convince you that you have found a cure. That is the object of the sample, and the doctor urges you to send for it today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

SUPPORT TO UNION LEADERS

Do Not Desert Union, and Turn Deaf Ears to Those Who Would Destroy Organization.

We believe in good to be done by farmers' organizations when conducted upon a broad and liberal scale and with purpose to subserve real interests of farmers. We have not hesitated, again and again, to urge our readers who are members of the union to stand by the organization and we repeat the advice. If it were possible to make this more emphatic we should do so, but we have exhausted our vocabulary in this effort. We are not able to present the matter more strongly than we have already done, says Farm and Ranch.

It would be to assume ignorance of what is universally known if we should claim ignorance of present conditions. The fact is that we are better informed than are many union people themselves, and have sources of information denied to them. With this knowledge we still give to our readers the advice not to desert the union, and to turn deaf ears to those who would destroy the organization.

This condition which has arisen is unfortunate, but it can be better met by the real friends of the union, while they are within its ranks, than if they should desert it. Stay with the organization, and do not be driven out and do not go out willingly. There is a better time ahead.

Mr. Loudermilk and his associates are going to do good work and they should have the cordial support of the rank and file of the union. It would be more than unjust to call him to leadership and to desert him when there is greatest need of support. We suggest again that whatever dissesions exist be settled within the ranks of the union, and that the less of public discussion the better. The members owe it to themselves, to the union and to the whole country to give Mr. Loudermilk such support as will enable him to do the work to which he has been called. Having selected a leader and having cast upon him the responsibilities, it is in order to "follow your leader."

We cannot say more and should not now say less.

Korea to Grow More Cotton.

Japan has recently been pushing the cultivation of cotton in Korea. As most of the raw cotton now has to be imported from America, Egypt and India, it is felt that an enormous impetus would be given to the already growing cotton field at her own doors. That is, Japan is able to import cotton from India, manufacture it, and then export it to India for sale. The area now under cotton cultivation in Korea is some 1,250 acres, but by next year Japan expects to have an acreage of more than 2,500. Cultivation began only in 1905.

Life is a good deal as we think it, and we are able to make ourselves miserable on small provocation. We may cultivate the habit of being happy, and be happy if we will. And strange as it may appear, wealth and poverty have little to do with happiness, so long as poverty does not reach the point of suffering.

Korea to Grow More Cotton.

Japan has recently been pushing the cultivation of cotton in Korea. As most of the raw cotton now has to be imported from America, Egypt and India, it is felt that an enormous impetus would be given to the already growing cotton field at her own doors. As it is, Japan is able to import cotton from India, manufacture it, and then export it to India for sale. The land now under cotton cultivation in Korea is some 1,250 acres, but by next year Japan expects to have an acreage of more than 2,500. Cultivation began only in 1905.

A Startler.

A gentleman whose hearing is defective is the owner of a dog that is a terror of the neighborhood in which he lives. The other day he was accosted by a friend, who said: "Good morning, Mr. H. Your wife made a very pleasant call on us last evening."

"I'm very sorry," came the startling reply, "I'll see that it don't occur again, for I'm going to chain her up hereafter."—London Telegraph.

The Transfiguration

Sunday School Lesson for July 24, 1910

Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Matthew 17:1-6, 14-23. Memory verses, 1, 2.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him."—Matt. 17:5.

TIME.—Autumn of A. D. 29. A week after our last lesson.

PLACE.—One of the spurs of Mount Hermon, and a village at its foot.

Suggestion and Practical Thought.

1. The Prayer Meeting on the Mountain Top.—V. 1. Luke 9:28-29. "And after six days." Luke counts the parts of days before and after these six. These six days were a period of incubation, of crystallization, of the sudden revelation of the way Jesus must act his part as the Messiah, and that they must share a cross instead of a throne; which threw them into the gloom of the dungeon of Giant Despair.

"Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John." It was the same favored three who a few months later were nearest to him as he prayed in Gethsemane, and still later were recognized as "pillars" of the church (Gal. 2:9).

Luke (9:28-29) tells us that Jesus went up into the mountain to pray; and that the Transfiguration took place while he prayed.

What did they pray for? It must have been for light, for strength, for guidance for help.

The answer.—Through the Transfiguration.—Vs. 2-4. While he was praying (Luke) and in answer to his prayer, he was transfigured before them.

"And his face did shine as the sun." Nothing less than the brightest and most glorious of all objects within knowledge—so bright that it destroys the eye to gaze directly upon it—could express the radiant glories of Jesus' face, when his heavenly nature shone through the veil of his flesh,—one of the few hints as to our resurrection bodies. Compare the description of Jesus in Acts 9:3 and in Rev. 1:16.

"And his raiment was white as the light," i. e., luminously white, "as no fuller on earth can white them" (Mark) i. e., with a supernatural whiteness; "white and glistering" (Luke).

"Then answered Peter," not to any question, but to the feelings the scene awakened. "Lord, it is good for us to be here." Peter spoke the truth. The experience was good, and would make him a better and more useful man all the rest of his life. It widened his outlook. It gave him a new idea of the glory that awaited the faithful. It exalted his knowledge of Jesus' power and glory, and gave strength to his trust in him.

"The Divine Testimony."—Vs. 5-8. "While he yet spake," was speaking. "A bright cloud, revealing the divine presence, an incarnation of the ineffable light of God, veiling its glory, yet making it visible to man, as the cloud that veil the sun enable us who cannot gaze into his face yet to see his beauty and glory."

"And behold a voice out of the cloud." The same voice which had been heard once before at his baptism. "This is my beloved son." Adding the voice of God to the attestation of the scene itself, and interpreting the scene. This truth must be impressed upon the disciples so that they should never lose their faith even in the dark times that were to follow; and while others were calling Jesus a criminal and blasphemer the disciples could always see him in his true glory. "Hear ye him." For he is the ambassador of God, bringing the message of love from heaven. "Hear" implies faith and obedience.

Some lessons from the Transfiguration.—1. Our richest and most heavenly experiences come in and through prayer, and often from united prayer.

"Tell me your prayers and I will write the history of a soul."

Coming Down from the Mountain; and the Work Awaiting Them There.—Vs. 9-18. On the way down the disciples asked Jesus about a subject which perplexed them. They could not understand how it could be true that Elijah was a glorified spirit, and Jesus the Messiah, and yet the promise be fulfilled that Elijah must come before the Messiah. Jesus explained that John the Baptist, coming in the spirit and power of Elijah, was the fulfilment of that prophecy.

Jesus forbade them to tell the vision they had seen.

Conclusion. A lesson on Faith.—Vs. 19-20. "Then came the disciples to Jesus apart" in the house (Mark), away from all that were curious and faultfinding. Ministers sometimes proclaim to the world the faults of the church to be overcome, when they should discuss them with the church alone.

"Why could not we cast him out?" They were puzzled, and disappointed, especially as he had conferred on them authority to heal.

20. "And Jesus said . . . Because of your unbelief." R. V., "your little faith."

Illustration. God says to a man, "Do the work of a thousand men. But that is harder than to remove mountains. Yet Christian civilization has invented machinery by which any man can do it. The faith on this low plane, that has worked patiently, steadily, with God's physical powers, and wrought seeming impossibilities, is an illustration of the power of spiritual faith taking hold of God.

And this is more than an illustration. The conquering physical impossibilities has been one means through which the moral impossibilities have been overcome.

REPORT OF ST. LOUIS MEETING

President Barrett Summarizes Meeting and Prophesy of Recent Conference of Farmers.

President Charles S. Barrett of the Farmer Union and Educational association, in a communication to the officers and members of that organization, summarizes the meaning and prophesy of the recent St. Louis national conference as follows:

The national rally of the farmers of America, held May 24 in St. Louis under the auspices of the Farmers' union was in effect a mammoth educational chautauqua which has never been exceeded, even approached, by any gathering of farmers' chautauqua held for farmers in American history.

In diversity of program, in number of speakers of national prominence and wide information, in freedom of expression and complete representation of bona fide farmers, I do not remember in my broad personal experience any previous assembly that even remotely deserves to rank with this one.

Every shade of opinion was represented, and every speaker had full swing for the presentation of his views.

Collectively the week was like nothing more than like a gigantic lecture course, in which each number was taken care of by qualified experts and the audiences to watch were among the cream of the intelligent and independent and thinking producers of the nation.

In this one week we obtained data and instructive information that we would have otherwise sought vainly for a term of years. The results, richly stimulative to creative thought and action among the American farmers, will be shortly issued in book form, and circulated freely throughout the country. There will be a copy for every member or non-member who wants one.

Despite misleading and perverted reports sent out, the order during the entire week was perfect and the conduct a credit to the great organization under whose auspices the convention was held. No previous meeting of the Farmers' union has been made the victim of so many untrue, unfair and misleading accounts by the press of the city in which it was held. A political tinge, in flat contradiction to facts, was given each report, the seeming effort being to bolster up sensation rather than to reflect accurately the proceedings of the week.

Reports made by the various committees were extremely enlightened, especially that from one committee delegated to ascertain by a census actual work being accomplished by the union in the individual states. Their aggregate findings indicate that practical enterprises and co-operative ventures are multiplying in a manner actually challenging the credulity of even our most enthusiastic members. In a few days, it is my intention to give out to the brethren and the public that portion of the report which demonstrates concrete evidence of the spread of the business of co-operative idea.

The local and national press has had much to say regarding the Farmers' union entering partisan politics. There is absolutely no truth, not even the ground for speculation, in either rumors or reports. I have so often and forcibly reiterated that the Farmers' union shall not be embroiled in partisan politics, so long at least as I am president, that it seems needless for me to re-affirm that attitude. But my ceaseless anxiety to conclusively discredit such vague or outright rumors, leads me to again warn the membership that any story purporting to align this organization with a partisan movement is unauthorized, untrue and merits instant repudiation by every member having the welfare of the order at heart.

One of the most important features of the meeting was the overwhelming percentage of bona fide farmers present, and actively engaging in discussions. All but eight American states and territories were represented, and we had, as well, a large number of non-members as guests.

In the latter connection, and as a direct result of the St. Louis rally, calls for organizers are coming from Rhode Island, New York and the Dakotas. In the former two states, especially, it is gratifying to know that Farmers' union sentiment is growing steadily. Some of the most intelligent, wealthiest and amongst the most progressive farmers live in that portion of America, and we will never be contented until we have strong organizations there, giving the finishing touch to the national tone of the organization.

At the last analysis, it is encouraging to reflect that every one left St. Louis well satisfied. I never saw a more amicable or harmonious meeting, or one in which the spirit of fraternity was stronger developed.

It is notable, too, that each single development demonstrated that the American farmer is awake to his rights and more determined to enforce them than at any period in recent years.

Chicken Pests.

Chickens are attacked by a number of parasitic insects and nits, the most common being various species of chicken lice, chicken fleas and ticks. These pests when present in great numbers are a great drain upon energy of the birds. Spray the henhouse walls with kerosene or use a whitewash to which carbolic acid has been added in the proportion of four ounces to one gallon of whitewash. Pyrethrum powder or other suitable dust insecticide may be applied to the bodies of the poultry.

A Natural Strength Giver

Ordinary tonics that merely supply food material and give artificial strength by stimulation are never lasting in their effects because they do not remove the cause of the ill health.

A "run down" condition is generally due to the failure of the digestive organs to properly digest the food.

Fish as Food for Londoners.

The port of London's proposed duty on fish and fruit reminds us that fish at least has always been an important constituent of the food supply of the metropolis, and in early times the Thames itself yielded an enormous supply. Westminster abbey formerly claimed a tithe of the Thames fisheries from Gravesend to Staines, and a lawsuit was successfully maintained against the rector of Rotherhithe in 1282 on the ground that St. Peter had in a vision granted the first haul of salmon in the Thames to Edric the Saxon on condition that a tithe of fish was annually paid to the abbey. And once a year for centuries one of the fishermen as representative of Edric took his place beside the prior, and brought in a salmon for St. Peter, which was carried in state through the refectory.

Safeguard to Health.

One of the most needful and most important safeguards to health is the recent invention of the germ-proof telephone mouthpiece. This device, made of clear crystal glass, is intended to replace the filthy rubber mouthpieces in common use, which furnish all sorts of germs an ideal breeding place. It has received the enthusiastic indorsement of doctors, bacteriologists and boards of health wherever introduced and is approved by all operating telephone companies.

The glass part can be instantly removed for cleaning and can be replaced as instantly. It can be wiped clean without removal. It is less liable to breakage than the ordinary rubber mouthpiece and admits light to all the parts of the device, thus securing an extra good sanitary condition.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Women in Farm Work.

Almost 1,000,000 women in the United States are either farmers or farm laborers. Thanks to the popularity of the homestead in the west and to a belated appreciation of agriculture as a field for woman's industry, this number is rapidly increasing. The United States, however, has not gone so far in this respect as England. There, in the dairy sections, women have entire control of the herds, not only the butter making, but the milking and feeding. In France nearly 3,000,000 women are engaged in farm work, while in most of the countries of continental Europe the finer breeds of cattle are mainly the result of woman's efforts.—New Idea Woman's Magazine.

Cataclysmic Geology.

"Cataclysmic" geology no longer exists. It was once the accepted opinion that the great changes on the earth's surface had been mainly brought about by sudden and violent (cataclysmic) agencies; but Sir Charles Lyell, as far back as 1838, demolished the old theory of cataclysm at once and forever. Sir Charles proved by facts which were indisputable that the great geological changes have been produced slowly by gradual processes of subsidence and elevation, and not by earthquakes, volcanic action, etc. Lyell may be said to be the father of modern geology, or, to put it more correctly, of real, scientific geology.

Circuit Clerk

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

The primary of the Republican party on Monday has brought things to a focus and we now have a close fight before us for the county offices between the nominees of both parties—men equally well known and respected, the great difference between them being their respective allegiance to the two dominant parties, for with all due respect to the nominees of the Republicans we can scarcely imagine they have any chance of success in the coming election, whatever the future may hold for them, and that is problematical.

It can hardly be said that the Republican primary produced any unexpected results—the difference of opinion respecting opposing candidates, while interesting to outsiders, was generally interpreted to mean that Judge Reynolds would again be the nominee of his party, and his nomination by the majority of 522 apparently shows his strong hold on a considerable majority of the Republicans of Chilton is undiminished.

On the other side, the Democratic nominee, Hon. E. B. Deason, has an unrivalled record—first as a good citizen, second as an honest and faithful public servant, and third as a man in whom all the citizens have confidence, and these are large assets where public office is concerned.

Next in order the Republican nominee for Clerk of the Circuit Court is M. D. Foshee, an estimable gentleman, against whom the only objection can be raised is his politics. Like his Democratic opponent, J. M. Simpson, he is a new man in the political field, and we believe the election of either of them depends upon the number of personal friends who can be induced to vote for them.

The Sheriff's office is one that appeals to the popular fancy and between the nominees of the two parties from a personal standpoint there is not a great deal of difference. C. D. Foshee is nominated by the Republicans and doubtless would make an efficient officer if he should be the choice of the many in November and exactly the same may be said of the Democratic nominee, B. L. Jones, a gentleman eminently qualified to fill the position.

For Representative in the Legislature, the Democrats having decided to nominate a man, W. L. Lowell has a clear field before him, unless an independent candidate should present himself, and there is a vast field before independent candidates in Chilton, where party ties are not over strong.

For County Commissioners, S. E. Waldrop and W. A. Barnett are the nominees of the Republicans, both worthy gentlemen, one of whom, S. E. Waldrop, already has shown his ability as commissioner, but the Democratic nominees, G. D. Retherford and E. J. Hall are every bit as well qualified to fill these important offices, and these commissioners have to deal with most important home questions, in which national or state politics cut no figure.

The battle is now fairly on, with the opposing forces in line for the fight and for the next three months we will hear of the merits and demerits of the opponets. Lay on Mac!

CORRESPONDENCE.

Nebraska Democrats have wrested the leadership of their state organization from William J. Bryan on the issue of county option. By decisive votes they registered their unbelief in his present policies after listening to an impassioned appeal from Mr. Bryan, who declared the liquor interests were in an organized attempt to secure political control of the State. The minority plank submitted by Mr. Bryan was brief and his opponents declared it was an effort to recede from his former radical attitude. But the workers against the county option plank were unappeased and stood firmly against it.

MASONIC-ODD FELLOWS CELEBRATION.

The Masonic-Odd Fellows celebration which was held at Coopers on Thursday, the 21st of July, was a grand success. Hon. E. B. Deason of Clanton was the first speaker for the Odd Fellows and made one of the finest talks on that subject that anyone ever heard. We thank him very much for his coming on so short a notice as we gave him and feel very grateful for the address that he made us. Mr. W. S. Cox made the second address for the Odd Fellows and was indeed a good one. Hon. L. H. Reynolds made the first talk for the Masons, and was a fine one. Everyone knows what kind of a speech the Judge can make. He also installed the officers of the Masonic Lodge here publicly. The second address for the Masons was made by Mr. Long. It was a good speech.

Dinner was announced by Rev. Culpepper of Mountain Creek. He gave thanks to God for the dinner, which was so bountiful. After dinner Rev. Dismuke made a most interesting talk on Masonry. We are pleased to thank the people for their coming, especially the speakers, and thank them for their good behavior. There was between 1200 and 1500 people present.

ATTACKED BY MOROS.

American Official Narrowly Escapes Death in Philippines.

Dean C. Worcester, American secretary of the interior for the Philippines, was set upon by renegade Moros on the island of Palawan and escaped assassination only through the alertness of his bodyguard, who shot down the outlaws, killing three of them outright.

Secretary of the Interior Worcester was touring the island, which is most westerly of the larger Philippine group, bounding the Zulu sea on the west, and was present at the installation of the new governor. In anticipation of his coming a band of Moros planned his death. Armed with bolos carefully concealed, they laid a trap for the secretary, who suddenly found himself the object of a fierce rush.

Captain Moynihan, of the scouts, was the first to recognize the hostile movement and just in the nick of time he ordered the scouts to fire. At the fusillade three Moros who led the attack dropped dead, while several others doubled up with more or less severe wounds. The rest of them took to their heels.

FEARFUL TRAGEDY AT FORT MONROE

The Breech Block In Big Gun Blows Out.

11 ARTILLERYMEN ARE KILLED

During Coast Artillery Practice Unfortunate Calamity Occurs—One Private Was Blown Into Chesapeake Bay With the Breech Block—Women and Children Witnessed Tragedy.

Eleven artillerymen are dead and a number of others seriously injured, including two officers, as the result of the blowing out of a breech block in a 12-inch shore gun at the De Russy battery during the coast artillery practice at Fort Monroe.

The accident happened while student officers were endeavoring to sink a fleet of towed targets, representing an imaginary hostile fleet proceeding toward Washington. The battery was under the immediate command of Sergeant Harry Haas, of the 69th company, United States coast artillery.

One private was blown into Chesapeake bay with the breech block.

Lieutenant Van Duzen sustained a broken leg and Lieutenant Hawes was injured about the face.

Many prominent officers of the army and navy, who went to Hampton Roads to witness what was expected to be the greatest target practice of this character that had been attempted anywhere, saw the accident.

It was the more horrible for the reason that the wives and children of the men killed, no danger having been anticipated, were permitted to see the target practice. A number of them witnessed the accident.

PLAYED STOCKS ON BANK'S CASH

Bank Teller Confesses Embezzling $115,000.

J. Howard Lowery, the young bank teller who was arrested in Philadelphia on a charge of embezzling $115,000 from the Utica, N. Y., City National Bank, was carried to Utica and arraigned before United States Commissioner Zenler. He was held in default of $10,000 bail for the federal grand jury.

Lowery was visited in his cell by the officials of the bank to whom, it is said, he told the story of his wanderings since he left Utica, and said he was anxious to have the term of the imprisonment begin as quickly as possible in order that he could start over and avoid mistakes in the future.

Lowery says he desires no bail and wishes to make no defense, as he is perfectly willing to make a clean breast of it to the officials. He told the bank officials, it is said, that he played the stock markets alone and unguided and sometimes had won. At one time, he said, he owed the bank but $2,000, having returned all but that amount. Soon afterward, however, he says he lost $12,000 in one slump and twice lost heavily by the failure of New York concerns.

Lowery had visited several foreign ports, returning to this country when his money ran short.

"A JUDAS KISS."

Lyons Took His Life When He Thought Wife Betrayed Him.

Accusing his wife of bestowing upon him a "Judas kiss" and of instigating his arrest as a fugitive from justice, William Lyons hanged himself with his leather belt and ended his life in his cell in a police station at Washington.

Lyons' alleged offense was the operation of a hand book. He was taken into custody on an old charge and his arrest had no connection with the several raids by local police of alleged bookmakers whose offenses are charged to be of more recent occurrence.

FROZEN IN MID-JULY.

Ice Was Placed About Man With Fatal Result In New Jersey.

Frozen to death in mid-July with the temperature hovering around 90 degrees was the fate of Paul Sorrente, an employee of an iron foundry at Florence, N. J. Sorrente was overcome by the intense heat of his work and a physician advised placing ice about his head.

Eager friends took the advice too literally and placed large cakes of ice about his head, neck and limbs. Becoming alarmed a few hours later, the young man's family recalled the physician who discovered that his patient had been dead some time. Examination showed that too much ice had actually frozen the man.

Six existing banks added $470,000 to their capital, making a total of $3,082,000 in new banking capital added to the south's resources during the past 30 days.

OPENS DOOR TO NEGROES.

Taft Names Negro Collector at Washington, D. C.

Whitefield McKinley, a negro real estate agent of Washington city, has been appointed collector of customs there, the technical designation of the office being the port of Georgetown, D. C.

It is stated that the appointment signifies the recognition of negroes in important federal positions.

McKinley came to Washington from Charleston, S. C., in 1884, and has taken an active part in politics. He was strongly recommended to the president by negroes throughout the country among them being Dr. W. D. Crum, former collector of the port of Charleston, who was recently named as minister to Liberia.

The Chicago postal savings bank is to be open and ready for business on January 1, 1911. This was the word received from Washington at Chicago by Postmaster Campbell. The message also said that Chicago would be one of the first cities to receive a government banking institution. The savings bank probably will be located in the federal building. The postmaster will be head of the institution and will be under a bond to perform his duties.

MISSISSIPPI TRAGEDY.

Seven Negroes Mortally Wounded by Officer—Resisted Arrest.

Five negroes were killed and two others mortally wounded at Elliott, Miss., when the seven, taking issue with Deputy Sheriff Sid Cauley, who was endeavoring to take them into custody on a minor charge, advanced on the officer with farming implements as weapons and with the avowed intention of "cutting him down."

Bearing a warrant charging the seven with assault, Cauley and two citizens, deputized to assist him, went to the home of Henry Beck, a colored farmer, near Elliott. As the posse approached the negroes ceased their work in the field, and, grabbing pitchforks and other farming tools, made for the deputy.

Cauley, however, opened fire with two revolvers before the belligerants came within striking distance and before the others of the posse had regained their wits, five of the attacking party were dead and the remainder wounded. The deputy surrendered, but was released to appear for formal hearing.

A CURIOUS FIND.

Excavating for Warehouse Aged Marble Slab Is Unearthed.

A curious find, which has been the object of much speculation, was made at Augusta, Ga., by the workmen engaged in tearing down the old structure at the corner of Fenwick and Cumming streets, where Arrington Brothers are to erect a warehouse. The object that is attracting no little interest, is nothing more nor less than an old marble slab which was used to cover an old grave. On the slab is this inscription, very clearly chiseled:

To the memory of Roberta Kirkpatrick,
Who Died February 12,
1838,
Aged 38 Years, 6 Months and 16 Days.

The slab is just large enough to cover an average vault, being 30 inches wide and 60 inches long, and it is about 3 inches thick. It was found in the floor of the hallway of the old brick house that stood on the corner of Cumming and Fenwick streets, the house recently occupied by Mrs. Fannie Young. The side bearing the inscription was faced down on the floor with the smooth side being used as part of the floor. It seems that no one who occupied the house ever paid any special attention to its being there, aside from perhaps wondering why the stone was placed in the floor.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES A peace pact of great importance to organized labor and to the country as well, was reached at Cincinnati between officers of the American Federation of Labor on one side and members of the Stove Founders' National Defense association on the other. GIGANTIC STEAL WAS THAT OF ROPKE Entire Surplus of Louisville Bank Taken.

MONEY USED TO GAMBLE

According to President Barr's Statement Entire Surplus of $1,140,000 Has Been Made Way With—Ropke Is in Jail.

August Ropke, assistant secretary and bookkeeper of the Fidelity Trust Company, one of the soundest financial institutions in Louisville, made away with $1,140,000, the entire surplus of the concern, according to a statement, made by John W. Barr, president of the trust company, at his office, three blocks away from the county jail, where the defaulting official has been locked up, unable to secure bail in the sum of $25,000. Ropke was a heavy speculator and lost large sums, it is said, on Wall street and the Chicago board of trade.

Entire Surplus.

The question was put to Mr. Barr: "Does this statement represent Ropke's net defalcation?"

"I can only say to you," replied Mr. Barr, "that the entire surplus of the company has been wiped out."

Mr. Barr's announcement was made after a special meeting of the stockholders. Mr. Barr said that the stockholders had been advised of the entire situation. They were told that the capital stock of the concern was in tact, but that the entire surplus was gone as a result of the defalcation.

The loss through this defalcation will be met by an issue of stock, as announced several days ago, aggregating $1,000,000, which will be issued to stockholders at par.

How Did He Do It?

The Fidelity Trust Company represents the wealth of Louisville and notwithstanding the serious blow, there is no apprehension in financial circles over the outcome of the shortage, which has been anticipated in street rumors for some days. The all-important question of how Ropke managed to get away with such an amount and representing the entire surplus of an institution handling the business of the fidelity bank, will probably not be solved until the experts make their detailed report and this is not expected before next week.

The stockholders have already agreed, it is understood, to subscribe the full amount of the new issue.

August Ropke, the central figure in one of the largest defalcations in recent years, is a German, about 45 years old. He is a man of family, and has always stood well and enjoyed the unbounded confidence of his business associates.

ASSASSIN WAS BALKED.

Spanish Girl Saved Life of Ex-Premier Maura.

Antonio Maura, leader of the conservative party, and who, as premier, put down the Barcelona riots and brought about the execution of Dr. Francisco Ferrer, a year ago, owed his escape from death to the courage of his youthful girl cousin, who threw herself upon the assailant.

The former premier minister stepped from a train at the Francis station, where he arrived from Madrid, en route to Palma. At hisside was his cousin. Suddenly from the crowd the man, Manuel Pisa, fired three shots. The first bullet pierced Senor Maura's arm and the second found lodgment in his leg. As he fired again, the woman sprang upon him, spoiling his aim, and the bullet went wild.

Pias, who is but 18 years of age, said that he did not intend to shoot Maura, but desired only to make a demonstration against him. The wounds inflicted are not regarded as serious.

NEGRO BURNED AT STAKE.

For Double Crime Texas Darkey Pays Death Penalty.

Henry Gentry, a negro 18 years old, paid the penalty of his crime, murder and presumably assault, at the stake, while two others, a brother of the man lynched and a companion, charged with implication, missed a like fate only through the pleadings of Sheriff Burke and several citizens.

It is said the negro attempted to force an entrance into the home of Mrs. Lamb, a widow, but was frightened away with a shot by the woman's daughter. Several hours later, while Gentry was being searched for by a posse headed by Constable James Mitchell, the man, firing from ambush, killed the posse leader.

Then the mob formed and after an all-day search surrounded the fugitive in a corn field. As the public square was reached the rope was tossed to a man on horseback and the negro dragged about the square to the pyre. The applying of a torch was the work of a moment and while several hundred shots were fired into his body the already dying negro was incinerated.

Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis westbound train No. 105, which left Louisville for St. Louis, was wrecked by a landslide 2 miles from Hawesville, Ky. Fireman Reynolds was killed and several passengers shaken up. The landslide came just as the train was passing under a high bluff.

Forty persons were injured in an accident on the Great Southern railroad at Roscrea, in the northwestern part of Tipperary county, Ireland. None were killed.

The death at New Orleans of J. Parker Harrison removes a figure known for many years as one of the leading turf operators of the continent. He was secretary-treasurer of the Crescent City Jockey Club, when horse racing was legislated out of Louisiana.

Athelstone Cornforth, of London, a clergyman, was found in a lonely part of Colonial Park, New York City, with a bullet wound in his mouth. He died before the hospital was reached. A revolver lay near where the Englishman's body was found. The police say he committed suicide.

Ira G. Rawn, president of the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville railroad (the Monon route), died of a bullet wound at his summer residence in Winnetka, 15 miles north of Chicago, Wednesday. Members of Mr. Rawn's family say he was killed by a burglar. The police are working on a theory that Mr. Rawn killed himself.

J. B. Witty, a barber, shot and killed Mrs. Tusmint, proprietress of a rooming house, it is said, at Waco, Texas. Witty claims that Mrs. Tusmint used insulting language and threatened to kill him. Witty is under arrest.

Despondent because of continued ill health, Miss Nannie Collier, about 32 years of age, the daughter of Ben Collier, took her own life by hanging herself in the barn at the family home in East Atlanta, Ga.

A stampede of 46 head of cattle at Columbus, Ga., preparatory to being loaded on a river steamboat, resulted in the drowning of all but ten of the number.

It cost just $2.500 to awaken a sleepy rooster in the chicken coop of Charles Child, of Montclair, N. J. Child's hired man passed through the coop, carrying a lighted lamp and accidentally jarred a board on which the rooster was reposing. The rooster flew at him and knocked the lamp from his hand. The lamp smashed on the floor, the oil blazed up and the coop caught fire. The fire spread to the barn and other buildings and it was two hours before the blaze was under control. The firemen placed the loss at $2,500.

John Tyka, 22 years old, died at his home in Chicago of a broken heart, friends say, about an hour after he had returned from Atlas Hall, where he acted as best man to John Klups, in his marriage to Victoria Raddon. Tyka loved the bride, and, seeing her married to another, it is said, was the cause of his death. "I can't bear this any more," said Tyka as he left the hall. "Probably you will never see me again."

NOTES FROM NATIONAL CAPITAL A controversy has arisen between the Virginia Railway Company and its locomotive engineers which, by agreement of both parties, has been referred to Chairman Knapp, of the interstate commerce commission, and Dr. Charles P. AFFAIRS IN WORLD OF SPORTS Mail advices from Budapest, Hungary, bring the news that R. E. Baurepaire, the Australian swimmer, established a new world's record for 440 yards in a meet there. The time for the distance was 5 minutes and 2 seconds, which is 3 2-5 seconds better than the previous world's record, held by T. Batorsky, of England, and 3 2-5 seconds faster than the American record, held by Charles M. Daniels.

A New York dispatch says that Hugh McIntosh, promoter of the Johnson-Burns battle, has issued a challenge to the heavyweight of the world on behalf of an unknown pugilist. McIntosh says the unknown will be named by Corbett, who will train the fighter. McIntosh says he will post $5,000 as a forfeit and hopes that Jack Johnson will accept the challenge.

"I've not given up the fight yet, not by any means," said John McGraw, of the New York Nationals, after a recent game. "Neither should Clarke or Griffith give it up, for baseball is an uncertain game, and all sorts of things may happen. But, if you were to ask me as a student of form, both of men and horses, I'd have to say The Cubs."

Four thousand Louisville shop employes of the Louisville and Nashville railroad were given a surprise when they opened their pay envelopes and found therein an unadvised increase of 6 per cent. Reports have been current for some days that the raise would be given shop employes throughout the Louisville and Nashville system, but officials of the road refuse to confirm or deny this.

The American secretary of war and party sailed from Kobe, Japan, for the Philippine Islands. On his arrival at Kyoto, Secretary Dickinson was received by the mayor and municipal officials. He was shown the sights of the city, and later issued a public expression of thanks for the courtesies which had been extended him.

General Manager W. H. Myers, of the Pennsylvania railroad, and the committee representing the 15,000 trainmen and conductors employed on the lines of the road east of Pittsburg have agreed on a basis of the settlement of the wage controversy. Each side claims to have gained all that it had been contending for in the negotiations which have been in progress for the past six months, and which culminated last week in the strike vote by the employees.

The American consul, Thomas P. Moffatt, has issued instructions to the American naval commanders at Bluefields to observe the strictest precautions that no personal communication be held with Bluefields itself, on account of the grave fears that yellow fever is prevalent there. The bluff is held by the Madriz forces, and numerous deaths have recently occurred among the Madriz soldiers.

The high price of wheat and prospects of a poor yield in many localities are the reasons assigned by dealers for the jump of 50 cents a barrel on flour, which was announced at Jeffersonville, Ind. Farmers say that orchard grass has begun to sprout in the shock because of the recent heavy rains, and that the loss will be heavy.

The town of Carlsbad, N. M., will receive its water supply from the irrigation system of the Carlsbad project. A contract for five years, which has been approved by the secretary of the interior, provides that the town is to pay the government at the rate of $1.25 per acre foot, which is the price at which water was rented to agricultural lands within the project. This represents a net annual income of 8 per cent on the construction charge investment.

E. B. Hornady, of Buena Vista, Ga., has made positive announcement that he will be in the race for Georgia railroad commissioner at the coming state primary against Commissioner Joseph F. Gray, of Savannah.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES A dispatch from Aiken, S. C., says: William T. Fullmore, a well known planter of this county, killed himself at the home of John Bussy, whom he was visiting. On some pretext he went to the wagon shed where he tied a rope around his neck, fastened the other end to a rafter and jumped off the back of a buggy. His body was found dangling in the air some time later. He died of strangulation.

Mr. Yarborough, of Athens, Ga., an employee of Lomax Milling Company, had his arm cut off Saturday. While bearing off lumber he accidentally fell, his left arm struck the saw and was instantly mangled. Drs. Brown and Bussey, of Buckhead, Ga., were immediately summoned and found it necessary to amputate the limb just below the elbow.

Theodore Sanders, tried for the murder of Rufus N. Gaerens, a prominent farmer, was acquitted by a jury at Lake Charles, La.

In a battle between Chinese and police in a raid on an alleged gambling house in Chinatown, San Francisco, Wong Dick was fatally shot, police men were knocked down, kicked and beaten, and many Orientals clubbed. More than 200 Chinese were arrested, charged with gambling. About 15 alleged gamblers escaped.

A hole in the pavement saved Charlotte Connelly, 8 years old, from death in New York City, when the child was hit by a speeding automobile while playing in front of her uptown home. She was knocked under the heavy machine and the wheels passed over her, but when a bystander ran to pick her up she was uninjured. There was not a bruise or a hurt upon her. She had been thrown into a depression in the pavement and the rapidly moving wheels had but slightly touched her. The bystander brushed her clothes, bought her some candy and led her home. Then, at her mother's, he went in search of the doll she had missed from her arms. It was badly mangled.

Two persons were drowned and property houses swept away by a cloudburst which struck Bisbee, Ariz. It is estimated that the property loss will be $200,000. The precipitation, which was less than two hours and a half, was 4 1-2 inches, was gathered into a small volume in the narrow canyons and rushed down on the city with great force.

ARE LABOR SAVERS

KEEP ON HAND A SUPPLY OF JAPANESE NAPKINS.

Especially During the Summer Are They Useful in a Variety of Ways—Have a Sanitary Value Sometimes Overlooked.

Young girls who are up to date in their ideas should not overlook the advisability of keeping on hand a supply of Japanese napkins, for their uses as labor savers are many, and also as preservers of the family health.

During the summer months young girls especially are great instigators of picnics. Then the pile of Japanese napkins should be quickly sought for to daintily and dainty bits of paper in which to wrap up sandwiches, cakes, pie and all the good things that help to make a picnic jolly. When they have performed their service they can be thrown away, not being sufficiently valuable to carry home and to burden the family wash tub.

Not only at picnics, but at veranda tea spreads after tennis and at informal luncheons at home should Japanese napkins be employed instead of fine linen. The modern young girl has begun to feel keenly that it is a necessity to adopt every possible means to save labor, and to this end she uses as freely as she can the little napkins from the land of the rising sun.

The most pronounced present use of these articles is in case of illness, especially those that can be transmitted from one member of the family to another. Pneumonia, tonsilitis, tuberculosis and even the ordinary cold are now looked on as evils from which girls as well as all other sane mortals should protect themselves by every known device.

To use the handkerchiefs belonging to the regular wardrobe during the time of a severe cold and then put them in with the wash on Monday is to expose the family, and particularly the laundress, to the same discomforting malady. In serious cases of illness, pneumonia among them, it is a truly lamentable fact that handkerchiefs, napkins and towels are often used for the relief of the invalid which afterward are cleaned in the laundry.

The use of the Japanese napkins, or handkerchiefs, as they may then be called, does away with this too frequent mode of spreading contagion. They serve the invalid as well as linen, and when they are no longer required they should be burned.

The very smooth sorts are chosen for use in sickness, while those of crinkled, crepelike surfaces are preferred when attractiveness alone is desired. At most they cost about fifty cents a thousand.

About Egypt.

The total area of Egypt proper is about 450,000 square miles, of which however, only some 14,000 square miles are arable. The population exceeds 10,000,000, the density of the settled part thus surpassing that of any other land on earth, Belgium not excepted. This superiority of Egypt as an agricultural country is owing to the equable climate; the possibility of carrying on farming all the year round, a constant supply of water and, as a consequence of the Nile overflow, a natural and perpetual richness of the soil, which does away with the great cost of fertilization.

WAYS OF CLEANING MARBLE

Two Methods It Will Be Well to Remember—Are Guaranteed to Do the Work.

It is well to have on hand a recipe or two which will help us clean marble. Take two parts of soda, one of pumice stone and one of finely powdered chalk. Sift these through a fine sieve and mix them into a paste with water. Rub the mixture all over the marble, and the stains will be removed; now wash it with soap and water, and a beautiful bright polish will be produced.

Another way to remove stains from marble is with a paste made of powdered pipeclay and fuller's earth mixed with strong soap lye. Put a thick coating of the paste on the marble and pass lightly over it a moderately warm flatiron until it is dry. Leave it for a short time, and then wash it off with clean water. Should the first application fail to remove all stains, repeat the process.

Discoloration made by smoke may be removed in the same manner.

A Dainty Ornament.

A pretty ornament to be worn with tulle or maline bows is a bowknot of beads strung on wire. These vary in size and are either a deeper tone than the tulle or in a contrasting color.

Such bowknots are very smart when made up in seed pearls, but quite as good effect can be had by making them at home on gold or silver wire using small wax or glass beads.

Stephenson Has No Enemies.

"Uncle Ike" Stephenson of Wisconsin, is a senator without enemies, and it is not likely that he will have any if he remains in congress all the rest of his life, for he is not a man to stir up trouble. "Uncle Ike" is in the senate quite frequently, and he goes from one senator to another and has a bit of conversation and then passes on.

AN ANSWERED QUESTION

By Rose Churchill.

Shall we ever know, I wonder,
In the days that are to be,
What has kept our lives asunder,
Tho' our hearts as one agree,
Tho' our lips would fain converse,
Tho' our eyes still mutely bless?

Shall we gladly read life's story,
In the quiet rest of age,
Waiting till heaven's final glory
Shines upon each darkened page;
Till we see in fullest light
All now hidden from our sight?

Or shall we apart still drifting,
As the shadows round lie,
Cease to wait for their uplifting,
Cease for "broken toys" to cry;
Forcing back each vain regret,
Praying only to forget?

"That's a pretty thing they are playing, dear. What is it called?" Mr. Blanchard asks us, with a sigh of satisfaction. He settles himself more comfortably in his cushioned rocker and prepares himself to be sung to sleep by his daughter Blanche, as is his usual custom directly after supper.

He is a busy man, headmaster of high school and "coach" to two or three private pupils besides, and this is the only recreation he allows himself. One hour of rest and sleep between supper and the time for the arrival of Clinton Drysdale, his most important pupil.

Drysdale is reading for a Latin examination, on which language Mr. Blanchard is an authority of high repute.

"The song is called 'Questions,'" Blanche replied, in an absent-minded way, hurriedly wiping the tears which have gathered in her eyes, and hiding the piece in question at the back of the music she had arranged in the rack in front of her.

She plays beautifully, but can sing well only in the presence of those she loves and whom she feels love her.

Once she was conscious of singing her best when Clinton Drysdale was present, but now a strange constraint had sprung up between them, and she feels shy and awkward in his company. She blushes hotly as she thinks of the way she has allowed herself to drift, as it were, into an attitude of appropriation of him, which she has no right to assume; and determines to be stiffness itself in her future demeanor toward him.

Blanche is a veritable "child of nature," as most clever women are, and Blanche is a clever woman, beyond question, having taken a science degree at the London university, spending two years in Europe for that purpose.

When she hears her father make a little noise in his throat she knows he has gone to the "Land of Nod," and takes out "Questions" from its hiding place and gives vent to her soul's emotion in singing it again and again. She does not hear the front door slam behind Clinton Drysdale, who swiftly ascends the stairs to the drawing-room and stands on the mat outside the slightly open door. He knows it is mean to listen, but he cannot resist the temptation.

Thus Blanche finds him, as, with a swift movement, she reaches the door without making a sound, which may awaken her father from his much-needed slumber. "Those ridiculous songs always make me cry," she says, with a vain attempt to laugh. "So they do me," Clinton said, gravely; "but I call them lovely, not ridiculous," and then by a common impulse they sit down on the stairs (which are conveniently near) and Blanche listens entranced to "the sweet old story."

"I thought you did not love me," Blanche says, presently, shyly glancing up at the impassioned face above her. "Your manner was so altered, I was afraid to speak to you. I thought you must either have cared for me or seen some one you liked better."

"These are your only rivals," Clinton says, gently drawing from his pocket cards and a brandy flask. "I knew, as oil and water cannot mingle, that you and these things could never share my devotion. It must be one or the other, and I could not make up my mind.

"I am ashamed to say it, but it is the truth. I know now that I am only throwing away the husks and keeping the kernel, that I have a treasure that is above rubies."

"How do you know that I am a ruby?" says Blanch. "I may be merely a piece of glass for all you know."

"Yes, you may," says Clinton, and then they both laugh.

Speed of Flight of Pigeons.

Of our game birds the most gregarious and most beautiful passenger pigeon, now unhappily practically extinct, is or was doubtless the most rapid of continuous flyers; yet to a total length of 16¼ inches its wings' length is about seven and eight-tenths inches, a proportion less favorable for speed than with certain other less rapid species of its family, says a writer in Outing Magazine. Their sustained speed certainly exceeded a mile a minute, and some authorities have estimated it as high as 120 miles per hour. The fact, often quoted, that the wild rice of the Carolinas was sometimes found in the stomachs of birds shot in Canada shows both marvelous speed and endurance.

USE FOR TOWELING

CAN BE MADE VALUABLE IN VARIETY OF WAYS.

Serviceable When Fashioned Into an Apron—Makes Useful Combing Jacket—Laundry Bag Also Is a Good Suggestion.

It is the clever woman who can make one article serve two or three purposes. A very usual, unpretentious towel can be fashioned into other accessories for woman's use, and from the coarse kitchen toweling to the fine damask squares there is an excellent field for clever manipulation.

From the unbleached kitchen material, with its red or blue stripes, a very practical apron can be fashioned for washday.

Measure a length of the toweling from waist to knees, and allow for a deep turned-up portion that will form a convenient pocket for clothespins. Turn this up and stitch on the outer edges and then in two lines to form three compartments. This division allows a distribution of the weight and prevents sagging. Gather the fulness into a band with narrow strings.

A fine damask towel furnishes the material for a quickly made combing jacket. Fold the towel in order to get the longer center line and cut up almost to the center of the form.

Now fold into quarters and mark a circle that will be large enough to fit around the neck.

Use the towel has a colored border, it is well to match this in colored tape or washable ribbon for the binding that is used for the front, around the collar line and for the short strings that tie the convenient thing.

The quality of this jacket makes it possible to wash it and insures freshness always.

As a laundry bag, the white towel comes as a quick suggestion. The short ends are hemmed down and stitched in a double row for the drawstrings. The bag is a matter of a few minutes, and can go into the washtub with the small pieces that it holds.

These are but a few suggestions for the towel that perchance you are able to pick up at white sales, or if you are blessed with an ample supply, you might turn one to a use a little different from that of the bathroom.

For the Scandalmonger.

The Orleans museum has just been enriched, with a curious relic of the past which some workmen in making excavations in the city came across. It is a stone representing a grinning figure, showing the teeth, the countenance being repellent enough. In this way the loquacious woman, the scandalmonger, was brought to her senses. The stone, suspended by a chain, was placed round her neck, and so accoutered she was compelled to walk round the town in which she lived. The stone is supposed to date about the sixteenth century.

A Dry Occasion.

Brook, Ind., where George Ade practises gentleman farming, is right in the middle of the teetotal belt of Indiana.

Last summer, one broiling hot day, a man came along in an automobile having just patched up a puncture outside of Brook.

He ran into the little village and saw a native standing in front of the general store. He stopped his machine and went up to the native.

"Say, brother," he said, "will you tell me where I can get a good, cold bottle of beer around here?"

The native took the automobilist by the arm out to the middle of the road, pointed down its dusty length, and said: "The nearest place is 50 miles right down that road."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

By one of those peculiar coincidences which there is no accounting for, a wagon load of fine juicy watermelons was standing before the door of the Banner office on Monday, and they were greedily eyed by a number of citizens awaiting around the court house. It may be imagined that Judge Reynolds, taking an occasional look out of the court house windows, noticed the appealing glances cast towards the melons, and in the generosity of his heart he immediately decided those melons should not "waste their perfume on the desert air," and going outside the court house he invited one and all to partake of them. (Unfortunately he omitted to include in the invitation the employees of the Banner office, who could only look on at the demolition of the melons. It was an oversight, no doubt.) But I wonder if the Judge would include the cost in his election expenses.

Hon. Tyler Goodwyn, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, spent last Saturday in Clanton, looking over the field in anticipation of a Democratic victory in November. Mr. Goodwyn is so accustomed to Democratic successes in nearly every county in Alabama that it is somewhat of a surprising change to visit an opposition county like Chilton. He hopes to see it in line with the other counties of the State.

TOO MUCH FOR EASTERNER

Pilgrim Was Looking for Iron Springs, But That Story Was More Than He Could Stand.

He was a weary, thin and sallow-looking American, who had never been so far west before, and when he struck Carson City he hailed the first native he met.

"Can you tell me, sir, if there are any mineral springs about here?"

"From the east?" asked the westerner.

"Yes."

"Come here for yer health?"

"Yes."

"Tried everything, I suppose?"

"Yes."

"Tried surphur springs?"

"Yes. Didn't help me a bit."

"Been to Arkansas?"

"Yes, and everywhere else."

"What kind of water are you looking for now?"

"Well, no kind in particular. I was told, though, that I'd find a variety of springs out here."

"Going to locate?"

"That depends."

"Well, stranger I have got just what you want. A vacant lot in the best part of the city. Finest iron springs in the country. Go and see for yourself."

"But how do you know it's iron?" queried the easterner.

"Well, pardner, I drove my horse through it and he came out with iron shoes on his feet. And that ain't all. I drove some pigs down there to drink. They turned into pig iron, and I sold them to the iron foundry. Just what you want. For sale, cheap. Why, hallos! What's the matter?"

The weary easterner had turned abruptly and was walking off up the road.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Why England Believes in a King.

The great majority of Englishmen of all grades and opinions do undoubtedly believe in a king, and think they have some fairly good reasons for doing so.

The great reason, of course, is that on the whole the system works, or seems to work, fairly well. It is very costly. Everything included, it probably costs ten times as much as the average man thinks; and if a rate were levied for the purpose on him, he might feel it and begin to grumble. But the money is derived from the duchies, or voted from the taxes, and nobody feels the pinch or even knows the difference. It is a rallying point for all kinds of senseless anachronisms and abuses. But in an old country many things have a better chance of continued existence by being old than by being good, and an abuse comes to be esteemed almost when its hairs are gray and its years many. It promotes snobbery and creates snobs, though it will not be supposed to be unpopular on that account.—The Congregationalist.

To Save Alcott Home.

Efforts are being made to inaugurate a movement for the preservation of the old Alcott homestead in Concord, Mass., where Bronson Alcott lived and died and where Louisa Alcott created the immortal children that run through the pages of "Little Men" and "Little Women." The place at present is fast falling into hopeless decay and action must be started soon if it is to be preserved at all. "Perhaps if Miss Alcott had been dead two centuries instead of only about 30 years her former home would not be in such a dangerous plight as it is today," said a New York woman who is trying to interest others in its preservation. "But by and by Miss Alcott will have been dead 200 years and if Orchard house is not saved now American soil in future generations will be the poorer for our neglect. We never shall raise a harvest of ancient associations for our land unless we take care of the associations while they still are comparatively modern."

A Different Sort of Doctor.

Dr. Charles Harriss, the well-known Canadian musician and composer, tells an amusing story about himself.

While he was on his way to South Africa, he desired to keep his identity a secret. During the voyage one of the passengers managed to get into conversation with the musician, and asked him if he would medically examine his little girl who was with him on the boat.

"My dear sir," replied Dr. Harriss, "I have never examined a child in my life."

Ten minutes later, he overheard the passenger say, in the smoking-room:

"There you are; didn't I say that man was a fraud?"

The Girl Grad.

Mark Twain was a firm believer in the higher education of woman, but Hartford still remembers a speech he made one June to a platform of Hartford girl graduates.

This speech, a humorous attack on the college girl, ended:

"Go forth. Fall in love. Marry. Set up housekeeping. And then, when your husband wants a shirt ironed, send out for a gridiron to do it with."

Metaphorically Speaking.

"What do you think of these new palaces I have been rearing?" asked Mr. Dustin Stax.

"Magnificent," replied the cynic.

"Yet," he proceeded with a visible effort to be modest, "this earthly pomp reminds me that all the world is a stage."

"Right. And the modern tendency is to make up with the fine scenery for bad acting."

Good For Dr. Higgins.

We today learn that Dr. Higgins has fitted one hundred pairs of eyes with glasses since he returned from college on October 18, 1909.

The hundredth patient was Mrs. Cobb of Jemison, Ala., who was sent to Dr. Higgins for treatment by Dr. McNeill.

We desire to ask the people if the leading physicians of your county recommend Dr. Higgins in fitting glasses, and he holds the second prize for the state of Alabama in OPTICS won at the recent meeting of the state optical experts, can you afford to buy cheap spectacles or go off to other towns to have your eyes treated with glasses?

Dr. J. V. Higgins gives personal attention to every patient. Remember the place, Higgins Jewelry Store Clanton, Ala., Main Street.

Sinking Spells Every Few Days

"At the time I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I was having sinking spells every few days. My hands and feet would get cold; I could scarcely breathe, and could feel myself gradually sinking away until I would be unconscious. Those about me could not tell there was life in me. After these spells I would be very weak and nervous, sleepless and without appetite; had neuralgia in my head and heart. After taking the remedy a short time all this disappeared and in a few weeks all the heart trouble was gone."

For twenty years we have been constantly receiving just such letters as these. There is scarcely a locality in the United States where there is not some one who can testify to the merits of this remarkably successful Heart Remedy.

Good Time to Turn Farmer.

In theory there never was a better time than right now for a sensible man to move from city to country. The movement has been away from the farm until prices of all kinds of food and fiber are high. There is nothing in sight to indicate that prices will be greatly reduced by increased production. A crop well grown and handled with good business judgment will be reasonably sure of sale at a fair price. There never was a time when it was so easy to learn new methods and the principles of scientific farming. A man starting now may receive at once the benefit of 20 years of the experience and study of good farmers and scientific experts. For example millions of acres of land in the eastern states are almost nonproductive and thrown on the market at a low figure, simply because they are waterlogged and sour. When these farms are drained and limed they become at once productive and double in value for farm purposes. They are naturally strong and drainage and lime make their strength available.—H. W. Collingwood, in Metropolitan Magazine.

All in the Name.

How Hay Wrote "Little Breeches."

On the train, as I journeyed to New York, I entertained myself by writing "Little Breeches." The thing was done merely for my own amusement, without the smallest thought of print. But when I showed it to Whitelaw Reid he seized the manuscript and published it in the Tribune. By that time the lilt and swing of the Pike county ballad had taken possession of me. I was filled with the Pike county spirit, as it were, and the humorous side of my mind was entertained by its rich possibilities. Within a week after the appearance of "Little Breeches" in print all the Pike county ballads were written. After that the impulse was completely gone from me. . . . There were no more Pike county ballads in me and there never have been any since. Let me tell you a queer thing about that. From the hour when the last of the ballads was written until now I have never been able to feel that they were mine, that my mind had anything to do with their creation or that they bore any trace of kinship to my thought or my intellectual impulses. They seem utterly foreign to me—as foreign as if I had first encountered them in print as the work of somebody else. It is a strange feeling.—Letter from John Hay to G. C. Eggleston, quoted in "Recollections of a Varied Life."

WHAT CARRIE SAID

The young man who had been coming to see the girl with the new gown for the past year, and had betrayed no tendency to declare himself, settled into his usual chair with a sigh of content. He noticed that the young woman wore a new and becoming gown, but what he did not observe was the light of determination in her eye.

"Carrie Asked."

"The funniest thing happened today, Harold," she said at last.

"What was it?" asked the young man.

The young woman in the new gown did not answer. She tipped her head sidewaks and cast down her eyes and appeared confused. "Why, nothing on earth could make me tell you!" she said at last. "It was ridiculous!"

"Go ahead!" insisted the young man, interestedly. "If it was so funny—"

"You mightn't think it funny," objected the young woman. "I don't know just how you would take it. Of course, it was just a joke, and as soon as I caught my breath I nearly died laughing!"

"Well," said the young man, "you might tell me! Who said it?"

"Carrie James," admitted the young woman. "I hadn't seen her for the longest time, and she came at me so suddenly that I—of course I knew she didn't mean it, though she insisted that she was serious. But it was simply too silly!"

"Now, see here," said the young man, "you've simply got to tell me!"

"I suppose I might as well, seeing it is so ridiculous," said the young woman. "I know you'll laugh just the way I did. Carrie said—that is, Carrie asked—how long you and I had—er—had been engaged! Wasn't that funny?"

"H'm!" said the young man. "Ha! ha! Well, I should say that was funny! How'd she ever get that idea?"

"I knew you'd simply die over it," said the young woman. "Isn't it killing?"

"It's a huge joke," said the young man.

The young woman in the new gown bit her lip and then recovered herself. "I might have known you wouldn't be mad about it," she said. "You have such a fine disposition!"

"Why on earth should I get mad?" asked the young man.

"I was afraid you'd be mad at me," explained the young woman. "Lots of men wouldn't understand how perfectly innocent I was. They—they might think, you know, I had spread the report or something. Oh, lots of them would. And they'd be mad to have their names used that way!"

"Great scott!" said the young man. "Why, I'm complimented!"

"Are you, really, Harold?" asked the young woman, anxiously. "Why, I wouldn't for the world lose your—your friendship, you know!"

"I feel just that way, too," said the young man, heartily. "Knowing each other so long as we have!"

"Yes, we have known each other a good while," agreed the young woman. "Why, it seems as if you had always been coming here to call, doesn't it?"

"It seems perfectly natural to be here," said the young man. "I don't know any place that I have a better time."

"I'm so glad," said the young woman. "Why, every time I think of what Carrie said I have to laugh! It was so—so silly! You can't imagine how I felt!"

"Yes, I can," said the young man, cheerfully. "It would have knocked me sideways, myself. Other people have such a way of butting in!"

"Haven't they!" said the young woman in the new gown. "Carrie wouldn't believe me at first when I told her what nonsense she was talking. She said everybody thought—oh, dear me, I didn't intend telling you all the foolish gossip she repeated. It just went in at one ear and out at the other, so far as I was concerned."

"That's right," said the young man. "It never pays to listen to what people say."

"It's just terrible that a man and a girl can't be friends," pursued the young woman, "without people thinking they are sentimental. Why, it's so ridiculous! I'm sorry for anybody who can't understand just friendship! As though we—the very idea!"

"It's too funny for anything," said the young man. "I can imagine how amused you were! Well, if I catch that car I must be going!"

The young woman waved him goodby from the window and then turned away with a rather grim expression on her face.

"Now, I wonder," she said, "whether Harold is abnormally stupid, or horribly smart! I'd like to know!"—Chicago Daily News.

DEATH FOR "WITCH"

INTERESTING RELIC OF THE DAYS OF IGNORANCE.

Historical Archives of Salem, Mass., Reveal Depths of Superstition and Folly in Which Our Forefathers Were Sunk.

Investigators making search through the archives of the Peabody institute at Salem, Mass., have just unearthed a seventeenth century warrant condemning to death Bridget Bishop, wife of a Salem attorney, on a charge of witchcraft.

Contrary to the traditions that witches were burned in Massachusetts, in the warrant condemning Mrs. Bishop to death William Stoughton, who with his associates in the warrant are styled judges of a special court of Oyer and Terminer for the counties of Essex, Middlesex and Suffolk, orders that George Corwin, the sheriff, shall hang her by the neck until she is dead.

Appended to the warrant is the return certificate made by Corwin showing that he had carried out the orders of the court.

The warrant and return are in seventeenth century English script, and transcribed reads as follows:

"To George Corwin Gent'n, High Sheriffe of the County of Essex Greeting:

"Whereas Bridget Bishop al's Oliver, the wife of Edward Bishop of Salem in the County of Essex Lawyer at a speciall Court of Oyer and Terminer held at Salem the second Day of this instant month of June for the Countyes of Essex Middlesex and Suffolk before William Stoughton, Esque, and his associates of the said court was Indicted and arraigned upon five several Indictments for using practising and exerciseing on the . . . last past and divers days and times the felonies of Witchcraft in and upon the bodyes of Abigal Williams, Ann Puttnam . . . Mercy Lewis, Mary Walcott and Elizabeth Hubbard of Salem village . . . single women; whereby their bodyes were hurt, afflicted, pined consumed and tormented contrary to the forme of the statue in that case made and provided. To which Indictm'ts the said Bridget Bishop pleaded not guilty and for Tryall thereof put herselfe upon God and her Country whereupon she was found guilty of the Felonyes and Witchcrafts whereof she stood indicted and sentence of Death accordingly passed ag't her as the Law directs. Execution whereof yet remaines to be done. These are therefore in the names of their maj'ties William and Mary now King and Queen over England &c., to will and command you That upon Fryday next being the Tenth Day of this instant month of June between the hours of eight and twelve in the aforenoon of the same day you safely conduct the s'd Bridget Bishop al's Olliver from their maj'ties Gaol in Salem aforesa'd to the place of execution and there cause her to be hanged by the neck until she be dead and of your doings herein make returne to the clerk of the s'd Court and of this p'cept. And hereof you are not to faile at your peril. And this shall be your sufficient warrant given under my hand & seal at Boston the eighth day of June in the fourth year of the reigne of our Sovereign Lord William and Mary now King and Queen over England, &c., Annoq'e Dom. 1692.

"WM. STOUGHTON.

"June 10th, 1692.

"According to the within written precept I have taken the body of the within named Brigett Bishop out of their majesties gaol in Salem and safely conveighd her to the place provided for her execution and caused y sd Brigett to be hanged by the neck until she was dead all which was according to the time within required and so I make returne by me.

"GEORGE CORWIN, Sheriff."

The First Requisite.

When Senator Vance was running for congress he called on an old negro who had in early life served the Vance family. Asked after his health, the negro replied: "Mighty po'ly in this worl', but it's all right over yander." "Do you believe in the doctrine of election?" asked Vance with great solemnity. "It's the doctrine of the Bible," answered the old man. "Uncle Ephraim, do you think I've been elected?" asked Vance again. "Massa Zeb, I'd a lettle ruther you wouldn't draw that question. I'm too near de grabe to tell a lie, but the fac' am, I neber yet knowed nor hear tell of no man bein' elected what wan't a candidate."

The Parable of the Ten Ideas.

A teacher put ten facts into a boy's mind, and when he returned a few months later, to see if the facts were still there, he was pleased to find that the boy remembered them. He paid the boy a high compliment on the possession of a mind that could hold knowledge so securely and deliver it up on demand with such prompt and beautiful exactness! Another teacher gave another boy ten facts, and some time after he also tested the boy to see what had happened. He found that from the ten he had given the boy there had grown a large number of other facts. He made no further inquiry, for he was not interested to know whether the facts he had given him were still there or not. He saw that the purpose for which they had been put in the boy's mind was working out all right, and there his interest ended.

USE FOR CORONATION BRAID

Makes Handsome Trimmings, Either Alone or in Combination With Lace.

All of those who are wedded to the use of coronation braid will find renewed demand for that favorite little article in its present combinations with Irish and cluny insertions and edges.

There is a certain generous quality about this wavy braid, with its light and heavy patches, that enhances almost any piece of work to which it is applied.

For use on handsome summer frocks, it is now variously combined with laces to make straight strips of trimming or medallions. These last are extremely simple, and may be used for dress decorations, or to edge household linens such as centerpieces and bureau scarfs or sash curtains.

A half-inch center is crocheted with a steel crochet hook and medium fine thread on a beginning consisting of three chain stitches. To the half-inch disk sew 16 petals made of a continuous row of coronation braid of that number known as "small coronation." Each petal will consist of two of the heavy portions, the turns being made on the slender spaces. This will produce a perfect daisy, and now there is crocheted fast to its outer edge a tiny insertion of thread looking like the ladder pattern.

Persian Bordered Scarfs.

Lavely scarfs are fashioned from the Persian bordered chiffons and marquisettes combined with maribou.

The tones known as natural and the white feathery stuff combine prettily with the fragile fabrics.

In using the printed materials only a border of the maribou is necessary for good effect, while when a solid color forms the foundation a third strip must be added through the center of the scarf. Otherwise the little wrap may look skimpy and lack character.

Another pretty idea in scarfs is to place two different colors over each other and then edge all around with the maribou.

Novel Ring.

A stunning ring for the little finger is made from four or six gold wires joined at top only with a row of stones that reach almost to the first joint. These stones may be of one kind, as turquoises—as many as there are sections to ring—or they can be differently arranged that initial of gems spell name of wearer.

Mild Laxative for Baby Free

The child of today is the parent of the future, and whether it grows up healthy and strong, or puny and weak, depends upon the intelligence of its parents, for most children are born into the world healthy, but thousands become future weaklings between birth and the age of ten, when the parents are still in greatest control.

The prime cause of trouble is in the stomach. A baby that is digesting its food seldom cries and always looks cheerful; the little child whose stomach is good romps and plays and never whines; the growing child learns well at school and is eager for fun if its head is clear and its stomach right, and that means if it has no constipation.

The best and safest way to cure any irregularity of the stomach and bowels in children is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a liquid laxative wonderful in its effect as Mrs. John W. Dunham, Apple Creek, O., Mrs. H. L. Cullam, Plainville, Ind., and numerous others can testify who give it to their children with extraordinary results.

A bottle only costs 50 cents or it according to the size you want, and even one 50-cent bottle will do a wonderful amount of good in a family. It can be given to any member of the family in constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, torpid liver, dyspepsia, heartburn, sick headache and similar digestive troubles. It never gripes or strangles like pills, tablets, salts and powders, which should not be given to children, women or old folks.

If you have a child or other member of the family who needs, but has never used this grand laxative tonic, send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent to your home. In this way you can find out what it will do without personal expense.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

Be Cheerful.

Engraved faces are more often the result of habit than the marks of Time, that professional etcher, who usually receives all the credit for feminine ugliness. Woman is not content with expressing herself in words; she must needs make little noses and funny faces to give completion to her ideas. If you wail about your lack of beauty, watch yourself for one short day. You will be surprised to find what wonoderful things you will do with your own face. If countenances were not so substantially built they would sooner show the wear and tear imposed upon them.

Wrinkles and lines are indexes to one's life book. The fretter has a signboard on her forehead, and she advertises her profession of official worrier by growing box plaits between her eyes, by allowing her mouth to droop at the corners and by taking on the plaintive portrait of misery in which she really rejoices.

But the optimist, the individual of good cheer and laughter, sails serenely along the high seas of existence with a smooth, nicely ironed face, which makes her remain so young that she never really outgrows her happy days of mud pies and pinafores.—Woman's Life.

In the past they were a boisterous, hard-working lot. They "floated from New Orleans to Vancouver, lived in box cars, built bridges and dropped off of them with a grin and a choking "good-by." A hero among them was one who had the longest fall to his credit, or who could toss a white-hot rivet the greatest distance. They lived hard and died easily. Today they know that a man stands highest on the pay roll who takes his work and his danger most seriously, who also watches the man next to him—for in the calling one man's error often costs another's life, Harper's Weekly says.

A LESSON ON FORGIVENESS

Sunday School Lesson for July 31, 1910
Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Matthew 18:21-35. Memory verses 21, 22.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"If you forgive men their trespasses, your Heavenly Father will also forgive you."—Matt. 6:14.

TIME.—Autumn of A. D. 29.

PLACE.—Capernaum, near the Sea of Galilee.

Suggestion and Practical Thought.

The Occasion of Peter's Question.—Matt. 18:1-20. After the return from the Transfiguration scene, when Jesus with his disciples were together in a house in Capernaum, Jesus gave them some practical teaching and training on how they should feel and act in a time of growing opposition from ungodly men among whom they must live and work.

First of all they must cease ambitious striving for place and honor. They must "fling away ambition, by that sin fell the angels." This self-seeking spirit was exactly opposite to the kingdom of heaven, and if they did not overcome it, their lives would be failures. It also tended to awaken hard feelings between brethren. Cut off your foot; pluck out your eye, if you must, but hold on to the spirit of the kingdom.

The second lesson was from their Heavenly Father's seeking not to destroy those who hate and revile and disobey him, but to give himself to seeking and saving the lost.

The third lesson was upon the way they should carry out this divine spirit toward those who sinned against them.

Peter's Question and Jesus' Answer, Concerning the Duty of Forgiving Enemies.—Vs. 21, 22. "The Rabbis, who had been the disciples' teachers hitherto, required an offender to go to the injured party and obtain forgiveness by owning his fault; but Jesus told them that among his disciples the person wronged was to go to the wrong-doer, that such humility and love might strengthen his own graces, and win the guilty one to contrition."—Maclaren.

This was a hard saying, but by united prayer this spirit, as well as every other blessing, could be obtained. But wrongs to others, real or fancied, are very common, and Peter naturally asks how long one must carry out this instruction toward those who keep on sinning and apparently repenting.

Jesus Illustrates His Teaching by a Parable.—Vs. 23-34. Contrasting the debt sinful man owes to God with what any man wronging his fellow man owes to the one he has injured. If therefore God forgives freely the great debt, forgiven man certainly should forgive the little debt.

The Two Methods of Treating the Debtors. 25. "Commanded him to be sold . . . and all that he had." So in Syria now, when the debt grows till it equals in value the entire property of the debtors, the creditor seizes all they possess.

"The same servant went out." From his king's presence. He acted in the very heat of his own experience of release. "And found one of his fellow-servants." An inferior officer. "Owed him an hundred pence." When the common translation of the Bible was made the pennies were all silver, copper pennies not being coined till 1797. "Took him by the throat." Literally, went to choking him. "Thus Livy (IV., 53) relates how, a difficulty having arisen between the consul Valerius and one Menenius, the tribunes put an end to the contest, and the consul ordered into prison (collum torsisset, twisted the neck) the few who appealed. And Cicero (Pro Cluentio, XXI.): 'Lead him to the judgment-seat with twisted neck (collo obtorto).' Compare Cicero in C. Verrem, IV., 10."—Vincent.

"Fell down at his feet, . . . I will pay thee all." The very act and words he himself had so lately employed to his creditor.

"And he would not: but went" (went away) "and cast him into prison."

He had reasons in his own mind, as (1) that the man deserved the punishment; (2) it was his own fault that he was in debt; (3) it was not good for the community that such men go unpunished. But not one of these did he want applied to himself.

The Lesson in Daily Life.—V. 35. 1. The Punishment of Those Who Refuse to Forgive Those Who Injure Them. "So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you." The torments must follow to you "If ye from your hearts," really and not merely in words, "forgive not every one his brother their trespasses." Every such person is going in the straight road to the tormentors.

There is no greater torment than thore conscience and the working but of the laws of nature and of spirit produce in order to make the way of transgressors so hard that they may be persuaded to turn, and repent and obey and be saved.

SENTENCE SERMONS.

"Forgiveness is man's deepest need and highest achievement."—Bushnell.

"Be ye therefore imitators of God, as beloved children." An unforgiving Christian is, therefore, a moral monster.

"An old Spanish writer says, 'To return evil for good is devilish; to return good for good is human; but to return good for evil is Godlike."—Archbishop Whately.

"I have known a man nurse the tiny cockatrice egg of unforgiveness till it has burst into the fiery serpent of crime."—Farrar.

PROFIT IN CAPONS

Little Trouble to Average Farmer to Raise 100 to 200.

Flesh Always Retain That Sweetness and Juiciness of Flesh That Is Characteristic of Spring Chicken—Reason They Bring Price.

(By MILLER PURVIS.)

No one is better situated to raise capons than the farmer. On the average farm the additional work required to raise from 100 to 200 capons would not be noticed, and the most of this work can be attended to in the winter when time is plentiful with the farmer.

In the neighborhood of Fairbury, Ill., a great many capons are raised every year and are found to be very profitable. There are many stories told about the size to which capons grow, while the truth is that the ordinary capon will grow to but one or two pounds more than the ordinary uncaponized cockerel would in the same time, and to secure this additional weight extra feeding is necessary.

In preparation for capon raising it is wise to hatch about twice the number of chickens as capons desired, for fully half are likely to be pullets. The pullets may be kept for egg production or may be sold for spring chickens, thus securing enough money to pay for raising the whole flock up to the time the cockerels are old enough to caponize, which is about twelve weeks.

The operation of caponizing does not require much skill, although the beginner will probably kill two or three at the start, which will not be lost, for they bleed to death in about the same time as if their throats had been cut and are exactly as good for table purposes as if bled in the latter way. A set of tools for caponizing costs from $1.50 to $2, and with each set is sent directions that anyone can follow.

After the caponizing the cockerels become docile and quiet; they lose ambition and their combs cease to grow; in fact, they shrivel, and when fed they eat their fill and sit quietly around until feeding time again. Capons always retain that sweetness and juiciness of flesh that is characteristic of the spring chicken, the reason they bring such a high price. They are fed much as other fowls would be, only eating more. About all they eat goes to the formation of juicy, palatable flesh.

A few years ago capons commanded hardly any attention in the west and do not yet bring the prices they do in the eastern cities. By the last of March good capons sell readily in Chicago at 17 cents per pound, as against 12 cents for dressed chickens. As the average Plymouth Rock capon will weigh seven or eight pounds, it will be seen that the capon sells for from 40 to 50 cents more than the chicken of the same age, and the difference in the cost of raising is insignificant. The writer has known of a flock of 400 capons that cleared nearly one dollar each. However, these were extras—sold in Philadelphia, the greatest capon market in the country.

BLISTER CANKER OF APPLE

Disease Usually Found on Larger Limbs and Sometimes Attacks Trunk—Method of Treatment.

This disease is usually found on the larger limbs, and sometimes attacks the trunk. Old cankers are often a foot or more in length. The fungus attacks the wood as well as the bark. In the early stages of the disease the bark is brown and slightly sunken and usually set off from the healthy bark by a distinct boundary. As the season advances circular fungous masses develop on the diseased area. They are formed beneath the bark, but soon break through to the surface, furnishing the most characteristic feature of the disease. They are firmly fastened to the wood by means of a hard ring of fungous tissue, so that they remain attached to it even after the bark has fallen away.

Blister Canker of Apple.

Summer spores are produced on the surface of the stroma. Later in the season, numerous flask-shaped perithecia are formed within the stroma, but opening on its surface. These produce many club-shaped sacs, each containing eight spherical, brown spores.

The fungus seems to be dependent upon wounds for entrance to the host tissue. The best method of treatment is found in avoiding unnecessary injuries to the tree and in the proper care of all wounds. All cankered limbs should be destroyed.

There is no guess-work, no uncertainty, about this world-famous remedy. Since first prescribed by Dr. D. Jayne 70 years ago it has brought relief and effected cures in millions of cases of disease, and is today known and used in all parts of the world.

OIL MAGNATE OWNS A GHOST

It Was the Prize Package Given With Mexican Palace That H. Clay Pierce Bought.

H. Clay Pierce, St. Louis oil magnate, is now the owner of the Borda Gardens at Cuernavaca, Mexico, and may be said to be the custodian of the ghost of the Borda Gardens. Nothing was said about it when Mr. Pierce paid $15,000 for the historic spot which was the favorite summer haunt of Emperor Maximilian and Queen Carlotta in the days of Mexico's splendor as an empire.

But it is to be supposed that the ghost, having occupied the gardens without leave these many years, will continue to do so, and an occasional glimpse of the ghostly intruder may be vouchsafed to the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce after Mr. Pierce has spent $100,000 in restoring the gardens and they are ready to entertain their friends there.

Mrs. Pierce, who will be the mistress of the mansion of the mad empress, is an Edwardsville (Ill.) woman, the daughter of Maj. William M. Russell Pickett. Before her marriage to Mr. Pierce she was Mrs. Virginia Pickett Burrowes.

The mansion, in recent years, has divided into several suites and has been let to tenants. These say that they often see the ghost.

Whose ghost is it, and why it haunts the Borda Gardens nobody pretends to know, but it is the belief of the locality that the ghostly appearances have some relation to buried treasure and a dark crime of the long ago.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"It's all gone, ma."

"It really is. And so is your plumpness."

Wednesday morning the "chug" "chug" of a gasoline engine close to The Banner office made us think that another newspaper had 'come to stay" in Clanton, but on investigation it proved to be the threshing machine of Wiley Foshee engaged in the pastime of threshing oats for Mr. J. M. Potts, and in a remarkably short time forty or fifty bushels of oats were threshed out, and the thresher moved on to the next stopping place.

Like the old lady who "enjoyed" bad health, I have been "enjoying" a bad bilious attack which incapacitated me for three days this week, but I hope that "enjoyment" has passed and to be in better shape for next week. For absolute misery there are few things to equal a bilious attack.

Jemison.

The Sunday school convention of District No. 1, convened at Jemison Baptist church July 31, 1910. The session was a very interesting one, there being some deeply interested Sunday school workers present.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Orman, "What should we do as Christians to build up the Sunday school," was first subject on program for discussion. Mr. W. R. Houlditch Mr. Arch Glass and others gave some interesting talks on the subject.

Rev. H. M. Gray next addressed the convention on, "What has Sunday school done for Temperance." The convention then adjourned for dinner.

At 1:30 the convention came together again in song service conducted by Mr. Arch Glass. The roll of Sunday schools in district was then called to which representatives of nine schools responded. Some with excellent reports of their schools.

Rev. Orman gave a very interesting address on "The relation of Sunday school work to the church," pointing out the inseperableness of church and Sunday school. The last subject to be discussed was "The best way to interest boys in Sunday school." The discussion was opened by Prof. Mac Crumpton, who advanced the idea that one of the most important things was to gain the utmost confidence of the pupil. Rev. Orman, Mr. E. Thomas and others made some interesting talks on this subject.

The convention then adjourned to meet with Oak Grove Sunday school some time in future, the school to determine the time later.

FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT AT CLANTON.

On last Tuesday morning a very exciting accident happened to the family of Mr. W. C. Davis, although no one was hurt very badly. As Mr. Davis, with his wife and three children, was crossing the bridge over the railroad cut near Maddox's Gin in a wagon, the horse they were driving became frightened and backed the wagon off the end of the bridge and over an embankment beside the road. The wagon, carrying the family and horse with it, fell about ten feet down the embankment and the wagon narrowly averted capsizing on its occupants. The children were slightly bruised but Mr. Davis and his wife escaped unhurt. This was a very dangerous accident and it was indeed fortunate for the participants that they did not receive very painful injuries which they so narrowly escaped.

SCHEME WOULD AID THE FARMER

This Move Would Revolutionize Cotton Industry.

PLAN OF THE PROMOTERS

Idea of Promoters to Hold the Staple, Placing It Upon the Market Throughout the Year.—Planned to Aid Farmer Instead of Cornering Cotton.

Having for its purpose revolutionizing the cotton industry of the United States, a conference was held at the home of Jean Hays Hammond, at Gloucester, at which were present, besides Mr. Hammond, Daniel J. Sully, the New York cotton operator, and Scott Dalgleish, of Cairo, Egypt, the representative of the Hirsch syndicate of London.

Briefly, the idea is to establish store houses in all parts of the cotton-producing districts of this country, as well as in the manufacturing centers for storing the cotton crop, so that instead of selling it from hand to mouth as has been the practice heretofore, it will be marketed through the entire year when desirable. It is believed that reforms will be effected in the marketing of cotton which will result in a saving of not less than $50,000,000 annually.

The General Cotton Securities Company, of which Mr. Hammond is president and Mr. Sully is vice-president and general manager, is to be the organization through which this economy is to be effected. The Hirsch syndicate, it is understood, has already underwritten the project.

EXPENSES OF CITIES.

Schools, Police and Fire Protection Are Costly Items.

According to figures prepared by the census bureau at Washington, D. C., the larger cities of the country pay more for schools and for police and fire protection and kindred service than on all other accounts, and of these two items the payment on account of schools is much the largest, the average per capita expense for schools being $4.70 as compared with $2.25 for police and $1.72 for fire protection.

The figures are given out as a part of the bureau's report covering the financial operations for cities during the year 1908. The report covers all cities of more than 30,000 population, of which there are 158. The aggregate cost of operating all these cities was $404,997,312.

The report indicates a general increase in the cost of maintaining city governments. In 1908 the average was $13.36 per capita. By 1908 it had advanced to $16.81 per capita.

Boston heads the list with an expense cost of $27.58 for each person. Of the large cities New York City comes next with a cost of $24.71, while Washington, with a cost of $24.63, makes a close third. Of the first-class cities New Orleans paid less for city government than any other, the cost being only $12.76 per capita.

Salt Lake City paid most per capita for schools, $8.18. Montgomery, Ala., made the lowest expenditure, $1.63 per capita.

RACE RIOT IN TEXAS.

Anderson County is Scene of Fatal Racial Clash.

At least eighteen negroes were killed in a racial clash in the extreme eastern section of Anderson county, Texas, the culmination of an enmity between the races brewing for several weeks.

Eighteen is the number dead, according to the more conservative reports from the isolated section where the disorder occured. Other reports place the total fatalities at between thirty and forty.

It was also reported that several white men were either killed or wounded, but each rumor as to casualties among the whites has met an authoritative denial.

In a hand-to-hand battle near the Export coal mines, 10 miles from Greenburg, Pa., a striking coal miner was shot and killed, and George Davis, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., a member of troop A, Pennsylvania state constabulary, was seriously wounded. Nearly a score of others received minor injuries in a battle which was the result of efforts of the law officers to arrest strike sympathizers.

OHIO REPUBLICANS.

Warren G. Harding Nominated For Governor of State.

The Republican candidate for governor of Ohio is Warren G. Harding, of Marion, Ohio, once lieutenant governor.

WARREN G. HARDING.

Despite the efforts of Senator Burton's Cuyahoga county delegation to stampede the convention for Nicholas Longworth, and George B. Cox's every effort in behalf of Judge O. B. Brown, the Dayton man, a combination of "progressives" with the national administration men broke up the fight on the third ballot. Then Cox, yielding to the inevitable, cast the 91 Hamilton county votes for Harding, and that finished it.

For treasurer of state, Rudy A. Archer, of Belmont county, defeated Richard Gilson, of Steubensville, by a vote of 628 to 428.

U. G. Denman, of Toledo, was renominated for attorney general by acclamation.

BRIGHT PROSPECT.

Agricultural Conditions Most Encouraging in Southern States.

With 26,277,000 acres planted in corn this year, being an increase of 1,525,000 over 1909 and 2,770,000 acres over 1908, the farmers of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi are furnishing very substantial proof of the fact that the South is constantly devoting more attention to raising its own food supplies. These figures are from the last report of the Bureau of Statistics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Each state showed an increase over 1908 in 1909 and an increase over 1909 in 1910. The condition of this year's crop as reported by the department shows the states of the South leading the country, Mississippi being first, Alabama second and Georgia third.

The great increase in the acreage devoted to corn is considered one of the most hopeful signs in the South today. In a letter to the directors of the Southern Railway Company, President Finley said:

"The increase in the acreage of corn accompanied, as it is, by a quite general adoption of improved cultural methods, is one of the most encouraging features of Southern agricultural progress. It is one of the results of a general movement throughout the South in the direction of diversified agriculture—a movement which we are endeavoring to encourage and assist as far as we can properly do so."

As the farmers of the South increase their yield of corn, they will save enormous sums which they have been spending in the West for food products and will consequently themselves realize more from cotton and other market crops.

LAW NABS CRIPPEN.

End of Exciting Chase Across the Atlantic Ocean.

Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen and Ethel Clare Leneve, his stenographer, who fled from London after the disappearance of Belle Elmore, the doctors' wife, were arrested at Father Point, Quebec, aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Montrose, at the command of Inspector Dew, of Scotland Yard.

The identification of the long sought fugitives on board the fog-shrouded steamer by the English detectives, who had raced across the Atlantic ahead of the Montrose, marked the culmination of one of the most sensational flights in recent criminal annals.

Dew boarded the vessel at 8:30 o'clock, and fifteen minutes later both man and girl were locked in their staterooms. Crippen broken in spirit but mentally relieved by the relaxed tension; the girl, garbed in boy's clothes, sobbing hysterically. They were no longer the 'Rev John Robinson and son,' as booked from Antwerp, on July 20.

After brief delay, the Montrose continued her 160-mile journey up the river toward Quebec, where jail awaited the pair. Crippen is charged with the murder of an unknown woman, believed to have been his actress wife. The girl is held as an accessory.

In charge of Inspector Dew, they will be taken back to England for trial.

RUN TO EARTH AFTER PROLONGED CHASE

Alleged Slayer of Little Anna Kellner Arrested.

BAFFLED POLICE FOR MONTHS

After a Chase of Eleven Thousand Miles Alleged Slayer of Little Louisville Girl is Arrested in Lodging House in San Francisco, Cal.

Dragged from beneath a sink in the wash room of a Third street lodging house in San Francisco, where he had been hiding for 24 hours, Joseph A. Wendling, accused of the murder of little Almer Kellner, in Louisville, Ky., the man whose twistings and turnings have baffled the police for months, was arrested by Detectives Burke and Ryan, of the local police department. Wendling admitted his identity but protested his innocence of the crime.

A few hours after the arrest, Captain of detectives J. P. Carney, of Louisville, arrived to learn that his 11,000-mile search for Wendling had been crowned with success. It was the final telegraphic tip from the Kentucy detective which led to the capture.

JOHN G. CARLISLE DEAD.

After Long Illness Statesman Succumbs to Reaper.

John G. Carlisle, former secretary of the treasury, who had been critically ill for the past two days, died at his apartments in New York Sunday night, of heart failure accompanied by oedema of the lungs.

An intestinal complaint of long standing, which wore down his vitality, lay behind the technical fact of heart failure. He was attacked last spring by the same trouble, complicated by an ailment of the kidneys, and for a time hovered near death. But his remarkable vitality triumphed then, as it seemed it might even in the illness just ended.

John Griffin Carlisle was born in Kent county, Kentucky, on September 5, 1835. He was educated in the public schools, later studied law and was admitted to the bar. Always a consistent democrat and interested in public affairs, as a young man, he rose from the Kentucky house of representatives to the state senate, served as lieutenant governor and finally graduated into national affairs.

From 1877 to 1890 he was a member of the national house, and from 1883 to 1889 was speaker of the house. He resigned to fill the unexpired term of James G. Beck in the United States senate, from which he resigned to become secretary of the treasury under President Grover Cleveland.

KINDNESS REWARDED.

Stranger Left Young Louisianan Sum of $10,000.

An act of kindness which he rendered an aged stranger six years ago has brought a reward of $10,000 to J. Y. Allen, a young man of Homer, La. Allen met an elderly man, in looking out for whose baggage the former proffered his services.

On parting company with Allen, the old man took his name and address, with the declaration, "You may some day be rewarded for your kindness to a stranger." Allen has just been notified by lawyers of his former traveling companion's death, and that the latter had bequeathed $10,000 to him as "the young man who assisted an aged man while traveling several years ago."

FOUR SOLDIERS DROWN.

Boat Capsized in the Treacherous Carquinez Straits.

Three privates from the Fourth United States military prison guard, stationed at Alcatraz island, lost their lives when a yawl in which they, with three others, had been sailing on the bay, capsized in the treacherous Carquines straits, midway between Angel and Alcatraz island. Two of the men, Walter J. Thompson, of Ohio, and Lynn K. Ross, of San Jose, Cal., were drowned and Alonzo Nash, of Clinton, Tenn., died of exposure after being rescued along with his companions, William Highsell, Lester Hanson and Charles Bates.

When the boat turned turtle Thompson and Ross, both expert swimmers, started on the long swim to Alcatraz to get help for the four men who remained clinging to the bottom of the upturned craft. Ross, realizing that he could not reach the island, returned to the boat, but Thompson continued. He was not seen again.

After the five men holding to the capsized yawl had been in the water more than an hour their perilous plight was noticed by Captain Downing, of the old barge Coaling, passing on its way to Sausalito. A small boat was sent out.

Just as the rescuers reached the soldiers, Ross, whose vitality had gone, released his hold and slipped to his death in the water. The remaining four men were taken aboard the Coaling and hurried to Alcatraz, where Nash died two hours later in the post hospital.

BRYAN HAS LOST STATE LEADERSHIP

Is Deposed by Convention at Grand Rapids, Neb.

LIQUOR QUESTION THE CAUSE

Nebraskans Wrest Party Control From Mr. Bryan, Who is Quoted as Saying That the Liquor Men Are Scheming to Get Control of Nebraska.

Nebraska democrats have wrested the leadership of their state organization from William J. Bryan on the issue of county option.

By decisive votes they registered their unbelief in his present policies after listening to an impassioned appeal from Mr. Bryan, who declared the liquor interests were in an organized attempt to secure political control of the state.

The minority plank submitted by Mr. Bryan was brief and his opponent noticed in the speeches of several was from his former radical attitude. But the workers against the county option plank were unappeased and stood firmly against it.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

The attitude of many of Mr. Bryan's former lieutenants toward him was speeches of several who addressed the convention after him. His reference to "assassins" in the party was frequently referred to and as each speaker denounced his present position, the cheers of the delegates showed that the appeal of Mr. Bryan had been ineffectual.

The vote by which his county option plank was rejected was not taken until after midnight. It was decisively against the acceptance of the measure. Mr. Bryan made no comment after the vote and in answer to questions, referred to his speech in which he proclaimed his fealty to the democratic party and its platform.

The defeat of Mr. Bryan was foreshadowed by a test vote in the afternoon.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES. A Chicago dispatch says: Mrs. Peter Montrelle, failing to see the approach of a passenger train, wheeled the baby carriage containing her twin sons, 1 year old, on the track in front of it, was unable to snatch it back, and saw the carriage and her babies buried in the air. When she reached them, one of the twins, Guido, was playing gleefully in the sand, but the other, Joseph, was dead. The accident occurred 10 miles east of Hammond, Ind., and the train was the Erie Flyer.

The prank of a passenger on an interurban car returning from Creve Coeur lake to St. Louis, caused a wreck in which 12 persons were injured, several of them dangerously. When the car had reached Crow's Nest, about half way between the city and the resort, some one pulled down the trolley pole. A car in the rear crashed into it in the darkness. Floating face downward in the water was the body of Katherine McCall, 20 years old, fully dressed. There were no indications of violence, yet the girl's friends cannot understand how she could have committed suicide, for she had no enemies, nor does it seem likely that she could have stumbled into the pond by accident, for she was familiar with the neighborhood. Mystery surrounds the affair, as there is a black record. It lies in the bottom of an abandoned quarry, covered by thick bushes.

AFFAIRS IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS. The Massachusetts cup, defeating the Canadian challenger St. Lawrence in the third successive day's racing at Manchester, Mass.

The Hainaker plate of 700 sovereigns, for 2 and 3-year-olds, about 5 furlongs, was run at Goodwood, England, and won by August Belmont's Sandwich. Persian was second, and Sir Bit third. Thirteen horses started.

It has just been announced that John W. Knight shortstop of the New York Americans and Miss Mabel Barclay were married at Jersey City June 24.

WHAT STRIKES MUCH IN FAVOR

Undeniably a Picturesque Adornment, But Are Occasionally Out of Place.

They must be worn with a certain distinct smartness, or you will defeat your purpose and bring down upon your head the ridicule of those who have. It is safe to be decided that there is a decided acceptance of the fashion for a certain type of picturesque costume.

It would seem trite and unnecessary to suggest that hat strings belong to the afternoon hat; but if the fact be recognized that there are many crimes against good taste committed in the name of fashion, it will be realized that some facts must be reiterated.

The large flat hat is a beautiful model upon which the hat strings can be placed with impunity. The drooping mushroom shape, with its quaint, old-fashioned garland of silk roses is another type that will carry the hat strings.

Of velvet, silk or chiffon these may be. Perhaps velvet holds first place, giving a black contrast for the flower trimmed shape, as it reaches from one side under the chin rather tautly to the other side, from which it may hang in loops and ends.

Silk and chiffon, being more supple, are treated in a different way. They hang loosely from the sides of the shape, and are knotted and caught to the corsage. Some models have the ends tied at the back—a line that must be discreetly adopted.

It is needless to say that "beauty is its own excuse for being," for the hat does not rely upon the tied bands for its security. Modern women will never relinquish their hold on the will o'the wisp hatpin. So if you wish to carry out a note of your costume that is an echo of older times, and if your features are suited to the style, tie your hat with the bands.

PRETTY SHOPPING BAG.

A very serviceable and at the same time artistic shopping bag is shown here. It is made of gray linen, embroidered with two shades of green and brown. The centers of the conventional flowers are buttonholed eyelets in brown. The short petals are in the dark green and the long petals in the light green. A heavy gray silk cord is run through the casing near the top of the bag, and the same cord is sewn round the bag.

Wooden Bodkin.

A wooden match or toothpick may be made to replace the missing bodkin by merely folding over its point an end of the tape or ribbon and then forcing the stick so that its whole length is wrapped.

It will then run through the casing without danger of loss of the ribbon.

Two boys who dived into [illegible] pond at Tuckahoe, N. Y., were horrified when they rose to find a third silent swimmer between them. Floating face downward in the pond was the body of Katherine McCarthy, 20 years old, fully dressed. There were no indications of violence and yet the girl's friends cannot understand how she could have committed suicide, for she had no known worries, nor does it seem likely that she could have stumbled into the pond by accident, for she was familiar with the neighborhood. Masterson's past has a black record. It lies in the bottom of an abandoned quarry, dammed by thick bushes.

While serving cold drinks at a lawn social at Louisville, Ky., William Reid, aged 12 years, was probably fatally injured when a bottle of pop exploded with such force that particles of glass practically cut all the flesh from his face. He was hurried to a hospital and physicians said that even should he live, the sight of both eyes would be lost.

Seven aeroplanes, stored in a tent at a local park, were demolished when a heavy wind storm struck East St. Louis, Ill. The Farman aeroplane, with which the French aeroplanist won a world's record, is a total wreck. It was owned by J. W. Carson, of Hawthorne, Ill. The other machines belonged to local amateurs. The total loss is estimated at $25,000.

Two persons were killed and one was injured in a rear-end collision between two freight trains on the Norfolk and Western railway near Curve, Va. Flagman Davis and Fireman Turner were in the cab of the foremost train and were crushed by the engines that struck the caboose.

Rewards aggregating $7,500 have been offered for the capture of the assassin of Mayor A. H. Bousman, of Ridgeway, Va. Mayor Bousman was killed Sunday night by a stick of dynamite thrown from the street while he lay on the lawn surrounding his home.

Miss Myrtle Solly, head nurse on night duty at the Hillman hospital, Birmingham, Ala., accidentally stepped into an elevator shaft at the hospital and was fatally injured. Her back was broken and skull fractured by the fall.

Dr. William Burnley, a dentist, recently from Richmond, Va., cut his wife's throat at Cincinnati, and then slashed his own throat, inflicting injuries that will probably prove fatal in both cases. Burnley's tragic act is attributed to craze from the extreme heat.

NOTES FROM THE NATION'S CAPITAL. A Washington dispatch says: The agitation for a reform of the coast and geodetic survey, pressed by the mercantile marine associations and nautical interests, will probably result in a congressional investigation the coming winter. A postponement of this inquiry was necessitated at the last session by the absence of Senator Clarke, a member of the sub-committee, to which it was delegated.

The census bureau has made public the following population returns: Arkansas—Saline county, 16,057, last census 13,122. Nebraska—Madison county, 19,101, last census 16,976; Seward county, 16,896, last census 15,090. Texas—Temple, Bell county, 10,993, last census, 7,065.

Improvements to cost more than $1,000,000 are being made at the capitol and in the senate and house office buildings. Fourteen new suits of offices, costing $94,000, are being fitted out in the basement of the senate office buildings. Scores of laborers are at work on the big dome, going over every inch of the exterior with paint and scrubbing brush and not even the Goddess of Liberty, nearly 300 feet above the ground, has been forgotten.

TO BEAUTIFY THE BEDROOM

Good Taste and Careful Selection Can Be Made to Supplement Thin Pocketbook.

With $10 and time to look through the shops the average woman can furnish a bedroom with finishings so it will be attractive. A prospective purchaser will discover that green striped seersucker for hangings, bedspreads, etc., is smart looking and inexpensive. Of such material I have in mind a piece with fine stripe. The color is pale, the green line intersected by one of tan. The fact that this washes is a point in favor, and that no ironing is required is another virtue at a season when laundresses are sometimes hard to find. Moreover, this fabric does not crumple, and the many times it is placed on and removed from a bed will not muss it. Made from this goods one bed cover I saw recently had sides and ends hanging over. Put around this, so it lay on the edge of the mattress, was a nine-inch band of linen, the same shade as the green in the seersucker. This was repeated in the bolster, and on the table and bureau covers, as well as on the drapery curtains which hung straight to the sill. The latter were run on small brass rods which were concealed by the hems. Such a set for a room is not difficult to make, nor does it take long if a sewing machine is used.

For the room of a young girl nothing is more charming than white muslin treated in similar fashion with bands of flowered muslin. Any of these wash, look cool and are easily kept fresh.

Unbleached cotton makes satisfactory curtains and covers, although I am aware it may not sound as if it would.

To make a desirable effect the muslin must be used in a room which has a positive color on the wall—that is, red, blue, green or yellow must be sharply in evidence. Let the curtains in such room hang to the sill, having the edges trimmed with small ball fringe. The bed cover needs the same finish, as does any other piece.

This is lovely, and, of course, will wear for years.—Helen Howe, in Washington Star.

Has Her Trained.

There are wives, said Easymark, who won't do what their husbands tell them to do—just won't!—that's all there is to it. My wife, however, is better trained. She always carefully explains to me just why she won't.

The Secret of Youth

Do you ever wonder how you can remain young, or why other women older than you, look younger than you do?

The secret can be put in a few words: "Preserve your health, and you will preserve your youth."

By "health" we mean not alone physical health, but nerve health, as, sometimes, magnificently strong-looking women are nervous wrecks.

But whether you are weak physically or nervously, you need a tonic, and the best tonic for you is Cardui.

It builds strength for the physical and nervous systems. It helps put flesh on your bones and vitality into your nerves.

THE YOUNG REPORTER

He Appeared to Be Very Industrious.

"Hendrick's certainly industrious," said Mr. Pickle, night city editor of the Daily Whiff. "He's always writing Sunday stuff."

"Can't burn the candle at both ends," observed Tom Click, who was on the cable desk. "He'll blow up like they all do. He's young and eager, of course, but if he keeps this gait up it'll be tell the gang a food good-by for his."

They gazed at Hendrick, who was beating out a story on his typewriter, Click sighed.

"I remember the biggest week's bill I ever made as a reporter," said he, reflectively. "Time of the St. Louis cyclone. I wrote—"

Here Mr. Pickle's 'phone rang and he answered it with glad haste, because he'd heard about that record bill. Click, having little to do at the moment, strolled about the city room. He halted at Hendrick's desk and greeted the young man amiably.

"Evenin', Joe," said he. "What you making?"

"Sunday story," replied Hendrick, briefly.

Click remained beside him. Hendrick stopped work and hid the sheet upon his machine by carelessly laying one arm over it. He smiled coldly.

"Romance?" pursued Click, and he wondered why Hendrick flushed at the word. "Why don't you shoot out some more of that Bowery junk? It's good and you can't turn out too many of 'em. How you feeling?"

"Oh, I'm all right," said Hendrick. He sighed as if irritated.

"I tell you, better not try to do too much," Click warned. "I was just as gay as you are when I was a young fellow. There'll be reporters after we're dead—"

"Some one on your 'phone, sir," a small copy boy sought the speaker's attention.

"As you'll find out," ended Click, and scuttled to his desk.

Obviously relieved, Hendrick returned to his work. Sheet after sheet joined the neat pile beside the typewriter. In the middle of one, at which he stared with worried eyes, a boy announced that his services were required by the city desk.

"Man killed two, took gas himself and made a bloomer of it, now at the hospital. Wife caught him with affinity on the street. Here's the names. We can't stand over three-quarters tonight. Only a ten-page paper," said Mr. Pickle. "Smith can take it on the 'phone if it looks like a job. Gim me what you can for the first."

It was 1 a. m. when Hendrick finished his night's assignment. Click, going home with all the morning papers under his arm, was shocked to see Hendrick take out an envelope, rapidly scan the typewritten pages it had held and then begin upon the "Sunday stuff." The toiler looked up and met Click's gaze.

"You better go home," said the cable editor sternly. "Gwan, get out o' here and quit that ding-donging forever! Want any eyes or brains left for your old age?"

Hendrick smiled coldly.

Every member of the staff commented on Hendrick's love of work. Between news stories he turned out innumerable columns.

"I believe he's doing a book," said Charlie Cubb, the juvenile individual who did such chores for the Whiff as the older men declined.

"He's been looking gloomier every night since he started on it," remarked Mr. McLemon, who covered Tender loin police. "Ain't a bit like himself."

They speculated, but after one or two attempts the Whiff's staff ceased to ask questions, because Hendrick displayed a too savage temper when inquiries were made. Click publicly mourned over him.

"Hendrick must have six full pages in the magazine," he said to Snipper, the Sunday editor, on a Saturay afternoon. "You shouldn't let him work as he does Bad."

"Why I can't get him to write even a little human interest story—and I offered to run his name over it," said the Sunday editor. "They're all lazy. And he's the laziest."

"Hendrick hasn't anything in tomorrow?"

"Nary a line," said Snipper."

"Mighty queer," ruminated Click. "Is he trying to bust the magazines?"

In the city room Hendrick was writing, as usual, but he appeared.

"Now what you doing?" asked Click. "Sunday story?"

Hendrick nodded sadly.

"Won't the end come out right?"

"Nothing's right," said Hendrick, dolefully. "It's all wrong."

Click heard the swish of a silk gown. That was an infrequent sound in the city room. He looked. A pretty girl, in an olive green gown and a droopy sort of hat with a plume, of which Click approved, followed a pug nosed copy boy toward Hendrick's desk. She carried a sheath of big envelops with the New York Whiff printed in one corners.

"Oh, Joey," she cried, rushing past the boy; "we moved two weeks ago and I just happened to go into the old place and there I found all the letters together! What must you have thought?"

"Is—is it all right?" Hendrick scorned to wait for Click to answer himself. "Is it?"

"Of course, you silly," said the pretty girl. She blushed redly.

"I just couldn't wait, and so walked in here," she added.

Click sneaked away.

GROWING PEANUTS IN SOUTH

One of the Most Desirable of Soil Renovating and Soil-Improving Plants—By-Products Valuable.

To most persons the peanut suggests only the article as it appears for sale, whole, shelled or salted, but during recent years the uses of peanuts have become numerous, and include a wide range of utility. The demand for peanuts for use in the manufacture of food preparations is constantly increasing. By-products of the peanut are now being employed extensively in the manufacture of feeds for farms stock and dairy cows.

The peanut is rapidly becoming an important farm crop throughout the southern states. Its vines are valuable as forage and the peas that are not marketable can be used for feeding purposes. Throughout the boll-weevil district of the cotton belt the peanut is rapidly becoming of importance as a money crop, and special oil-producing varieties will doubtless assist in keeping the oil mills of the southern states supplied with raw materials. The peanut plant, in common with other leguminous plants, has the power of collecting the free nitrogen of the atmosphere and storing it in little nodules upon its roots. For this reason the peanut is one of the most desirable of our soil-renovating and soil-improving plants. It should be borne in mind, however, that in order to benefit the soil the nitrogen so gathered should not be removed, but that the main portion of the roots should be left in the soil.

TIMELY FARM NOTES.

Sweet potatoes grow best on a light sandy loam.

Weeds take more moisture than hot winds.

A moist, cloudy day is an ideal one for transplanting young plants.

Money paid labor for handling weeds is worse than throwing it away.

Breathing dust will injure chickens the same as other animals.

Where hens are used for incubation they should be provided with nests separate from the laying hen flock.

For the earliest crop of lettuce and radishes, work into the soil some strong, stimulating fertilizer, such as poultry droppings.

In Mexico, farmers instead of fencing in their hay and stray stacks, erect them on platforms out of the reach of cattle.

Red clover is usually sown with a grain crop, so that it will cover the field after the latter has been harvested.

The rhubarb roots should be renewed occasionally, as the old ones sometimes rot. Do not allow the seed stalk to go to seed.

Tomatoes run on trellies will not do well where there is an excess of sunshine. They need shade.

Blackberries do not feed widely and hence they do not materially interfere with the growth of the apple trees.

Keep up a liberal flow of milk by good feeding till grass comes. The first grass is watery and contains but little actual feeding value.

Clover hay is the standard of excellence by which the feeding value of all other leguminous crops is measured.

There is a ready market for all the milk, cream and butter that the country can produce.

Most dairymen and farmers now raise their calves by hand, feeding them largely on skim milk during the early period of their lives.

With the coming of warm weather and some green pasture it is easy to make delicious butter.

Roots and silage have been compared for fattening wether lambs without any marked difference in their value becoming apparent.

As many persons have failed in keeping store, teaching school and raising corn and hogs as have failed with chickens.

Her Temperament.

An Atchison girl was not looking well and her mother said to her: "It is your temperament which keeps you feeling badly." The girl walked around in a happy dream; she felt she was different from other people; she had "temperament." Her mother came to her in a day or two with an ugly yellowish brown mixture and said: "Take this surphur and molasses; you have a bilious temperament." The girl collapsed.—Atchison Globe.

Supply Foreign Stamps.

A queer business in New York city is the supplying of current foreign postage stamps to business houses which want to send foreign mail with stamped envelope for returning the answer. Of course Uncle Sam's 50-cent stamp is no good in Sunjel Ujong, upper Rhodesia or the Falkland islands, but a stamp of any of these countries of the equivalent value may be had for seven cents by going to one of the shops that sell them.

Women Church Wardens.

The recent appointment of a woman church warden at Walsgram-on-Sowe, in Warwickshire, England, has brought to light the fact that no fewer than eight other women are exercising the same function in different parishes in England. There is, too, a woman sexton in a small parish in Lincolnshire. The office is hereditary, and has been held by the same family for 200 years.

SEED SELECTION.

The question of getting good, sound, pure seed of high yielding capacity is one of the great fundamental principles of better farming. With the same toil, fertilizers and cultivation, a farmer may vary largely increase the yield of his crops and the profit from the farm by using good improved seed. You would not expect to get pure bred horses from Texas ponies, pure bred hogs from "razor backs", or pure bred Jersey cattle from scrubs. The same principle holds good in corn, cotton, and other crops. To get the best crops and the best seed we must use improved seed.

Go through your corn field as soon as it is mature and select your seed in the field, having the following points in mind:

1. Select only from two-eared plants.
2. Select from plants of medium height with ears three and one-half to four feet from the ground.
3. The plants should be strong with well developed foliage.
4. The ears should be borne on ear-shanks of medium length See that ears are well covered over the tips with shuck or husk.
5. The ears should be well filled at butts and tips, the rows of grains close together, grains wedge shaped and of good length, cobs medium in size.
6. The grain should be of uniform color and all cobs the same color.
7. The ear should taper from butt to tip little or none. About eight and one-half to nine inches around the ear, about three inches down from the large end, is a good size.
8. Take good care of these seed ears through the winter and select the very best ears from this lot in the spring to use in planting the crop. Repeat this each year and in a few years you will have high bred seed corn of the finest quality.

Very sincerely yours,
L. N. DUNCAN.

ALL DRUGGISTS

Alabama Railroad Commission.

Birmingham, Ala., July 15, 1910

Dear Sir:—In the evidence presented to the United States court by the L. & N. railroad they have placed the following values on land used for stations and right of way purposes in Chilton county:

County right of way $100 per acre; depot sites $500 each; section houses $150 each.

These values are for lands alone, not including any buildings or improvements and the L. & N. Railroad company claims the right to charge rates for carrying freight and passengers within the State sufficiently high to earn an adequate return on a basis of these values.

The Railroad Commission of Alabama, for the citizens of the State, is opposing an increase in the rates now charged by the L. & N. for freight and passenger service and is endeavoring to secure and present to the court a correct statement of the value of all the property of this railroad used for transportation purposes within the State of Alabama.

If the above amounts represent the correct value of this class of property then such amounts should be used in arriving at the total value of property upon which they have a right to earn a return through their freight and passenger charges.

If these values are incorrect the Commission wishes to get the correct figures and would appreciate any information that you or other citizens of your county can furnish. 1st Has the L. & N. or any other road paid these prices for land? 2nd At what price can land similarly situated and of equal fertility be bought? 3rd What part of land necessary for right of way for another road through your county would be donated or paid for by subscription?

The railroad is claiming in its argument to the Court that the present reduced freight and passenger rates have resulted in a reduction in the revenues of the road without increasing the amount of tonnage or benefitting the business of the citizens of the State.

Will you advise the Commission whether or not the reduced rates have benefitted or increased your individual business or that of your community?

We are anxious to get at all the facts and would appreciate it if you would bring this matter to the attention of your local papers and ask them to publish this letter that all citizens may be advised of the present conditions.

The question of freight and passenger rates is a most important one to the business of this State and the final decision of the Courts should be based upon the actual facts, whatever they may be.

Yours very truly.
W. D. NESBITT.
Associate Commissioner.

May Sell The Lands

Replying to a communication from Governor Comer, relative to the sale of some lands in Chilton county, formerly the property of the Magnetic Ore company, but which were sold and purchased by the state, Attorney General Alex M. Garber has advised the governor that these lands may be sold at a price fixed by the auditor and treasurer, and approved by the governor. It is further stated that his price may be less than the whole amount of taxes, interest, cost and officer's fees.

SMUGGLE IN MANY DIAMONDS

Importers' Protective Union Declares Foreigners, Not Tourists, Worst Offenders.

New York.—About $10,000,000 worth of diamonds are smuggled into the United States annually, according to a statement issued by the Importers' Protective union, which has just offered to pay rewards of $2,500 and up for information leading to the arrest of offenders.

"An inspection of the returns of sales made by the large exporters in Paris, Vienna, Berlin and London shows that the amount of smuggling is enormous," declared the association's statement. "A good many of the precious stones pass the customs lines in the possession of members of steamships' crews, while at the smaller ports of entry, where there are not such expert appraisers as in New York, the government is cheated of a considerable sum of money by undervaluation.

"The amount of smuggling by tourists is, of course, harder to estimate than even the professional smuggling. But it has been said that more has got through in the past without paying duty than ever was declared.

"But the really big smuggling—carefully organized and cleverly executed—is done by foreigners. Hollanders from Amsterdam come over here and travel about the country selling the stones to small jewelers. They offer them at 7 or 8 per cent. reduction on the regular price, and no questions are asked."

DISCOVER REST FOR WEARY

Berlin Specialist Claims to Have Found Cure for Tired Feeling—Experiments With Dogs.

Berlin.—Prof. Loewy of the Berlin Agricultural High school, a famous specialist, has arranged so that nobody need ever be tired any more—has found how to inoculate us against that exhaustion of vital energy which we call getting fagged out. Perfectly serious he is about it.

He has discovered that a substance called spermin injected under the skin removes the symptoms of exhaustion and enables weary creatures to go on working long after nature usually cries "Halt!"

Some trained dogs were set like prisoners to run everlastingly uphill over an electrically-driven treadmill. They were kept at this until the poor beasts looked ready to drop with exhaustion and the chemical tests showed that the drain on what constitutes energy in dogs and men was too great to be longer maintained. Then the professor injected large doses of spermin under the dogs' hides.

In three experiments the immediate result was a great recovery from exhaustion and the dogs were set to work again on their treadmill and trotted off, if not as frisk as ever, yet distinctly no longer overtired.

Why spermin produces this extraordinary effect Professor Loewy has not yet ascertained.

Kidney and Bladder Disease.

Thousands of people die annually of kidney and bladder troubles whose lives could be saved by the timely use of U-RA-CURA, the great southern Remedy. It neutralizes and passes diseased accumulations out of the system and by certain health giving processes assists nature to build up new tissues. It is also a fine tonic. Persons who have the least symptoms of these diseases should use this remedy. Druggists sell it at 50c and $1 00 per bottle. If no cannot supply you send to Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

LIVE WIRE ENDS MONOTONY

Lonely Man Unwinds Coil and Promptly Feels Lively Presence—Unconscious Several Hours.

Altoona, Pa.—Becoming lonesome at the substation at Colmsville, a suburb, the other day, Byron Miller, aged twenty, an electrician, started to amuse himself by unwinding an unused coil of wire, when the end came in contact with a lightning arrester. Miller received a high voltage shock, which rendered him unconscious.

Almost instantly the disturbance in the current was noticed at the hydro plant at Huntingdon, 20 miles away, and the man in charge there called the Penn Central company's headquarters here to learn the cause, his message reaching the office before the one from the substation.

Miller was unconscious several hours, being burned about the hands, arms and feet.

What He Needed

Cunningham's Way of Getting a Start

By Kenneth Harris.

Cunningham entered the house with a dragging footstep that immediately excited his wife's sympathy.

"Don't you feel any better this evening, my dear?" she asked, solicitously.

Cunningham sighed wearily. "It's nothing," he said. "I'm just a little tired. It's been rather a hard day, that's all."

"That's what you've been saying for the last two weeks," said Mrs. Cunningham, as she helped him off with his coat. "I believe you are sickening for something."

"Nonsense!" said Cunningham, with a half groan. "I'm just a little under the weather, that's all."

He dragged himself into the dining room and collapsed into an easy chair, while his wife regarded him anxiously.

"Don't you feel bad in any particular place?" she asked. "The strange part of it is that you have a good color and you aren't falling off in weight at all, yet it doesn't seem to me that you've eaten enough to keep yourself alive. Well, I'll get the dinner served. I think you'll like what I have for you this evening—the most beautiful roast lamb."

"I'm not hungry to-night," said Cunningham. "I believe I'll go into the library and lie down for a little while."

"Baxter Cunningham," cried his wife, "you've just got to eat. Why, you'll be sick if you don't eat. You're sick now. You didn't eat a bite of breakfast this morning, and I don't believe you've eaten any lunch."

"Yes, indeed," protested Cunningham. "I ate a good lunch."

He raised himself from the chair with an obvious effort and walked slowly, into the library, where he stretched himself upon the couch and lit a cigar. He was well on his way through the second one when his wife came in with the little Cunninghams.

"I thought I'd just let them come in to say good-night, dear," she said. "Kiss papa now and then go upstairs very quietly. I don't want you to make any noise. Poor papa's sick."

"I'm not sick," said Cunningham, faintly, as he embraced his offspring. "Let 'em make all the noise they want. I don't mind it."

"Would you drink some eggnogg if I made some for you?"

Cunningham shook his head and sighed.

"Why don't you have a doctor? I don't see why you refuse to do that. He could give you a little tonic or something."

"Well, to tell you the truth I saw a doctor down-town yesterday," said Cunningham, "I went to a man Dawson recommended—Dr. Kipper, in the Nokomis building. He's a specialist for nervous troubles and they say he knows his business."

"Why didn't you tell me?" said Mrs. Cunningham, in some agitation. "What did he say?"

"Oh, he thumped me around and asked a lot of questions. I told him, of course, that I'd been working rather hard lately—or, to be exact, he asked me if I hadn't been working pretty hard. Anyway, there's nothing the matter with me, only—"

"What?"

"Well, there's nothing the matter with me. I've told you that right along. The doctor said so, too."

"Baxter," said Mrs. Cunningham, "you're keeping something back from me. You said 'nothing wrong, only—' Only what?"

"Well," said Cunningham, reluctantly, "he said I was run down and overworked, and the best thing I could do would be to go somewhere and relax entirely—stay three or four weeks. I told him it was impossible and he said, 'All right; then I wash my hands of you.'"

"Why is it impossible?" asked Mrs. Cunningham.

"I'm not going to consider it," said Cunningham. "A nice, selfish brute I'd be—and I really wouldn't rest. I'd be thinking of you and the kiddies all the time and wondering if you weren't sick or something and—no, I'm not going."

"You certainly are going," said Mrs. Cunningham, decidedly. "You will go at once, too. We'll think of some quiet place for you to go to."

"I met Jim Reed the other day," said Cunningham, languidly. "He was saying something about going down south on a little trip and he wanted to know if I wouldn't go with him. He said it was an ideal spot—let's see! Well, I didn't pay much attention to him at the time. I forget where it was. I told him I couldn't go, but I guess he's still in town. I might call him up and ask him about it. It wouldn't hurt to do that. But I don't think that I'll go. I don't want to."

Mrs. Cunningham left the library a few minutes later to respond to a call from one of the children, and her husband grinned and lit a fresh cigar.

"I guess it's going to work all right," he said to himself. "It's been a hard job, though, and I'll be mighty glad to eat my meals at regular hours again. Say, but we'll have a time!"

Electric Flatirons Loaned.

Ten thousand flatirons are to be loaned to reliable residents of the Chicago Edison Company for a period of six months. The object of this is to popularize the use of electricity in the household and lead to the introduction of other electric utensils. While these irons are lent for six months only, it is intimated that if the plan proves a success they may be permitted to remain in the hands of the consumers for an indefinite length of time.

POULTRY

IMPORTANCE OF GOOD FEED

Well Established Fact That It Is Easier to Hatch Chickens Than to Raise Them.

It is a well-known fact that it is easier to hatch chickens than to raise them. The following method has given satisfactory results on a successful poultry ranch:

For the first six days a commercial chick feed is used, consisting of cracked grains, such as wheat, oats, corn, millet seed, weed seed, grit, egg shells, and meat scraps. Part of the feed is placed in shallow saucers and the remainder scattered among the chaff. It is important that the young birds should be active, so scratching for food is good exercise. Clean water is kept before them at all times.

When the chicks are let into the outdoor runs, which is about the sixth day, if the weather is favorable, skim milk is added to the ration. This is fed once a day, in the morning, and is placed in drinking fountains in the outside runways. The quantity of milk fed is determined by what will be cleaned up within a short time, for it is not allowed to stand in the fountains all day. Meanwhile the drinking fountains in the brooders are kept supplied with water, and can be removed to the outside runways when desired.

At this period one or even two of the three daily feeds of the commercial chick feed may be replaced by "johnny cake." When the chicks are about three weeks old the commercial feed is gradually replaced by a mixture consisting of one-half of whole wheat, one-fourth of cracked corn, and one-fourth of steel cut oats. This is thrown into the inside runways, mornings and evenings, in a quantity a little less than the chicks will eat. In the middle of the day fifty chicks receive in place of the grain mixture a piece of home-made bread, called "johnny cake," about six inches square and two inches thick. This is made of one part oatmeal, two parts corn meal, a little whole wheat flour, a pinch of salt and infertile eggs from the incubator, the whole being mixed with sour milk and soda. From two to six eggs are used in a johnny cake eighteen inches square and two inches thick. The rule is to feed half to two-thirds of what the chicks will eat of this cake, and never feed anything in such quantity that portions will be left to be trampled on after the chicks have lost interest in it.

In addition to the mixed grains and cake, a small quantity of some succulent material is thrown into the runways. For this purpose grass, carrots, kale, lettuce and the like are used. Kale is much relished, and lettuce is one of the best feeds of this kind. The quantity of this material fed may be judged from the statement that one apple or one loaf of kale is given to fifty chicks.

Chickens will not scratch when they are overfed nor when there is no feed in the litter. The idea is to keep them scratching.

The changes in rations are made gradually. Disorders are easily caused by sudden and radical changes of feed. During this period finely chopped meat is fed sparingly. The chicks get a good many angleworms from the freshly spaded soil in the outside runs.

Scrupulous cleanliness is observed about the brooders and runways. Everything is carefully disinfected by the free use of disinfectants before the chicks are placed in their quarters. This prevents trouble with vermin and sickness. Any chicks that do not show growth and activity from day to day are immediately removed, thus insuring the strength and vigor of the flock.

The self-feeder shown in the illustration is a useful article for the poultry raiser. It is made out of a tin pail, new or old, having a lid to it. A hole is cut three inches long and the tin pressed back, as shown. This will allow the feed to run down as fast as the chicks eat it.

Milk for Chickens.

Buttermilk, sour milk or sweet skimmilk are excellent, but if the latter is fed, it should never sour in the vessel, nor should any other article of food ever sour, or remain after the meal. Keep vessels and feedboards strictly clean. Greens, such as lettuce, clover and chopped vegetables, must not be missing, but fed liberally with other feed when the chicks are housed. Insist upon variety in feed and feeding, systematically embracing the foregoing diet. Good mixtures may also be had from reliable supply houses.

Sign of the Flower.

Flowers' eggs will always be found with their points to the center, and are invariably four in number, and if disarranging the mother bird speedily rearranges them. They are among the most difficult to find, for their color harmonizes wonderfully with their surroundings.

Warranted Heart Whole.

"Break an hour's promise in love! He that will divide a minute into a thousand parts and break but a part of a thousandth part of a minute in the affairs of love, it may be said of him that Cupid hath clapped him o' the shoulder, but I'll warrant him heart whole."—Hamlet.

For the Gardener.

A case for gardeners is as neat as it is possible to make such a compendium of tools. In it are harbored a pruning knife, thorn scissors and those for gathering flowers, nonegay wire, a measure, a note book and other convenient items.

The Shad Crop.

Shad has been very abundant on the Atlantic coast this year; yet experts declare that had it not been for the government hatcheries this fish would now be practically extinct here for commercial purposes.

Parasites of Insects.

Since the Dutch philosopher Leeuwenhoek discovered that the pupa of the flea was sometimes preyed on by the larva of a mite, it has been well known that various small insects have their external parasites.

The Philosopher of Folly.

"People waste a lot of time in useless conversation," says the Philosopher of Folly. "It's queer to have a man put his face against yours and impart the secret that he ate young onions for supper."

Laxative for Women Free

There is a great difference in the purposes to which a laxative should be put. Tablets and pills, salts, etc., are usually violent purgatives or cathartics, and altogether too powerful for the average person.

A woman at all times needs only a mild laxative—in fact, none other is needed by anyone, weak or strong though they may be, for the object is simply to move the bowels, and if a gentle laxative will do it, what is the use of a violent one?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has earned a well-deserved vogue among women and children and old folks—people who must necessarily be careful of what they take.

It is a liquid laxative tonic and admittedly the greatest stomach, liver and bowel remedy before the American people. The price is only 50 cents or $1 a bottle, as it comes in both sizes, and all druggists sell it. Its pleasant taste and gentle action make it an ideal remedy for women in constipation, torpid liver, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn and such like digestive complaints. Its use for a short time will remove the trouble entirely so that future medication will be unnecessary. Its tonic properties build up the stomach and intestinal muscles so that they act naturally again. That this is so is the experience of many heads of families, like Mrs. Branham, of Alvarado, Va., Mrs. K. L. Stout, of Louisville, Ky., and numerous others; in fact, way out in Williams, Cal., as Mrs. J. E. Blackmore, of that place, writes, the whole town seems to be using it.

If the remedy is new to you and you want to make a trial of it before buying, send your name to the doctor's address as below and a free test bottle will be sent you. Then, if results are satisfactory you can buy it of your druggist.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

Illustrating Favorite Story.

Illustrating favorite stories may form a new recreation for children and be a variation on pasting pictures at random in scrapbooks. Let the children hunt for magazine pictures that will, in their opinion, illustrate scenes or incidents in favorite stories. These pictures may be pasted in proper order in a scrapbook, with the name of the story written on the page.

Substitute for Wall Paper.

Among the peculiar substitutes for wall paper is that used in one of the New York art galleries. It is nothing but a huge rag carpet of neutral tone that covers the entire wall space. "I had it woven especially for this purpose," said the owner, "and my pictures never had a better setting, though I am bound to admit that the carpet attracts as much attention as the paintings."

Bluejackets as Divers.

The free instruction given by the United States navy at its seamen gunners' school includes a course in diving. Many of the younger bluejackets become very proficient in this work. Besides his regular pay the member of a ship's crew, if a diver, receives an extra compensation of $1.20 per hour for the actual time he is employed under water.

Value of Confidence.

The proverb has it that a man's character is no better than his creed; the dwarf is without a creed and longs for none. It is the pushing man who boasts of a creed and convictions along with it. The man who has full confidence in himself seldom comes out at the short end of the horn in the battle of life.

Do not plant short rows but let them run the whole length of the garden if need be—why not?

Do not molest the bees after they get to work, and give them an abundance of room in which to store honey.

The agricultural department figures out that the annual waste of barnyard manure on American farms, aggregates $25,000,000.

The use of comb foundation has made possible the production of straight brood and extract combs and marketable comb honey.

A plant of Swiss chard sown adjoining the poultry yard will supply greens all summer provided the fowls are not allowed to eat it more than an hour a day.

Don't keep bees unless you mean to give them the proper care and attention. If you can't do that you had better leave some one else keep the bees and buy your honey from him.

Water for Bees.

Plenty of water is absolutely necessary for bees; an abundant supply should be provided, to obviate the necessity of their going to streams and contaminated pools a long distance away. In brood rearing, bees make little progress without plenty of water.

Irrigate the Garden.

Irrigation of the garden can be made to pay in the corn belt during the hot, dry season of summer. A little water at the right time does a world of good. In this connection a gasoline engine and some hose would pay well.

Scummy Drinking Vessels.

Scummy drinking vessels cause sickness. They should be scalded out every now and then. Filthy water drunk daily is very irritating to the bowels. Water is the principal constituent of the flesh, bones, feathers and eggs of fowls, and necessarily large quantities of it is consumed daily. Therefore, it should be seen that the water supply is not only pure, but fresh.

Feeding Cotton Seed Meal.

Southern farmers have learned that feeding cotton seed meal in large quantities is bad business, as it often leads to fatalities. Fed in small quantities, however, with corn and alfalfa it is beneficial.

Breakfast Eggs.

Put six eggs into a vessel which will hold five pints. Pour over boiling water to fill the dish, cover closely and set on the back part of the stove or the rack to cook. Leave seven minutes for a soft cooked egg, ten for a medium cooked, fifteen for a firm and thirty for a hard cooked egg.

Jesus on the Way to Jerusalem

Sunday School Lesson for Aug. 7, 1910
Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Matthew 19: 1, 2 13-22. Memory verses 19-15.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Jesus said: Suffer little children and forbid them not, to come unto me: for such is the kingdom of heaven."—Matt. 19:4.

TIME.—March A. D. 29.

PLACE.—Perea, beyond Jordan, during Jesus' last journey to Jerusalem.

Suggestion and Practical Thought.

He did for men those deeds which revealed the loving kindness of our father; the blessings to be found in his kingdom, and the spirit that must fill every one who enters and dwells therein.—Vs. 1-2. "When Jesus has finished these sayings." His private instructions to his disciples during the past few weeks. "He departed from Galilee and came into the coasts, borders." Jesus by his words and deeds expressed the loving kindness and tender mercies of our Heavenly Father. They were the incarnation, the visible expressions of the heart of our invisible God.

Jesus through his treatment of children taught us some of the most effective ways of bringing the world into the kingdom of heaven:

By training the children to follow him.

By ourselves having the childlike spirit.

After Jesus had built around the family a wall of defense against the lusts and "dragons of the slime," that would ruin it (vs. 9-12) there were (v. 13) "brought unto him little children."

"Should put his hands on them," those hands that had been used in many a miracle of healing, and even of raising the dead. The touching would make more real to them the fact of his blessing conveyed in this way, and would be an influential memory to the children all their lives long. "And pray." Invoke God's blessing upon them; pray that all good should come to them for this life and the life to come, that they might grow up in the kingdom of heaven.

But when his "disciples" saw it, they "rebuked them," the mothers. They probably thought that Jesus ought not to stop his important teachings merely to bless a few children.

"But Jesus," moved with indignation (Mark 10:14) because they so misunderstood his character and his work as to hinder any who wished to come to him, especially children, the hope of the church, and the mothers, the best workers for his kingdom, called them unto him (Luke), taking the children in his arms, and blessing them (Mark). "Suffer (permit, let them alone) little children . . . forbid them not," emphasizing his command by the repetition, putting it in both the positive and the negative form. "To come unto me."

"Twelve men were debating great questions about the expected kingdom. The Master set a little child in their midst and said. 'Think of him.'

The highest good, the "summum bonum" of man is eternal life in the kingdom of God.—Vs. 16-26. Parallels. Mark 10:17-22; Luke 18:18-23. As Jesus was leaving the house where he had blessed the children (Mark 10:13-17), one came running (Mark), showing his earnestness, and kneeled before him and said, "Good Master" (teacher), "what good thing shall I do?" What act of sacrifice or heroism, what generous action, what penance or sufferings? He has the idea of purchasing, of deserving, of inheriting eternal life. "That I may have" (Mark, "inherit") "eternal life," have it as a permanent possession, in the home of his father.

"Why callest thou me good?" The reading adopted by the revisers is, "Why askest thou me concerning that which is good?" What is the real "good" you are seeking for?

"But if thou wilt enter into life" (the true life, eternal life), "keep the commandments." The young man asks which, and Jesus names several of the commandments that relate to his conduct toward his fellowmen, and adds "love thy neighbor as thyself," the sum and soul of them all. "Sell that thou hast." Not for himself, but to give to the poor.

"And thou shalt have treasure in heaven." You will have the character which belongs to heaven, and have a noble and glorious part in the redemption of the world.

And then Jesus made him the greatest possible offer, greater than the emperor could have bestowed upon him, greater than he could conceive unless he could have seen the vision of the Gospel's triumph and of Jesus the King of kings and Lord of lords in a redeemed world. That offer was, "Come and follow me." Come to Jesus, to his character and person, join the company of the apostles who were to carry on the kingdom of God in the world. He might be the business man of the apostles in the place of Judas, who had failed. There was a need and a place for just such a man.

Mahmoud, the greatest Mohammedan conqueror of India, when he had reached Somnat, an idol 15 feet high facing the entrance of the temple, instantly ordered the image to be destroyed; but the Brahmins threw themselves before him and offered an enormous ransom if he would spare their duty. "Mahmoud struck the image with his mace. His example was instantaneously followed, and the image burst and poured forth a quantity of diamonds and other jewels which amply repaid Mahmoud for the sacrifice of the ransom."—Elphinstone.

Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union of America

Matters of Especial Moment to the Progressive Agriculturist

A wolf in sheep's clothing is none the less a wolf.

Constant fault finding never mended anything.

The laws of co-operation are as old as the world itself.

A machine in the shed is worth two in the weather. Where is yours?

Anger is worse than mince pie at midnight as a digestion destroyer.

If there were no fools in the world the lawyers would all be out of work.

Borrowing may result of necessity at first, but it soon becomes a habit with some people.

The soy bean is a soil improver and is particularly noted for its value as a pasture for hogs.

Let no man imagine for a moment that he ever owned a piece of land of inexhaustible fertility.

Science is the accumulated knowledge acquired through practical experience gained by application of correct methods on the farm.

Too many of us are like sheep—always ready to follow a leader without knowing where he is going, and wasting strength in jumping over imaginary obstacles.

A farmer's capital consists of good health, strength and good soil, but unless he mixes plenty of common sense with them his returns will be disappointing.

The members of the union are getting a move on themselves in a business way. That is right; get everything ready by market time.

A man may know much more than his neighbor, but he should be too busy to think about that. The world pays a premium on knowledge, but it don't pay a cent for boasting.

We would rather trust the man who always puts good apples on the bottom, middle and top of the barrel and says nothing about it than all the "honest Johns" in the neighborhood.

AIM OF FARMERS' SOCIETIES

Plan to Place Practical Object Lesson Before Masses, Illustrating Best Methods.

(By S. A. KNAPP.)

The aim of the Farmers' Co-operative Demonstration Work is to place a practical object lesson before the farm masses, illustrating the best and most profitable methods of producing the standard farm crops, and to secure such active participation in the demonstrations as to prove that the farmers can make a much larger average annual crop and secure a greater return for their toil.

This work shows also that there is no necessity for the general deterioration of farms and the too common poverty of the rural masses.

Briefly stated, the salient features of the rural lessons given by the farm demonstration work are as follows:

1. Better drainage of the soil.

2. A deeper and more thoroughly pulverized seed bed; deep fall breaking (plowing) with implements that will not bring the subsoil to the surface.

3. The use of seed of the best variety, intelligently selected and carefully stored.

4. In cultivated crops, giving the rows and the plants in the rows a space suited to the plant, the soil and the climate.

5. Intensive tillage during the growing period of the crops.

6. The importance of a high content of humus in the soil; the use of legumes, barnyard manure, farm refuse and commercial fertilizers.

7. The value of crop rotation and a winter covering on southern farms.

8. The accomplishing of more work in a day by each laborer by using more horsepower and better implements.

9. The importance of increasing the farm stock to the extent of utilizing all the waste products and idle lands of the farm.

10. The production of all food required for the men and animals on the farm.

11. The keeping of an account with each farm product, in order to know from which the gain or loss arises.

The demonstration work is conducted by a special agent who reports directly to the chief of the bureau of plant industry at Washington, D. C. The work now covers portions of 12 states, employing 375 traveling agents, and has many demonstration farms.

The average farmer may continue for years to believe he has the best seed of the several crops he produces unless he is brought into direct public comparison and competition with other farmers, not in an exhibition where prizes are to be awarded, but in a mere exhibit of what the farmers expect to plant without any assorting.

Cowpeas and Peanuts.

Do not forget that cowpeas and peanuts are friends of poor land and unfortunate farmers. Their rapid growth, quick maturity and commercial value recommend them for late planting. Those who lost their crops by hail or storm should plant them liberally.

COLDS FROM EXPOSURE

Things Get Better.

In spite of all the confusions and thwartings of life, the habits and resiliences and the counterstrokes of fate, it is manifest that, in the long run, human life becomes broader than it was, gentler than it was, finer and deeper. One the whole—and nowadays almost steadily—things get better. This is a secular amelioration of life, and it is brought about by good will working through the efforts of men.—H. G. Wells.

Side-Stepping a Sneeze.

Probably everybody has experienced the displeasure, if not actual pain, which comes from missing a sneeze. There is an easy way out of this if one happens to be out of doors at the time and the weather is clear. Just glance at the sun. There is something about the brightness of it that supplies the missing irritation, or whatever it is that is needed, and nine times out of ten if the sneeze has not got too far away it will come back.

Deposit of Soda in Uganda.

A deposit of soda has been found at the terminus of the projected line of the Uganda railway. It is described by the discoverer as being a lake about ten miles long by two or three wide. The water is only a few inches deep and covers a hard surface of soda resembling pink marble. The soda was found to be of considerable depth.

Photographs on Guard.

It is not improbable that in war times some form of photography will be used to detect the on-coming war eagle of a flying battleship, just as photos are made of dark and bright stars that cannot be detected by the eye and the most powerful telescope. Sentinels would look every few seconds at the photographic plates instead of at the sky.

Your Heart and Lungs

The Liver is the strainer for the blood before it enters the heart and lungs. It separates the impurities from the venous blood of the porta system. Often this organ becomes dormant and then biliousness, fever lassitude etc. comes on. Keep the liver in good condition and disease will go somewhere else and health and happiness will result. For this purpose GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR should be in every house and used by all travelers. It is by far the best liver medicine on the market. Druggists sell it in 25c boxes at 25c per box.

The plan now is to educate hawkers and ragmen to use their voices so that they will not disturb or offend the cultured. Pleasant Manners.

What He Needed

Cunningham's Way of Getting a Girl

By Kennett Harris.

Cunningham entered the house with a dragging footstep that immediately excited his wife's sympathy.

"Don't you feel any better this evening, my dear?" she asked, solicitously.

Cunningham sighed wearily. "It's nothing," he said. "I'm just a little tired. It's been rather a hard day, that's all."

"That's what you've been saying for the last two weeks," said Mrs. Cunningham, as she helped him off with his coat. "I believe you are sickening for something."

"Nonsense!" said Cunningham, with a half groan. "I'm just a little under the weather, that's all."

He dragged himself into the dining room and collapsed into an easy chair, while his wife regarded him anxiously.

"Don't you feel bad in any particular place?" she asked. "The strange part of it is that you have a good color and you aren't falling off in weight at all, yet it doesn't seem to me that you've eaten enough to keep yourself alive. Well, I'll get the dinner served. I think you'll like what I have for you this evening—the most beautiful roast lamb."

"I'm not hungry to-night," said Cunningham. "I believe I'll go into the library and lie down for a little while."

"Baxter Cunningham," cried his wife, "you've just got to eat. Why, you'll be sick if you don't eat. You're sick now. You didn't eat a bite of breakfast this morning, and I don't believe you've eaten any lunch."

"Yes, indeed," protested Cunningham. "I ate a good lunch."

He raised himself from the chair with an obvious effort and walked slowly, into the library, where he stretched himself upon the couch and lit a cigar. He was well on his way through the second one when his wife came in with the little Cunninghams.

"I thought I'd just let them come in to say good-night, dear," she said. "Kiss papa now and then go upstairs very quietly. I don't want you to make any noise. Poor papa's sick."

"I'm not sick," said Cunningham, faintly, as he embraced his offspring. "Let 'em make all the noise they want. I don't mind it."

"Would you drink some eggnogg if I made some for you?"

Cunningham shook his head and sighed.

"Why don't you have a doctor? I don't see why you refuse to do that. He could give you a little tonic or something."

"Well, to tell you the truth I saw a doctor down-town yesterday," said Cunningham, "I went to a man Dawson recommended—Dr. Kipper, in the Nokomis building. He's a specialist for nervous troubles and they say he knows his business."

"Why didn't you tell me?" said Mrs. Cunningham, in some agitation. "What did he say?"

"Oh, he thumped me around and asked a lot of questions. I told him, of course, that I'd been working rather hard lately—or, to be exact, he asked me if I hadn't been working pretty hard. Anyway, there's nothing the matter with me, only—"

"What?"

"Well, there's nothing the matter with me. I've told you that right along. The doctor said so, too."

"Baxter," said Mrs. Cunningham, "you're keeping something back from me. You said 'nothing wrong, only—' Only what?"

"Well," said Cunningham, reluctantly, "he said I was run down and overworked, and the best thing I could do would be to go somewhere and relax entirely—stay three or four weeks. I told him it was impossible and he said, 'All right; then I wash my hands of you.'"

"Why is it impossible?" asked Mrs. Cunningham.

"I'm not going to consider it," said Cunningham. "A nice, selfish brute I'd be—and I really wouldn't rest. I'd be thinking of you and the kiddies all the time and wondering if you weren't sick or something and—no, I'm not going."

"You certainly are going," said Mrs. Cunningham, decidedly. "You will go at once, too. We'll think of some quiet place for you to go to."

"I met Jim Reed the other day," said Cunningham, languidly. "He was saying something about going down south on a little trip and he wanted to know if I wouldn't go with him. He said it was an ideal spot—let's see! Well, I didn't pay much attention to him at the time. I forget where it was. I told him I couldn't go, but I guess he's still in town. I might call him up and ask him about it. It wouldn't hurt to do that. But I don't think that I'll go. I don't want to."

Mrs. Cunningham left the library a few minutes later to respond to a call from one of the children, and her husband grinned and lit a fresh cigar.

"I guess it's going to work all right," he said to himself. "It's been a hard job, though, and I'll be mighty glad to eat my meals at regular hours again. Say, but we'll have a time!"

Electric Flatirons Loaned.

Ten thousand flatirons are to be lent to reliable customers of the Chicago Edison Company for a period of six months. The object of this is to popularize the use of electricity in the household and lead to the introduction of other electric utensils. While these irons are lent for six months only, it is intimated that if the plan proves a success they may be permitted to remain in the hands of the consumers for an indefinite length of time.

POULTRY

IMPORTANCE OF GOOD FEED

Well Established Fact That It Is Easier to Hatch Chickens Than to Raise Them.

It is a well-known fact that it is easier to hatch chickens than to raise them. The following method has given satisfactory results on a successful poultry ranch:

For the first six days a commercial chick feed is used, consisting of cracked grains, such as wheat, oats, corn, millet seed, weed seed, grit, egg shells, and meat scraps. Part of the feed is placed in shallow saucers and the remainder scattered among the chaff. It is important that the young birds should be active, so scratching for food is good exercise. Clean water is kept before them at all times.

When the chicks are let into the outdoor runs, which is about the sixth day, if the weather is favorable, skim milk is added to the ration. This is fed once a day, in the morning, and is placed in drinking fountains in the outside runways. The quantity of milk fed is determined by what will be cleaned up within a short time, for it is not allowed to stand in the fountains all day. Meanwhile the drinking fountains in the brooders are kept supplied with water, and can be removed to the outside runways when desired.

At this period one or even two of the three daily feeds of the commercial chick feed may be replaced by "johnny cake." When the chicks are about three weeks old, the commercial feed is gradually replaced by a mixture consisting of one-half of whole wheat, one-fourth of cracked corn, and one-fourth of steel cut oats. This is thrown into the inside runways, mornings and evenings, in a quantity a little less than the chicks will eat. In the middle of the day fifty chicks receive in place of the grain mixture a piece of home-made bread, called "johnny cake," about six inches square and two inches thick. This is made of one part oatmeal, two parts corn meal, a little whole wheat flour, a pinch of salt and infertile eggs from the incubator, the whole being mixed with sour milk and soda. From two to six eggs are used in a johnny cake eighteen inches square and two inches thick. The rule is to feed half to two-thirds of what the chicks will eat of this cake, and never feed anything in such quantity that portions will be left to be trampled on after the chicks have lost interest in it.

In additon to the mixed grains and cake, a small quantity of some succulent material is thrown into the runways. For this purpose grass, carrots, kale, lettuce and the like are used. Kale is much relished, and lettuce is one of the best feeds of this kind. The quantity of this material fed may be judged from the statement that one apple or one loaf of kale is given to fifty chicks.

Chickens will not scratch when they are overfed nor when there is no feed in the litter. The idea is to keep them scratching.

The changes in rations are made gradually. Disorders are easily caused by sudden and radical changes of feed. During this period finely chopped meat is fed sparingly. The chicks get a good many angleworms from the freshly spaded soil in the outside runs.

Scrupulous cleanliness is observed about the brooders and runways. Everything is carefully disinfected by the free use of disinfectants before the chicks are placed in their quarters. This prevents trouble with vermin and sickness. Any chicks that do not show growth and activity from day to day are immediately removed, thus insuring the strength and vigor of the flock.

The self-feeder shown in the illustration is a useful article for the poultry raiser. It is made out of a tin pail, new or old, having a lid to it. A hole is cut three inches long and the tin pressed back, as shown. This will allow the feed to run down as fast as the chicks eat it.

Milk for Chickens.

Buttermilk, sour milk or sweet skimmilk are excellent, but if the latter is fed, it should never sour in the vessel, nor should any other article of food ever sour, or remain after the meal. Keep vessels and feedboards strictly clean. Greens, such as lettuce, clover and chopped vegetables, must not be missing, but fed liberally with other feed when the chicks are housed. Insist upon variety in feed and feeding, systematically embracing the foregoing diet. Good mixtures may also be had from reliable supply houses.

Eggs of the Plover.

Plovers' eggs will always be found with their points to the center, and are invariably four in number, and if disarranged the mother bird speedily rearranges them. They are among the most difficult to find, for their color harmonizes wonderfully with their surroundings.

Warranted Heart Whole.

"Break an hour's promise in love! He that will divide a minute into a thousand parts and break but a part of a thousandth part of a minute in the affairs of love, it may be said of him that Cupid hath clapped him o' the shoulder, but I'll warrant him heart whole."—Rosalind.

Laxative for Women Free

There is a great difference in the purposes to which a laxative should be put. Tablets and pills, salts, etc., are usually violent purgatives or cathartics, and altogether too powerful for the average person.

A woman at all times needs only a mild laxative—in fact, none other is needed by anyone, weak or strong though they may be, for the object is simply to move the bowels, and if a gentle laxative will do it, what is the use of a violent one?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has earned a well-deserved vogue among women and children and old folks—people who must necessarily be careful of what they take.

It is a liquid laxative tonic and admittedly the greatest stomach, liver and bowel remedy before the American people. The price is only 50 cents or $1 a bottle, as it comes in both sizes, and all druggists sell it. Its pleasant taste and gentle action make it an ideal remedy for women in constipation, torpid liver, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn and such like digestive complaints. Its use for a short time will remove the trouble entirely so that future medication will be unnecessary. Its tonic properties build up the stomach and intestinal muscles so that they act naturally again. That this is so is the experience of many heads of families, like Mrs. Brannan, of Alvarado, Va., Mrs. K. L. Stout, of Louisville, Ky., and numerous others; in fact, way out in Williams, Cal., as Mrs. J. E. Blackmore, of that place, writes, the whole town seems to be using it.

If the remedy is new to you and you want to make a trial of it before buying, send your name to the doctor's address as below and a free test bottle will be sent you. Then, if results are satisfactory you can buy it of your druggist.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

Substitute for Wall Paper.

Among the peculiar substitutes for wall paper is that used in one of the New York art galleries. It is nothing but a huge rag carpet of neutral tone that covers the entire wall space. "I had it woven especially for this purpose," said the owner, "and my pictures never had a better setting, though I am bound to admit that the carpet attracts as much attention as the paintings."

Bluejackets as Divers.

The free instruction given by the United States navy at its seamen gunners' school includes a course in diving. Many of the younger bluejackets become very proficient in this work. Besides his regular pay the member of a ship's crew, if a diver, receives an extra compensation of $1.20 per hour for the actual time he is employed under water.

Value of Confidence.

The proverb has it that a man's character is no better than his creed; the dwarf is without a creed and longs for none. It is the pushing man who boasts of a creed and convictions along with it. The man who has full confidence in himself seldom comes out at the short end of the horn in the battle of life.

FARM NOTES

Plant the rows all one way—north and south—so the sun can strike both sides.

Keep the hoe going in dry weather and you will not need the watering pot often.

The wheelbarrow will save many a backache and do the work of three hand hoes.

Making a good garden is a man's job. Do not leave the hard work to the women folks.

Wild strawberries have the most delicious flavor. They are easily transplanted to the garden.

Cauliflower can be grown more easily than cabbage. It is always in demand and at good prices.

A handful of grain dug into an ant hill will bring the chickens to it and then good-by to the insects.

Do not plant short rows but let them run the whole length of the garden if need be—why not?

Do not molest the bees after they get to work, and give them an abundance of room in which to store honey.

The agricultural department figures out that the annual waste of barn yard manure on American farms, aggregates $275,000,000.

The use of comb foundation has made possible the production of straight brood and extract combs and marketable comb honey.

A plant of Swiss chard sown adjoining the poultry yard will supply greens all summer provided the fowls are not allowed to eat it more than an hour a day.

Don't keep bees unless you mean to give them the proper care and attention. If you can't do that you had better leave some one else keep the bees and buy your honey from him.

Water for Bees.

Plenty of water is absolutely necessary for bees; an abundant supply should be provided, to obviate the necessity of their going to streams and contaminated pools a long distance away. In brood rearing, bees make little progress without plenty of water.

Irrigate the Garden.

Irrigation of the garden can be made to pay in the corn belt during the hot, dry season of summer. A little water at the right time does a world of good. In this connection a gasoline engine and some hose would pay well.

Scummy Drinking Vessels.

Scummy drinking vessels cause sickness. They should be scalded out every now and then. Filthy water drunk daily is very irritating to the bowels. Water is the principal constituent of the flesh, bones, feathers and eggs of fowls, and necessarily large quantities of it is consumed daily. Therefore, it should be seen that the water supply is not only pure, but fresh.

Feeding Cotton Seed Meal.

Southern farmers have learned that feeding cotton seed meal in large quantities is bad business, as it often leads to fatalities. Fed in small quantities, however, with corn and alfalfa it is beneficial.

Breakfast Eggs.

Put six eggs into a vessel which will hold five pints. Pour over boiling water to fill the dish, cover closely and set on the back part of the stove or the rack to cook. Leave seven minutes for a soft cooked egg, ten for a medium cooked, fifteen for a firm and thirty for a hard cooked egg.

The Simple Life

...is for its basis PERFECT HEALTH. The clear brain, the healthy stomach, the healthy organs exercising in harmony, are the first essentials of a Simple Life—

A LIFE OF PEACE AND SATISFACTION.

No one can know the pure delight of simple living whose nervous system is kept in a state of tension by Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness and other diseases due to infection of the blood.

The Simple Way to seek the Simple Life is to seek the remedy for these conditions. This remedy has been found in our great product—

ST. JOSEPH'S Liver Regulator
(In Both Liquid and Powder Form.)

It has made life brighter and happiness and peace possible when all was dark and depressed. It reaches the centers of life and purifies them. It encourages the liver, stomach and bowels to a freer and more natural activity.

Many persons attest this fact who have proved its truth by actual experience.

FARM NOTES

Plant the rows all one way—north and south—so the sun can strike both sides.

Keep the hoe going in dry weather and you will not need the watering pot often.

The wheelhoe will save many a backache and do the work of three hand hoes.

Making a good garden is a man's job. Do not leave the hard work to the women folks.

Wild strawberries have the most delicious flavor. They are easily transplanted to the garden.

Cauliflower can be grown more easily than cabbage. It is always in demand and at good prices.

A handful of grain dug into an ant hill will bring the chickens to it and then good-by to the insects.

Do not plant short rows but let them run the whole length of the garden if need be—why not?

Do not molest the bees after they get to work and give them an abundance of room in which to store honey.

The agricultural department figures out that the annual waste of barn yard manure on American farms, aggregates $25,000,000.

The use of comb foundation has made possible the production of straight brood and extract combs and marketable comb honey.

A plant of Swiss chard sown adjoining the poultry yard will supply greens all summer provided the fowls are not allowed to eat it more than an hour a day.

Don't keep bees unless you mean to give them the proper care and attention. If you can't do that you had better leave some one else keep the bees and buy your honey from him.

Water for Bees.

Plenty of water is absolutely necessary for bees, an abundant supply should be provided, to obviate the necessity of their going to streams and contaminated pools a long distance away. In brood rearing, bees make little progress without plenty of water.

Irrigate the Garden.

Irrigation of the garden can be made to pay in the corn belt during the hot, dry season of summer. A little water at the right time does a world of good. In this connection a gasoline engine and some hose would pay well.

Scummy Drinking Vessels.

Scummy drinking vessels cause sickness. They should be scalded out every now and then. Filthy water drunk daily is very irritating to the bowels. Water is the principal constituent of the flesh, bones, feathers and eggs of fowls, and necessarily large quantities of it is consumed daily. Therefore, it should be seen that the water supply is not only pure, but fresh.

Feeding Cotton Seed Meal.

Southern farmers have learned that feeding cotton seed meal in large quantities is bad business, as it often leads to fatalities. Fed in small quantities, however, with corn and alfalfa it is beneficial.

Breakfast Eggs.

Put six eggs into a vessel which will hold five pints. Pour over boiling water to fill the dish, cover closely and set on the back part of the stove or the rack to cook. Leave seven minutes for a soft cooked egg, ten for a medium cooked, fifteen for a firm and thirty for a hard cooked egg.

The Simple Life

has for its basis PERFECT HEALTH. Then clear brain, the healthy stomach, the healthy organs exercising in harmony, are the first essentials of a Simple Life—

A LIFE OF PEACE AND SATISFACTION.

No one can know the pure delight of simple living whose nervous system is kept in a state of tension by Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness and other diseases due to inaction of the liver.

The Simple Way to seek the Simple Life is to seek the remedy for these conditions. This remedy has been found in our great product—

ST. JOSEPH'S
Liver Regulator
(In Both Liquid and Powder Form.)

It has made life brighter and happiness and peace possible when all was dark and distressed. It reaches the centers of life and purifies them. It encourages the liver, stomach and bowels to a freer and more natural activity.

It is the Simple Way to a Simple Life of Health, Peace, Contentment.

Many persons attest this fact who have proved its truth by actual experience.

St. Joseph's Liquid Liver Regulator is prompt in action, exceedingly palatable and pleasant to the taste. It is sold by druggists and dealers at 50 cents a bottle.

St. Joseph's Liver Regulator in powder form is put up in tight tin boxes and retails at 25 cents a box, five boxes for a dollar. It may be taken dry or made into a tea or syrup. Full directions accompany every bottle and box.

Jesus on the Way to Jerusalem

Sunday School Lesson for Aug. 7, 1910
Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Matthew 19: 1, 2 13-26. Memory verses 13-15.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Jesus said: Suffer little children and forbid them not, to come unto me; for such is the kingdom of heaven."—Matt. 19:4.

TIME.—March A. D. 30.

PLACE.—Perea, beyond Jordan, during Jesus' last journey to Jerusalem.

Suggestion and Practical Thought.

He did for men those deeds which revealed the loving kindness of our father; the blessings to be found in his kingdom, and the spirit that must fill every one who enters and dwells therein.—Vs. 1-2. "When Jesus has finished these sayings." His private instructions to his disciples during the past few weeks. "He departed from Galilee and came into the coasts, borders." Jesus by his words and deeds expressed the loving kindness and tender mercies of our Heavenly Father. They were the incarnation, the visible expressions of the heart of our invisible God.

Jesus through his treatment of children taught us some of the most effective ways of bringing the world into the kingdom of heaven:

By training the children to follow him.

By ourselves having the childlike spirit.

After Jesus had built around the family a wall of defense against the lusts and "dragons of the slime," that would ruin it (vs. 3-12) there were (v. 13) "brought unto him little children."

"Should put his hands on them," those hands that had been used in many a miracle of healing, and even of raising the dead. The touching would make more real to them the fact of his blessing conveyed in this way, and would be an influential memory to the children all their lives long. "And pray." Invoke God's blessing upon them; pray that all good should come to them for this life and the life to come, that they might grow up in the kingdom of heaven.

But when his "disciples" saw it, they "rebuked them," the mothers. They probably thought that Jesus ought not to stop his important teachings merely to bless a few children.

"But Jesus," moved with indignation (Mark 10:14) because they so misunderstood his character and his work as to hinder any who wished to come to him, especially children, the hope of the church, and the mothers, the best workers for his kingdom, called them unto him (Luke), taking the children in his arms, and blessing them (Mark). "Suffer (permit, let them alone) little children . . . forbid them not," emphasizing his command by the repetition, putting it in both the positive and the negative form. "To come unto me."

"Twelve men were debating great questions about the expected kingdom. The Master set a little child in their midst and said. 'Think of him.'

The highest good, the "summum bonum" of man is eternal life in the kingdom of God.—Vs. 16-26. Parallels. Mark 10:17-22; Luke 18:18-23. As Jesus was leaving the house where he had blessed the children (Mark 10:13-17), one came running (Mark), showing his earnestness, and kneeled before him and said, "Good Master" (teacher), "what good thing shall I do?" What act of sacrifice or heroism, what generous action, what penance or sufferings? He has the idea of purchasing, of deserving, of inheriting eternal life. "That I may have" (Mark, "inherit") "eternal life," have it as a permanent possession, in the home of his father.

"Why callest thou me good?" The reading adopted by the revisers is, "Why askest thou me concerning that which is good?" What is the real "good" you are seeking for?

"But if thou wilt enter into life" (the true life, eternal life), "keep the commandments." The young man asks which, and Jesus names several of the commandments that relate to his conduct toward his fellowmen, and adds "love thy neighbor as thyself," the sum and soul of them all. "Sell that thou hast." Not for himself, but to give to the poor.

"And thou shalt have treasure in heaven." You will have the character which belongs to heaven, and have a noble and glorious part in the redemption of the world.

And then Jesus made him the greatest possible offer, greater than the emperor could have bestowed upon him, greater than he could conceive unless he could have seen the vision of the Gospel's triumph and of Jesus the King of kings and Lord of lords in a redeemed world. That offer was, "Come and follow me." Come to Jesus, to his character and person, join the company of the apostles who were to carry on the kingdom of God in the world. He might be the business man of the apostles in the place of Judas, who had failed. There was a need and a place for just such a man.

Mahmoud, the greatest Mohammedan conqueror of India, when he had reached Somnat, an idol 15 feet high facing the entrance of the temple, instantly ordered the image to be destroyed; but the Brahmins threw themselves before him and offered an enormous ransom if he would spare their duty. "Mahmoud struck the image with his mace. His example was instantaneously followed, and the image burst and poured forth a quantity of diamonds and other jewels which amply repaid Mahmoud for the sacrifice of the ransom."—Elphinstone.

Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union of America

Matters of Especial Moment to the Progressive Agriculturist

A wolf in sheep's clothing is none the less a wolf.

Constant fault finding never mended anything.

The laws of co-operation are as old as the world itself.

A machine in the shed is worth two in the weather. Where is yours?

Anger is worse than mince pie at midnight as a digestion destroyer.

If there were no fools in the world the lawyers would all be out of work.

Borrowing may result of necessity at first, but it soon becomes a habit with some people.

The soy bean is a soil improver and is particularly noted for its value as a pasture for hogs.

Let no man imagine for a moment that he ever owned a piece of land of inexhaustible fertility.

Science is the accumulated knowledge acquired through practical experience gained by application of correct methods on the farm.

Too many of us are like sheep—always ready to follow a leader without knowing where he is going, and wasting strength in jumping over imaginary obstacles.

A farmer's capital consists of good health, strength and good soil, but unless he mixes plenty of common sense with them his returns will be disappointing.

The members of the union are getting a move on themselves in a business way. That is right; get everything ready by market time.

A man may know much more than his neighbor, but he should be too busy to think about that. The world pays a premium on knowledge, but it don't pay a cent for boasting.

We would rather trust the man who always puts good apples on the bottom, middle and top of the barrel and says nothing about it than all the "honest Johns" in the neighborhood.

AIM OF FARMERS' SOCIETIES

Plan to Place Practical Object Lesson Before Masses, Illustrating Best Methods.

(By S. A. KNAPP.)

The aim of the Farmers' Co-operative Demonstration Work is to place a practical object lesson before the farm masses, illustrating the best and most profitable methods of producing the standard farm crops, and to secure such active participation in the demonstrations as to prove that the farmers can make a much larger average annual crop and secure a greater return for their toil.

This work shows also that there is no necessity for the general deterioration of farms and the too common poverty of the rural masses.

Briefly stated, the salient features of the rural lessons given by the farm demonstration work are as follows:

1. Better drainage of the soil.

2. A deeper and more thoroughly pulverized seed bed; deep fall breaking (plowing) with implements that will not bring the subsoil to the surface.

3. The use of seed of the best variety, intelligently selected and carefully stored.

4. In cultivated crops, giving the rows and the plants in the rows a space suited to the plant, the soil and the climate.

5. Intensive tillage during the growing period of the crops.

6. The importance of a high content of humus in the soil; the use of legumes, barnyard manure, farm refuse and commercial fertilizers.

7. The value of crop rotation and a winter covering on southern farms.

8. The accomplishing of more work in a day by each laborer by using more horsepower and better implements.

9. The importance of increasing the farm stock to the extent of utilizing all the waste products and idle lands of the farm.

10. The production of all food required for the men and animals on the farm.

11. The keeping of an account with each farm product, in order to know from which the gain or loss arises.

The demonstration work is conducted by a special agent who reports directly to the chief of the bureau of plant industry at Washington, D. C. The work now covers portions of 12 states, employing 375 traveling agents, and has many demonstration farms.

The average farmer may continue for years to believe he has the best seed of the several crops he produces unless he is brought into direct public comparison and competition with other farmers, not in an exhibition where prizes are to be awarded, but in a mere exhibit of what the farmers expect to plant without any assorting.

Cowpeas and Peanuts.

Do not forget that cowpeas and peanuts are friends of poor land and unfortunate farmers. Their rapid growth, quick maturity and commercial value recommend them for late planting. Those who lost their crops by hail or storm should plant them liberally.

COLDS FROM EXPOSURE

to all kinds of inclement weather are of such common occurrence that they are not generally considered dangerous. This is a great mistake. Serious illness often follows in the wake of a neglected cold.

DR. D. JAYNE'S

has been successful for seventy-eight years in curing Colds, Coughs, Bronchitis, and Pleurisy. It is also a standard remedy for Croup, Whooping-Cough, Inflammation of the Lungs or Chest and Asthma.

Cure your cold now—go to your druggist's and get a bottle of Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant. Three sizes, $1.00, 50c. and 25c.

Dr. D. Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge will build you up splendidly if "run down" from a severe cold.

Things Get Better.

In spite of all the confusions and thwartings of life, the habits and resiliences and the counterstrokes of fate, it is manifest that, in the long run, human life becomes broader than it was, gentler than it was, finer and deeper. One the whole—and nowadays almost steadily—things get better. This is a secular amelioration of life, and it is brought about by good will working through the efforts of men.—H. G. Wells.

Side-Stepping a Sneeze.

Probably everybody has experienced the displeasure, if not actual pain, which comes from missing a sneeze. There is an easy way out of this if one happens to be out of doors at the time and the weather is clear. Just glance at the sun. There is something about the brightness of it that supplies the missing irritation, or whatever it is that is needed, and nine times out of ten if the sneeze has not got too far away it will come back.

Deposit of Soda in Uganda.

A deposit of soda has been found at the terminus of the projected line of the Uganda railway. It is described by the discoverer as being a lake about ten miles long by two or three wide. The water is only a few inches deep and covers a hard surface of soda resembling pink marble. The soda was found to be of considerable depth.

Photographs on Guard.

It is not improbable that in war times some form of photography will be used to detect the on-coming war eagle of a flying battleship, just as photos are made of dark and bright stars that cannot be detected by the eye and the most powerful telescope. Sentinels would look every few seconds at the photographic plates instead of at the sky.

Your Heart and Lungs

The Liver is the strainer for the blood before it enters the heart and lungs. It separates the impurities from the venous blood of the portal system. Often this organ becomes torment and then biliousness, fever assitude etc. comes on. Keep the liver in good condition and disease will go somewhere else and health and happiness will result. For this purpose GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR should be in every house and used by all travelers. It is by far the best liver medicine on the market. Druggists sell it in 10 boxes at 25c per box.

Huckesters' Voices.

The plan now is to educate hawkers and ragmen to use their voices so that they will not disturb or offend the cultured. After the process is completed, it is feared the demand for criers who can properly announce the invasion of a neighborhood by the professionals would be hard to supply.—Woman's National Daily.

Pleasant Manners.

Life would be more livable if more of us felt it a duty to be pleasant, however things might go.

An old woman once told a girl with a Puritan conscience: "Stop worrying so much about the right and wrong of things and keep smiling and you will make this world a better place."—Boston Herald.

Cotton for the Chinese.

The cotton cloth needed to clothe the inhabitants of China is about eight billion yards. This amount would carpet a pathway 60 feet wide from the earth to the moon, or cover one more than 20 miles wide from New York to Chicago.

The Chilton County Fair to be held at Clanton October 4th to 8th, bids fair to become a popular institution, and deserves the support and encouragement of all our citizens. The amount of good to be derived from a County fair is incalculable, it stimulates and encourages in every direction, brings the people closer together and makes them better acquainted with each other.

The young folks are enjoying these warm evenings taking delightful hay rides in the gloaming and the moonlight, making the welkin ring with sweet singing as they go along. Last Thursday night a party went out to Dake's mill pond, and Tuesday night another galaxy of beauty and bright young manhood made a pleasant trip to Concord church, but a heavy thunderstorm with rain marred the enjoyment.

In Tennessee the Independents have downed the regular Democrats and nominated a full ticket for the judiciary by a large majority. Gov. Patterson and his clique by their high-handed proceedure have exasperated the intelligent voters to a pitch where they decline to follow such leadership, and the result will possibly be the election of a Republican ticket in November. False leaders and incompetent leaders only drag the party to inevitable defeat.

A candidate for the State Senate on the Republican ticket was nominated at Calera on Monday in the person of Hon. Peyton Alexander, of Autauga, to oppose the Democratic nominee, T. A. Curry. Mr. Alexander is a gentleman highly thought of in Prattville and will doubtless make an interesting race.

For several months past there has been quietly conducted in Thorsby and vicinity a very systematic investigation as to the prospect of finding oil in that section. Experts who are fimiliar with the "symptoms" have examined much of the soil and find the surface conditions so promising that options have been taken on thousands of acres of land in and around Thorsby. Experimental borings will soon begin, and it is quite probable that Chilton county will soon be enjoying a full fledged oil boom.

The Republican second primary on Monday, while not officially reported, appears to be in favor of C. D. Foshee for Sheriff by about ten majority and W. A. Barnett for Commissioner. This leaves the matter as we reported two weeks ago.

Mountain Creek Aug. 7, 1910

Editor Banner—In the Union of last week appeared a card from Judge Reynolds, and I take this method of endorsing the same. In the above mentioned card the Judge respectfully asks all, as good citizens, to conduct a clean campaign and not indulge in undue personalities. I believe we should do this, while I differ with Judge Reynolds in politics, yet I should not criticize him for his views. Judge Reynolds is a good man and makes a good official. Let us all, as good citizens, regardless of party, not do or say anything that will cause offense to any one. Of course we have our preference and should do all that we can to elect those who are right and honorable.

Let us show a spirit of kindness toward our friends and not forget that we are gentlemen of the grandest race on the earth.

Respectfully,
W. E. PRICE.

Shady Grove.

Editor Banner—Please allow me a few words in regard to our Sunday school convention held at this place on Sunday, August 7th.

We wish to thank the people of Shady Grove for their kindness to the people of the convention. Every school was represented except two and we find a great improvement since our last meeting. All have been doing good work. We hope that the two schools will be represented at our next convention.

We had a fine talk by Miss M. C. Gibson on the graded lessons, and a short talk of the world's convention at Washington. And a most interesting and instructive talk by Judge L. H. Reynolds; also an interesting paper by Mrs. Argie Howard. Several short talks by others. Respectfully,

AGNES FARR, Sec.

Evergreen.

Editor Banner—It is through the valuable columns of your highly appreciated paper that I wish to speak of our society. We organized a little society during our winter school and through all the hard working season the society was kept in progress by some of our faithful workers. The society has gone from school to the community at large. It is now in good working order. We believe that through the society work boys and girls are better prepared to meet the many problems of life. Through the society work they overcome bashfulness and are more able to face the public. Also among the many helps is that of keeping that all important part of man—the mind—employed. Our next meeting will be held on Friday night, Aug. 12. The program is as follows:

1st. Some benefits to be derived from a debating society, by John F. Williams.

2nd. Recitations.

OBITUARY.

On the morning of July 21, 1910, our dear Saviour visited Mr. Jerome Speer at his home in Birmingham, and wafted his spirit into eternity. Jerome was the eldest son of Prof. G. L. Speer who is so well known to the people of Chilton county.

This estimable young man was so well known to the people of Chilton that I need not comment on his traits of character, but being well acquainted with him I may safely say that he possessed those attributes which constitute an ideal man. He spent most of his childhood days in the Mulberry community where he was loved by many associates, friends and relatives. Jerome was one of the most congenial, energetic young men I ever knew, his face continually wore a pleasant expression that was cherishing to all who knew him.

It is mysterious why God would call for a young man who was just verging into useful man hood, but surely God had a noble purpose in so doing. Being only twenty-three years of age, and full of energy and enthusiasm.

Whereas the dear Saviour has seen fit to take the spirit of this loved one, I extend to the bereaved family and relatives my deep sympathy in this lonely hour of trouble.

May our dear Saviour reveal unto them His infinite love and wisdom. May they find lasting consolation in the thought, "God doeth all things well".

"Just across death's dreadful river,
We may meet this loving boy,
Where no evil thing can sever,
Us from him who was our joy."

PATTERSON TICKET MEETS WITH DEFEAT

Independent Democrats Win by 25,000 Majority.

CONTEST WAS HARD-FOUGHT

Patterson Forces Accede Defeat by the Majority Above Named—Independent Forces Represent Practically the State-Wide Prohibition Element of the Democratic Party.

The independent Democrats in the Tennessee primaries Thursday elected their judicial tickets in one of the most exciting and hard fought political contests ever known in the state. Following are the successful tickets:

Judges of the Supreme Court—Eastern division, John K. Shields; middle division, D. L. Lansden; western division, Matt M. Neil; state at large, W. D. Beard, Crafton Green.

GOVERNOR PATTERSON.

Judges of the Court of Civil Appeals—Eastern division, H. Y. Hughes; middle division, Joseph C. Higgins, S. F. Wilson; state-at-large, Frank P. Hall, John M. Taylor.

25,000 Majority Against Patterson.

The independent headquarters here claims that the majority will approximate 25,000 votes. The regular democrats, whose ticket was defeated, claim these figures will be cut by 10,000 or 15,000 votes.

The independent faction represents in a large measure the state-wide prohibition element of the democratic party, which has been vigorously opposing Governor Patterson since his memorable campaign with the late ex-Senator E. W. Carmack for the gubernatorial nomination.

Ended Bitter Fight.

The election ended a bitter fight. Patterson spoke in half the counties of the state, and lesser lights from both sides stumped the villages from the Great Smokies to the Mississippi. On the attitude of the bulk of the white republican vote hung the issue. The negroes practically all went for the Patterson ticket.

It is understood that in return for the assistnace lent by the Republicans in electing their judiciary ticket the independents will solidly support the candidate named by the Republicans for governor.

Disastrous to Patterson.

Enemies of Governor Patterson claim the result will have disastrous effect on his political future. He is a candidate for re-election to third term, but as yet the opposition has not shown its hand as to what steps will be taken in putting out a ticket against him.

BOLD HOLD UP.

New Mexican Bandits Rob Stage of $20,00 in Bullion.

Captain Fred Fornoff, of the mounted police, has been notified that the stage from Mogollona, Southwest Socorro, coming to Silver City, has been again held up, the driver killed and $20,000 worth of gold bullion stolen.

Mogollona is 70 miles from the nearest railroad and telegraph station.

This stage was held up last week and three women passengers relieved of $450. Several posses took up the trail of the robbers.

According to later reports, the robbers secured twenty bars of gold valued al $18,000 and belonging to the Ernstein Mining Company and the Socorro Mining Company.

A later dispatch from Mogollona states that eight bars of bullion were recovered. Mounted police have wired that they are on the trail of the robbers. Jose Domingues, the driver, was shot dead and thrown out into the road by the bandits. The stage was then driven off and robbed. When the stage was two and a half hours overdue at Glenwood, Driver Jake Rouse, who was to relieve Domingues started out to meet him and found Domingues' dead body in the road The mail sacks were unmolested There was no passengers.

FATAL GEORGIA FEUD.

Two Men Killed at Gray's Station, a Few Miles From Macon.

Two men, S. E. Etheridge, and his brother Tom, were shot dead in their tracks at Grays Station, 20 miles from Macon, in a feud fight with the Morton brothers, Will, Sam, Luther and Tom. The feud had been smoldering several days. Ten days ago, it is claimed by the Etheridge faction, Will Morton enticed a negro from the farm of Steve Etheridge to his, Morton's place. A week ago they met on the street here and following an argument, Morton fired three times at Etheridge, but failed to injure him. No case was made out against the former. Friday the two Etheridges, accompanied by Clinton Kitchins, rode up to the Morton store to bring matters to a conclusion. Will Morton agreed to fight Kitchins with his fists. They got together and Morton called out that he was whipped. Then the claim is that Luther Morton fired with his shot gun, killing Steve Etheridge. The latter's face was blown away. Some one, supposedly from an upstairs window, fired three times at Morris Etheridge, with a revolver, bullets passing through his stomach, mouth and heart.

Sheriff Brooks rushed his four prisoners, who submitted to arrest peaceably, declaring that they had warned the Etheridges to keep away, to the home of their mother. He then slipped them out to Clinton, where he has them in hiding, refusing to divulge their whereabouts.

The trouble occurred during a reunion of Confederate veterans, the most peaceful and fraternal of the present day celebrations.

The locality is very much excited over the occurrence and it is reported that troops have been sent to the scene to prevent trouble.

DEATH TO SPAIN; LONG LIVE THE POPE

Clerical Slogan Shouted on San Sebastian Streets.

MANY ARRESTS WERE MADE

Unrest and Disquietude in Spain Almost Resulted in Serious Uprising at San Sebastain—Troops Constantly on Guard to Quell Disturbance.

The government's rigorous measure and the formal renunciation by the clerical junta of the threatened demonstration in this city insured comparative tranquility Sunday and a largely attended bull fight was the chief incident of the day.

From daybreak the streets were patrolled by cavalry and gendarmes, while heavy bodies of troops were held in readiness in the barracks at Miramar Palace, where the queen mother and the royal children are in residence.

The greatest incident occured last evening when groups of clericals assembled, shouting:

"Death to Spain—long live the Pope!"

Thousands of indignant people rushed towards the manifestants and only the personal intervention of the governor, at the head of a platoon of police, prevented an attack. Nearly one hundred and fifty arrests were made.

Many amusing scenes were witnessed. Priests leading trudging bands of peasants took to their heels when they found the city in the hands of the military. The peasants, all their courage gone, were disarmed and easily persuaded to return to their homes. In some cases the soldiers were compelled to supply with food the poor people who had come into the city to rail at the government.

The local authorities are convinced that the clerical demonstration marked a Carlist plot. Clericals are extremely indignant at the government's repressive measures. Senor Urgulio the chief organizer of the movement, declared that the purpose of the manifestation was peaceful.

NEW SHORT LINE.

Railroad Project Proposed by Newman Erb and Associates.

According to the terms of the reorganization of the Chattanooga Southern railroad, the control of which has been acquired by Newman Erb and associates, extensive improvements are projected that will give Chattanooga a short and direct line to Atlanta.

It is said an arrangement has been completed by Mr. Erb in connection with the Rome and Northern railroad, that includes the construction of a connection between the two roads, giving the Chattanooga Southern trackage to Rome, Ga. An extension will also to be built to connect with the Seaboard Air Line, that will form the link between Chattanooga and Atlanta.

The reorganization of the road has been effected with Mr. Erb, president; Henry W. Deforest, vice-president, and F. R. Blanchard, secretary and treasurer. W. M. Madden and I. M. Dittenhoefer have been elected members of the directorate.

BALLINGER BURDEN WEARIES THE G. O. P.

Secretary's Resignation Might Be Welcome.

MENACES PARTY HARMONY

Taft Will Not Dismiss the Secretary of the Interior, but It Is Believed That He Would Like Very Much to See Ballinger Quit.

There is increasing evidence at Beverly, Mass., that the recent bombardment of the president with letters from republican leaders in all parts of the country, protesting that Secretary of the Interior Ballinger was proving an embarrassment in the laying of plans for the coming congressional campaigns, is beginning to have effect, if not upon the president himself, at least upon the advisers who are closest to him.

No attempt is made to deny the reports that Senator Crane, at the very outset of his political pilgrimage in the west, had probably suggested to Secretary Ballinger at Minneapolis that his duty to the party might require that he sacrifice his place in the cabinet.

RICHARD A. BALLINGER.

The statement was reiterated, however, that President Taft would not as much as "lift his little finger if by so doing he could secure the retirement of the secretary of the interior department."

In addition to the letters he has received, the president has heard verbally from a number of the party leaders regarding the sentiment toward Secretary Ballinger. They have talked frankly with President Taft on the subject, it is said, and while they have agreed with the president apparently in his position that nothing has been proved against Secretary Ballinger, they have put the matter purely on a party basis and have said that the campaign would be much easier with the Ballinger issue eliminated.

The leaders have asserted that the fight is going to be a hard one at best and while they feel sorry for Mr. Ballinger, they regard his presence in the cabinet as a hardship.

REFUND DEMANDED.

Claims, Aggregating Thousands, Filed With Commerce Commission.

Hundreds of claims for reparation are being filed with the interstate commerce commission directed against various railroad lines in what is known as the Southeastern territory—that part of the country south of the Ohio and Potomac rivers and east of the Mississippi. The demands for reparation aggregate hundreds of thousands of dollars. They are filed practically exclusively by shippers in the southeastern territory, it is said.

On August 1, 1908, the railroads in that territory put into effect tariffs advancing the rates on freight classes B, C, D and F, on fresh meats in carloads, and on grain, grain products, hay and packing house products from Ohio and Mississippi river crossings and Nashville, Tenn., to points in the southeastern territory. The advances on class freight, fresh meats and packing house averaged about three cents a hundred pounds and on grain, grain products and hay two cents a hundred pounds.

Formal complaint was instituted against the railroads on account of the advances, but the commission has not yet decided the case, the title of which is the A. P. Morgan Grain company, of Atlanta, Ga., vs. the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad company and others. The complainants aver that they are unable to absorb the entire advance through their sale price of the various commodities and that they are, therefore, subject to a heavy loss in the handling of the products.

In anticipation of a decision favorable to them in the Morgan case, the claimants are filing demands for reparation for the alleged excess charges they have paid in freight during the last two years. It amounts simply to a repetition of the yellow pine cases, in which the southern railroads were forced to refund to shippers approximately $2,000,000 in freight charges.

Whatever the decision of the commission may be, it is likely that the case will be carried to the United States supreme court for final determination.

IOWA REPUBLICANS.

Indorse Insurgent Wing of Party at Convention.

Republican Iowa wrote herself vigorously progressive at Des Moines at a convention, which was in an uproar most of the time.

Senators Cummins and Dolliver and the insurgent delegation at Washington were enthusiastically indorsed.

The new tariff law was branded as a failure in the light of the party pledge of 1908.

President Taft received only a lukewarm indorsement.

A sop of harmony was flung out in the indorsement of Governor Carroll.

An attempt to use the steam roller and make the state central committee overwhelmingly progressive was called off presumably at the hint of Senator Cummins.

The progressive majority ranged close to 200 on every question. The resolutions committee was progressive 6 to 5.

CHOLERA RAVAGES RUSSIA.

Disease Said to Be Spreading With Alarming Rapidity.

Russia's scourge, the cholera, continues to spread with alarming rapidity, particularly in the southern mining districts and in St. Petersburg, where the conditions are fast approaching the proportions of the great epidemic of 1908.

Figures furnished by the central sanitary bureau show that in the week from July 24 to July 30 the latest available complete figures, there were 15,244 cases of cholera, and 6,944 deaths. Of these 4,700 cases 2,333 deaths were reported from the province of Yekaterinoslav and the territory of the Don Cossacks, in South Russia.

The provincial assembly of Yekaterinoslav has assigned $200,000 for the cause.

TREASURE FOUND IN SEA.

Men Are Guarding Wreck of Steamer Atlantic Sunk in 1852.

Believing they have a $400,000 treasure in their grasp, men are guarding night and day what is believed by them to be the wreck of the steamer Atlantic of Long Point, in Lake Erie. The Atlantic was sunk in collision in 1852 by the steamer Ogdensburg and 150 lives were lost. Many were drowned in their berths.

The wreck lies in 158 feet of water. In the hold it is believed that divers will find two safes containing $400,000 in gold. The wreck of the Atlantic was found virtually intact. No skeletons were found in the superficial examination.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES. The village of Irvington-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., is increasingly puzzled over the strange disappearance of Mrs. John Burfit, 62 years old, and who, though bedridden for years, walked out of her home a week ago and was last seen dressed in a house gown and slippers in the railroad station at Tarrytown. The woman had been long so crippled by rheumatism that she was often unable to set a foot on the floor and for years had not left her house.

Two officers and four seamen were seriously or fatally hurt when an explosion occurred upon submarine boat A 1 at Portsmouth, Eng. It was declared that the vessel was irreparably damaged. A defective boiler tube was said to be the cause. Coming on top of the recent Russian and French submerine disasters, the accident created unusual excitement.

A Beverly, Mass., dispatch says: President Taft has approved, without comment, an opinion by Attorney General Wickersham to the effect that there is no provision of law by which the statue of Gen. Robert E. Lee, in Confederate uniform, can be removed from Statuary hall in the capitol at Washington.

Mrs. Sophia J. Turner, wife of James Turner, a Bell County, Kentucky, farmer, gave birth to three bouncing boys. All are doing well. Four years ago Mrs. Turner gave birth to twin boys. Mr. Turner will write to Col. Roosevelt at once, asking him to suggest names for the new arrivals.

With the avowed purpose to build a railroad from Scranton, Miss., to Birmingham, Ala., the Birmingham, Demopolis & Scranton Railroad Company was incorporated by the secretary of state of Alabama. Its capital is nominal, the promoters being for the most part citizens of Demopolis, Ala.

It is announced that the Merchants' Barge Line, which will operate a line of boats on the Alabama river between Montgomery and Mobile, will begin service the first week in September. The steamer Liberty and three 500-ton barges have been purchased.

The Bear Tooth national forest in Montana has been opened to the grazing of 17,000 additional head of sheep. The original limit was 24,000 head and was taken in response to an appeal of the stock men that the government throw open the reserve to their herds on account of drouth conditions.

A dispatch from Paris, France, says that for the second time the wife of a peasant at Guillena, Seville, has given birth to triplets. The woman has been married six years and has had twelve children—triplets twice, twins once and four others.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES. Mr. John Kinz committed suicide at Marshallville, Ga., by shooting himself through the heart with a 38 caliber pistol at the residence of his cousin, Mr. R. H. King, who he was visiting. Mr. King was a resident of Fort Valley and was in bad health and brooding over his condition he took his life, it is said.

Three young women were drowned in the Trinity river about 12 miles west of Batson, Hardin county. They are: Miss Mamie Logan, aged 14; Miss Emma Kerr, aged 22, and Mrs Edgar Beaver, 38. They were members of a picnic party and were wading in the river when they stepped suddenly into deep water, and before help could reach them, drowned. The bodies were recovered.

Paris, France, witnessed a demonstration of "lynch law" in the heart of the capital. A policeman was about to arrest an Apache in the Boulevard Sebastopol, when the man fired at him with a revolver. The first bullet wounded the policeman and killed a man passing the street. A crowd speedily gathered, seized the Apache and hanged him to a lamp post.

Frozen to death with the thermometer at 105 in the shade was the fate of a Mexican at Maricopa, three hundred miles west of El Paso, Texas, on the Arizona desert. A carload of ice had been unloaded on the depot platform and covered with a heavy tarpaulin. The man seeking sleep and escape from the terrific heat, crawled beneath the tarpaulin, where he was found the next morning frozen stiff.

Louis Schriber, in his day known as one of the world's greatest cornetists, died at Los Angles, Cal., 83 years old. He accompanied both Adelina Patti and Ole Bull, the violinist, on concert tours as cornet soloist. He was a charter member of the Philharmonic society of New York, and in 1872 and 1873 was soloist with the Thomas orchestra.

Mixed freight and passenger train No. 73, Americus to Montgomery, on the Seaboard, was wrecked at Hutchinson's crossing, near Hurtsboro, Ala. Engineer Lee Meldrim and his colored fireman, both of Americus, were horribly scalded and their recovery is doubtful. The engine, three freight cars and baggage car left the track, the engine turning completely over.

Two children are dead, two others are critically injured and seven more are terribly burned, as the result of the upsetting of a truck loaded with carboys of vitriol on which they were riding, at Philadelphia. The driver of the truck and eight other men who helped to rescue the children from the fiery fluid are suffering from severe burns.

Fire that started from an unknown origin totally destroyed the shops of the Carolina and Northwestern railway located at Chester, S. C. Besides the buildings and contents, two engines and a passenger coach that were practically ready for the road were burned. The loss is estimated to reach more than $100,000 and the insurance will hardly cover the loss.

J. B. Watt, aged 62 years, died at his home at Nashville, Tenn. Mr. Watt, was one of the oldest operators in point of service in the country, having served over forty-five years in the business. He had the distinction of having taken the messages announcing the assassination of Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley.

A big water spout developing into a sand spout upon striking the beach swept down Sullivan's Island, near Charleston, S. C., frightening hundreds of women and children, but doing no greater damage than to wreck settees and rain sand upon cottages. Before its collapse it covered a distance of about a mile on the beach.

The body of a negro, riddled with shot, was found hanging from the limb of a tree near Nottingham, Ala. The community in which the lynching occurred is a negro settlement, and the officers believe the victim met death at the hands of members of his own race.

While Millard Stringer, aged 22, and Preston Ryan, aged 18, were bathing in a deep pond near Chattanooga, Tenn., the former, who was unable to swim, got beyond his depth. Ryan went to the assistance of his companion, who seized him around the body and both were drowned.

Miners' Protective Union Declares Foreigners, Not Tourists, Were Offenders.

New York.—About $10,000,000 worth of diamonds are smuggled into the United States annually, according to a statement issued by the importers' protective union, which has just offered to pay rewards of $2,500 and up for information leading to the arrest of offenders.

"An inspection of the returns of duties made by the large exporters in Paris, Vienna, Berlin and London shows that the amount of smuggling is enormous," declared the association's statement. "A good many of the precious stones pass the customs men in the possession of members of foreigners' crews, while at the small ports of entry, where there are not such expert appraisers as in New York, the government is cheated of a considerable sum of money by undervaluation.

"The amount of smuggling by tourists is, of course, harder to estimate than even the professional smuggling but it has been said that more has got through in the past without paying duty than ever was declared.

"But the really big smuggling—carefully organized and cleverly executed—is done by foreigners. Hollanders from Amsterdam come over here and travel about the country selling their stones to small jewelers. They offer them at 7 or 8 per cent. reduction on the regular price, and no questions are asked."

Berlin Specialist Claims to Have Found Cure for Tired Feeling—Experiments With Dogs.

Berlin.—Prof. Loewy of the Berlin Agricultural High school, a famous specialist, has arranged so that no body need ever be tired any more—has found how to inoculate us against that exhaustion of vital energy which we call getting fagged out. Perfectly serious he is about it.

He has discovered that a substance called spermin injected under the skin removes the symptoms of exhaustion and enables weary creatures to go on working long after nature usually cries "Halt!"

Some trained dogs were set like prisoners to run everlastingly uphill over an electrically-driven treadmill. They were kept at this until the poor beasts looked ready to drop with exhaustion and the chemical tests showed that the drain on what constitutes energy in dogs and men was too great to be longer maintained. Then the professor injected large doses of spermin under the dogs' hides.

In three experiments the immediate result was a great recovery from exhaustion and the dogs were set to work again on their treadmill and trotted off, if not as fresh as ever, yet distinctly no longer overtired.

What spermin produces this extraordinary effect Professor Loewy has not yet ascertained.

CAT STOPS CHURCH CONCERT

Penny Gate Entangled in Pipes of Organ and Instrument Goes Dumb—Finally Released.

Jersey City, N. J.—A black cat born in a church got tangled up in the stops and pipes of the organ the other night and a feature of a concert given there by the Young Women's Christian association had to be scratched. Rev. Paul A. Meury lent his church, the Second Dutch Reformed, in Summit avenue, for the entertainment, and promised to have his organist, Mrs. Prue Robinson, play selections on the $7,000 organ. The organ music was advertised as a feature.

The church was crowded when Mrs. Robinson went to the organ. The electric blower was set in motion, but the organist couldn't produce any notes. The church engineer examined the electrical apparatus and reported it in good order. Mr. Meury and the engineer then climbed up among the pipes and heard a cat mewing. They discovered the church cat, which was born in the edifice a few months ago, caught in between the piping. It had crawled there evidently while chasing a mouse and couldn't get out.

The organ was out of order. Mr. Meury announced the cause and it provoked laughter. Although some disappointment was manifest the program given appeared to satisfy the disgruntled.

After it was all over the engineer reached in between the pipes of the organ and pulled out the cat. Then he took the animal home so that it shouldn't go mouse hunting in such a place again. Men were busy later on repairing the delicate wires which the cat had destroyed in getting into the pipe.

CHANTECLER BOWS OF BIRDS

Many English Skylarks Being Sent to America for Use in Latest Fashion Fad.

London.—English skylarks are being caught, killed and exported to America, to be made up into decorations for women's bows—called "Chantecler."

James Buckland, a naturalist of repute, writes from the Royal Colonial Institute, saying: "Of late years a large trade has sprung up in the export of English lapwings for consumption in the hotels and restaurants of the larger cities of the United States.

"Now comes the alarming intelligence of the use of the heads of English skylarks, pipits and linnets to make up what are known to American milliners as 'Chantecler bows.'

"These bows are being sold in great numbers in New York and Albany, and are to be bought in all the large cities.

"I brought the matter of the lapwings to the notice of the home office, but nothing came of it. But if the home office does not awake to action and prohibit the export of lapwings, skylarks, pipits and linnets, very few of these birds, which are of inestimable value to the farmer, will be left."

Mr. Buckland has sent a specimen bow to be worn at the neck, with the bird's head and plumage mounted firmly on velvet.

Transportation.

A Texas evangelist says: "Persons who speculate on the stock market or bet on horse races are bound for hell in a racing automobile." But the experience of an observer is that those who speculate on horse races or bet on the stock market usually arrive there as pedestrians.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

IN VACATION DAYS

MATERIALS AND STYLES THAT ARE POPULAR.

Garments for the Hours of Sport Follow Closely the Trend of Other Fashions—Mohair Always a Favorite.

Sporting garments always follow the trend of other fashions and so it follows that those now provided for up-to-date wearers are dashing in the extreme. So fine are the materials of bathing suits, so dazzling their colors, that it seems difficult to realize that such fabrics are really to be consigned to the mercy of the waves. Those who understand the vagaries and tricks of fashion are not disquieted. It is long since the good dame brought her tints and textures down to such a fine point that the bathing suit that will not withstand at least one season's wear is worthless indeed. The salt water guarantee may be relied on for silk as well as for mohair and flannel, and, as a rule, the finer the material the longer it outlasts the sousing.

Mohair is still the favorite material for women who have no ambition to be conspicuous, but to be genuinely up-to-date the dark color is piped with a flashing one—red, yellow or of a brilliant apple green, with dark blue—with the buttons of jet and of the most decorative sort. Silk suits and those of novelty mohair suitings mixed with silk run largely to plaids and checks, a small black and white check in these, or a black and white dot, responding handsomely to trimmings of plain silk. Upon white mohair black will be used with excellent effect.

For the general buyer, the girl or matron who does not prefer or cannot afford anything more elaborate, there are the usual ready made suits in blue or black mohair and in flannel, these with the conventional white braid, sailor collar, belt and cuffs, but all are invariably smarter in style than the shop suits formerly seen. In almost every case tights or bloomers are sold with the suit, and not infrequently these needed details are cunningly attached to the outer garment.

For tennis wear a plain gored skirt and modified sailor blouse afford a combination much liked by girls who wish to preserve a trim look in the courts but a short plaited skirt topped by a loose mariner's shirt is a get-up quite permissible and one much liked by the younger girls. Concerning the shirts, one of which is pictured herewith, they may be made of a coarse yellow drilling and worn over a skirt in chantecler red serge.

The mariner's shirt for misses is shown in the illustration, and the garment is made without any other opening than the neck; so it must be slipped over the head when donned. The yellow drilling suggested for this shirt will give it the sea look, for the real sailor garments in this style are always in this coarse material. Only stitching is used with the drilling, but a white flannel shirt in this design would be effective with red or pale blue on the sailor collar and cuffs. The skirt would look best if it matched this color, although an all white one would go with anything. The "college" and "middy" blouse are other names used for this comfortable garment.

For the sixteen-year size 3½ yards of material 24 inches wide will be required.

Ideal Dress for Little Ones.

The ideal dress for children is, of course, the pinafore style. It is so easy to renew the overdress and under bodice as required, and it is, moreover, invaluable to suit the weather changes from day to day. The serge overdress can have a little cotton or flannel blouse, just as thermometers demand.

This summer we are to use the little Chantilly lace marquise parasols, the doll-like affairs with which our pretty ancestresses used to screen their faces.

THE LAST TRAIL OF JESSE BOLANDE

Rapid City was an extreme example of a picturesque but unwholesome community.

The incumbent of the marshalcy of Rapid City had won his exalted position solely because no one could recall a time when he had been either dilatory for a fatal moment, or inaccurate for an effective hair's-breadth.

So when he issued an edict against carrying guns inside the "city" limits the cowpunchers took out their revenge in oaths and threats against the next election; and, from the very day after the edict, the place of the pistol knew it no more.

Rapid City had managed to survive about a week of this uncomfortable, negative virtue, when Jesse Bolande rode into town at about four in the afternoon. He had been on his range all week, and as he stood at the unmirrored bar of "Keno Jim's place," he listened to the new state of affairs with many an oath of incredulous amaze.

The marshal and Bolande were old friends. They had once mollied on a ragged claim upon the mountains together; they had stood back to back in skirmishes with savages.

When the marshal entred the saloon, he did not, at first, see Bolande's revolver, and there was an unrestrained cordiality in the "How!" with which he greeted him, while the warmth of Bolande's answer strove with a pacificatory uneasiness.

When finally the glint of Bolande's dingy weapon struggled through the smoke of the room to the marshal's eye, he said, quietly, that the others might not hear: "Jesse, stick your gun behind the bar till you're leavin' town. Can't let you tote your irons in this man's town now."

"Ownin' this place now, are you, marshal?" There was too little subtility in Bolande's intonation to deceive the marshal in its portent, and he flung back a sharp reply: "Any skin off you, if I do?"

And Bolande calmed before the other's frank resentment and shrugging himself again, murmured: "Nope. But thar'll be some off the man that tries to take my gun away."

Almost pleadingly the quiescent marshal answered: "Jesse, I'll give you till six o'clock to put up your gun or pull your freight out of this."

Still more unassumingly, but still more firmly, Bolande answered: "You will find me right here at six. Bring your nerve with you, marshal. Have a drink?"

"Don't mind if I do, Jesse. Here's 'how!'" and they drained the martyrdom with unflinching gusto.

The marshal evidently thought it only right to give his old friend three minutes of grace, for it was a little after the hour when his step was heard on the board walk outside.

With epic equality and speed the weapons leaped into position.

Almost reverentially the partisans of each lifted his limp majesty from the sticky pool of his own blood and bota were carried upstairs to a little room in the hotel.

They placed a cot near the marshal's bed. Outside, the red glory of the prairie sunset was thrilling the earth to a responsive flush. Within the room was a greater glory, the austere passing of two granite-couraged heroes.

The sinewy hands of the twain lay clasped outside the coverlet.

Bolande was the first to find power for speech.

"Are you easy, marshal?"

"Easy as a kid in a cradle, Jess. How're they comin' on your side?"

"Same here, old man. But I'm goin' fast."

"You won't beat me out five minutes, Jess."

At length the marshal looked a request, and one of the men bent over to hear his feeble mutterings, then went out and returned with two glasses of whisky on a cracked plate.

Across the marshal's face fluttered the wan ghost of a smile, and he spoke between fierce gulps of pain.

"You—stood the—last treat, Jess. Have one—on me—now?"

"Sure—old hoss!" was the grisly cordiality of the tortured Bolande.

"Better luck—in—the—next country!"

"How!" was the marshal's acceptance; and they drank with panting effort.

So they died, stern in wrath, stern in love, each content, rather than proud, that he—and his friend—had died game.

We cannot help ourselves, the rules of the post office are not to be trifled with.

The Fourth District Republican convention at Calera on Monday, after a vain endeavor to get W. F. Aldrich or Judge Reynolds to accept the nomination, unanimously agreed upon Hon. J. O. Middleton of Clanton, as the candidate of the Republican party for Congress in opposition to Hon. F. L. Blackmon. At the present writing we do not know whether Mr. Middleton has accepted the nomination or not.

The following explains Mr. Blackmon's view of the situation:

"He's dead easy," was the remark of State Senator Fred L. Blackmon, democratic nominee for Congress from the Fourth district, this afternoon when informed that the Fourth district convention of the Republicans at Calera had nominated J. O. Middleton as his opponent in the general election this fall.

"The Republicans could not have pleased me better," he continued, "and you may quote me as saying that I anticipate no trouble whatever in carrying my district for the Democratic party in the coming conflict. He was beat world without end by Craig, and I think I can duplicate that record."

Mayor Gaynor of New York was shot and seriously injured by James Gallagher, a discharged emplye of the city, on Tuesday. The Mayor was on a steamship just about to start on a vacation to Europe when the deed was perpetrated. The Mayor was carried to a hospital where he is doing as well as possible, and it is much to be hoped will soon recover.

Commissioners court was in session this week.

STILL DESTROYED.

While United States marshals were in the bushes near by watching him, Sam G. Adams operated a "moonshine" still on a Chilton county hillside. Under the circumstances, Adams, when he was arraigned Friday before United States Commissioner John A. Elmore decided that it was not worth while to make a defense to the charge of moonshining. So he pleaded guilty and was held for action by the Federal grand jury.

The arrest was made by Deputy Collector A. N. Winters and Deputy marshals Kelly and Oliver. They had a line on Adams's industrious habits, and when they went to arrest him they hid behind a clump of bushes while Adams was busy about his duties at the still. The still was destroyed and Adams was carried to Montgomery.

ATTENDANCE AT STATE FAIR.

The following Governors of Southern States have been invited to the Alabama State Fair, at Birmingham, on Good Roads Day, October 14th, 1910:—

E. F. Noel, Mississippi, M. F. Ansel, South Carolina, J. N. Kitchens, North Carolina, J. Y. Sanders, Louisiana, A. W. Gilchrist, Florida, Malcolm C. Patterson, Tennessee, Joe Brown, Georgia, T. M. Campbell, Texas, B. B. Comer, Alabama.

Several of these have accepted the invitation, and the present prospects are that the Good Roads Day at the Alabama State Fair will be one of the most important and largely attended of any of the big State Fairs this year.

POULTRY FARM AT THORSBY.

Persistent pursuit of a preconceived purpose is developing at Thorsby the largest industrial plant of its kind in the whole South.

About a year ago J. L. Weil landed at Thorsby with a horse and wagon, sixty hens of assorted stock seven Indian game pullets and two cockrels eight weeks old, and eight Houden pullets, and two cockrels also eight weeks old.

Mr. Weil rented a farm, set up his coops and announced that he had come to establish a poultry plant that would be a credit to Thorsby and the South, and further, he did not propose to raise a pound of feed for his flocks as his time was too valuable.

With the sixty hens as his only source of income, he purchased supplies, fed his family and stock and nursed his pedigree pullets and cockrels.

Along in February when about six months old, the game and Houdon pullets began to lay. Small incubators of fifty eggs capacity had been purchased and every egg was given to the care of the "metal mother."

The product of these fifteen thoroughbred pullets now amounts to 750 healthy chicks of varying ages, and 300 eggs in the incubators in stages from beginning to hatching.

Mr. Well has recently associated with himself J. F. Peterson, and they are proceeding as fast as possible to build and equip the largest and most complete poultry business ever undertaken in the south. They plan to have within the year 9000 hens of this White Indian game and Houdon pure bred stock, 5000 breeding hens, a mammoth incubator of 6000 eggs capacity, 400 brooder coops for twenty-five chicks 180 laying houses, fifty hens to each and two breeding houses of sufficient capacity to accommodate the breeding hens.

Mr. Wells' methods are based on scientific principles worked out. He makes no secret of his methods and says that others who will do as he does are liable to succeed. His hens are not permitted to become scavengers, and in fact are fed nothing that is not clean enough for human food. Ordinary farm eggs weigh anywhere from fifteen to twenty-four ounces per dozen, while the eggs produced at this plant weigh from thirty to thirty-six ounces per dozen, because while not abnormally large they are well filled because the hens have had plenty of egg-producing food.

Alabama State Fair.

Everything that The Alabama State Fair and exhibit Association is doing this year for the Alabama State Fair, it is doing on a scale bigger and better than ever. Those words opitomize the spirit of the work of the Association for the year 1910.

More counties than ever before will be represented. Even now fourteen counties nave signed contracts to make exhibits, Several more are negotiating for space and it is by no means a wild statement to say that more than twenty of Alabama's counties realize the necessity for making and exhibit at the Fair and will take advantage of their opportunity this fall.

The free exhibits, that is the free shows and attractions, will, this year be the grandest that the public has ever seen in Alabama without cost to themselves. Pain's great fireworks display: The Destruction of Pompeii, has been before the American people for twenty-five years and is a standard attraction. Its production costs its promoters $1,000 a night. It alone is more than worth the price of admission to the Fair.

The wonderful "Curzon Sister," those human butterflies, will be another nerve thrilling act that is free to all visitors to the State Fair this fall. This show costs the Association $1,300. No circus in all America puts on a stunt that approaches it.

Then there are dozens of other good things to see and hear: The Navessar Ladies Band among them. It is made up of forty winsome American girls, each an artist and a specialist on her insturment. This band has been an attraction at the Fair before. If it were not the best it would not be back again.

All the world stand aghast in the presence of the aeroplane. The man-made machine that has conquared the air after centuries of trying. They are after these to as a free attraction.

Kidney and Bladder Diseases.

Thousands of people die annually of kidney and bladder troubles whose lives could be saved by the timely use of U-RA-CURA, the great Southern Remedy. It neutralizes and passes diseased accumulations out of the system and by certain health giving processes assists nature to build up new tissues. It is also a fine tonic. Persons who have the least symptoms of these diseases should use this remedy. Druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle. If he cannot supply you send to Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

A SLIGHT MISCALCULATION

HE young man with the bootling eyebrows and the assertive necktie paused to knock the ashes from his pipe.

"Who'm I going to take to the theater party?" he echoed. "Why, I don't mind telling you that I'm going to take Ethel!"

"Oh!" said the other young man whose quietness was his noticeable characteristic. "Have you asked her?"

The young man with the necktie looked faintly surprised. "How'd you know I hadn't?" he inquired. "I'll telephone her to-night. I was so busy all day I didn't have a chance. Besides, there's no hurry. There isn't anyone else likely to ask her but you, and now that I've spoken first of course—"

"Why, of course!" agreed the quiet young man. "I shouldn't dream of interfering with your plans."

"That's one thing I like about you," confided the young man with the tie. "Some fellows don't know when they're licked, but you've got common sense. Oh, I was just speaking generally. There are fellows, you know, who'd 'a' sneaked off and phoned Ethel before I'd had a chance. Of course, though, I don't know that you're so awfully keen on going with her yourself, only you've gone to see her a lot."

"Yes, I have," agreed the quiet young man.

"I've been so busy lately I haven't been around to see Ethel as often as usual," said the young man with the tie. "I expect she's sore about it, but this theater party and some flowers and candy'll fix things all right! I know girls!"

"You do, indeed," agreed the quiet young man. "She was speaking about you only the other evening."

The young man with the tie tried to look unconscious. "Was she?" he asked carelessly. There was a silence. "Say," he broke out at last, "I don't mind telling you—we're old friends and you are sort of one of us, you know—I don't mind telling you that I'm going to marry that girl!"

The quiet young man stirred into surprise. "Ethel?" he queried, explosively.

"Uh-huh," said the young man with the tie. "I expect you are kind o' surprised. I flatter myself that I don't let on to the general public just what I intend to do, but I've been thinking it over for a long time and I've decided she's the girl for me!"

"Oh!" said the quiet young man more calmly. "I see. You—you haven't asked her, then?"

The young man with the tie shook his head.

"Are you going to telephone?" his friend inquired with innocent interest.

The young man with the tie looked a trifle suspicious, but decided that nothing was meant by the question.

"Well, no," he admitted. "I hadn't thought much about it. I didn't decide till just recently. I'm not going to jump into a thing like that in a hurry and be sorry ever after. I know what I want in a wife. Now, Ethel is not too pretty, you see—she can't be vain about herself, and a vain woman is always selfish. I abominate a selfish woman! All she thinks about is herself and her own comfort. I want some one who'll consider me first. It's right that the man who provides the home and works for it should be considered first!"

"I see your point," said the quiet young man.

"Some fellows never think of those things. Ethel isn't everlastingly chattering, either. She would give a fellow a chance to do a little talking himself. Most girls think the only thing of importance is what they have to say. Did you ever notice how Ethel will sit and listen with her head one side, as if she was so interested—kind of amused?"

"I don't believe I ever did," said the quiet young man.

"Perhaps not," said his friend with the assertive tie. "You probably haven't had as long talks with her as I have. She always listens that way when I talk. That girl is intelligent, and when she gets a chance to listen to conversation that's worth while she does it without interruption. I think she's economical and a good housekeeper. Don't you?"

"I have great admiration for Ethel," declared the quiet young man, "but I never exactly figured out her good qualities as you have done."

"Well, that's natural; you didn't have the idea in mind that I did," said the young man with the tie.

"No, indeed I didn't," said the quiet young man with a fervency that caused his friend to look puzzled.

"You see," went on the quiet young man as he got into his coat, "I believe if I were you I'd not waste a nickel telephoning Ethel. She promised to marry me a week ago and I rather think she expects me to be her escort to that theater party. Good night!"

The young man with the violent tie sat staring at the chair which had been occupied by the quiet young man.

"I'd like to know," he said at last, "just what it was she said when she spoke about me the other evening! Come to think of it, I believe his tone was sarcastic when he mentioned it!"

GUIANA SNOW PEAKS

Dutch Expedition Finds High Range of Mountains on Island.

Existence of Glittering Ice-Clad Summits Prove to Be Fact—Other Explorers Hitherto Unable to Penetrate Wilderness.

The Hague.—Until recently none of the many exploring expeditions sent out by England, Germany and Holland had ever succeeded in penetrating into the heart of New Guiana, the great island which is partitioned among the three nations. Swamps, forests and many other difficulties stood in the way, to say nothing of the natives, who were reputed to be savages devoted to head-hunting and cannibalism.

Some progress, however, was made. The courses of several rivers were determined and the existence of a lofty range of mountains was verified. The goal of several Dutch expeditions had been the Orange range, the highest peak of which had been named Wilhelmina, and considerable information about it had been obtained. Several of the explorers claimed to have seen snow-covered summits, but about this there was a difference of opinion, some saying that the whiteness might be due to chalky formations of rock.

Last year Professor Lorents and a small party of Netherlanders set out to reach these mountains which had seemed so elusive. The professor was familiar with the coast regions and the language of the natives, and he also had the assistance of the government. Following a river into the interior, the party succeeded in reaching a high table land never before visited by white men, but the snowy range of mountains could not be seen on account of the proximity of the foothills.

Feeling sure that they were proceeding in the right direction, the party pushed on in spite of innumerable difficulties and at last saw the glittering goal of their journey in the far distance. One of the peaks they discovered was christened Juliana. Though most of the members of the expedition were suffering from fever contracted in the jungles, they continued on, leaving all unnecessary articles behind and establishing supply depots for the return trip. The doctor in the party was too exhausted to proceed and had to be left at one of the depots with some natives.

Doctor Lorents, J. Van Nouhuys and four natives made the final dash and succeeded in reaching the glaciers and fields of eternal snow on the summit of Mount Wilhelmina, more than 15,000 feet above sea level. Several photographs were taken at the highest point and the Dutch flag was planted. Then a hurried return was made, in the course of which Doctor Lorents sustained a bad fall. He was internally injured and his companions had to remain with him all night in an exposed spot on the mountain while a terrible storm of wind and snow raged about them.

Other mishaps occurred on the return trip and the members of the expedition would have died from starvation if a relief party had not reached them at the last moment. When they finally reached Alkmaar, the government coast station, they were welcomed with flags and triumphal arches as heroes who had suffered and accomplished much in the service of science.

HIS HORSESHOE WAS LUCKY

Finder Hit Three Times by Automobile Is Still Alive, With No Bones Broken.

Richfield, N. J.—It was three times and out with John Chester the other day, and he believes he would have been killed had he not clutched a horseshoe all the time. Less superstitious persons, however, sneer at him: "If that horseshoe brought you luck, how was it you were hit at all?"

Chester had just picked up a horseshoe when an automobile struck him and tossed him to one side. While Chester was shaking his fist another car came along and Chester leaped to one side, but he was struck and hurled ten feet. Again he was unhurt.

He had almost reached his destination when for the third time an automobile struck him. He was flung into a field, where he lay unconscious for a half hour. No bones were broken however.

Not once did he let go of the horseshoe and he has nailed it over the door of his stable.

World's Record Farm.

Mission, Tex.—It is claimed that Charles Volz of the Mission community holds the world's record for profits from intensive farming. He recently sold his Bermuda onion crop on 24 acres for $12,937. Deducting the expenses of planting, cultivating, harvesting, and marketing, the crop left a net return of $9,083. The onion yield from these 24 acres filled 22 cars.

Mother of Triplets Honored.

London.—According to time-honored custom, King George has forwarded to Mrs. Jackson, wife of a Hull tramwayman, a king's bounty of $15 that is given to every one giving birth to triplets. Mrs. Jackson now has nine children. The whole town of Hull is proud of the event and is raising a big local fund for her benefit.

Restoring Waterpower.

The power of water is much greater than anyone without experience can imagine. Waterpower represents the energy of moisture drawn up into the clouds by the heat of the sun and deposited on the distant mountains in the form of rain. This acquired force is spent in rushing back to the sea. Water wheels are but devices to catch and utilize this wasted energy. Water acts as a moving power, either by its weight—which is over sixty-two pounds to the cubic foot—or by its pressure or impact. The power of a fall of water is equal to the weight of its volume times the vertical height of its fall. To compute the power of falling water it is necessary to multiply the volume of flowing water in cubic feet per second by its weight—sixty two and one-half pounds—and this product by the vertical height of the fall in feet and divide by five hundred and fifty—the number of foot-pounds representing one horsepower for one second.

It is easy enough to weir a small stream. A rough plank dam is made between the banks. On end it is fixed with a slide so the rectangular aperture can be widened until the water flows just a foot deep over the edge of the topmost plank. Knowing the width of the aperture in linear feet and the velocity of flow, one can figure out the number of cubic feet of water flowing over the weir a second. In larger streams the cubic foot flow can only be computed by soundings for the average depth and by using floats to determine the speed of water. These measurements should always be made when the stream is of average size.

A transit in the hands of a surveyor will quickly give the number of feet of fall available for any distance. The surveyor can also ascertain the number of acres in the watershed, and by writing the Weather Bureau at Washington the average rainfall in that section for the season can be determined, showing just how much water goes to waste in the spring freshets and just how large a reservoir would be needed to store that water for use during the dry months. Then anyone with a head for simple figures can determine the amount of power available and the probable cost of the equipment.

Elderly People Helped Free

The last years of life are the sweetest, and yet the most difficult to prolong. It is then that the greatest care is exercised in maintaining bodily health. But the chief care should always be with regard to the food you eat and whether you are digesting it properly. You should not allow yourself to become constipated.

No doubt you have tried salts and cathartic pills, purgative tablets, etc., and have come to the conclusion that they are violent in action and do but temporary good. Listen, then, to the voice of experience with regard to a wonderful and mild laxative, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is not new, only we are trying to find new friends for it.

A. A. Fritz, of Johnston City, Ill., suffered from stomach trouble for six years and found his cure in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. His wife uses it too with success. We could name hundreds of others. Some heard of it first through neighbors or friends; others through the doctor's offer to send any sufferer from a stomach, liver or bowel complaint a free sample bottle for trial, without charge. If you will send your name and address he will send you a trial bottle direct to your home. If it proves itself as he claims then continue the treatment by buying a 50-cent or $1 bottle of your druggist, as all of them sell it. Old people, like children, should look for purity, and it is well to mention that the purity of this remedy is vouched for with the U. S. government. Also, though a free bottle is sent to prove its merits, results are always guaranteed from the regular bottles bought of druggists, who will refund your money if it does not satisfy you. Send at least for the free test bottle today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 180 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

BEGINS A WAR ON MOSQUITO

New Jersey County and Several Railroads Co-Operate to Exterminate Pest.

New York.—Escorted by Commissioner William Delaney of the Hudson county board of health, the Bayonne board of health and Drs. John T. Connolly and Charles J. Larkey of the medical staff of the city have inspected the rendesvous of the Bayonne crop of mosquitoes. They found a few hundred thousand larvae and wrigglers. The breeding places were near the Central railroad tracks.

The Bayonne board decided to ask the council to make a special appropriation at once, so the breeding spots may be destroyed before the mosquitoes get on the wing, which will be about ten days hence. Prof. John B. Smith, state entomologist, has promised to have the state pay half the expense of the fight against the pests in Bayonne.

Commissioner Delaney said a systematic fight would be made throughout the county and that the Pennsylvania, Central and Lehigh Valley railroads would spend about $35,000 in their share of the work.

LIVE WIRE ENDS MONOTONY

Lonely Man Unwinds Coil and Promptly Feels Lively Presence—Unconscious Several Hours.

Altoona, Pa.—Becoming lonesome at the substation at Collinsville, a suburb, the other day, Byron Miller, aged twenty, an electrician, started to amuse himself by unwinding an unused coil of wire, when the end came in contact with a lightning arrester. Miller received a high voltage shock, which rendered him unconscious.

Almost instantly the disturbance in the current was noticed at the hydro plant at Huntingdon, 20 miles away, and the man in charge there called the Penn Central company's headquarters here to learn the cause, his message reaching the office before the one from the substation.

Miller was unconscious several hours, being burned about the hands, arms and feet.

The Laborers in the Vineyard

Sunday School Lesson for Aug. 14, 1910
Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Matthew 20:1-16. Memory verses 6, 7.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Many that are first shall be last; and the last shall be first." —Matt. 19:30.

TIME.—March A. D., 30, a short time before the crucifixion.

PLACE.—Perea, beyond Jordan.

Suggestion and Practical Thought.

1. The Parable of the Laborers and Its Meaning.—Vs. 1-15. For the kingdom of Heaven is like unto a man that is a householder, the owner of a farm or an estate.

The householder represents Christ who is the visible representative of God.

"Went out early in the morning to hire laborers.

The Vineyard represents the world in which God has planted the true vine. This is set forth with peculiar power by Isaiah (ch. 5). He compares the nation of Israel to a vineyard planted by God, "the well beloved," who had loved them with everlasting love. He did everything possible for them, that they might bring forth the best fruits,—obedience, sincere worship, righteous living, the beauty of holiness, love, joy, peace and all the fruits of the Spirit, intelligence, noble character and missionary work among the nations. He placed them in the best country in the world for the purpose. He hedged them round with laws and divine institutions, and with his own loving care defended them from all enemies.

But the expected fruit was not borne on these vines. "He looked that it should bring forth grapes, and it brought forth wild grapes," "grapes of gall, bitter clusters."

God's Garden. In 1 Cor. 3:9, Paul tells the Christians at Corinth that "ye are God's husbandry," which old-fashioned word seems to have little meaning to us. The Revised Version helps us to see its meaning, "Ye are God's tilled land." The twentieth century New Testament calls it "God's harvestfield." It is a farm, an orchard, a garden in its larger meaning. There, too, God wants laborers each in his own garden, to make it yield all graces, all virtues, all Beatitudes, the Ten Commandments, the Fruits of the Spirit. You are to be part of the church as described in Acts 2; and of the redeemed earth, and of Heaven, pictured to us in the last chapters of Revelation.

The Laborers are all those who are helping to do God's work on earth, who for him and with him are laboring to make the world what it ought to be, full of all the fruits of the spirit, transformed into the kingdom of God. There is no such privilege in the world as to be laborers with God.

3-7. "He went out about the third . . . sixth . . . ninth . . . eleventh hour." Several times the householder went after laborers, for there was more work to be done than the first ones called could do. "Why stand ye here all day idle?" They answered that "no man hath hired us." "No man would stand all day in the marketplace idle, unless because he wanted work and could not get it."—Exp. Gk. Test.

"Call the laborers, and give them their hire." They received each one a penny, whether they had worked one hour or twelve.

"The first . . . supposed that they should receive more," since they had "borne the burden and heat of the day," the scorching heat. Having done more they felt that they ought to have larger pay; and they complained to the steward of their unfair treatment. Their very complaint showed that they were not truly the first and best.

The Last First and the First Last.—V. 16. This saying with variations was repeated several times by Jesus, "so the last shall be first, and the first last."

"Those are really first in God's sight in whom the desire to be first has been overmastered by the spirit of love."

This is true of nations, as the Jewish nation were first in time, first in opportunity, but they did not make use of their advantages; and Christianity which was last has become the first.

The Call for Laborers. There are two ways of increasing the number of laborers. One is by adding to their number; the other is by increasing the power and value of each one.

There is a call for workers in the fields white to the harvest in every community, in every Sunday school, in every church. If people realized the value of "the penny a day" God gives, the blessing of personal work for Christ in every department, but especially in work among the children, they would beg for the opportunity. What Doctor Payson said of preachers is applicable to all; that if ministers realized the blessing and the opportunity God had conferred upon them, they would leap and shout for joy: "I am a minister of Christ; I am a minister of Christ."

During the late war in Ashantee the chief officer of the Scotch Guards, when reviewing this splendid regiment, asked who among them would volunteer for the Ashantee expedition. When he looked again he saw the regiment precisely as he had seen it before, all in unbroken line. 'What!' said he; 'the Scotch Guards, and no volunteers?' Another officer replied: 'They have all stepped forward and volunteered.' Consider what it would mean if every member of our great church should in this coming year take but one step forward!"—Over Land and Sea.

RAISING THE COLT BY HAND

Cow's Milk May Be Used If the Attendant Conducts Work Patiently and Intelligently.

(By A. S. ALEXANDER, Wisconsin College of Agriculture.)

In case the mare dies or has no milk the foal may be raised on cow's milk, if the attendant conducts the work patiently and intelligently. Choose the milk of a cow that has recently calved, preferably one which gives milk low in butterfat, for mares' milk while rich in sugar, is poor in fat. Sweeten the milk with molasses or sugar and dilute with warm water. Give a little of this prepared milk at short intervals from a scaled nursing bottle and large rubber nipple. Be careful to keep the bottle and nipple scrupulously clean. Add an ounce of lime water to each pint of the prepared milk and allow half a cupful once an hour at first.

As the foal grows, gradually increase the amount of milk fed and lengthen the intervals between meals.

Shire Mare and Foal.

In a few days food may be given six times a day and later four times daily. The foal will soon learn to drink from a pail, if allowed to suck the attendant's fingers at first.

Until the bowels move freely, give rectal injections night and morning. If the foal scours at any time give two to four tablespoonfuls of a mixture of sweet oil and pure castor oil shaken up in milk and stop feeding milk for two or three meals, allowing sweetened warm water and lime-water instead. Let the foal lick oatmeal as soon as it will eat and gradually increase the amount and add wheat bran. In five or six weeks some sweet skimmilk may be given and the amount gradually increased daily until, in three months or so, it may be given freely three times a day in place of new milk. The foal at this age also will be eating freely of grass, grain and bran.

At all times supply pure cold drinking water. Let the foal run out in a lot or grass paddock for exercise. Accustom it to be handled daily. Feed small quantities of nutritious food often, keeping all food vessels clean and the foal should thrive and develop well.

The illustration shows an English shire mare and foal which took the first prize at the London horse show last year.

mal, strong and healthy and his only defect is that he is a little shy on hind legs. He was born just as shown in the illustration, with perfect legs and hoofs except that they are short.

Raising the Calf.

The management of the calf during the first year has much to do with its later usefulness. Plenty of water and salt should be given in clean vessels. Avoid sudden changes of diet and practise regularity in feeding. Provide warm, dry quarters in damp weather. Give plenty of roughage and not too much grain so as to develop a large capacity for handling food as is desirable in dairy animals. When the calf is six months to a year old milk may be omitted from its ration and a full roughage and grain diet substituted.

Care for Brood Sow.

When the sow farrows keep her quiet for a day or more and feed her plenty of water. A full flow of milk for the pigs is not desired for the first two days. After that time the feed of the sow may be increased gradually. If the milk of the sow is started too soon the young pigs may not be able to take all of it at first, and caking and feverish udder result.

DR. D. JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE

A "run down" condition is generally due to the failure of the digestive organs to properly digest the food. Dr. D. TELLS SKIPPER OF STEERING

New Device Awakens Captain If Quartermaster Leaves Course Even Slightly.

London.—When the skipper of a steamship, be it either a common tramp or a swagger liner, happens to look astern of his ship and see that a "drunken" course is being steered he, of course, wants to know of the quartermaster at the wheel what he means by "writing his name on the ocean."

If the steering is lax when the "old man" is on the bridge, what, one might reasonably ask, must it be when that monarch is taking his afternoon siesta in his bunk?

Good steering, even with the skipper in his bunk, should now be assured, even on the poorest manned tramp, from what one learns regarding the joint invention of two New Zealanders, both of whom were at one time steamship officers.

By this invention the fact of a vessel deviating from the true set course is recorded, and an alarm bell is rung when such deviation exceeds a certain prearranged limit.

Before he goes below, the captain can set the instrument to alarm him at whatever deviation he likes. He can set it fairly wide or even fine, and if the limit is not reached he has only to look at the indicator to see by the way the pen has traveled how the steering has been in his absence.

Sends Twenty Thousand Tulips.

Paris.—The queen of Holland has made a charming gift to Paris. Twenty thousand magnificent tulips, of all sizes, kinds and colors arrived from the celebrated collection at The Hague, and have been planted at Bagatelle, Bois de Boulogne, where for a time the beautiful queen of France, Marie Antoinette, lived in seclusion. Bagatelle is famous for its tulips, of which there are 100,000 in the ground.

Your Heart and Lungs

The Liver is the strainer for the blood before it enters the heart and lungs. It separates the impurities from the venous blood of the portal system. Often this organ becomes dormant and then biliousness, fever, lassitude etc. comes on. Keep the liver in good condition and disease will go somewhere else and health and happiness will result. For this purpose GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR should be in every house and used by all travelers. It is by far the best liver medicine on the market. Druggists sell it in boxes at 25c per box.

Bearing Periods of Fruit Trees.

Some one has estimated from statistics that fruit trees and bushes will bear for the following periods: Apples, 35 to 40 years; blackberry, 6 to 14 years; currant, 20 years; gooseberry, 8 to 12 years; pear, 50 to 75 years; plum, 20 to 35 years; raspberry, 6 to 14 years.

Few Hard Coal Stoves.

In Great Britain anthracite stoves are rarely seen, and up to the present British-made stoves have failed to gain favor. The British seem to stick to the old custom of open fires, and even in the anthracite district the coal is invariably used in open grates.

West Africa is responsible for the pithy saying "He who falls by his foot shall rise again; he who falls by his mouth shall not rise." From the same region comes the retort, to one of waspish disposition, "If you were medicine you would be very bitter."

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Sees, and Some He Does Not.

On Tuesday of this week was brought into the Banner office by Mr. J. F. Goodgame of this place, a stalk of cotton that shows what this section could do in cotton growing if the grower would only apply the proper means. The stalk was four feet high and was well supplied with limbs. It had on it 65 grown bolls and in addition to this 135 blooms and squares that were not fully developed. The stalk showed no signs of disease and appeared to have been in good growing condition when it was taken from the field. Mr. Goodgame says he has an acre of cotton as good as this stalk, and if nothing interferes with progress it is now making he will get a good bale from it.

Everybody is feeling good these days and the prospects for a splendid fall and winter trade was never better. Crops are reported in fine condition—enough cotton for cash, corn in plenty for home consumption—and everything else that is needed to make life happy in abundance. It is good to be living, especially in Chilton county.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Democratic party of Chilton county is called for Saturday next, to be held at Clanton for the transaction of important business, and some action willl be taken in regard to selecting a candidate for Representative in the legislature. A full attendance is urged.

Clanton is cleaning up and polishing up, all in readiness for the fall trade and all the merchants are putting in fine stocks of merchandise, not to be excelled anywhere. Repairs have been made at the store of J. C. Jones & Co., and a splendid assortment of goods laid in. The Clanton Millinery Company have made some artistic alterations at their store. T. G. Mackey & Son have opened up the old storehouse of Cannon & Son with a fine new stock of goods and will be pleased with your patronage. The new and substantial brick warehouse being erected for W. L. Mullins is making good headway and in general, there is an era of improvement going on continually.

Next month will be the municipal election and everyone is determined to put the town in good shape for the incoming administration. Great improvements have been made in Clanton the last few years and the good work will be continued, while our population grows in number and influence.

The Farmer and His Banker

Our bank never fails to give as good service to the farmer as it gives to any business man. Often a farmer can make money by borrowing, and we are glad to advance money at any time. Do not hesitate to call on us when you want money. We welcome a responsible borrower quite as heartily as a substantial depositor. It will pay every farmer to carry a checking account with us. Our burglar proof safe, together with conservative management makes our bank an absolute safe place for your money. Deposit your savings and grow with a growing bank in a growing community. Why not come in and talk it over with us today? Accounts may be opened by mail and monies deposited or withdrawn in this way with equal facility. The rural mail route solves the problem. It is not necessary to come to town to do your banking. We make a specialty of serving the farmer.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Obituary.

On the morning of Aug. 12th, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Williamson and wafted the spirit of their daughter, Ruby, into eternity.

This estimable young lady was so well known to the people of this community that I need not comment on the traits of her character, but being well acquainted with her I can safely say that she passed those attributes which constitute an ideal lady. She was loved by many and was one of the most congenial, energetic young ladies I ever knew. Her face continually wore a smile and pleasant expression that was cherishing to all who knew her. It is mysterious why God would call for such a young lady who was just verging into useful womanhood, but surely He had a noble purpose in so doing. She was only eighteen years of age. Whereas, the dear Savior has seen fit to take the spirit of this loved one, we extend to the bereaved family and relatives our deepest sympathy in this lonely hour of trouble. May God reveal unto them His infinite love and may they find consolation in the thought that "He doeth all things well.

The shot was fired 15 minutes before the vessel was due to leave her pier at Hoboken, N. J., and the mayor was receiving Godspeed from a group of friends preparatory to a vacation trip to Europe.

Bullet Hit Behind Right Ear.

The bullet struck him behind the right ear and ranged downward, inflicting a dangerous wound; and unless blood poison develops, surgeons are hopeful of the mayor's recovery, although at his age—69 years—such a wound is essentially grave.

Gallagher, the would-be-assassin, is locked in a cell at Jersey City, held without bail. He expresses no remorse.

Liner Gay When Tragedy Occurred.

The big liner was gay with flags and ringing with shouted goodbyes when the tragedy occurred. Most of those who had been aboard the ship to say farewell to friends or relatives had gone ashore, but a little group remained to talk with the mayor. They were standing on the port side of the vessel, near the promenade deck forward, and were in the act of posing for a group photograph when Gallagher, unnoticed, pushed his way almost to the mayor's side, and fired point blank at his head.

He used a 38-caliber revolver and an examination later disclosed that the first cartridge had missed fire. This probably saved the mayor's life. Gallagher, when he first pulled the trigger, was less than 2 feet away, backing a way slightly in his excitement he pulled the trigger a second time and sent a bullet crashing into the mayor's neck below the ear.

75,000,000 INCREASE.

Payne-Aldrich Measure Proves to be Greatest Revenue Producer in History.

The Payne-Aldrich tariff law has produced in its first year a revenue greater by $75,000,000 than the sum collected in any year in the country's history, except the banner year 1907, according to treasury department figures. The second year of the operations of the new tariff began Monday.

During the first full year, ended last Saturday night, the total ordinary receipts, including customs, ordinary internal revenue corporation tax and miscellaneous were $678,850,816, exceeding disbursements by $20,214,829. The ordinary receipts were greater by $15,000,000 approximately, than during 1907, and the 1907 receipts exceeded those of any other year on record by almost $60,000,000. While there was a deficit of $58,734,955 in the ordinary operations of the government in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1909, there was a surplus of more than $20,000,000 in the year ended last Saturday, according to the department.

The corporation tax revenue was $27,090,934, which is only $207,000 less than the amount assessed. If the government were reimbursed for the Panama canal expenditures of $35,283,019 during the tariff year by the proceeds of the sale of a part of the authorized issue of Panama bonds, the treasury working balance, it is claimed, would be increased to $150,000,000.

Lax methods no longer prevail at the customs house, it is said, and to rehabilitation of the service and to improved morals are attributed an estimated augmentation of $12,000,000 in revenues at New York alone.

FLOODS IN JAPAN.

Thousands Are Said to Be Facing Starvation—Dykes Break.

The waters of the River Sumida are still rising and the Honjo and Fukagawa wards of Tokio are nearly completely submerged. Tens of thousands of persons are homeless and starving. One of the three more important embankments guarding Tokio has broken. Should the second and third dykes break half the capital would be submerged.

The threatened embankments are now being guarded by troops. Thousands of homeless persons are being sheltered in the temples and schoolhouses, at which relief stations the most deplorable sights are witnessed. The victims of the flood are wholly dependent upon public relief. Thousands have been unable to find shelter, owing to the insufficiency of boats to convey them to places of safety and they are exposed to the rain and hunger. Every available boat is being employed in the work of rescue and to convey food where it is most needed.

The question of feeding the stricken people is causing apprehension. The vegetable and fish supplies are failing and the stock of biscuits already is nearly exhausted. There is no fear, however, for the supply of rice.

The mountain flood in the neighborhood of Karuizawa has destroyed the Mikasa Hotel.

Many foreigners were stopping there but fortunately no fatalities have been reported so far.

TAFT WANTS TO GET RID OF HE JONAHS

President Turns Cold Shoulder to "Stand Patters."

PARTY HARMONY IS DESIRED

Taft Has at Last Realized Strength of Insurgency and in Consequence Will Get Rid of the "Stand-Patters" Who Have Been Dominating His Administration.

From one high in the councils of the republican party, an intimate friend of both President Taft and [illegible] Theodore Roosevelt, it was learned, [illegible] to a New York dispatch, that the report about the president's intention to get rid of his old advisers, Aldrich, Hale and Cannon, and practically to dismiss Secretary Ballinger, was true.

"The news is important," said this man, "but it is not as surprising to me as to the public. I have been expecting it."

That President Taft had decided finally to get rid of his old standbys was tidings so sensational that the majority of the politicians who could be found to discuss the matter were almost too surprised to talk about it at all. It was generally agreed that it was one of the most momentous moves in the history of the party.

The effect, it was agreed, would be far-reaching. While there was no doubt that Aldrich, Hale, Cannon and Ballinger, and their friends, would not give up without a struggle, such action on the part of the president would tend to bring the two wings of the party, now rapidly growing apart, into harmonious relations.

It would mean, further, that the western republicans, who had been refusing to give the president anything but a half-hearted indorsement, would take up the cudgels for him as avidly as they had opposed him. And it would mean, in all probability, his renomination with little opposition in 1912, as it had been understood by those close to Colonel Roosevelt that he would not want the nomination for himself, unless practically forced to take it.

In addition to all this, President Taft's overthrowing of the old leaders would mean a triumph for the insurgents and most of the principles for which they had stood.

TEXAS AND PROHIBITION.

Democratic State Convention Favors Submitting Amendment.

After indorsing United States Senator Jos. W. Bailey for the democratic nomination for president in 1912, and nominating a full state ticket, headed by Oscar B. Colquitt for governor and A. B. Davidson for lieutenant governor, the democratic state convention adjourned at Galveston, Tex. Both Colquitt and Davidson are anti-prohibitionists, notwithstanding the fact that the party in the recent primary declared in favor of the submission of a prohibition amendment to the people.

The prohibition plank in the platform follows:

"In obedience to the instructions given in the democratic primary July 23, 1910, we call upon the thirty-second legislature of Texas to submit to the people for rejection or approval the constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in this state, but we declare that the vote upon such amendment shall not be the test of democracy."

TAFT IS ACCUSED OF BEING MEDDLER

Gov. Patterson Sore Over Result of Late Election.

NOT SHOT FOR PRESIDENT

Tennessee Governor Accuses Taft of Trying to Republicanize the State and Says "Pernicious Meddling" of the Republican President Should Be Resented—Wants to Bring About Harmony.

As an outcome of the recent judicial election in Tennessee, in which the regular democratic nominees, which he supported, were defeated by independents, who had the active aid of the republican organization, Governor M. R. Patterson has issued a statement to the democracy of Tennessee.

GOVERNOR PATTERSON.

In it he expresses a willingness to waive the democratic nomination for a third term, which he has already received in a primary which he controlled, and again test the question of a choice of the democracy in any sort of a primary. Thus he would hope, he says, to save the state to democracy.

He refers to "the pernicious intermeddling of a republican president with the affairs of the democratic party in our state," and says it should be resented.

A Knock for Taft.

The address, among other things, says:

"The pernicious intermeddling of a republican president with the affairs of the democratic party in our state should be resented, and his well laid plan to republicanize it thwarted before it is too late.

"Those democrats who are actively aiding and abetting his efforts excuse their treason by saying that it is necessary in order to eliminate me from politics.

"If this is true, why not bring it about in a way that will restore harmony, and not destroy democratic ascendency? If the majority of the democrats are opposed to me, as it is claimed, I should not represent them as their candidate for governor.

Willing to Enter Another Primary.

"In order to silence criticism and to test the question of whether or not I am the choice of the majority, I now offer to waive my title to the nomination, restore it to the people and enter any kind of a primary to be held in any way the opposition may elect, with an equal division of election officers, and in this primary every well-known democrat to be allowed to vote without regard as to how he cast his ballot in the recent judicial election.

"I will agree to meet any competitor in such a primary on the stump in joint discussion and answer every charge which has been made against me.

"The only condition I make is that the successful nominee shall be supported in the November election by all who participated in the primary.

"MALCOLM R. PATTERSON."

TO BAR CHOLERA.

United States Consuls Are Ordered to Watch Foreign Ports.

Rigorous measures have been taken by United States representatives abroad to prevent the introduction into this country of cholera through the United States ports.

At the instance of the public health department at Washington, the United States consular offices at Hamburg, Bremen, Antwerp and Rotterdam and other ports are working under cabled instructions, which require them to detain steerage passengers from cholera-infected districts in Russia and to disinfect baggage prior to embarkation for the United States.

The latest reports on the Russian plague received at Washington say that at Rostoff-on-Don during the week ended July 9 there were 49 cases and 37 deaths, and since the beginning of the outbreak there has been 3,781 cases and 904 deaths. At Odessa there were reported between July 4 and 9 twenty-five new cases of cholera and ten deaths.

LONG CHASE ENDED.

Wendling, Alleged Murderer of Kellner Girl, in Law's Grasp.

Joseph Wendling, wanted at Louisville, Ky., on the charge of murdering Alma Kellner, was safely landed in the city hall after a remarkable chase across the continent and an almost equally remarkable return in charge of Capt. John P. Carney, chief of the Louisville detective department.

The return of Wendling to Louisville marks the end of probably the longest chase in detective history. The return trip from San Francisco to Louisville stretches the real hunt of about 11,000 miles to a total of over 12,000 miles.

Not until May 30, the day that the mutilated body of Alma Kellner was found in a cellar beneath St. John's parochial school was Wendling connected with the disappearance of the child. It was believed that the child had been kidnapped. Numerous letters were received by the Kellner family and Frank Fehr, a wealthy brewer, and uncle of the girl, demanding ransom for her return.

Four months previous to the discovery of the body Wendling had left Louisville quietly, not even letting his wife know that he was going away. When bloody clothing was found in Wendling's room he was charged with the murder and the wheels of the continuous search for Wendling were set in motion, with the result that he was finally run down and captured at San Francisco.

A GIGANTIC STRIKE.

Fully 8,000 Cloakmakers Refuse to Work in New York.

The striking cloakmakers in New York City number more than 80,000 men and women, according to a brief submitted to the supreme court by their employers, who seek to have the union restrained by a permanent injunction.

The manufacturers ask the court to declare the strike unlawful, on the ground that the workers are maintaining an illegal combination in striking against the shops. The plaintiffs, according to the representations made to the court, produce 80 per cent of the cloaks, suits and skirts manufactured in the United States and the investments of the employers represent between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000.

BRUNDAGE'S HOME A SMALL ARK

Chickens, Dogs, Ducks, Pigs and Goats in Three Rooms Gets Woman Into Police Court.

New York.—Outside of having 30 chickens, two ducks, five pigs, four dogs and two goats concealed about her three-room house in the Rocky Hill road, at Bayside, Queens county, Mrs. Annie Burke hasn't a single pet to keep her company. When brought before Judge O'Keefe in special sessions court at Jamaica, charged with permitting the chickens to peregrinate about the property of her neighbors, it developed that she was conducting an ark.

Evidence showed that the ducks occupied the attic, the dogs one of the rooms on the first floor, while the pigs have a front room and bath directly under the place where there would be a bay window if there were one. The goats occupy a cottage near by and the chickens are not particular where they sleep.

Judge O'Keefe suspended sentence when Mrs. Burke charged that the complaint was made by a land booming concern. She promised to keep her chickens on a leash, but she may hear from the department of health, as a transcript of the testimony was obtained for its use.

DOG CAN SCENT LIGHTNING

Flees Ahead and Gives Warning of Bolt That Killed Eight Cows Under Tree.

Oxford, Pa.—A dog that apparently can scent lightning is the proudest possession of Howard Griffith of Lower Oxford township, and the knowledge of the dog's peculiar gift is the only consolation which Griffith has for the loss of eight cows, which were struck and killed the other afternoon.

The dog is a collie that has been trained to watch the cows and bring them in at night. Nine of the cows gathered under a tree in the field and the dog was with them, when the family heard him give a strange howl and start down the lane as fast as he could run. A few seconds afterward a bolt of lightning struck the tree, killing eight of the nine cows and knocking the other one down.

The dog crawled under the barn and refused to come out for some time. Everyone is at a loss to explain the strange premonition which undoubtedly saved the animal's life.

New York.—Outside of having 30 chickens, ten ducks, five pigs, four dogs and two goats concealed about her three-room house in the Rocky Hill road, at Bayside, Queens county, Mrs. Annie Curke hasn't a single pet to keep her company. When brought before Judge O'Keefe in special sessions court at Jamaica, charged with permitting the chickens to peregrinate about the property of her neighbors, it developed that she was conducting an ark.

Evidence showed that the ducks occupied the attic, the dogs one of the rooms on the first floor, while the pigs have a front room and bath directly under the place where there would be a bay window if there were one. The goats occupy a cottage near by and the chickens are not particular where they sleep.

Judge O'Keefe suspended sentence when Mrs. Curke charged that the complaint was made by a land booming concern. She promised to keep her chickens on a leash, but she may hear from the department of health, as a transcript of the testimony was obtained for its use.

DOG CAN SCENT LIGHTNING

Flies Ahead and Gives Warning of Bolt That Killed Eight Cows Under Tree.

Oxford, Pa.—A dog that apparently can scent lightning is the proudest possession of Howard Griffith of Lower Oxford township, and the knowledge of the dog's peculiar gift is the only consolation which Griffith has for the loss of eight cows, which were struck and killed the other afternoon.

The dog is a collie that has been trained to watch the cows and bring them in at night. Nine of the cows gathered under a tree in the field and the dog was with them, when the family heard him give a strange howl and start down the lane as fast as he could run. A few seconds afterward a bolt of lightning struck the tree, killing eight of the nine cows and knocking the other one down.

The dog crawled under the barn and refused to come out for some time. Everyone is at a loss to explain the strange premonition which undoubtedly saved the animal's life.

Workers' Big Drink Bill.

According to the syllabus of the board of education on temperance and hygiene, about two-thirds of the United Kingdom's total drink bill, or nearly $10,000,000 a week, is spent by the working classes.

Wealth of the Country.

Think of an acre of ground covered with a pile of silver dollars 320 feet high. That would be the sight presented if the whole wealth of the country were piled together. It amounts to more than $107,000,000,000.

Building Without a Window.

St. Louis now has a concrete building fifty-seven feet high, which hasn't a single window. It is illuminated in the daytime by means of a skylight in the roof.

Money Making Made Easy

During these strenuous times one is at a disadvantage if sick or billious. An occasional dose of St. Joseph's Liver Regulator (either liquid or powders) will strengthen and brighten the entire person, thus keeping one in trim for the battles of life. Druggists and dealers sell it, liquid, 50c a bottle; powders, in tin boxes, 25c a box. Give it a trial and satisfy yourself of its splendid regulating qualities. Don't forget the name,— "ST JOSEPH'S." Take no other.

"GIRL" WEIGHS 685 POUNDS

Miss Trixie and Her "Little" Brother Together Tip Scales at Five Hundred a Ton.

Seattle, Wash.—Miss Trixie, the 685-pound Astoria (N. Y.) girl who has been exhibited all over the country, gave considerable trouble to the officers of the steamship Aymeric. Miss Trixie, with her brother, Baby Trixie, are being taken to the big exposition at Nanking, China, to be held this summer, and when the fat girl arrived at the wharf the trouble began by the captain being called on to provide a gangplank sufficiently strong to allow Miss Trixie to board the ship.

The gang plank was made, but a ten-foot section had to be taken out of the ship's rail to admit the 92-inch hips of the fat New York girl. Then how to get her into the cabin and from the cabin into a state room and from the state room to a berth large and strong enough, etc., etc., caused the captain and first officer to have brainstorms.

The two "children"—one is twenty and the other eighteen—together weigh 1,281 pounds. They will have to sleep on the floor of their state rooms on this trip across the Pacific.

Miss Trixie was finally settled comfortably in the finest room on board the ship, but her meals will have to be brought to her, for the door to the saloon is too small for her girth and the stairs are too weak to hold her weight. Strange to say, the fare of these two heavyweights is the same as it is for a ninety-six-pound Chinaman who is returning to his fatherland.

"LADY" BOOTBLACK IS LATEST

Parlors to Be Established in All Parts of Gotham to Accommodate Fair Sex.

New York.—Innovations in the form of women shoe shiners are to be introduced to New Yorkers in the near future by the United Shoe Shining company. The women are to shine the shoes of the members of the fair sex in parlors that will be established in all parts of the city for them exclusively.

Other parlors for men will be established in all the principal hotels, congregating places and street corners. At least, the prospectus of the company says so. The company declares it has an authorized capital of $1,500,000, with shares at one dollar each. The stock is being underwritten at 35 cents a share.

Shoes will be cleaned and polished according to the very latest ideas, the prospectus states, and shabby places will have to give way to "conveniently located, sanitary, orderly and tasteful establishments, where will be found the very latest newspapers and current literature."

Options on the principal shoe shining parlors have been obtained, it is reported, and new stands will be established as well. The business will be conducted on "chain" lines similar to restaurants and cigar store systems.

To Bed for the Sick.

Few people realize that for most diseases the bed and it alone is the greatest, surest, quickest cure the world and ages of science have yet discovered or bestowed. People as a rule look upon going to bed for sickness as a necessary and unavoidable consequence of sickness, instead of looking upon it as they should, as being the very first and greatest part of the cure of the case.—New York Press.

Concrete Facts.

Pulverized wood is sometimes mixed with cement for making what is known as wood concrete. This is lighter than concrete that is made with sand. Straw, seaweed and hay are also pulverized for use instead of wood. The pulverized product is very much like sawdust. The chief advantage of wood concrete over ordinary concrete is that it is soft enough to permit of nails being driven into it.

CUSHION THAT WON'T SLIP

Really Comfortable and Dainty Accompaniment of the Always Restful Armchair.

Practical suggestions for really comfortable and dainty head cushions for armchairs are always useful, and the kind of cushion shown in our sketch will not slip out of place, and is simple to make. It consists of two narrow cushions joined together in the center, the one hanging in front of the chair and the other at the back, so that the weight of the two cushions balances and keep each other in place. This scheme is clearly illustrated by the lower sketch, which shows the cushions in position on the back of the chair.

The material in which the cushions are made is, of course, a matter of choice, and the dimensions given in the upper diagram, though useful suggestion as to size, need not be adhered to, as in a measure the shape and size of the cushion will be governed by the shape of the back of the chair over which they are to hang, but at least twelve inches of material should be allowed between the two cushions in the center if for a padded chair, and they may be finished off at either side with a ball fringe and some pretty floral design might be worked upon them.

THINK BEFORE YOU SPEAK

All Too Many Are the Thoughtless Remarks That Give Pain to the Listener.

The girl who is popular is she who makes a study of the things that are better left unsaid. One need not be aggressive in speech to be a social failure.

Oh, those things that mean no actual harm, yet make us squirm!

Sometimes thoughtlessness is at fault, again a too hasty tongue, more often lack of fine feeling.

There is nothing, for instance, in announcing you have been invited to a certain luncheon or dinner, yet when that announcement makes another woman realize she is a fill up, far better would it be to say nothing about it.

You may think it shows how popular is your guest to remark the number of things that are being given in her honor. Tell of this entertaining to a friend who feels she should do likewise, but is prevented by poverty—it is one of the things far better left unsaid.

If you are the hostess who has achieved at much trouble two tables of bridge or a simple family dinner for a friend's house guest, don't you feel when that friend announces that she was compelled to turn down an elaborate luncheon for your invitation that the information might with better taste have been suppressed?

Better unsaid is the gloomy greeting to an imaginative friend, "How pale you look; have you been sick?"

To the average fat woman, far better unsaid are discussions on flesh, dumpiness, big hips and double chins. The hundredth woman may not be sensitive, but the ninety-nine secretly resent being asked, "How much do you weigh now?" or "Aren't you stouter than the last time we met?"

Summer Millinery.

Lightness (in weight) is a characteristic of all the summer millinery, however massive an appearance it may present to the eye. The straws are all in large braid effects and the majority are given a dull satin finish. They crumble under the slightest touch, of course, but while they last they are lovely, especially in the delicate violet and prune shades. Everywhere, too, are seen quantities of wheat sheafs dyed in impossible colors, but spraying out effectively in the way in which much of the summer trimming is arranged. It is not uncommon to see a mound of gilded wheat rising ten inches above a hat brim, or extending out sidewise to a relatively enormous distance.—Harper's Bazar.

For Slippers.

It is comparatively lately that the slipper case of chintz has been made to fit the slipper. Heretofore the closet door seems to have been the final aim and object of the cutter.

The pieces of applied chintz that hold the slipper are now made toe shaped, so that each dainty slipper fits perfectly into its own socket and is held in place. When all is said and done, the hanging case that accommodates a full line of shoes and another case for the daintier pumps and slippers will prove more useful than separate bags for each pair.

Girls Workers of England.

There were about 50,000 persons employed in the silk industry of England, according to the latest return, and of these over 39,000 were women.

Big Clay Pipe Factory.

The largest clay pipe factory in the world is in Appomattox county, Virginia. The clay found in that section is specially adapted to this use.

The Beet Sugar Industry.

Beet sugar making is as yet an infant industry, with $130,000,000 invested. It is not old enough in this country to be developed without protection. But there are many indications that tend to show how we may some day compete with the world in the production of beet sugar.

Confuses the Compass.

On account of the magnetic qualities of the hull and the ore which comprises the cargo, many of the vessels of the lake fleets experience great trouble in navigating owing to the influence of the metal hull and the cargo on the compass.

The Calabash Pipe.

A well made calabash pipe possesses all the valuable characteristics of all other pipes in most convenient form. It is light and durable, and the free space below the bowl insures a cool, clean smoke, neither biting nor "gurgly."

After La Grippe

"I had suffered several weeks with LaGrippe. Had pains in my head and eyes. It felt as though there was a heavy weight on the top of my head, until it seemed that my brain would burst. I was so nervous that I could not rest or sleep. When I dozed off I would awake with a sudden jerking of my whole body. Dr. Miles' Nervine, Heart Remedy and Nerve and Liver Pills cured me. A number of friends have since realized the same benefits."

MRS. ALVIN H. LOCKS,
Seabrook, N. H.

The after effects of LaGrippe are often more serious than the disease, as it leaves the system in a weakened condition that invites more serious troubles, such as pneumonia, etc.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine should be taken for some time to thoroughly restore nerve strength.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle does not benefit, your druggist will return your money.

50 Per Cent Better

"I have used less than one bottle of Cardui," writes Mrs. Gertrude Ward, of Rushville, Neb., "and am feeling fifty per cent better than when I began taking it.

"Before taking Cardui, I had suffered with female trouble, for eight years. My greatest trouble was irregularity. I also suffered with severe pains, every month, but now I am greatly improved and will recommend Cardui to all my suffering friends."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

The rare medicinal herbs of Cardui are imported by the manufacturers direct from Europe and are not to be found in any other medicine.

These ingredients are what give Cardui its superiority, as a female medicine and tonic, over any other medicine.

For over 50 years Cardui has been the favorite woman's medicine. The ladies like it, because it is so easy to take, so gentle, so safe, so reliable in its results, and they have faith in its curative tonic powers, because of the thousands of other ladies it has helped. Try it today.

Attracting hundreds of farmers and farmers' wives from forty-five counties of Alabama and from six states of the South, the farmers' Summer School at Auburn has proved itself a success, so much so as to be almost epoch-making in its evidence of a general desire for agricultural education.

The educational number of the Birmingham Ledger was an exceptionally good one, carrying in its columns a thorough review of the educational institutions of the State, with several fine views of the leading schools and colleges.

The Farmers' Union is in session at Montgomery, and an enthusiastic and practical body of men are discussing affairs in a sensible manner.

They come from every quarter of the State, and it is expected there will be fully one thousand in attendance.

The work of the convention began Wednesday morning; addresses of welcome were made and responded to and the convention went in to executive session in the evening.

Thursday morning's session will be also of executive business, but in the afternoon the picnic and barbecue will be in order at Pickett Springs. Thursday night the visitors and citizens will again gather in the auditorium for an open session, at which time United States Senator Bankhead will deliver an address on good roads.

The program for Friday will be taken up mostly with hearing reports from committees, discussions on agricultural matters and the annual election of officers. Friday afternoon the farmers will be taken for the automobile ride over the county.

Realizing that right now is the time for advertising the great resources an advantages of the South, the enterprising business men of Montgomery have made possible the Alabama Agricultural and Industrial Exposition, the purpose of which is to afford the farmers and manufacturers an opportunity to show to the world what can be produced in this great southern country. Every known grain, grass, cereal and fruit can be grown in the South. Live stock of all kinds can be raised with profit and the raw material for most any manufacture is here in abundance. Don't forget the dates, October 12 to 28, 1910, inclusive. You cannot afford to miss it. The most comprehensive exposition in the South. Let everybody come. Montgomery bids you welcome.

First Bale At Selma.

The first bale of new cotton of the season was received in Selma Monday afternoon. It was raised by J. Craig Smith on his Wallace plantation in the western part of the county and was consigned to C. W. Hooper and Company.

The bale of new cotton was two days latter than the first bale received last year. The bale was classed strict middling and weighed about 400 pounds. After being weighed and classed, it was put up at auction and was bid in by R. H. Overton, the price paid being 20 cents a pound which is the highest price that has been paid for the first bale here in several years.

OKLAHOMA PIGS ARE TRAINED

Cattleman Finds Much Amusement in Training Various Farm Animals —Receive Reward.

On the 101 ranch in Oklahoma there lives an old cattleman known to his neighbors as "Uncle Dan," who finds amusement in training young animals of various kinds including pigs, goats, mules and ponies. These he has taught many tricks not usually numbered among the accomplishments of ranch animals.

The most diverting of his four-footed performers is a troupe of small pigs that have been taught to "shoot the chutes." Specially made for their use is a "chute" having a cleated runway up one side and a smooth incline down the other. Up this cleated ascent scramble the pigs, poising an instant at the summit then they scoot dizzily down. After each trip they are rewarded with a handful of oatmeal and lumps of sugar. Their trainer says he is compelled to take the "chute" apart between lessons for the pigs would coast during his absence, so well do they like the pastime.

The New Way.

About Beans.

The bean that we eat in some form nearly every day, that almost everybody likes, is comparatively new as an edible. Our common, everyday bean is a native of South America and was introduced into Europe, whence it came to this country, during the sixteenth century, and now is represented by more than 150 cultivated varieties. The big, broad bean is the bean of history and its origin is so remote that it is doubtful. It is probably a native of southwestern Asia and northeastern Europe.

USEFUL FARM-MADE BROODER

Missouri Poultry Raiser Gives Sketch of Device Intended to Shelter Little Chicks.

My brooder is 3 by 4 feet, divided into two sections, the upper being for the chicks, the lower for the lamp which heats it, writes Preston Mitchell, in Valley Farmer. An extension (BB) 12 inches wide is built at one side for a cool-air room.

A No. 1 kitchen lamp is used for heating, a free space of 4 inches being allowed between top of chimney and brooder floor. Lamp may be removed through a 12 by 12-inch door in back. Openings in the lower part of box provide fresh air for lamp. The floor is made of good lumber matched to fit very closely. An inch and a half below floor is a solid piece of sheet iron or tin (not zinc) which keeps out the fumes from the lamp. The lamp heats the sheet iron and the dead-air space above, thus warming the boards in brooder floor.

In front of brooder are three doors, two of glass and one for the runway. From floor to eaves is 5 or 6 inches. Roof is covered with a prepared roofing. The front part is hinged with 6-inch strap hinges so it will lie flat on main top. Rear part is on hinges at back of brooder, so the entire top can be turned back for cleaning and airing. The joint between the two parts of roof may be covered with a strip of oilcloth. A few folds of burlap sacking split up to to 3 inches form the division between the main brooder and the cooling room.

IN THE COURSE OF BUSINESS

Rogers was a builder. To finance his operations he had to borrow heavily, giving his property that was under construction as collatral. One of the men who lent money to him was a Jew. At first Rogers prospered, but later things began to go badly. One trouble after another overtook him, and late one night he went to bed knowing that on the morrow he would have to confess to his creditors that he was insolvent. Even then he might have escaped with his financial skin whole had he chosen to avail himself of some loophole of the law—some chicane that might strip him temporarily of his self-respect, but leave him a fair share of money. But instead of doing anything that was in the slightest degree dishonest, he met his troubles like a man.

One of Rogers' creditors was the Jew. He went to him at once and said: "I can't go any further. I'm up against a blank wall. The money that I owe you I see no means of paying. You have a mortgage on one of the houses. Foreclose it at once in order to protect yourself. That is your duty. If you lose anything and I can ever make up the loss to you I shall."

Rogers, having no capital to operate with, tried several salaried positions, and at last became one of the appraisers for a great life insurance company, passing upon the value of the real estate and buildings that were offered as collateral for loans. After he had been at this work two years the Jew called on him at his office one day and handed to him a check to his order for $7,000.

"What's this?" asked Rogers in amazement.

"That represents the profit on the building you mortgaged to me two or three years ago and which I have just sold."

"Profit? What have I to do with any profit?"

"I have repaid myself for the amount of my loans to you. I have added to this interest and all charges to which I have been subjected in the transaction. After deducting this from the price I have received for the property there is a remainder of $7,000. That money belongs to you. That is why I give you this check."

Rogers put the $7,000 check in his pocket. There was a suspicion of moisture in his eyes and a catch in his voice as he thanked the Jew, who went his way hastily.

In the days that darkened the close of 1907 the life insurance companies literally were begged for money by men who offered excellent security. Everybody was "turned down," yet everybody begged and begged. One man in asking for a loan on his property said if he did not get it it meant ruin to him. The appraiser reported favorably, but even as he wrote the report he knew the application would be denied. And it was rejected flatly and curtly. As the clerk was carrying the papers out of the controller's office Rogers happened by. A name indorsed on the folded sheet caught his attention. He asked a few questions and then looked at the paper. In a flash he realized the whole situation. The name on the back of the paper was that of the Jew, and if that loan was rejected his friend would be in dire financial straits.

Though Rogers was only an appraiser—a small item in the great staff of the insurance company—and though he knew that he was risking his humble position by doing so, and that meant everything to him in those hard times, he hurried to the office of the controller, an austere gentleman who was hedged about by many assistants and by much authority. He told the controller vividly and simply the story of his own failure, of the foreclosure of the mortgage by the Jew and of the $7,000 check two years later.

The controller listened attentively, and the first words he said were over the office telephone to the clerk who had charge of advising the would-be borrowers of their loans and of their fate.

"Send those papers in that Cohen loan application up to me at once."

When they reached him the controller looked them over and, turning to the appraiser, said:

"I'll make that loan. By the Lord Harry, if it was the last dollar that this company had to lend I would let that man have it."

Comets Still a Mystery to Science.

The nature of comets is still one of the mysteries of science. Here is a sort of ball of wind bigger than the earth, which rushes across the immensity of the heavens with a speed of 90,000 miles an hour, squirting out, not behind it, but opposite to or away from the sun, smoke, vapor, gas, to a distance of millions and millions of miles. These gases may leave it and remain in the ether. A repellant force emanating from the sun produces these enigmatic tails, but at the same time there are at work phenomena, mechanical, chemical, physical, unknown, which I peril the comet itself, contort it, dislocate it, utterly change it. Electricity is probably at work, as in the radiant matter of Crookes tubes; solar heat also exerts its influence, and these burning daughters of the infinite develop in unheard-of proportion as fast as they approach the sun; but all of these phenomena are taking place in the bosom of the ultra-glacial cold of space, about 700 degrees Fahrenheit below zero. Truly we can form no idea of them.—Camille Flammarion, in New York World.

BAR WOMEN AT HUNT

English Sportsman Shows Indignation at Cancellation of Race.

Reference to "Marsports" Demonstrates Fact That Games Calling for Grit and Determination Are Dwindling in Popularity.

London.—The woman's role on the hunting field has been a continual source of discussion among English fox hunters, but the close of the present season sees the subject crop up in a new light.

Point to point races are a regular feature of the winding up of the hunting with most of the packs, and of late years women's races frequently are included in the program. This year the Essex hunt's point to point races were to have included a woman's race, but that event was canceled at the last moment, although five women had entered.

The incident caused speculation in hunting circles, and now the affair gets additional interest from a sporting challenge by Sir Claude de Crespigny, who, although over sixty years old, is a fine, all around sportsman and an adept with the gloves. Sir Claude has sent the following epistle to an Essex paper:

"At the point to point meeting I was informed the women who had in so sporting a spirit entered for the race were furious at the event being struck off the program. I beg to inform them that I share their indignation, and the elimination was without my knowledge or approval.

"So far as I can make out some silly old women, not of female sex, set about worrying the honorable secretary, threatening to absent themselves if the race was left in. What difference would their nonattendance have had on the meeting?

"A much greater sportsman than any of these marsports offered to produce twelve women from his own hunt who would pound any twelve men of any hunt.

"If any of the objectors resent my description of them they will know where to find me."

Sir Claude's reference to twelve women who would pound any twelve men of any hunt gives a point to the lament raised by a contributor to the Weekly Nation over the decadence of British sport. The games which call for grit and determination, he says, are dwindling in popularity. He especially refers to the fact that while fox hunting attracts larger fields, the standard of horsemanship has not improved among men. This, he thinks, due to the fact that in the rising generation men for the most part devote their attention to motoring rather than horsemanship.

"Fortunately," he continues, "the women seem, upon the whole, to ride better than they used to do, and to be growing keener about it. Plenty of men will, of course, tell you that women who ride across country quite fearlessly do so in almost every instance through ignorance of the danger.

"That theory is a false one. Dozens of times I have seen women, who well know the risks they ran in taking certain lines of country when the hounds are running hard, give men who were hesitating at an awkward fence a lead over, for woman's intuition and her quickness of thought and decision serve her in the hunting field just as they do elsewhere.

"It is curious, but it may be significant, that while the vast proportion of men of the well-to-do class seem to be satisfied with amusements needing neither nerve nor grit, the women are becoming more addicted to games and forms of sport that call for the risk of limb and sometimes life.

"Whether the fashion of riding astride, which steadily has spread since Mrs. Alex Tweedie set the example, is to be recommended it is hard to say."

When one notes how the women of England are growing taller, stronger and hardier, while there is a general tendency toward physical degeneration in men, one wonders if an Amazonian England is a possibility of the future.

RED, WHITE AND BLUE ROSE

Californian Is Already Two-Thirds Successful in His Patriotic Experiment With Tree.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Having a rose-bush which produces a red and white flower, Park Superintendent Long of Long Branch thinks he can make it add a blue shade also, and thus he will have a national flower.

Last year a bush in Pacific park bore snow-white roses. This season the flowers are beautifully tinged with red. Long attributes this fact to the proximity of a red rose bush and says that by next year, when the roots of the bushes mingle, the red stripe will be even more pronounced. He is now planning to force the red and white bush to take on the shade of blue.

Policeman's Job Too Easy.

Chicago.—The ennui that results from being a policeman in Evanston has proven more than Edwin Jameson, assistant chief, can bear. The other night he tendered his resignation, his reason being that he didn't have enough to do. He believes that he will find the joys of an active existence in returning to his former trade, plumbing.

POULTRY NOTES

Eggs should be regularly collected at least twice daily.

A light placed in the roosting quarters will keep the ducks quiet at night.

Grain should be fed poultry at night, as it remains in the crop the longest.

There is no place for a sick person in the poultry business. It's hustle, hustle, hustle.

Nearly all disease of poultry can be traced to filth. Clean off the drop boards frequently.

Young ducks should be ready for market at ten weeks old. No profit in feeding them after that.

The ground and duck pen should be disinfected every spring and fall by digging up and sowing green crops.

Young ducks are extremely nervous and cannot stand undue excitement. Keep the dogs and strangers away from them.

Hard-shelled eggs are always preferable; consequently give the laying hens plenty of egg-forming material. Oyster shells are one of the excellent foods.

We often read of hens that lay 200 eggs in one year. This is a good record to aspire to, but count how many you have in your pen that can go one better.

On most farms it will prove better and more economical to allow the poultry free range during favorable weather and fence off the lawn and garden.

With the common knowledge of the earning of the farm flocks have come a desire to keep more fowls and make their keeping a special department of the farm operations.

The gains made by chickens during the summer are rapid and poultrymen are fast beginning to realize that if they have large healthy birds they must have abundant range during the period when they are growing and developing.

VENTILATION FOR THE HOGS

Absolutely Necessary That Animals Should Be Given Pure Air— Object Lesson in Chicago.

A great many farmers—and some of them pretty good farmers, too—do not believe that ventilated hoghouses are necessary. Any kind of a building or pen is good enough for a hog. What has ventilation to do with a hog's growth and health? Here is a lesson in hoghouse air that answers the question. At the Cook county poor farm near Chicago one of the hog-houses on one side has window sides the whole length of it, and the hinged ventilation board a foot wide above the windows. The other house has no glass and is poorly ventilated. In this the hogs became overheated and then went out in the cold and about thirty died from pneumonia and tuberculosis. The hogs in the other house ran in and out of their quarters in exactly the same way, yet only one hog died from any cause. Here is a practical lesson that cost over $200. It is barely possible that when you come to think it over it may dawn upon you that the cause of the death of some of your own hogs was due to poisoned air.

For all Women

For all women who are not thoroughly healthy, who are nervous, despondent, have aching back, bearing down or abdominal pains, pains in the head, sick stomach, etc., should take Granger's VIN-O-VITÆ at once. As a general remedy for all the ailments peculiar to women it is unsurpassed. No matter what trouble incident to female life, VIN-O-VITÆ is the indicated remedy. For sale by druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Send for booklet to Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

A Constipation Remedy Free

There is no action of your daily life of greater importance than to see that your bowels move. They should move at least once a day naturally, and by that is meant without any help. If they do not move at least once a day you can consider yourself constipated and it is time you did something about it.

You will be glad to know there is a way out of the difficulty. Lemuel Landerdale, an old soldier at Quincy, Ill., Elmer McMillan, of Speed, Mo., Mrs. Monahan, of Stonewall, Miss., and many others were as you are now. But one day they awoke to the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin was curing their friends, so they bought it too and it cured them. Today they are loud in praise of it.

What Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin did for them it should do for you. Surely your constipation is no worse than theirs, one of whom had it since '61. It only remains for you to realize that salts are of but temporary good, and what you want is a permanent cure; that purgative tablets, cathartic pills and such violent things make a great show of doing something, but do nothing that is lasting. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientific preparation, a laxative-tonic, a mild syrupy liquid that contains ingredients that not only cure the constipation, but tone the intestinal muscles so that they learn again to work without help. A bottle can be bought of any druggist for the small price of 50 cents, and there is a dollar size for families who have already found out its wonderful value in stomach, liver and bowel troubles, in old or young.

Send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you so that you can test it before buying.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

WHEEL-HOE IS HANDY TOOL

Implement Is Gardener's Best Friend and With It One Man Can Do Three Men's Work.

This implement is the gardener's best friend; with it one man can do as much work in two hours as he can in six with the old-fashioned common hoe. It saves laborious stooping, makes the work easier and does it better. These hoes have several attachments such as drills, cultivators and different sized hoes making it suitable for crops of all kinds and sizes. If a man is too lazy to tend to his own garden, his wife will find the use of the wheel hoe very comforting.

A Handy Garden Tool.

Don't Neglect the Garden.

When the work of planting and cultivating farm crops is pressing the garden is apt to be neglected. This should never be done. Garden plants are tender and cannot bear neglect. The garden should be cultivated frequently and the plants forced to early maturity.

The only really successful garden is the clean garden.

The Review of Reviews

first, because it is a necessity—that is the rule in magazine buying of America's intellectual aristocracy. It is indispensable to the busy business man, who must keep abreast of the times, because it gives him the real news of the day in concise, readable form; it is invaluable to the thinking man, who demands only the truth and then draws his own conclusions, because it gives him just plain, straight facts.

It is helpful to the whole family. In it you will find a monthly picture of men and affairs by Dr. Albert Shaw, in his comprehensive editorial, "Progress of the World;" a clever cartoon history of the month; book reviews; the gist of the best which has appeared in the other magazines and newspapers of the world; pithy character sketches; and interesting articles on the all-important topics of the day. Authoritative, non-partisan, timely and very much to the point, "it's a liberal education," is the way subscribers express it.

JESUS NEARING JERUSALEM

Sunday School Lesson for Aug. 21, 1910

Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Matthew 20:17-34. Memory verses 25-27.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many."—Matt. 20:28.

TIME.—March A. D. 30. In the last month of Jesus' ministry. After the raising of Lazarus (John 11).

PLACE.—Perea, beyond Jordan.

Suggestion and Practical Thought.

An Example. The Splendid Heroism of Christ.—Vs. 17-19. The company of disciples led by the Master were now drawing near to Jerusalem. Jesus with a clear vision of all that was before him, was moving steadily on, "with majesty and heroism," to the terrible scenes of mockery, rejection, and crucifixion, which were close at hand.

The heroism of Christ was the greater because

He was perfectly able to escape the pain and death to which he was going.

Thinkest thou," he said to Peter, "that I cannot now pray to my father, and he shall presently give me more than twelve legions of angels?" (Matt. 26:53.) They guarded his spirit from falling, but he chose to go to his death.

"Therefore doth my father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might take it again. No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again" (John 10:17, 18).

He gave himself for the greatest and most worthy cause in all history.

A Warning. Two Ambitious Young Men.—Vs. 20-23. Who wish to be heroes, but set out in the wrong way. However at length they became greater men and greater heroes in Christ's way, than their highest dreams at this time.

20. The mother of Zebedee's children. Not little children, but sons. From comparing Matt. 27:55, 56, with Mark 15:40; 16:1, it appears that her name was Salome. The sons were James and John (Mark 10:35). According to Mark, the sons came making the request for themselves. This agrees with Matthews, for she came with her sons.

The Request and Its Motive. "What wilt thou?" It was best for them to spread out in the clear light their secret thoughts and hopes. Such a statement is often more than half a cure. "Grant that these my two sons may sit, the one on thy right hand, and the other on the left, in thy kingdom." That is, in the two chief places of honor. The first place of honor was the right hand of the sovereign; the second, the left hand.

"Ye know not what ye ask." They knew not the greatness of the favor they asked—how blessed beyond their highest dreams it was to sit on the right hand of the Son of God, how radiant the glories of that kingdom were to be.

"Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of?" Have you counted the cost? Can you pay the price?

"They say unto him, We are able." The language of assurance somewhat overweening, for it was the assurance not wholly of faith, but partly of ignorance of themselves and of the future. They fled with the other disciples, in the night of the arrest.

Jesus showed them the only true way, and turned them from the path they thought led to the desired good, but which led them away from the goal. They drank the Lord's cup.

Judas alone took the wrong way, and utterly failed of his hopes.

True Greatness. How to Make the Most of Life.—Vs. 24-28. "And when the ten heard it, they were moved with indignation." This shows that they had the same feelings as the two brothers.

It is our own faults that we most condemn when we see them mirrored in others. The selfish think others are selfish; the fretful think others are in bad temper. They were all in one boat. They all alike needed the instruction which Jesus proceeds to give.

"But Jesus called them unto him." Their controversy in the last verse had been carried on aside and apart from Jesus. "Ye know that the princes of the Gentiles," i. e., this is the plan in the worldly kingdoms, in distinction from his spiritual kingdom. "Exercise dominion over them." Lord it over them, exercise tyranical and arbitrary power. Not for the good of the governed, but for the advantage of the rulers themselves, as the French king said, voicing the old idea of kingship, "I am the state."

The Need of Opened Eyes.—Vs. 29-34. There is not room to enter upon this section of the lesson in detail; and to do so, even if we could, would detract from the great lesson we have been studying.

Jesus and his disciples have crossed the Jordan and reached Jericho on the way to Jerusalem.

The True Greatness. 26. "But it shall not be so among you." The whole principle of Christ's kingdom is the exact opposite of the usual worldly plan. Nearly all the evils that have come to the church have come through a disregard of this command—a desire to be honored and to rule, rather than to serve and help. "But whosoever will be great among you." Jesus does not forbid the desire to be great, but only the desire for selfish greatness. The wish to be greater than others is a wrong ambition. The wish to be as great, as good, as possible, is right, but has its dangers.

DANGER OF SUMMER

Chicago "Healthograms" Tell of Many Menacing Evils in City.

Wash Vegetables, Don't Overfeed Baby and Watch Milk, Is Advice of City Physicians to Citizens—Lower Death Rate.

Advice for the feeding of new-born babies, warnings against impure milk and unclean vegetables, and another box of literary pills in the form of the ubiquitous "healthogram" are mingled in the latest report of the health department, with the cheering information that the public health situation is greatly improved over the last few weeks.

In the week there were 47 deaths less than the week before, the death rate being lower than that of last year. The deaths from acute contagious diseases show a reduction of 50 per cent. May, 1910, passed into record with the third highest death rate for the month in 15 years. Deaths from pneumonia were more numerous than in any May for 50 years, with the exception of two. The reason for the prevalence of pneumonia and the high mortality from the impure air disease is assigned by the health department to unseasonably cold weather.

Here are some samples of the latest output of the healthogram physician which are guaranteed to prevent many illnesses if read once and thought of twice a day.

"No spit—no consumption.

"Summer—the time to shun meats and take to vegetables.

"An uncongenial occupation warps the body and withers the soul.

"To relieve worry and sleeplessness take a bath—hot followed by cold.

"When you must drink, drink Adam's ale. Lake Michigan is full of it.

"Dirty milk is better food for bacteria than it is for babies."

The bulletin points out that a stomach of the child at birth holds only one ounce and warns against overfeeding. Artificial feeding is to be avoided and not to be resorted to unless it is absolutely necessary, the bulletin advises.

Investigation of a case of typhoid fever in the family of a wealthy Chicagoan resulted in the discovery that the disease had been contracted by eating raw vegetables which had been washed by the farmer in a pool of dirty water. Taking this case as an object lesson, the health department points out that all vegetables always should be washed in the kitchen. Under no other circumstances, says the bulletin, should lettuce, celery, cabbage, radishes and similar vegetables be eaten raw.

TINIEST BABY STOPS MUSIC

Smallest Infant in World Had Power to Move Amusement Park Brass Band and Stand.

Chicago.—The tiniest baby in Chicago, and probably the smallest infant in the world the other day, had the power to move a brass band and a band stand.

The little one is a baby girl weighing 18 ounces. She was born at South Chicago. The family physician rushed the tiny mite to a Riverview infant incubator to be scientifically cared for until it could be safely handled at home. In the meantime a band stand and bally hoo band had been planted 50 feet from the incubator building to attract the crowd. The first bally hoo piece was "Baby Mine." The little one strenuously objected. She wanted to sleep.

Mrs. County, M. D., who has charge of the babies, protested. She said it was a case of life or death for the world's smallest baby. The band and stand were moved.

This baby is a trifle less than ten inches in length, its head is shaped proportionately with the body and the hands measure but seven-eights of an inch across the widest part. The forefinger is half an inch long and one-eighth of an inch in width. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Anderson 8933 Belmont avenue.

PAWNS GOLD FROM HIS TEETH

Pennsylvania Man of Prolonged Sprees Unjustly Suspected of Robberies —No Offense.

York, Pa.—The empty sockets from which he had pulled four of his gold crowned teeth to pawn them for drink, cleared from suspicion of theft a man picked up by the police the other day.

Chief of Police Bush had weekly for the past month noticed a gold tooth listed among the items of pawned articles turned in by one of the local shops. There have been a number of dental robberies here, and the chief ordered an investigation.

A partly intoxicated man was brought before him, having been apprehended in the act of receiving 75 cents upon one more tooth. He admitted that he had pawned the others, but said he pulled them out of his own mouth in order to raise the money to continue a prolonged spree. It hurt to extract them, he said, but a few drinks before the operation eased the pain.

As it is no offense under the law for a man to pull and pawn his own teeth, the suspect was set free and started back to the pawn shop with the precious tooth wrapped in a bit of paper.

Your Heart and Lungs

The Liver is the strainer for the blood before it enters the heart and lungs. It separates the impurities from the venous blood of the portal system. Often this organ becomes dormant and then biliousness, fever lassitude etc. comes on. Keep the liver in good condition and disease will go somewhere else and health and happiness will result. For this purpose GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR should be in every house and used by all travelers. It is by far the best liver medicine on the market. Druggists sell it in boxes at 25c per box.

Treating Bruises.

In the treatment of contusions with extensive discoloration of the skin, if olive oil be applied freely without rubbing the discoloration will quickly disappear. Absorbent cotton may be soaked in the oil and applied. If the skin is broken a little boric acid should first be applied over the abrasion. A black eye thus treated can be rendered normal in a few hours, especially if the oil be applied warm.

Historic Grapevine.

Under the headline "Old but Sweet" a German agricultural paper publishes a description of what it calls the oldest fruit bearing grapevine in the new world. The vine is on a farm in Roanoke Island, North Carolina, "where it has flourished more than 300 years. It was planted by one of the followers of Sir Walter Raleigh in 1584, and the history of the old vine shows that it has borne fruit every year."

Medical inspection of 1,000 five-year-old children in Surrey, Eng., revealed the fact that those who had several decayed teeth weighed on an average of 2¾ pounds less than those who had sound teeth.

On last Saturday morning while engaged in the operation of a gasoline engine, Mr. Bud Teel was caught in the machinery and thrown violently to the floor of the engine room, sustaining a bad wound up on the head. He was unconscious for an entire day, but at this time (Thursday morning) seems to be in a fair way for an early recovery.

Wednesday evening we regret to learn that Mr. Teel is not doing so well and there is talk of carrying him to the infirmary at Birmingham. We hope to hear of his speedy recovery.

Census returns give Atlanta a population of 154,839, an increase of 64,967, or 72.3 per cent as compared with 89,872 in 1900. Atlanta is growing some.

Dr. Hawley H. Crippen and Ethel Clare Leneve were taken back to London, England, from Montreal, last Saturday, to stand trial for the murder of Crippen's wife.

The executive committee of the Democratic party of Chilton county held an enthusiastic meeting at Clanton last Saturday, a hopeful feeling of success in November animating the members.

The chief business of the meeting was to take some steps for the nomination of a Representative in the Legislature, no candidate for that honor having presented himself at the late primary.

It was resolved to call a mass meeting of Democrats for September so for the purpose of nominating a Representative.

Plans were discussed for holding a big old-time barbecue on the Saturday following, September 17 when Hon. Emmett O'Neal Democratic candidate for Governor, Walter D. Seed, and other prominent men of the party will be invited to address the voters of the county.

Hon. Jesse Stallings, chairman of the State campaign committee was present last Saturday, inspiring the committee with his genial optimism.

Our bank never fails to give as good service to the farmer as it gives to any business man. Why not come in and talk it over with us today? Accounts may be opened by mail and monies deposited or withdrawn in this way with equal facility. The rural mail route solves the problem. IN MEMORY.

On 16th inst, at 12:30 the death angel visited the home and took from them their son and only child of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Wyatt. Little Acey was 20 years old, April 28, 1910, but at 6 month old the unfortunate hand was laid upon him. Disease that made him an unvailed. It took his mind speech and strength he never spoke a word or walked one step. He always in his cozy little bed humming rolling and some time would laugh or give a sharp squeal when suddenly he would be over taken in a very severe convulsion.

He was laid to rest at Providence cemetery, Bro. W. W. Robinson preached the sad farwell words which was beautiful in illustration and was carried to a point on the blessed word.

DEATH AND RUIN FROM FOREST FIRE

Steady March of Flames Devastating Many States.

SEVERAL LIVES ARE LOST

Situation in the Fire Swept Region Is Growing Worse Despite the Efforts to Check Spread of the Flames—Loss of Many Millions.

Mercilessly and relentlessly the forest fires in western Montana and Idaho are sweeping over a vast area, driving hundreds of fugitives before them, destroying small settlements and wiping out of existence millions of dollars' worth of property.

It is reported that about half the town of Wallace, Idaho, has been wiped out and the town practically cut off from the outside world.

The situation in the fire zone may be summarized as follows:

Thirteen lives lost; property loss $1,000,000; fire still threatening.

Elsewhere in the fire zone, the situation has gone from bad to worse. The most serious incident is reported from the St. Coe country, where 180 men engaged in the forestry service are missing and it is feared they have been burned to death.

When the fire approached the camp where there were 200 men, two of the fighters took a horse and riding the animal to death, rode from the camp and ordered a rescue party which penetrated the fire to Bird creek.

Eighteen of the men were found in the water, where they had gone for safety and they were unharmed.

From the remaining 180 men no word has been received. A relief train, well equipped with pack animals has been ordered, carrying provisions and hospital supplies, and will endeavor to get through the fire.

BOLL WEEVIL COMING.

It Is Feared That Pest Will Soon Visit Alabama.

That the boll weevil will be in Alabama this fall, all things now indicate. If the pest makes as good time eastward as it did in Mississippi last year, it will find lodgment as far into the state as Escambia county, across Mobile and Baldwin counties, from the Mississippi line. However, it is more than likely that it will get no farther than Mobile, Washington and Choctaw, which is almost certain if there is a late fall.

This, it is said, is the opinion of W. L. Pryor, expert weevil man of the department of agriculture at Washington, who is at Montgomery to take up with the state officers the first work of elimination and protection.

Mr. Pryor says that the weevil is moving east out of Mississippi very rapidly and all records go to show that Alabama will be reached by the early fall. He is urging that the state get busy at once and make every effort possible to diversify crops and take such other means as are necessary to discount the depletion.

CHOLERA INCREASING.

Southern Italy Being Ravaged by the Dread Scourge.

The epidemic of cholera which has broken out in southern Italy is steadily increasing in the districts affected, particularly in the town of Trani, where the number of deaths already is more than 30. The latest previous official reports gave 20 deaths at Trani, showing the rapidity with which the disease is increasing there.

The epidemic is of a virulent type and the death rate is high. Even graver danger is anticipated from the flying population of the infected districts, who may harbor the germ disease to the division not already infected. Trani seems almost deserted as a result of panic, 20,000 of the residents, fully one-half of the population, having fled the town. Fully as many have escaped from the island town of Barletta.

Rumors that the epidemic of cholera, which has broken out in Apulia had spread to Rome are emphatically denied. There have been no cases there and the general health conditions in Rome are excellent, better than at any time during the past ten years.

CANNON STANDS "PAT."

Aged Speaker Will Not Give Up Without Struggle.

Despite the declaration, as reported, of Congressman Longworth that he will not again vote for Joseph G. Cannon for speaker of the house of representatives, Mr. Cannon will continue in the race, according to his own statement.

He will go into the caucus as a candidate, no matter how many republican congressmen declare they will oppose him for re-election. All he asks is that those who go into the caucus abide by its vote, and he promises to do the same. He does not ask any man to pledge himself to vote for his re-election if he believes that pledge will work against him in the election this fall, nor does he want any candidate for the republican nomination for congress to repudiate his party by failure to enter the caucus

JOHN P. MITCHEL.

DR. CALHOUN DEAD.

One of South's Most Noted Physicians Passes Away.

Dr. Abner W. Calhoun, one of Atlanta's foremost citizens and one of the most noted physicians in the south, died Sunday morning at 4 o'clock after an illness of several months.

While his death was not entirely unexpected, yet it was not known until a late hour Saturday night that the end was near.

Two years ago Dr. Calhoun's health began to fail, and last January he became so much worse that he had to give up the practice of his profession. For four or five months prior to his death he was confined to his bed. At times he became so ill that his life was despaired of, but he would rally and gives hopes of recovery. Saturday night it was seen that he was sinking, and, surrounded by his family, he passed away as the early dawn was breaking.

In the death of Dr. Calhoun Atlanta loses one of her best citizens, and the world a physician whose work in life was to relieve suffering humanity. While his practice was munificent, yet he probably did more work free of cost to those unable to pay than any other physician in the south.

GIGANTIC STEAL IS LAID TO OFFICIALS

Illinois Central Unearths Big Graft Conspiracy.

ROAD LOST MILLION DOLLARS

Frank B. Harriman, Former General Manager; Charles L. Ewing and John M. Taylor Named in Warrants—Other Arrests to Follow—Startling Allegations of Graft.

Three former executive officers of the Illinois Central Company have been arrested on warrants in connection with the alleged frauds by means of which the railroad was defrauded, it is said, of $1,000,000.

The men arrested were:

Frank B. Harriman, formerly general manager of the road.

Charles L. Ewing, formerly manager of lines north of the Ohio river.

John M. Taylor, formerly general storekeeper of the road.

The warrants sworn to by T. J. Harahan, president of the Illinois Central, charge the three men with conspiracy to cheat and defraud the railroad by false pretenses and with operating a confidence game. Harriman and Ewing were taken to the Harrison street police station. Their bonds of $10,000 each were signed by a professional bondsman.

The allegations in the graft case are startling. The investigation began a year ago. It reached a crisis last spring when President Harahan began actions to recover sums said to aggregate more than $1,000,000 alleged to have been taken from the road by a car repair company in connivance with high officials of the road. Harriman, Ewing, Taylor and many others of less magnitude resigned their positions.

SPINDLES TO BE IDLE.

Fully 50,000 Operatives Are to Be Thrown Out of Work.

Millions of spindles in the cotton mills of the country will be idle for periods varying from one week to 16 days during the latter part of this month and the first half of September. Mills in New England employing 50,000 operatives have already posted notices announcing a further curtailment and it is understood that similar action will be taken by many other concerns.

In the southern states more than 2,000,000 spindles will be idle one week in September.

A short time policy among numerous cotton plants in New England will be continued during September, according to the present outlook.

PET DOG EXPOSED GREWSOME CRIME

Unearths Body of Mistress From Shallow Grave.

POLICE AT WORK ON CASE

Sensational Murder Committed on a Ranch in California—Young German Is Under Suspicion and Is Being Searched For by Detectives as Being Connected With Crime.

A Los Angeles, Cal., dispatch says: While detectives are searching the city, deputies from the sheriff's office are scouring the country for Otto Schultze, the young German wanted in connection with the murder of Mrs. Freida Castine, whose body was unearthed from a shallow grave by a pet dog at her ranch near Lancaster.

Some of the police and deputies are inclined to believe that Schultze, with $6,000 thought to have been stolen from Mrs. Castine, has sought to enter Mexico by way of the Arizona border or through El Paso.

A full description of the fugitive has been telegraphed abroad. According to the description Schultze is between 20 and 25 years of age, five feet, eight inches in height, of medium build, wears a light mustache and has a florid complexion.

A curious feature, following the murder of Mrs. Castine, is the disappearance of Mrs. Martha Chatt, wife of a Los Angeles realty dealer, and her escort, John Inderbetten, while the two were on their way to a ranch near the home of Mrs. Castine. They have been missing for a week and B. C. Chatt, husband, has asked the aid of the sheriff to find his wife.

REVOLUTION NEAR END.

Peace Is Drawing for the Troubled Nicaraguans.

That the revolution in Nicaragua is finally nearing an end is indicated in cable reports received in New Orleans from Managua and other Central American points by not only the sympathizers of the revolutionists, but by those of Madriz and agents of commercial organizations and steamship lines as well.

For the first time since the revolution started, advices received by both sides, as well as by disinterested parties, were practically the same. They are to the effect that the Madriz government troops have met with serious reverses almost at the very gate of Managua, the capital city; that Granada had been captured by General Luis Mena with an insurgent army; that the inhabitants of the interior are flocking to the standards of the revolutionists, and that Madriz has been succeeded in the presidency by Jose Estrada, a brother of Juan Estrada, head of the provisional government set up by the insurgents.

Whether Jose Estrada will be permitted to retain the presidency if the revolutionists succeed in taking Managua, appears to be a matter of doubt.

HOOPER NAMED.

Republicans of Tennessee Hold Convention at Nashville.

Captain Benjamin W. Hooper, of Newport, Cooke county, was nominated for governor of Tennessee by the republican state convention which assembled in the Ryman auditorium at Nashville, Tenn.

The name of Alfred A. Taylor, of Washington county, was the only other one presented to the convention and immediately following the announcement of the result of the first ballot the nomination was made unanimous.

The ballot stood, Hooper, 332 9-14; Taylor, 201 5-14. The convention also indorsed the candidacy of B. A. Enloe, independent democrat, for railroad commissioner from west Tennessee.

The independent state-wide prohibition democrats, who have fought Governor M. R. Patterson every step of his official career, are expected to support the ticket just nominated, as against the regular democratic nominees, which includes Patterson for re-election, and the coming campaign promises to be one of bitterness.

THREW BODY AWAY.

Heartless Conduct of Autoist Who Killed Little Boy at Play.

The police at Mattawan, N. Y., are hunting for some clue to the identity of an automobilist whom they charge with killing the 3-year-old son of George Verdi, a well-to-do farmer.

The child was playing by the roadside when the automobile whizzed by. A projecting bolt caught his clothes and he was dragged beneath the wheels, which passed over his body, killing him instantly.

According to the police, the driver stopped his car, picked up the baby's body and threw it over a low fence into a lawn beside the road.

Persons in a cross street, too far away to identify the automobilist, saw him stop his machine, pick something from the road and toss it aside. They thought it was a trifling obstruction of some kind and paid no particular attention. A few moments later the baby's body was found on the lawn.

GOVERNOR HASKELL.

Oklahoma May Send Him to United States Senate.

ROOSEVELT AND NEW YORK.

Former President Says He'll Take No Part in State Campaign.

A dispatch from New York says: Colonel Roosevelt made it clear to his friends that the reports to the effect that he did not intend to take any part in the coming state campaign were well based.

As the colonel put it, he did not think he had been encouraged to take an active interest by the action of the state committee in turning down his name for temporary chairman to the convention. His close friends are the authority for the statement that Colonel Roosevelt has never indicated by the slightest word what his intentions are with regard to 1912. The colonel, however, has always said that he reserves the right to engage in any situation at any time, whenever he feels that his policies demand it.

FATAL BOAT EXCURSION.

One Killed and Three Injured in Disaster at Lake Charles, La.

Pauline Woodring, 6-year-old daughter of T. S. Woodring, a prominent lumber man, died as a result of injuries received in the motor boat explosion in the Calcasieu river. P. O. Moss and Lotis Swan, secretary and treasurer, respectively, of the Lake Charles Railway, Light and Water Company, who were also injured in the explosion, are in a critical condition.

Mrs. J. A. Landry, wife of the president of the same company, was seriously burned, but will recover. Ten persons were in the boat when the explosion occurred. Six escaped with minor injuries.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES. It was learned at Washington, D. C., that Gustive A. Rist, Jr., the young American who was reported to have been murdered in Bolivia, June 11, was a native of Bloomfield, N. J., where his father now resides. The state department has directed American Minister McCombs at Lima to make a thorough investigation of the alleged murder. Young Rist was a mining engineer, employed in a gold mine near the Bolivia-Peru border. According to a letter received by his father from a fellow-engineer, he was shot in the back by a Spaniard named Vaccara. The motive for the crime has not been disclosed and it is not known whether Rist's slayer has been arrested. Minister Combs, in his dispatch to the state department, gave the name of the alleged murderer as Augustine Hunf.

By a vote of 395 to 83 Democrats of Gadsden, Ala., went on record as in favor of the commission form of municipal government. Gadsden is the third Alabama town to approve this new form of city management, Birmingham and Bessemer having also given handsome majorities in favor of the change. The next session of the legislature will be asked to pass an enabling act. In the Gadsden primary, W. G. Bellinger was nominated for mayor; George S. Vann for president of council.

In the patio of the old mission Church of Our Lady of the Angeles, situated in Original Sonora Town, the 129th anniversary of the founding of Los Angeles was celebrated by representatives of the Spanish population. Gen. Antonio Aquilar, aged 90, who resisted the advance of Fremont, presided over the celebration. He wore the uniform in which he fought the American invaders in 1848 and opened the ball, which ended the festivities, by dancing with a 15-year-old senorita.

The population of Atlanta, according to the United States census report, is 154,839. This is a gain of 54,967 over the census of 1900, or a gain in population of 72.3 per cent.

The population of Canada, March 31, was 7,489,781, according to the estimate of the census department.

The creation of 44,000 rural public highways by the post office department at Washington, in accordance with the legislation enacted during the past session of congress. All carriers of the rural delivery mail service are now required by the department to execute vouchers for United States pensioners residing on their routes, for which service they are to receive 25 cents for each voucher executed. The establishment of the free rural delivery service resulted in the discontinuance of 23,550 fourth-class post offices, the postmasters of which had been authorized to execute pension vouchers.

Following the proclamation of Governor Campbell, for a fourth called session, which was issued immediately upon the adjournment by limitation of the third called session, the Texas legislature convened at Austin. The legislation especially noted in the call is a reform of the state penitentiary system and the enactment of a two-cent passenger rate. A uniform bill of lading law is also a recommendation of the governor for the action of legislators.

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES. About 4,000,000 feet of first-class green standing timber has been destroyed by forest fires in western Washington this season, according to compilations made by D. P. Simmons, chief warden of the Washington Forest Association. About 20,000 acres have been burned over this season west of the Cascade mountains, a large part of which, however, was logged off. In addition to the green timber, Mr. Simmons says that thousands of cords of fire wood and shingle bolts and many fallen trees that might have been cut into logs have been burned.

John Brockman, a farmer living 4 miles south of Ringgold, Ga., shot his brother-in-law, William Patterson, with a .38 caliber pistol, resulting in instant death. Brockman was in his barn milking a cow when, it is said, Patterson's father came up with a Winchester rifle and began using abusive language. Young William Patterson appeared on the scene and a quarrel ensued in which Brockman and William Patterson engaged in a fight, the former using his pistol with fatal results.

After arranging his business affairs and making his will, Henry Wuerstenbart, a wealthy resident of Ballinger, Texas, shot and killed himself at his home. No cause is known which might have prompted the deed.

The Iron Mountain fast mail which left St. Louis was derailed at Annapolis, Mo., while going at a high speed. The conductor's leg was broken and five mail clerks were bruised. The train carried no passengers.

Florence Nightingale, the famous nurse of the Crimean war, and the only woman who ever received the Order of Merit, died at her London home. Although she had been an invalid for a long time, rarely leaving her room, where she passed the day in a half-recumbent position, and was under constant care of a physician, her death was somewhat unexpected. A week ago she was quite ill, but then improved, and on Friday was cheerful. During that night alarming symptoms developed, and she gradually sank until 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when an attack of heart failure brought the end.

An unknown would-be assassin entered the room of Mayor M. T. Chipstead, of Blakely, Ga., shot him through the hand and fled as the mayor gave chase. Mayor Chipstead had a narrow escape from being instantly killed. Feeling some one pull the net over his bed, the mayor threw out his hand, striking the pistol ball by the would-be assassin. The pistol was fired, the bullet striking Mr. Chipstead's hand. No reason is given for the attempted assassination.

As a result of the fight between the German ship-builders and their employees, all the shipyards of Germany, except government works, are now idle, so far as new construction is concerned. Naval construction assigned by the government to private yards is at a standstill, and ship owners are, in many cases, sending their ships to England for the necessary repairs naturally undertaken in home ports.

A verdict of death by a razor wound, self-inflicted, has been returned by the coroner as a result of his inquest into the death of E. J. Griffin, the amateur detective who went to Sydney, N. S., in search of Restelli, the Quincy, Mass., murderer. There was suspicion that Griffin was a victim of friends of Restelli, but the jury declared that it was a case of suicide.

Two men boarded a Santa Fe passenger train at the Russell Fork bridge, two miles east of Buckhannon, W. Va., held up and robbed two of the passengers and escaped into the woods. Oscar Kirby, of Buckhannon, lost his watch and money. Luther Ryals, a merchant of Ethel, Mo., who resisted the robbers, was beaten and shot in the left side.

W. Lee Smith, aged 42, an engineer on the Central of Georgia, stood in front of a mirror in his bedroom at 320 Oak street, Macon, Ga., and blew his brains out. Neighbors rushed into the house and found the room in wildest disarray. Smith has a wife visiting in Griffin, Ga. No cause for his suicide is known.

Troy, Ala., has suffered a disastrous fire, the loss being $14,400, with $8,700 insurance. The fire originated in T. F. Murphree's iron and wood-working plants and spread to Himberg's machine shop and garage, destroying both plants and also four automobiles, one hearse and a carriage.

AFFAIRS IN SPORTING WORLD. Saratoga Special and the Travers' stakes by Sam C. Hildreth's Novelty and Delmotian, has increased his stake and purse winnings for the year on the Metropolitan tracks to $75,000, says a New York dispatch. If Novelty repeats in next Saturday's Hopeful stakes, and then wins the Futurity, which is a reasonable possibility, Hildreth will wind up the local campaign on September 1 with more than $100,000 to his credit and an overwhelming lead for first honors.

An Amelns, France, special says the first aerial race between the birds of nature and man's production took place in the course of the great aerial cross-country competition and was easily won by man. A flock of 47 carrier pigeons was released at Doual at the same instant that LeBlanc in his Farman biplane started from the mark on his 50-mile flight to Amelns. Rushing through the calm air, the biplane soon outdistanced the birds.

Anti-race legislation is likely to result in the retirement from the turf of James R. Keene, of New York, vice chairman of the Jockey club, who for many years has been one of the largest winners in the country. Mr. Keene says that he will retain about ten of his yearlings to be raced or sold next year. The others will be disposed of at public auction.

Fred Toney, of Nashville, Tenn., premier pitcher of the Blue Grass league, has been sold by the Winchester club to the Chicago league club for what the official statement declares was the highest price ever paid for a class D player. The amount, however, was not announced.

Pitcher William McTigue, of Nashville, has been sold by the New Bedford, New England league club, to the Boston Nationals for $12,000. McTigue was with the Birmingham team at the beginning of the season.

Women in Farm Work.

Almost 1,000,000 women in the United States are either farmers or farm laborers. Thanks to the popularity of the homestead in the west and to a belated appreciation of agriculture as a field for woman's industry, this number is rapidly increasing. The United States, however, has not gone so far in this respect as England. There, in the dairy sections, women have entire control of the herds, not only the butter making, but the milking and feeding. In France nearly 2,000,000 women are engaged in farm work, while in most of the countries of continental Europe the finer breeds of cattle are mainly the result of woman's efforts.—New Idea Woman's Magazine.

Cataclysmic Geology.

"Cataclysmic" geology no longer exists. It was once the accepted opinion that the great changes on the earth's surface had been mainly brought about by sudden and violent (cataclysmic) agencies; but Sir Charles Lyell, as far back as 1833, demolished the old theory of cataclysm at once and forever. Sir Charles proved by facts which were indisputable that the great geological changes have been produced slowly by gradual processes of subsidence and elevation, and not by earthquakes, volcanic action, etc. Lyell may be said to be the father of modern geology, or, to put it more correctly, of real, scientific geology.

Safeguard to Health.

One of the most needful and most important safeguards to health is the recent invention of the germ-proof telephone mouthpiece. This device, made of clear crystal glass, is intended to replace the filthy rubber mouthpieces in common use, which furnish all sorts of germs an ideal breeding place. It has received the enthusiastic indorsement of doctors, bacteriologists and boards of health wherever introduced and is approved by all operating telephone companies.

The glass part can be instantly removed for cleaning and can be replaced as instantly. It can be wiped clean without removal. It is less liable to breakage than the ordinary rubber mouthpiece and admits light to all the parts of the device, thus securing an extra good sanitary condition.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

The Story of Your Teeth.

Ever hear of tooth seeds? Newborn babies have them in little sacs in their gums, the milk teeth on top. The baby begins cutting its first teeth at an average age of eight months. The milk teeth are 20 in number, and the permanent teeth 32. The milk teeth are gradually absorbed by the growing second teeth, so that sometimes the roots are practically removed. There are three sections to a tooth—the inside pulp cavity, the dentine and the outside enamel. The ache is always in the pulp cavity.

Monarch's Spying Discounted.

One of the favorite pastimes of Emperor Menelik of Abyssinia is to mount a tower of observation, which he has constructed for the purpose, and watch his subjects going about their duties in the streets and open spaces through a powerful telescope. One disadvantage of this method of spying is that it is perfectly well known to the people themselves, who consequently do not give their "king of kings" much opportunity for discovering any deed worthy of punishment.

$250,000 Bird House.

Cincinnati.—Mrs. Mary Emery, widow of Thomas J. Emery, has provided a luxurious home for birds in Cincinnati. She has purchased a big country place at Evanston, comprising about 1½ acres, and has turned it over to Associate Professor H. M. Benedict, of the department of biology at the University of Cincinnati. It has been estimated that she will spend about $250,000 to provide the right kind of a place to house and to study birds.

WHEN THE AUTO CHARGED

Hugh Branscombe looked enviously at Sidney Graves, as the latter's new touring car shot down the village street, with Myra Coleman on the seat beside him.

Graves' hands tightened on the steering wheel as he glanced at Branscombe's six feet of sturdy manhood. No one ever knew how bitterly Graves regretted his shortness of stature.

Graves was not a weakling. There was bone and muscle in the five feet four inches that constituted his earthly tenement, but his slight build suggested lack of power, and Branscombe had contemptuously referred to him as doll man.

The nickname stuck, though it was never used by Graves himself. And yet in some manner Graves had become acquainted with his nickname and his sensitive spirit writhed under the slight he could not resent.

The nickname had done more than wounded his pride, it had in a degree robbed him of confidence in himself, and though Myra seemed to prefer him to Branscombe, he only ascribed this to the fact that he was the possessor of a motor car and was wealthy enough to gratify his love for automobiling by purchasing the finest machine to be had.

He took a mournful satisfaction in delaying the day of Branscombe's victory as long as possible, but as to the ultimate result of the rivalry he never was in doubt. He knew Myra too well to think that his greater possessions could win her consent to marriage.

Like himself, Myra was found of motoring, and they had planned a run to Falls Village, some 20 miles away. It could be done in an hour on the deserted river road, but to-day the machine was acting badly, missing the spark and finally coming to a stop altogether.

Patiently, Sidney climbed down and raised the bonnet. There seemed to be nothing the matter with the motors. The sparking plugs were clean and the flow was regular. It was not until he turned his attention to the battery connections that the cause of the trouble was located. In putting in a new battery, his mechanic had neglected to make a proper connection.

"We'll be on our way in a jiffy, now," he promised. "I shall have to blow up John when we get back. He is growing very careless."

"Don't mind me," protested Myra. "I've been having a perfectly lovely time watching you fuss about the machine without even swearing once."

"It isn't that I didn't want to," admitted Sidney frankly as he went forward to throw over the motor.

He grasped the crank and gave a heave. At first the motor remained cold, but suddenly there was an explosion and the car shot forward. Myra shrieked in terror and closed her eyes, while she waited for the jolt that would tell her that the wheels had passed over Sidney's body, but no jolt came and she opened her eyes.

Graves had leaped to the bonnet when the car started and now he was climbing over the dashboard and had shut off the power. The car slowed down with a suddenness that threw Myra against the dashboard, then it stopped, and Graves slipped to the road and regarded the car with astonishment.

"I could have sworn that I shut off the clutch before I got out of the car," he said in puzzled tones. "It's one of the first things you learn."

"You mean this lever?" asked Myra. Sidney nodded.

"I am afraid that I might have moved that," she confessed. "You see I don't dare try to handle the car, it's so big and powerful, but while you were working over it I pretended to be running it, and I guess I didn't realize that I left the car all ready to start up when you cranked it."

Graves chuckled at the explanation. "It's all right," he answered, "but I never was so surprised in my life as when the car jumped at me. It was one lively half second I assure you."

"It was a wonderful thing that you jumped on the car instead of aside," she commented.

"I knew that you did not know how to run the car," he said simply as he climbed back to the seat. "I knew that if it would only run straight for a moment I could climb over the bonnet and stop the power."

"And in that moment you thought of me?" asked Myra wonderingly. "I think I'd have tried to jump aside. I would not have thought of anything else. It was a splendidly brave thing to do."

"Not bad for a doll man," he said a little wistfully.

"You heard that nickname?" she cried. "I think it's a shame. I'd rather be you than the man who gave you that name."

"No one wants to be a little five-foot runt," he said, "nor wants one," he added softly.

"You think that a woman judges a man's worth by his height?" asked Myra, scornfully.

"Do you mean that you might learn to care for me in spite of my size?" he asked, a ray of hope lighting his face.

"Do you suppose that I go riding with you just because I like the auto?" demanded Myra, scornfully.

Sidney shut off the power and the car stopped. Myra looked at him inquiringly.

"I did suppose that your preference was for the auto—but I'm going to find out," he explained as he took her hand in his.

Largest Rose Tree.

The Woman's Tonic

Do not allow yourself to get into a bad fix. You might get in so bad you would find it hard to get out.

Better take Cardui while there is time, while you are still in moderately good health, just to conserve your strength and keep you in tip top condition.

In this way your troubles, whatever they are, will gradually grow smaller instead of larger—you will be on the up-grade instead of the down—and by and bye you will arrive at the north pole of perfect health.

Congressional elections come high in Pennsylvania, where ex congressman, Joseph C. Sibley, is under arrest, charged with conspiracy to debauch voters.

According to his own figures filed in obedience to a legislative act, requiring a public statement of a candidate's expense account, Mr. Sibley spent $17,000 in Warren county to secure his nomination, and in the entire district, $42,500, which, according to population, averaged $4 per vote.

The products of the dairy are perhaps the most usefull articles included in the human diet. A meal made up of dishes into which no probuct of the dairy cow enters would not be such as to inspire "the turnpike road to people's hearts I find lies through their mouths, or I mistake mankind."

Take away the butter for the bread, the cream for the coffee and the porridge, the shortening in the crust and the biscuits, the milk in the gravy and in the puddidg, the cream for the dessert and the various kinds of cheese which please and satisfy, then take away the cup of milk for the little one and the meal that would be left would be neither tempting nor nutritious.

The health of our people depends so much upon an adequate supply of pure dairy products that even a scarcity is always attended by suffering and death.

Butter is sometimes refered to as a luxury. This is a mistake.

Butter is not a luxury but one of the necessities of life, and its composition is such that nothing can take its place and perform the same functions. It is nature's product compounded in the maternal organism and the process is in accordance with nature's law, a law which man can imitate but cannot understand.

Man can manufacture from various fats and oils a substitute for butter but it cannot take the place of nature's product because man cannot understand the needs of the human body as nature understands them.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

is the only emulsion imitated. The reason is plain—it's the best. Insist upon having Scott's—it's the world's standard flesh and strength builder.

U. S. S. Virginia,
Cape Cod Bay, Mass., Aug. 11, '10

Editor Banner:—As you will doubtless recall, I wrote your paper some time ago describing something of the life of a naval recruit which letter you was kind enough to print in your esteemed paper. Hoping that my action met with your approval I am writing you a few of the incidents of a bluejackets life about ship, that is, I am going to relate some of my personal experience and things I have witnessed and learned since I came aboard.

To begin as nearly as possible where I left off in my former letter, I was rated ordinary seamon the 24th of last March. I did not leave the camp as soon as I expected, as a result of a quarentine placed on it for mumps and measles. I developed a case of heatrash that the doctors were pleased to call measles and was sent to the Naval Hospital at Portsmouth, Va. where I spent three weeks. I then went aboard the old brigote Richmond now used together with the old Franklin as receiving ships at Norfolk, Va.

On the fourteenth of July I was draftéd to the U. S. S. Virginia, where I am now. One of the greatest charges I found was the scarcity of fresh water aboard ship and fresh water is a thing to be coveted when one has to wash his own clothes every day. We are wearing white uniforms and since we change every day, scrubbing clothes is an important factor in the life of a bluejacket.

In the morning we roll out at five o'clock and must have our hammock nettings by five thirty or rather by five fifteen. At five thirty we have coffee and then we scrub clothes and wash down the decks and paintwork. When that is finished we draw water and prepare for breakfast at seven o'clock or six bells as we would say on board ship. If we are at sea there is nothing much to do until quarters nine thirty, when we must have on clean clothes unless we have just knocked off work, which is seldom. At quarters we are unustered and put there some exercises in line of work. After quarters we usually have some kind of drill, fire drill, collision drill abandon ship or general quarters in which case the men all man their various gun stations for action. In each drill every man on the seip has a certain duty to perform which fact likens the crew to a great machine. We have pingpong practice everyday, now. This drill is used in connection with gunsmounted in turrets and twenty-two bullets are fired at targets a few yards away. They are moved so that they imitate the forward mouement and wobbling of the ship. Last night, after nine-thirty we had fire drill and it was so unexpected that many thought that there really was a fire aboard.

We have dinner at noon and turn to again at one o'clock. There is seldom much to do so we have most of the afternoon to our ourselves to read write, study and soforth. About four-thirty we draw water and prepare for supper, six o,clock. After meals the tables are put up overhead together with the benches. The dishes and pans all have their places and are kept there when not in use. After supper as we please until bedtime, (provided we are not on water). Nine o'clock when at anchor and eight o'clock when under way. When at anchor there is only eight seamon on water from nine p.m. to five a.m., the rest of the time we are all on duty during the hours I have already mentioned. When under way there is always on a section on duty standing four hour watches. There are four sections.

We have a ships libary from which we may draw books every Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

If we wish for clothes we can draw them from the ship's store and the cost of the clothes is taken out of our pay.

If we desire candy, tobacco, stationary, toilet articles, shoe polish, etc., we can buy them at the canteen for less money than we could get them ashore.

We left Norfolk at four-thirty a.m. the 17th of July, for New York City and arrived there about six thirty a.m., the 18th. We left New York the 23rd, and ran down around the Bermuda Islands, getting back the 29th. We carried seventy Naval Reserver from New York with us on that trip. We ran into rough weather the 28th and after eating a hearty dioner I spent most of the afternoon feeding the little fishes, "nuff said."

We left New York the next day after arriving, for Cape Cod Bay. We stayed here until the fourth, spending our time in torpedo practice and mining drill. We lost two torpedoes but recovered one of them. We also lost an anchor which we recovered after much labor and perserverence on the part of the diving party.

We went to Rockport the fourth and the division of ships we were with all got liberty the fifth, payday. I went ashore with a boy that used to be my bungelow mate in camp, two of them are on this ship. While in Rockport we met two more of our old bungelow mates from the U. S. S. Minnesota. The four of us went to Glouster and had a fine time. When we got ready to roll in for the night we made the unpleasant discovery that every available bed in the city was taken. We returned to Rockport and found sailors sleeping in the halls and offices of the hotels. Things looked bad for us as we could not get back to ship before morning. We finally went into a livery stable and helped ourselves to the cushions on the carriage sets and made a bed for four in a wagon box. We covered ourselves with a large piece of canvas but room began to get scarce, everybody seemed to sleep fine but me. Finally I crawled down to the tail board and went to sleep but I received a rude awaikening. Somebody straightened out and kicked me off the wagon. I'm not going to repeat my thoughts because they would not read well. I went to sleep in a big box but got so cramped that I had to walk around for ten or fifteen minutes to get the blood circulating, It certainly got my "goat" to see my companions sleeping as if they were in feather beds. I gave it up as a bad job and stood guard till daylight and then we all "beat it" without paying our hotel bills.

One of the sailors returned with a big straw hat on and a nice new pitchfork in his hand. He had no horses but he had a pretty good load of rye, liquid rye.

One young fellow brought back a fine assortment of hair pins and combs, a switch, two jummies, (I believe that is what they are called) three rats and a net. He says he doesn't know how or where he got them and now that he has got them he doesn't know what to do with them. He certainly cannot wear them.

I was out in the first cutter yesterday during torpedo practice. We were stationed at the target, a long net, to signal hits and misses. The last torpedo gave us a little scarce as it headed directly for the cutter. We hauled her astern by means of the net but the torpedo changed it's course slightly and again headed for us. We then hauled forward and the torpedo headed in that direction. Of course it was not charged but we knew that if it hit us we would have to swim and the water is mighty cold here. Worse still, we had seen a monstious shark swimming around the cuttle about ten minutes before. Just as we were about to throw off our shoes and outer garments the torpedo serverved sharply to the left and missed the target entirely and incidently us, much to our relief. Torpedoes are very unreliable, one of ours came very nearly hitting the Rhode Island, yesterday and one came backward and hit the ship.

Tomorrow we leave for Newport R. I., where we coal ship. The Virginia holds the world's record for coaling ship and also the world's six inch gun record.

My letter is becoming long and tiresome so I will draw it to a close with the best of wishes.

Yours sincerely,
JADIE WAGONER.

Kidney and Bladder Diseases.

Thousands of people die annually of kidney and bladder troubles whose lives could be saved by the timely use of U-RA-CURA, the great Southern Remedy. It neutralizes and passes diseased accumulations out of the system and by certain health giving processes assists nature to build up new tissues. It is also a fine tonic. Persons who have the least symptoms of these diseases should use this remedy. Druggists sell it at 50c and $1 00 per bottle. If he cannot supply you send to Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

OBITUARY.

On the 17th inst. the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. P. Smith and wafted the spirit of their son, Eddie, into eternity. Eddie was 25 years old and leaves to mourn his loss, a wife and three children and a host of brothers and sisters, besides a weeping father and mother. He was a member of the Mulberry Baptist church and seemed to be prepared to meet his dear Savior in the skies. He was a devoted husband and a good citizen and was liked and esteemed by all. BACHELOR AND BABY

What Happened When He Was Left in Charge.

I am a bachelor with a peaceful disposition and a bald head. My state of single blessedness and my baldness are my misfortune, not my faults. Various girls are to blame for the first, and unremitting application to novel reading in bed may have something to do with the latter.

Like the traditional spinster, a bachelor is authority on the rearing of children, and I have often expressed my views on the subject at some length to a sister of mine who is married and has a small daughter aged five. It so happened that I have seen little of the child, as my hours for calling on my sister are late, and when I arrive Grace; the little girl, is usually in bed.

But the other day my theories on the training of children received a severe shock. My sister said to me: "John, Robert and I have an invitation to visit a friend of mine for the week end. She lives out of town and if we go we don't want to take Grace with us. Now, I've often heard you say that you'd know how to bring up a child, and here's an opportunity. Suppose you come over Saturday afternoon and take charge of Grace until Sunday evening, when we come home?"

This invitation I accepted, although it meant giving up an evening at the club and dinner engagement on Sunday. I went over to my sister's Saturday noon, just before she left, ready for business. She said: "You won't have anything to do, John, except to keep an eye on her, and if you feel like it to amuse her, take her for a walk to-morrow or something of that sort, Maggie, the nurse, will look after her meals, put her to bed and all that; so I don't think you'll have any trouble."

Then she turned to Grace, who had been standing by her side, gazing at me with a wide-eyed stare common to children and which to my disgust made me feel somewhat uncomfortable.

"Grace," said my sister, "mother is going away for Sunday, and Uncle John is coming here to stay with you. Now, be a good girl and do what he tells you."

As she left the room I turned quickly to the child.

"Don't you want to play, Gracie?" I asked.

"Yes!" she responded with enthusiasm; "want to play horsie."

To anyone needing strenuous exercise I can recommend "horsie" as played by my niece or rather as played by her uncle at her direction.

Procuring a piece of string somewhat the worse for wear, she approached me and requested me to take it in my teeth.

"You dets on de floor," explained Grace, so down on my hands and knees I went. The equestrienne sat on my back, kicked me in the sides and pulled violently on the string. I crept painfully about the room, continually urged on to greater speed, until I finally stepped in the hall for rest.

My sister was a careful housekeeper, but my hands and the knees of my trousers showed the traces of their contact with the carpet. As I was examining them Miss Grace said: "Want to play horsie on de plazza, uncle John?"

"O, no, dear," I expostulated. "It's cold outside and—" I stopped. Tears were gathering in her eyes and her lower lip was beginning to tremble.

"Very well, we'll go," I assured her, "but you must put on your hat and coat."

I assisted her on with her wraps and we went ot on the "pazazza." It was a clear, cold autumn day, and the sun was shining. A beautiful day for a walk. But I was playing horsie. Up and down on the cold plazza I crept, my hands and knees getting sorer every minute. I hadn't thought to put on a pair of gloves, and after two or three laps decided they'd be useless.

"You is a fat, slow horsie," remarked my rider as I started on what I determined should be the last lap of the circuit. Just as I reached the steps in front of the door Grace suddenly dismounted with a cry of joy and ran down the steps. I raised my head and there on the sidewalk stood the Only Girl, trying to repress a smile, while my rival stood by her side grinning malevolently.

I was a sight. My hands were black my trousers ruined, my hair was rumpled, the string which I dropped was tangled up in my collar and I was dripping with perspiration, cold as it was.

"You look warm, Mr. Blake," grinned my divinity with a smile.

"Having a hot time, John?" grinned my rival.

"My sister left me in charge of Grace," I explained, "and I am engaged in amusing her. This game is known as 'horsie.' It's a little bit strenuous."

They smiled and passed on while I told my niece that it was time to go in and that we'd play "horsie" again some other day. When it came time for her to go to bed the nurse undressed her. I then picked her up and was about to deposit her in the bed when she reminded me she had to say her prayers.

When she began I felt sinful. When she finished I felt more so. After saying "Now I lay me," as fast as she could, she began her father and mother, all her other relations except me, her cat, her doll, the family dog, the cook and all the other servants. And she finished: "O, Lord, bress uncle John; put some hairs on his head an' make him pritty. Amen."

SHE NEVER BOASTS

"Don't mention her!" cried the girl with the uncurled ostrich plume in her hat.

"Why, what has she ever done to you?" exclaimed her friend, whose skirt was so narrow around the bottom that it was a mystery how she managed to walk.

"Oh, she's pleasant enough," said the girl with the uncurled ostrich feather. "Only I can't bear a person who is always boasting! Why, to hear Madge talk you'd think nobody else had ever gone anywhere or seen anything or owned anything. I get so tired of it! I think it is positively cheap to boast, don't you?"

"I should say so!" agreed the girl with the narrow skirt. "That's the reason I wondered why you talked so much about your new sapphire bracelet!"

"The idea!" flashed the girl with the uncurled ostrich feather. "I was simply explaining why the sapphires were so much more valuable than ordinary sapphires. I wasn't bragging in the least! If you thought so it was only because you were envious! There's a difference! You ought to have heard Madge yesterday! I started to tell her about my new evening gown and she broke right into my description of how the trimming went on the waist to tell about the dress her cousin brought from Paris and I couldn't get a word in edgewise. Even if it was from Paris, it wasn't any prettier than mine, for my design was perfectly exclusive. Madame Sheers brought it over last fall and you couldn't buy any finer goods in the shops.

"I won't wear shoddy things that may look just as well but that aren't the real things. Everybody knows that's what Madge does! She gets credit for having just as many things as I have, when mine really cost twice as much. Then she's always telling how awfully much she spends on her clothes! Why, when she got her black hat with the willow plume last fall you'd have thought she'd bought out a whole ostrich farm from the fuss she made! And there I wasn't saying a thing and all the time I had a new willow plume that was ten inches longer and an awful lot wider than hers! I don't believe in making a splurge over your possessions!

"I don't believe she had three ancestors who were officers in the revolution, so that she is entitled to three bars on her Daughters of the Revolution pin! She just said that because I was telling her that I was eligible to the Daughters on both sides of the family! Why, my family tree goes 'way back and is just as clear! There aren't many girls descended from as many prominent persons as I am! Of course, if you haven't any good ancestors it isn't your fault and you aren't exactly to blame, but I always think blood will tell.

"I may not be terribly pretty, but I don't care, for my profile is aristocratic. Mr. Gilfoil says the mere line of my nose would show I was somebody. Yet Madge was trying to pretend that her profile was pure Greek! Pure fiddlesticks! Not that it is my nature to run down another girl, but that pretense of hers is simply too ridiculous!

"She gets so tiresome at times. The other day she insisted on telling about her summer in the Catskills when I had started to show my pictures of the Mississippi river and she repeated over and over again that she visited the most fashionbale camp there and that the other people were all millionaires or something! She can talk; but I don't believe her, and anyhow every one knows that houseboat trip I took was the most unique thing of its kind ever heard of in this region!

"I'd like to know if she had three men among her millionaires who were as devoted to her as John Fairchild and Stanley Williams, and Lem Bardwell were to me? Why, they were a standing joke to all the rest! If one wasn't hanging over me the other two were and they just racked their brains to get ahead of one another! It was dreadfully hard to keep peace among them. There certainly are drawbacks to being the most popular girl in a crowd. It just takes a little cleverness, that's all.

"Why, Mrs. Smith—the deaf old woman, you know, who has cataracts, too—she said she never saw a person with more tact than I had! She liked me because I always selected her for a chaperon when we took excursions on shore. I always believe in being kind to the afflicted.

"What really made me see Madge in her true colors was her saying she could marry Harold Lansing if she'd only say the word. Harold doesn't care two straws about her! He likes a girl with more brains! Why, he'll talk to me by the hour. He says it is such a relief after the inane chatter of the others. He wouldn't think of Madge seriously for a second!

"That girl thinks she is irresistible! Girls who really have a lot of attention aren't talking about it! I'm sure I never do. If there's one thing I'm proud of it is that I never boast!"

"I've noticed that," said her friend in the narrow skirt.—Chicago Daily News.

Scheme to Sell Photos.

A man in the photograph business has a good scheme for selling his pictures. Every bright day he makes his headquarters at Riverside drive and Ninety-eighth street, where he snaps passing motorists. He takes a record of the license number, hunts up the owner, and if he was not in the auto party finds out who was. The sale of his pictures is an easy matter.—New York Sun.

A Godsend.

An esteemed German who draws a well earned salary from the city of New York, says the Sun, was talking about a case of sudden death the other day. It was due to an accident. It was nobody's fault. It was a veritable bolt from a clear sky. All this had impressed the German deeply. "Yy," he said awesomely, "it vass a regular Godsend."

Mahogany and Cedar in Ashanti.

It is estimated that the gold coast and Ashanti could supply 60,843 logs of mahogany and cedar a year if the internal communication were better. With mechanical haulage, such as traction engines and light tramways, the output could be increased to some 250,000 logs per annum without depleting the natural reserves.

Cures Dyspepsia; Trial Is Free

It is a popular mistake that only wealthy people who eat rich and highly-spiced foods suffer from dyspepsia, or, as it is also known, indigestion. The laborer in the street, the worker in the field also finds himself a victim of this disorder. Among the very greatest sufferers from it are women.

Dyspepsia is indicated by a constant feeling of laziness, by loss of appetite and troubled sleep, by sour stomach and distress after eating, by bad complexion and lusterless eyes.

There is no surer and speedier cure for this trouble than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which dyspeptics have been using successfully for twenty years. This great herb laxative compound cured Capt. Clark, of Buffalo, Ia., of dyspepsia and sour stomach that he had had for forty years, or until the lucky day that he heard of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It cured Joel Adams, of Montgomery, Ala., after suffering continuously for sixteen months. These are only a few of the many. But it is not expensive to be cured with this grand remedy, as it can be bought at any drug store in a 50-cent or $1 bottle.

Your very neighbors are probably lifelong users of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, but if you want to know without expense what it will do for you personally, send your name to Dr. Caldwell and he will be glad to send you a free trial bottle. He is actually anxious to have you make a test of his remedy.

Thousands of families everywhere keep it in the house against such an emergency as constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, biliousness, dyspepsia, heartburn, torpid liver, etc., which may come on a member of the family any day. It is pleasant to the taste, acts gently and does not gripe. It is the great children's laxative tonic.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

Pleasant Grove

Editor Banner—Please give me a small space in your paper.

I noticed a letter in last week's issue of the Union from this place, written over the signature of G. W. Hodgens. He says in his letter that he is sorry that we have some in our community who are becoming too righteous to fix dinner and carry it out on the Sabbath. Now, Mr. Hodgens, I want to tell you and all the readers of the Banner that I am not sorry about this at all, but am truly glad that some one has some righteousness for you to speak of because I don't think you have any. For by their fruits ye shall know them. Now, Mr. Hodgens, isn't it a fact that you are running a little country store here almost in sight of Pleasant Grove, and isn't it a fact that you are selling any and all goods, for which you have a call, on the Sabbath, as same as any other day, and furthermore, didn't you join a crowd of four others one Sabbath night last June, and go out and hunt up a certain gentleman and raise a disturbance with him on the public highway. How about this, are you guilty or not. Did you know these things are a violation of the civil law? If not, perhaps you may learn it a little later on. You also said that you felt ashamed for some of our folks who were so ignorant that they would sit up boldly before the public and make sport of the old fathers and mothers. While we don't believe anyone did this or even thought of doing such a thing, but in conclusion I would like to ask you if you ever attended a monkey show and did not get tickled before it was over.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Sheep are excellent first cleaners, weed killers and fertilizers.

There is more profit in a grinding ear than in a spreading one.

In some cases it may be necessary to dissolve some Epsom salts in the feed.

A team that works in the field all week should be allowed to rest on Sunday.

Be sure the sows are not constipated. Give roots, fruits and oilmeal in the feed.

Too much feed should not be steamed at one time as it is apt to become sour and unpalatable.

The fact that hogs require a great deal of water makes feed fed as slop more desirable than dry feed.

If the horse must be kept in the barn during hot weather, keep all the doors and windows wide open.

Every sheep owner should keep a pure-bred ram, but every man is not qualified to keep pure-bred stock.

Five minutes' work with a rough brush on a horse's hide after a hard day's work will do him a lot of good.

Everything possible should be done to bring the ewes to a vigorous flesh-raising condition at the mating period.

The small stomach of the horse intolerates the impropriety of long fasting. Feed three times a day at all times of the year.

Hogs fed on cornmeal and tankage require a great deal of water and this adds to the digestibility of the feed and helps to make gain.

A hog will eat almost anything when very hungry, but his appetite should be tempted with palatable food if he is to make the greatest possible gain.

Steaming feed for hogs is an easy matter. All that is required is a large kettle connected with a small boiler by means of inch pipe. The pipe should connect with the box at the bottom.

Sunday Irregularity.

Physicians will tell you that upsetting the regular habits (let us hope your habits are regular) of the week on Sunday, eating more than is good for you, taking more or no exercise, all this toward indigestion, the results of which are felt through the following week until Sunday comes again, and the process is repeated.

Sizing Up His "Load."

Congress had occasion recently to calculate as to whether a drunken man was such an idiot. He was standing on a penny weighing machine endeavoring to insert a coin in the slot. He said he wanted to weigh himself to know how much of a "load" he had.—New York Forum.

SUPPORT TO UNION LEADERS

Do Not Desert Union, and Turn Deaf Ears to Those Who Would Destroy Organization.

We believe in good to be done by farmers' organizations when conducted upon a broad and liberal scale and with purpose to subserve real interests of farmers. We have not hesitated, again and again, to urge our readers who are members of the union to stand by the organization and we repeat the advice. If it were possible to make this more emphatic we should do so, but we have exhausted our vocabulary in this effort. We are not able to present the matter more strongly than we have already done, says Farm and Ranch.

It would be to assume ignorance of what is universally known if we should claim ignorance of present conditions. The fact is that we are better informed than are many union people themselves, and have sources of information denied to them. With this knowledge we still give to our readers the advice not to desert the union, and to turn deaf ears to those who would destroy the organization.

This condition which has arisen is unfortunate, but it can be better met by the real friends of the union, while they are within its ranks, than if they should desert it. Stay with the organization, and do not be driven out and do not go out willingly. There is a better time ahead.

Mr. Loudermilk and his associates are going to do good work and they should have the cordial support of the rank and file of the union. It would be more than unjust to call him to leadership and to desert him when there is greatest need of support. We suggest again that whatever dissensions exist be settled within the ranks of the union, and that the less of public discussion the better. The members owe it to themselves, to the union and to the whole country to give Mr. Loudermilk such support as will enable him to do the work to which he has been called. Having selected a leader and having cast upon him the responsibilities, it is in order to "follow your leader."

We cannot say more and should not now say less.

Korea to Grow More Cotton.

Japan has recently been pushing the cultivation of cotton in Korea. As most of the raw cotton now has to be imported from America, Egypt and India, it is felt that an enormous impetus would be given to the already growing cotton field at her own doors. As it is, Japan is able to import cotton from India, manufacture it, and then export it to India for sale. The area now under cotton cultivation in Korea is some 1,250 acres, but by next year Japan expects to have an acreage of more than 2,500. Cultivation began only in 1905.

Care of Cane Fruits.

Blackberries are easily raised in Illinois soils. The fall is the best time for planting. Set in rows about nine feet apart, three feet in row. Commence cultivation as soon as ground is in proper condition in the spring. Cultivate deep in the early part of the season. Later practise shallow cultivation with a harrow. Dust mulch is better and cheaper than straw. The latter also tends to harbor mice and insects. Bushes should be trimmed twice a year, being cut back the second spring to a height of 3 to 3½ feet. After picking is over cut out old canes and all small and weak growths.

REPORT OF ST. LOUIS MEETING

President Barrett Summarizes Meeting and Prophecy of Recent Conference of Farmers.

President Charles S. Barrett of the Farmers' Union and Educational Association, in a communication to the officers and members of that organization, summarizes the meaning and prophecy of the recent St. Louis national conference as follows:

The national rally of the farmers of America, held May 24 in St. Louis under the auspices of the Farmers' union was in effect a mammoth educational chautauqua which has never been exceeded, even approached, by any gathering of farmers' chautauqua held for farmers in American history.

In diversity of program, in number of speakers of national prominence and wide information, in freedom of expression and complete representation of bona fide farmers, I do not remember in my broad personal experience any previous assembly that even remotely deserves to rank with this one.

Every shade of opinion was represented, and every speaker had full swing for the presentation of his views.

Collectively the week was like nothing more than like a gigantic lecture course, in which each number was taken care of by qualified experts and the audiences to which were among the cream of the intelligent and independent and thinking producers of the nation.

In this one week we obtained data and instructive information that we would have otherwise sought vainly for a term of years. The results, richly stimulative to creative thought and action among the American farmers, will be shortly issued in book form, and circulated freely throughout the country. There will be a copy for every member or non-member who wants one.

Despite misleading and perverted reports sent out, the order during the entire week was perfect and the conduct a credit to the great organization under whose auspices the convention was held. No previous meeting of the Farmers' union has been made the victim of so many untrue, unfair and misleading accounts by the press of the city in which it was held. A political tinge, in flat contradiction to facts, was given each report, the seeming effort being to bolster up sensation rather than to reflect accurately the proceedings of the week.

Reports made by the various committees were extremely enlightened, especially that from one committee delegated to ascertain by a census actual work being accomplished by the union in the individual states. Their aggregate findings indicate that practical enterprises and co-operative ventures are multiplying in a manner actually challenging the credulity of even our most enthusiastic members. In a few days, it is my intention to give out to the brethren and the public that portion of the report which demonstrates concrete evidence of the spread of the business of co-operative idea.

The local and national press has had much to say regarding the Farmers' union entering partisan politics. There is absolutely no truth, not even the ground for speculation, in either rumors or reports. I have so often and forcibly reiterated that the Farmers' union shall not be embroiled in partisan politics, so long at least as I am president, that it seems needless for me to re-affirm that attitude. But my ceaseless anxiety to conclusively discredit such vague or outright rumors, leads me to again warn the membership that any story purporting to align this organization with a partisan movement is unauthorized, untrue and merits instant repudiation by every member having the welfare of the order at heart.

One of the most important features of the meeting was the overwhelming percentage of bona fide farmers present, and actively engaging in discussions. All but eight American states and territories were represented, and we had, as well, a large number of non-members as guests.

In the latter connection, and as a direct result of the St. Louis rally, calls for organizers are coming from Rhode Island, New York and the Dakotas. In the former two states, especially, it is gratifying to know that Farmers' union sentiment is growing steadily. Some of the most intelligent, wealthiest and amongst the most progressive farmers live in that portion of America, and we will never be contented until we have strong organizations there, giving the finishing touch to the national tone of the organization.

At the last analysis, it is encouraging to reflect that every one left St. Louis well satisfied. I never saw a more amicable or harmonious meeting, or one in which the spirit of fraternity was stronger developed.

It is notable, too, that each single development demonstrated that the American farmer is awake to his rights and more determined to enforce them than at any period in recent years.

Chicken Pests.

Chickens are attacked by a number of parasitic insects and mits, the most common being various species of chicken lice, chicken fleas and ticks. These pests when present in great numbers are a great drain upon energy of the birds. Spray the henhouse walls with kerosene or use a whitewash to which carbolic acid has been added in the proportion of four ounces to one gallon of whitewash. Pyrethrum powder or other suitable dust insecticide may be applied to the bodies of the poultry.

This is an exact representation of the carton containing a bottle of St. Joseph's Liquid Liver Regulator, but it is much larger than this illustration, and printed in black ink on a yellow carton. Druggists and general merchants sell it at 50 cents a bottle, or you can get it direct from us at the same price. This is a delightful liver medicine—prompt, effective, and exceedingly pleasant to the taste. Try just one bottle to satisfy yourself—and you'll buy more.

SAYS THE FELLOW ON TOP

Wage Earner Must Cut Out Luxuries Before He Has Right to Ask for Sympathy.

"How do you account for the high cost of living?"

The rubicund gentleman addressed, glanced at a check for $8.85, representing the cost of his modest meal, handed the waiter $10, with instructions to keep the change; pulled out a cigar that the interviewer recognized as a 50-center, and leaned back in his chair.

"All rubbish," he said. "People live beyond their means and then growl about it. It's their own fault."

"I see. You believe that everybody should save part of his income?"

"Exactly."

"Umph-umph. Sounds reasonable. But what proportion of it do you think he should salt down? Suppose, for instance, the man earns $1.10 a day, and has a wife and five children, and some of the babies get sick occasionally, and the older ones need clothes in which to go to school, and the landlord wants his rent right on the nail, and a pair of kid's shoes lasts a month, and the instalment on the sewing machine is 50 cents every two weeks, and he carries enough insurance to bury him, and enough medicine for his wife is half a dollar a throw, and everything that the members of his household eat and drink and wear costs more than it used to, and gets higher all the time, do you think he ought to save a very large proportion of his income?"

"You do not state the case fairly. Doubtless the man has vices. I am certain he smokes."

"I forgot that. Yes, he pays five cents a package for tobacco and a package lasts ten days."

"Ha! Shiftless fellow. And, of course, he has the nerve to complain. He'll cut out luxuries before he gets any sympathy from me."

Your Heart and Lungs

The Liver is the strainer for the blood before it enters the heart and lungs. It separates the impurities from the venous blood of the portal system. Often this organ becomes dormant and then biliousness, fever lassitude etc. comes on. Keep the liver in good condition and disease will go somewhere else and health and happiness will result. For this purpose GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR should be in every house and used by all travelers. It is by far the best liver medicine on the market. Druggists sell it in 25c boxes at 25c per box.

Boll Weevil Hard to Kill.

Experimenting with the boll weevil, a Texas farmer caught a lively one and placed it in water where it would freeze to death during the night. Next morning he found the water had frozen solid and the weevil was in the cake of ice, and the farmer congratulated himself on the discovery that cold would kill the weevil. But when the ice melted the bug walked around as lively as before freezing, and that farmer is convinced that freezing is not the proper means to exterminate the insect. He threw the weevil into a hot fire, and at last acounts was watching to see if it would come out alive.—Centerville (Tex.) Jeffersonian.

Immigrants Sold at Dock.

It is pointed out by the London Chronicle that although the modern immigrant to American ports may be "sold" in a way, he is never sold in the same sense as were those immigrants of the eighteenth century whose fate one gathers from an advertisement in a New York paper of 1774. The advertisement runs: "Servants just arrived from Scotland, to be sold on board the Commerce, Capt. Ferguson, master, lying at the ferry stairs, among which are a number of weavers, tailors, blacksmiths, nailers, shoemakers, butchers, hatters and spinsters, 14 to 25 years of age. For terms apply to Henry White or said master on board."

Death of Mr. T. B. Teel.

With deep regret we record the untimely death of Mr. Ben Teel, which occurred at Birmingham last Friday, where he had been carried two days previously in the hope that the injuries he had received a few days before, by being caught in his gasoline engine, which threw him over the fly-wheel, inflicting a severe fracture, might prove beneficial, but his injuries were fatal and he succumbed to them on Friday morning.

The body was brought to Clanton Saturday and was interred at the cemetery Sunday morning by the Woodmen of the World, of which order he was a valued member, Dr. Matthews reading the service in an impressive manner.

A large congregation assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to this popular citizen—the largest crowd we have ever seen at a funeral in Clanton.

Mr. Teel leaves a widow, one daughter and two sons, and our deepest sympathies are with the afflicted family.

Mr. Teel was universally popular and his loss is greatly deplored.

Clanton's First Bale.

The cotton season opened up Tuesday in good style, when T. G. Taylor, who lives about four miles east of Clanton, brought in the first bale. It weighed 566 pounds and, including the seed, realized the nice price of $102.67, which amount was paid by W. Kanter & Bro.

The second bale was brought in on the same day by Bill Klinner and was purchased by E. M. Pinchard & Co., at 14 cents per pound.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Pleasant Grove

Editor Banner:—There was a letter in last week's issue of your paper from this place, under a fictitious name of X. Y. Z., which has caused a deal of comment that was not very pleasant to hear, especially to a public man who is trying to line above reproach.

Now, Mr. Editor I have been accused of being the author of that article which I positively deny, I did not write it and furthermore I have no idea who did. It seems to me that it would be a great deal better for those who correspond to the county papers to always give their full name as signatures. It would save others of embarrassment a grert many times. This is the second time in my life that I have had to resort to this means to correct statements which have been made against me.

I wish to inform my accusers that I write nothing to any paper that I am ashamed or afraid to sign my full name to.

Further I wish to say that it is a bad idea to resort to our county papers for censure or ridicule. Our papers should be free from things that tend to stir up strife or envy in our committees. We should settle our family "fusses" at home. We should remember the "Golden Rule". Also the scripture which says "He that is without sin let him cast the first stone". Also the saying "People who live in glass houses should not throw stones".

Let us study our Bibles more, live on a higher plane and we will not feel like talking about our neighbors.

There is so much bad in the best of us. And so much good in the worst of us. That it hardly behoues any of us. To talk about the rest of us.

In conclusion, will say I did not write this to censure either of the parties who wrote the other letters, for I have the utmost love and respect for them no matter who they are, for we are taught in the Bible even to love our enemies and to do good to those who despitefully use us and persecute us for then great will be our reward in Heaven.

With love to the Banner and its many readers.

Randolph

Dear readers—I am coming again as I got in the waste basket before.

Crops are fine here.

Say, did you all know that the people of Chilton county paid each other in green peas and watermelons to talk about their neighbors. I tell you one and all, I can find plenty to talk about without talking about my neighbors. If people will sweep around their own door they will have a plenty to do. I tell you the tattlers in this world are going to reap their reward in the day of judgment, and those who are so ready to down people are going to get what they need, and they will be sorry that they were so ready to talk where they ought to have held their peace.

Yours sincerely,
TWO OF US.

Editor Banner—Please allow me to state the result of the series of ball game at Maplesville on August 27.

The first game was Mulberry vs. Blue Star. This was an interesting and exciting game. The Darters made 3 runs and Mulberry eleven. The batteries for the game were Headley, Williams, Ratliff, Clinner and Owens.

The second game was Mulberry vs Durden's Mill. The Mulberry boys, being worried from the other game, defeated the "Slab Toters" by a score of 11 to 3. Batteries Oden, Oden, Headley, Williams, Steward and Burkhalter.

KAISER IS RAPPED BY GERMAN EDITORS

Bitter Criticism of Press on "Divine Right" Speech.

AN ALL-ABSORBING TOPIC

Every Shade of Disapproval Is Voiced By Press, From Mild Regret to Mockery of the Emperor's Alleged Absolutist Pretensions.

The now famous speech of Emperor William at Koenigsberg, with its openly-expressed belief in the divine right of the Prussian king and his choice, not by people's assemblies, but by God, continues to be the theme of the most excited discussion in the newspapers. The monarchist organs are divided in their views of the emperor's utterances, some of them taking a stand in opposition to his view, so that quite four-fifths of the German press are united in criticism of the sovereign.

EMPEROR WILLIAM.

Every shade of disapproval is voiced from mild regret to mockery of the alleged absolutist pretensions of the emperor.

The inquiry is everywhere raised, whether the imperial chancellor, Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, knew in advance of the emperor's purpose to deliver a speech of such a nature. The chancellor maintains unbroken silence. The press generally comments also on the necessity of the German parliament's taking some action on the subject when it meets.

The emperor reviewed an army corps at Danzig and was cheered by enormous crowds there.

DUEL TO DEATH.

Fatal Affray on Market Street at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Boyd Thompson, a prominent young court reporter, was shot and fatally wounded at Chattanooga, and William Snyder, the other participant in the duel, probably will die, as a result of his injuries.

The shooting occurred on Market street, the main business thoroughfare of the city, while it was crowded. Charles Hensley, a lawyer of Dayton, who was across the street, received a slight wound by a stray bullet.

The trouble is the result of an old grudge. Ten days ago Thompson fired three shots at Snyder within a block of the scene of the late tragedy. All the shots went wild.

The two men have been anticipating further trouble since that time.

In the affray ten shots were fired and a panic ensued among the crowd on the street. After Snyder had emptied his pistol at Thompson the latter staggered to a drug store a hundred yards away. Snyder followed, reloading his pistol as he ran. Thompson fell to the sidewalk, when Snyder leveled his gun at the prostrate form. Bystanders interfered and wrested the pistol from Snyder's hand.

All three of the wounded men were hurried to a hospital for treatment, but there is no hope for the recovery of either Snyder or Thompson. The former received three bullets and the latter four.

4,000,000 PIECES MAIL MATTER.

Atlanta Postoffice Was Kept Busy During Late Campaign.

About 100,000 pieces of political literature passed daily through the Atlanta postoffice during the last six weeks of the state and county campaign. In all, over 4,000,000 letters, postcards, and other sorts of mail were sent out from the headquarters of the various candidates.

As the day for the election drew near, the clerks and carriers at the postoffice were almost overwhelmed with work. Especially was the volume of mail on Saturday enormous. Many candidates had waited until the last minute to mail some of their most persuasive literature, and this mail piled up Saturday until it was only by the most unremitting effort that it was handled. By Saturday night all of it had been delivered. The past week at the postoffice was reminiscent of Christmas week.

THE TOLL OF DEATH FROM FOREST FIRES

List of Casualties Has Been Steadily Growing.

OVER 200 HAVE PERISHED

In Great Northwest Many Lives Have Been Sacrificed In Effort to Stay the Fires Which Are Devastating Great Tracts of Forest Land.

Late estimates of the loss of life in the forest fires place the number of dead at more than 200. The Italians and Austrians in the St. Joe valley, of whom many perished, were employed in logging camps. The list of government rangers dead now number 100, with probably more.

Following is a revised list of the number killed in the Idaho, Montana and Washington forest fires:

United States forest employes Idaho and Montana, 100; settlers and fire fighters, St. Joe Valley, Idaho, 50; at Newport, Wash., 4; at Wallace, Idaho, 3; at Mullan and Spokane, 5. Total, 160. The Missoula forest officers' list of 79 dead forest employes omits 21 killed at the Bullion mines, Mont., and on the Big Fork of the Coeur d'Alene. Missing: Negro soldiers near Avery, Idaho, 4; Ranger Halm's party, headwaters of St. Joe, 15; Forest employes in St. Joe Valley, 25.

Reports received by Supervisor Weigle at Wallace, concerning the number of dead forest employes did not agree with that obtained at Missoula. The reports to Wallace say that of Ranger Hollingshead's 60 men on Big creek, 14 bodies have been found and the other men are missing. Of the 60 men on Setzer creek, 48 bodies have been found and five are missing. These 62 deaths of forest employes, added to the 21 deaths at the Bullion mine, and on the Big Fork of the Coeur d'Alene and the deaths in Montana and various Idaho creeks, would bring the total number of deaths in the service to 100.

A Story of Perils.

A special to the Spokesman-Review, from Tekoa, Wash., says:

James H. Hines, of Missoula, who was one of a party of 50 fire fighters working near Avery, Idaho, of whom 20 perished last Sunday, arrived here and told the story of his perils.

On Sunday afternoon his party was warned to flee for their lives and the 50 men started down a mountainside three miles long and very steep. They then made their way to a point where the fire had burned off the timber. All but 23 men then started for the railroad. The next morning before daylight three of the men who had been left behind arrived at Avery. The others lingered too long and were swallowed by the burning furnace.

SOCIALISTS NAME CANDIDATE.

Seth McCallen, of Nashville, Nominated for Governor of Tennessee.

The Socialists' state convention held in this city nominated Seth McCallen, of Nashville, as the Socialist candidate for governor. The convention also adopted a platform in which it is declared that "the Socialist party stands for the interest of the working classes, the wage earners, the farmers, the producers. This class makes up over three-fourths of our population."

The platform discusses the question of unemployment, the high cost of living, conservation of natural resources, education, temperance and the farming class. It invites "all progressive people who are in sympathy with the just cause of labor" to cast their votes for the Socialist candidate. Referring to temperance the platform says: "The question has unnecessarily caused the most bitter factional fight ever known in the state," and it further declares that "the Socialist party would have avoided all this by furnishing useful, productive employment to every saloon-keeper and the saloon business would have died a natural death."

The attendance at the convention was small.

BIG BETS ON ELECTION.

Considerable Money Changed Hands in Atlanta on Result.

It is estimated that over $50,000 passed hands in Atlanta on the governor's election. One stakeholder alone says he held checks amounting to $25,000.

The highest bet known was for $4,000 even, made between two Hoke Smith and Joe Brown men. Of course the bet was made before the new state law against betting went into effect.

One man is said to have won $12,000, which was bet on Fulton county and the state. A well-known newspaper man is said to have won $2,000.

There were stakes put up in Atlanta on the state between Savannah men and Atlanta men, one bet of this kind amounting to $1,100.

It is estimated that the total bets in the state will foot up over $200,000.

There is now a state law against betting on elections, and hereafter all bets will have to be made in secret, if the custom is kept up.

GOVERNOR HASKELL.

Oklahoma May Send Him to United States Senate.

MANAGUA HAS FALLEN.

Nicaraguan Rebels Finally Successful, After Long Fight.

Managua has fallen. The Nicaraguan revolutionists have finally reached the goal for which they have been fighting ten months. President Madriz did not flee. He remained in the capital city until the last. Cablegrams to this effect have been received at New Orleans:

"Jose Dolores Estrada has issued a proclamation declaring his brother, General Juan J. Estrada, president of the reunited republic of Nicaragua. Revolutionists are pouring into Managua. Situation alarming."

This cablegram was received from Managua by Harvey Smith, who served the Madriz government at New Orleans as consul general.

Plan Second Revolt.

With the announcement that Juan J. Estrada, leader of the successful "insurgent" forces in Nicaragua, has succeeded to the presidency of Nicaragua, reports have reached New Orleans that his occupancy of this position may be temporary, if the matter is controlled by other leaders of the revolutionary movement.

It is rumored that Chamerro and Mena, the successful generals who made their way into Managua, are not in favor of Estrada's incumbency and that they may espouse some other man from the conservative faction for its presidency.

TENNESSEE FEUD.

Reelfoot Lake Is Again Scene of Startling Tragedy.

On ground made famous by the Reelfoot lake night rider troubles, James Keesucker shot and killed one man late Saturday afternoon, and wounded his brother and a woman at Shaws Park, in Obion county.

James Keesucker made his escape.

Shaws Park is an open space of ground on Reelfoot lake, about a quarter of a mile from Samburg, Tenn., a town of about fifty people. During the night rider troubles Samburg was said to be the hotbed of the organization.

A party of people was in the park about five o'clock in the afternoon, when James Keesucker drew a revolver, it is said, and shot Martin Leonard. Leonard dropped dead in his tracks and Keesucker then turned his weapon on Mrs. Pitts and his brother, Will Keesucker.

There had long been bad feeling between the Keesuckers and Leonards.

HIGH COST OF LIVING.

Over $1,000,000 Extra Spent in Caring for New York's Poor.

The high cost of living is blamed by the New York City department of charities for an increase of more than a million dollars, or nearly 50 per cent, in the estimated cost of caring for the city's poor during the year of 1911. The estimate for the 1911 budget is $1,240,103 over the allowance for this year, and shows a total of estimated expense for 1911 of $3,922,715.17.

The department cares daily for more than ten thousand sick or otherwise dependent persons, equivalent to 3,650,000 persons per year. The expense, therefore, is about a dollar per person.

FELL 800 FEET.

And Yet Daring Aviator Lives to Tell the Tale.

J. C. Mars, the daring western aviator, who deals in thrills while you wait, plunged 800 feet through space and landed in Ambrose channel, at the foot of New York bay, while making an aeroplane flight to Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island, from Sheepshead Bay. The 50-horse power motor on the flying machine went wrong.

Mars was fished out of the water unhurt by a tug boat, and his Curtiss eight-cylinder flyer was picked up a wreck.

TAFT AND TEDDY ARE AGAIN FRIENDS

President Regains Good Will of Col. Roosevelt.

FORMER DESERTS MACHINE

In a Letter the President Repudiates the New York Bosses for Turning Down Roosevelt as Chairman of the New York State Convention.

President Taft and ex-President Roosevelt are again fellow workers in the same political field. The threat that they might pull apart has been forefended by a full explanation on one side and an unreserved acceptance on the other.

The president makes it plain in a letter given out at New York City by Lloyd C. Griscom, president of the New York republican county committee, how the misunderstanding arose. He explained that he never took any part in a committee cabal to defeat Colonel Roosevelt for temporary chairman of the coming republican state convention. On the contrary, he explicitly deplored the result of the committee meeting which chose Vice-President Sherman; he rebukes the party leaders who have permitted it to go abroad uncontradicted that the president of the United States was behind their factional preferences; he insists that at every opportunity he advised the fullest conferences with Colonel Roosevelt and he explains that he has been pained by the "columns of unfounded assertions in the newspapers concerning my attitude in respect to the New York situation."

For his part, Colonel Roosevelt, when he read President Tafts' letter as communicated to him at Oyster Bay, said:

"I am very glad to see President Taft's letter, and am pleased with it."

HAUNTED HOUSE MYSTERY.

Police Trying to Solve Queer Doings in New Jersey Home.

A haunted house mystery is occupying the attention of Sheriff Harris and his deputies at Newton, N. J. George Dunlap, a wealthy farmer, reported that for two months his big colonial farm house has been haunted and that he and his wife have been driven almost frantic by rappings and other wierd noises and by similar acts of vandalism. He said some pieces of clothing had been cut in pieces, a Bible had been slashed, canned goods had been spilled and his rubber boots, which he left in the kitchen, had been thrown into a cistern.

On four occasions articles had been thrown downstairs when no one was on the upper floor, and later three fires were started in the house.

Mr. Dunlap's stories of the strange happenings in the old mansion are corroborated by a score of neighbors. The sheriff, after a preliminary investigation, arrested a female relative of Dunlap's, but she denied any knowledge of the reason for the ghostly doings, and a further investigation is being made.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES. It was learned at Washington, D. C., that Gustive A. Rist, Jr., the young American who was reported to have been murdered in Bolivia, June 11, was a native of Bloomfield, N. J., where his father now resides. The state department has directed American Minister McCombs at Lima to make a thorough investigation of the alleged murder. Young Rist was a mining engineer, employed in a gold mine near the Bolivia-Peru border. According to a letter received by his father from a fellow-engineer, he was shot in the back by a Spaniard named Vaccara. The motive for the crime has not been disclosed and it is not known whether Rist's slayer has been arrested. Minister Combs, in his dispatch to the state department, gave the name of the alleged murderer as Augestine Hunf.

A report of boll weevil in Franklin county, Ala., sent out from Birmingham is not credited by Commissioner of Agriculture J. A. Williamson. "In the month of the year eastward it would not ordinarily get so high up as that for two years or more. Just now it is near the lower corner of the state, if not inside, but Franklin county is almost on the Tennessee line. It is thought at Montgomery that the specimens are corn or pea weevils which at times do some damage to cotton. However, there is a bare possibility that real bugs may have been transported to the reported trouble zone in cotton seed or some vegetation.

Crippen, the American dentist, and his typist, Miss Ethel Clara Lenere, returned to London from Canada, where they were apprehended by the police on suspecion of being connected with the disappearance of Dr. Crippen's actress wife, Belle Elmore, and with having knowledge of the mutilated body, believed by the police to be that of Mrs. Crippen, which was found in their Hilldrop Crescent residence. It is just seven weeks since Dr. Crippen and his companion, disguised in a boy's clothes, secretly left London.

That is now again the call of the people of Atlanta, and steps are already being taken to induce him to enter the race in the primary which takes place this fall. CRIMES AND CASUALTIES. One man was killed and his body hurled into Mobile river and not recovered, the owner of the launch, Capt. G. W. McClain, also hurled into the water, his throat cut, body burned and otherwise injured, said to be serious, and several other occupants of a gasoline power tow boat were badly injured from the explosion of gasoline at Mobile, Ala. Carelessness of the cook, it is said, in setting a pan of boiling grease in some gasoline that had leaked into the bottom of the boat, caused the explosion. The boat was wrecked.

They forced the negroes to surrender.

Enormous Value of Cotton Crop.

Richard H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record, while in Atlanta Monday gave the following interview on the cotton situation:

"If this year's cotton crop does not bring to the south $1,000,000,000 southern farmers will not receive the amount to which they are justly entitled by reason of the abnormal condition throughout the cotton consuming world.

"Last year's crop, including the seed, yielded, according to the estimate of secretary of agriculture James Wilson, made public yesterday, $853,000,000. In view of the decrease in the world's stock of cotton by reason of last year's short crop, even a full crop should this year command high prices and $1,000,000,000 at least ought to be realized by southern growers for their cotton crop in 1910.

"It is true that this year's crop has been costly to produce, because of the shortage in the grain crop of the south last year. During the winter and spring southern farmers have had to buy many millions of bushels of corn from the west in excess of what the south usually buys, because last year's corn crop in much of the south was very short. We always buy too much corn instead of raising it at home. Fortunately an increased acreage in corn and other grain and the assurance of the better yield per acre will give to this section a very much larger grain production than last year. It is alleged, and is probable, that the grain crop of the south for 1910 will exceed 1,000,000,000 bushels an increase of from 150,000,000 to 200,000,000 bushels in excess of last year.

"There is no other agricultural product in the world so carefully watched by the financial and manufacturing interests of this country and Europe as cotton. Upon it rests the prosperity of the greatest manufacturing industry in the world except iron and steel, the output of cotton goods, measured in dollars.

"It is estimated that 20,000,000 persons in Europe are absolutely dependent upon the cotton industry, for which the south furnishes the raw material. In the United States there are about 27,000,000 cotton spindles, of which the south has about 11,000,000. In the rest of the world there are over 100,000,000 spindles which must look mainly to the south for their raw material.

"Above all other products of the soil or factory cotton holds the dominating place in the foreign trade of the United States. It is to our cotton exports that the financial interests of the country must look for the balance of the trade in favor of this country upon which its prosperity so largely depends. It is a well known fact that notwithstanding the enormous increase in the world's gold production of recent year, the value of our cotton exports exceeds the total output of the world's gold mines. In other words, Europe could gather every ounce of gold mined in the world and pour it into the south and it would not quite pay for the south's bill against Europe for its annual purchase of cotton from this section."

Enormous Value of Cotton Crop.

Richard H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record, while in Atlanta Monday gave the following interviews on the cotton situation:

"If this year's cotton crop does not bring to the south $1,000,000,000 southern farmers will not receive the amount to which they are justly entitled by reason of the abnormal condition throughout the cotton-consuming world.

"Last year's crop, including the seed, yielded, according to the estimate of secretary of agriculture James Wilson, made public yesterday, $8[illegible],000,000. In view of the decrease in the world's stock of cotton by reason of last year's short crop, even a full crop should this year command high prices and $1,000,000,000 at least ought to be realized by southern growers for their cotton crop in 1910.

"It is true that this year's crop has been costly to produce, because of the shortage in the grain crop of the south last year. During the winter and spring southern farmers have had to buy many millions of bushels of corn from the west in excess of what the south usually buys, because last year's corn crop in much of the south was very short. We always buy too much corn instead of raising it at home. Fortunately an increased acreage in corn and other grain and the assurance of the better yield per acre will give to this section a very much larger grain production than last year. It is alleged, and is probable, that the grain crop of the south for 1910 will exceed 1,000,000,000, bushels an increase of from 150,000,000 to 200,000,000 bushels in excess of last year.

"There is no other agricultural product in the world so carefully watched by the financial and manufacturing interests of this country and Europe as cotton. Upon it rests the prosperity of the greatest manufacturing industry in the world except iron and steel, the output of cotton goods, measured in dollars.

"It is estimated that 20,000,000 persons in Europe are absolutely dependent upon the cotton industry, for which the south furnishes the raw material. In the United States there are about 27,000,000, cotton spindles, of which the south has about 11,000,000. In the rest of the world there are over 100,000,000 spindles which must look mainly to the south for their raw material.

"Above all other products of the soil or factory cotton holds the dominating place in the foreign trade of the United States. It is to our cotton exports that the financial interests of the country must look for the balance of the trade in favor of this country upon which its prosperity so largely depends. It is a well known fact that notwithstanding the enormous increase in the world's gold production of recent year, the value of our cotton exports exceeds the total output of the world's gold mines. In other words, Europe could gather every ounce of gold mined in the world and pour it into the south and it would not quite pay for the south's bill against Europe for its annual purchases of cotton from thissection.

The Laundry

White Floating Soap.—Four quarts fat, any kind will do; two ten-cent cans of lye, and ten quarts of water. Put water in an old boiler, next the fat, then the lye. Let this come to a boil and boil three hours, slowly. When the soap becomes flaky and the liquid looks clear and boils over the soap, it is ready to skim. Line a wooden box with a piece of wet muslin, skim out soap, and put in the box to drain about 12 hours, and cut in bars. This will make 12 large bars of hard, white soap. It may be used for any kind of washing. Take a little of the soap and press in the hand. If it sticks to the hand and looks greasy, it needs a little more lye, if too flaky, more fat. The liquid can be used for scrubbing.

To Remove Iron Rust.—I am a laundress and I iron rusted a fine night dress of a rich bride and was almost frightened to death. I had a basket of tomatoes and I knew the material wouldn't stand anything strong, so I cut a tomato and rubbed each spot and put the gown out in the hot sun for a while and when I went out to see, to my delight the iron rust had disappeared as if by magic, and has been tried often with best results.

Ribbon Cookies.

Mix fire, after your favorite recipe, a batch of white cookies flavored with lemon. In another dish mix a batch of chocolate cookies, flavoring with vanilla. Roll out chocolate cookies quite thin, then roll out white ones, same as chocolate. Place one on top of the other and roll as jelly roll. Take a sharp knife and cut slices from the roll, turn them over and lay them in baking pan. When cooked they are a delight to the eye as well as the palate.

Make molasses cookies, cutting them in strips with sharp knife, about the length and width of lady fingers. When baked and while warm spread with good jelly and press two together, making a dainty cookie sandwich.

To Hang Skirt.

An easy way to hang a skirt when you are making one at home is to lay on the floor a book; the thickness of which is the desired distance of your skirt from the ground. Then put on the skirt, adjust it firmly at the waist, and stand beside the book, so that the material touches or lies over it, and turn slowly around. It is then an easy matter for a second person to turn up the hem or cut off as may be desired at the line indicated by the edge of the book and you will find your skirt perfectly level.

Almond Ice Cream.

One quart of cream, eight ounces of sugar, four ounces of shelled almonds, one teaspoonful of caramel, one tablespoonful of vanilla extract and four tablespoonfuls of sherry wine. Blanch and roast the almonds, then pound in a mortar to a smooth paste. Put half the cream and the sugar on to boil; stir until the sugar is dissolved, then add the remaining pint of cream and the almonds; stand away to cool; when cold add the caramel, vanilla and sherry. Freeze and pack.

Potato Salad.

To one quart of mashed cold potatoes, slice one cucumber, one green pepper, and two small onions, add one-half cupful of chopped celery, two small radishes chopped; mix with mayonnaise dressing and serve on lettuce leaves.

New Potato Hint.

Don't stain your fingers scraping new potatoes. Put in cold water for a few minutes, then rub with a small piece of burlap or coarse cloth, which removes every particle of skin.

A GIRL'S WARDROBE

ALWAYS NEEDS SOME ADDITIONS IN MIDSUMMER.

Dame Fashion Decrees That the Children Shall Not Be Too Elaborately Dressed in Hot Weather—White Frocks.

A growing girl's wardrobe always needs some additions in midsummer time, for the hot weather, if nothing else, demands a change of style and material. The mammas have to look up seasonable effects for these supplementary dresses, which fast-growing, some special occasion or forgetfulness at the beginning of summer has made necessary, will do well to consider the last trend of fashion. This is for collarless bodies, elbow sleeves and either the daintiest of wash materials, or else summer silks of a childlike simplicity. "Thou shalt not be too fine," is Dame Fashion's first commandment in hot weather to the child, however well placed. White frocks are in her dearest favor, or else she prescribes colors of a flower delicacy and such dainty trimmings as would be suitable, on a smaller scale, for dolls. The bebe or poupee—doll and baby—styles now distinguish all the best garments in every department, worn by well-dressed little girls.

In both wash materials and summer silks there are now fabulous bargains to be found in the shops, some of these in the very newest textures, whether shown in remnants or in the piece. French percales in a soft, fine weave have dropped to the low price of 15 cents a yard; silk-warp dotted chiffons—likewise a cotton material—are going at 25 cents; swiss ponginette—which is an English fabric much used for the little imported frocks—also sells for 25 cents. This is 45 inches wide, so a very small quantity would be needed for the simple little frock.

Polka-dot handkerchief muslin—sometimes with delicate flower sprays over the dotting—which is a delightfully cool fabric, is 18 cents a yard, and there are silk and cotton crapes of French manufacture—which may be made most attractive with ribbon trimmings, priced 28 cents the yard. These are in every color of the rainbow, and they may be trimmed with white lace or have the ribbon garniture match.

Indeed there is no excuse for missy not having a fine little hot weather frock if her mother can sew, for all the models are simple to an astonishing degree, and with a little taste a very small expenditure will turn out the right thing.

The dress shown in the illustration, which has a Gibson bodice with Dutch neck and a skirt in box plaits, is here made of a blue and white percale, with a little white linen treated to simple hand embroidery on the bodice. All-over Hamburg embroidery, however, could very well be used here, or the waist trimming could be made in a plain color.

For a girl of ten 6½ yards, 27 inches wide would be required, and since very fine little percales may be had for 12½ cents, and really beautiful insertion for 15, it can be seen how cheap the dress would be.

A heavy linen or a silk with some body would likewise respond to this treatment, lace or a contrasting silk trimming the latter texture and Hamburg embroidery the former.

Panama Hats.

Panama hats have charms that insure their long continuance in the land so long as the climate remains as it is, for they seem to exhale the spirit of relaxation and peace that makes summer enjoyable. This year for their adorning there are new hand painted india scarfs that are beautifully delicate in tone, besides an endless variety of lovely printed fabrics.

The Rush for Wealth.

There are multitudes of people in the world today who are sweating and suffering for Ophir, simply because it is the land of gold. What will they do if they reach their desired haven? They do not know. They do not even ask the question. They will be rich. They will sit down on their gold. Let us look our desires squarely in the face. To win riches, to have a certain balance in the bank, and a certain rating on the exchange, is a real object, a definite object; but it is a frightfully small object for the devotion of a human life, and a bitterly disappointing reward for the loss of an immortal soul. If wealth is our destined haven, we may be sure that it will not satisfy us when we reach it.—Henry van Dyke.

Bread the Original Salt Cellar.

At a picnic the other day a girl who delights in antiques and antiquities broke pieces of bread, put a little mound of salt on each and handed one to each member of the party as the members took their seats for the al fresco meal. She explained that the bread was the most primitive salt cellar known and that even long after goldsmiths had made exquisite pieces of workmanship in the way of salt receptacles to be used by royalty or quality the bread still served its original use among humble folk. One of the most beautiful relics of the kind of the ancient goldsmith was made by Benvenuto Cellini for Francis I of France.

Pain in Heart

"For two years I had pain in my heart, back and left side. Could not draw a deep breath or lie on left side, and any little exertion would cause palpitation. Under advice I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and Nervine. I took about thirteen bottles, am in better health than I ever was, and have gained 14 pounds."

MRS. LILLIE THOMAS,
Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

For many years Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has been very successful in the treatment of heart troubles, because of its tonic effect upon the heart nerves and muscles. Even in severe cases of long standing it has frequently prolonged life for many years after doctors had given up all hope, as proven by thousands of letters we have received from grateful people.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

ALABAMA STATE FAIR.

The work of building the Alabama State Fair at Birmingham for the fall of this year goes on apace. The work is like writing on a slate. The slate is filled one year and then in a flash it is all wiped out and all has to be begun over as if nothing had ever happened. Each year the work is a little bit more strenuous because such a thing as standing still or going backward is never thought of by the public spirited men behind the fair; each year must be better than any that have preceeded and this will be the case this year. The gates will swing open October 6 to admit a multitude of visitors to a display of Alabama's products of farms factories and collieries and forests such as never before been gathered together. The management of the fair believe that if the people of Alabama and adjoining states awake to the magnitude of the fair this year that all attendance records will be broken and it is attended that the most extensive advertising campaign ever before attempted shall put before the people of Alabama and Mississippi the full facts of the greatness of this year's fair.

The Association is spending 25,000 for free amusements for visitors The most expensive and spectacular acts in the world have been secured, not one or two but a dozen of them, any one of which is usually considered a show within its self. One of the new advertising schemes is an endless chain effect produced by having the business men of the state write somewhere in every business or social letter a sentence or two concerning the fair coupled with a request that the recipient of the letter copy the practice. The effect of this plan is being felt and inquiries are coming in every day to headquarters as a result.

Mrs. Jno. B. Reid, the astute manager of the woman's department of the Alabama state fair, has just added a $75 top buggy to the long list of special prizes of the fair to be given away through her department. The buggy will be given away through the courtesy of the Hale Buggy co of Anniston, Alabama, D. P. Hale president and Robert D. Hale vice president. Every adult admitted to the fair grounds between open day and closing day who registers at the booth of the Hale buggy co. will be entitled to enter the contest for this Alabama made buggy.

THE COW.

The dairy cow, if able to express herself in a way which the human family woud comprehend, might well lay claim to being man's best friend. She might establish such a claim by calling attention to the fact that from her product and from her carcass man manufactures more of the necessities of life than from any other similar source She furnishes these necssities to him from infancy until such a time as temporal things are no longer associated with his existence, and she does it ungrudgingly and constantly.

In addition to contributing to man's necessity and his pleasure, the prosperity of an agricultural community is more closely identified with her than with any other of the domestic animals. The horse is quite essential in tilling the soil, but where necesity requires it the sturdy son or the cow can take his place, as he has done in every agricultural section on earth. The horse can only furnish labor and can only return a profit to his owner when conditions are right for returning satisfactory grain crops. It is a well know fact that the dairy cow is the salvation of the farmer in times of poor crops as she is able to convert the rough crops which are never a total failure into dairy products which always have a cash value.

In addition to this she furnishes skim milk and butter milk for the calves, pigs and poultry and fertility for the soil, without which a farm less valuable each year and the whole country less prosperous.

The elimination of the dairy cow would necessitate an almost revolutionary readjustment of man's tastes and requirements. It would mean untold suffering and hardship. Of course she will not be dispensed with but her value can perhaps best be appreciated by contemplating such a loss.

She will continue to be man's best friend as the human family exists and will heed on supplying him with his greatest needs just as she has done through all the ages.

The Growth in Government Expenditures

The period since the Spanish-American War has witnessed a marvelous increase in our national expenditures. Less than nineteen years ago the people were astounded at the thought of their government appropriating abillion of dollars during a single congress. The explanation then was, we are a "billion dollar country." But today, at a single session of congress, a billion dollars is appropriated and it does not seem to cause the people to even pause and question the reasonableness or examine into the necessity of these largely increased expenditures.

While, as in usually the case, the minority party, in order to gain political advantage because of our large appropriations, seeks to change the party in control of the Government with extravagance and of public money, yet the record will show there is no line of demarcation between the two parties in their demands for increased appropriations, nor any greater zeal for economy in public expenditures upon the part of the members of one party than is shown by the adherents of the other, especially when the interests of of their respective localities are concerned. This is so whether those interests be in appropriations for public buildings, for river and harbor improvements, for additional and greater battleships, for miltary posts for increases in salaries to curry favor with officers as well as employes of the government, or for any of the many other activities of the federal government in particular States or localities.—From "Federal Appropriations: Their Rapid increase," by the Hon, James A. Towney, in the American Review of Reviews for September.

A Colonist of Canaan

By Isola Forrester

The Southwestern flier drew up at Canaan Junction. It never stopped, merely slowed up long enough to throw out the mail sack, and give the curly-headed boy in the express car a chance to call hello to Nell.

But today it stopped, stopped while one man swung off a sleeper, and the porter dropped a suit case and grip on the platform beside him. Nell stood in the doorway of the little red depot, waving her hand to the curly-headed boy, while the train pulled out. The starched cuffs of her blue-and-white shirtwaist were turned up to her elbows as a concession to the heat and the business duties of Canaan Junction. Many a warm, tired traveler in the dusty, stifling cars turned for a second look at her as she was good to rest your eyes on.

The man left behind was young, so young that he had outgrown his years, and there was a latent, careless strength, mixed with awkwardness about him that reminded one of a cub.

Nell took one look at him and caught her breath sharply. She knew him in an instant, but there was a bare chance that he had forgotten her. It had been four years, and four years is a lengthy stretch when one is 17.

He set the suit case down under the ticket shelf, and went back to the water bucket.

"It's hot enough down here, isn't it?" She watched him drain the tin cup a second time before she answered: "We don't mind it much."

"I suppose not. I came from the north. Don't suppose you know anybody here named Acton?"

The girl's hand closed tightly over the package of letters she had drawn from the mail sack. Her back was toward him. But her voice was steady and natural.

"No, I don't."

"You'd be pretty likely to know, handling all the mail, and so on, wouldn't you?"

"Oh, yes, I would know. I know the name of everybody in this town!"

"Except mine."

He came over to the ledge and leaned one elbow on it, smiling in at her cheerfully. She did not answer.

"Maybe he's using a different name," he went on, presently. "He had plenty of cause to change it, the Lord knows, when he started down this way. I know he's here all right, and I'm going to find him."

She Knew Him in an Instant.

The telegraph instrument set up its call, and she sat down to answer it. When she rose her face was flushed slightly, and anybody well acquainted with Nell would have surmised that she was on the war path. Jopman, the town nearest the state line, was asking about Colonel Acton. Canaan Junction again stated that the party was unknown there.

"Is there a chief of police here in town?"

"Chief of police!" She flashed a startled glance at him. "No. There's a constable. He's the undertaker, too."

"Nice, handy combination," he laughed. "You people down here in this small, new town certainly economize on public offices. Thanks, I'll hunt him up. Goodby."

"Goodby." She watched him as he went along the road towards the main street, his long, easy strides kicking up a flurry of dust behind him.

The whistle over at the factory was blowing for noon. She caught up the telephone receiver and called a number.

"I want to speak to father, please. Is he there? Well, wait. Give him a message. Tell him to come over to the depot right away. Tell him to come around by the river road, not Main street. I want to show him something there."

Then she waited. It seemed hours before she caught sight of the dear old figure, swinging along the river road, his gray felt hat well back on his head, his gray mustache and imperial giving added distinction to the fine, gracious face. The tears rushed to her eyes as she watched him, but she controlled herself, and met him with a smile.

"Sit down and rest a minute, honey. You've got 20 minutes. They—they've wired for you to come down to Alcazar. It's some committee meeting, I believe." She turned away, and bent over a time table, so that he should not see her tell-tale eyes. "You can make the 1:10 local, dear. And—don't bother about coming back tonight. I'm sure they need you down there."

"In a rush, aren't they?" laughed the colonel, wiping off his forehead. 'Guess it's about their new town hall. It consists of four flags on a center plot at present, with a geranium bed in the middle. I suppose I'll have to go. Be all right, won't you, Nell?"

She nodded and smiled. It was 15 minutes now. She watched the road to Main street every now and then, half expecting Fate to play her a trick and send the long-limbed stranger back again. It wasn't wrong. She told herself over and over again, it wasn't. They had no right to come after him now, and ruin his whole life. It would have been different if he had been guilty.

A hundred suggestions and plans swept through her mind as she listened to him chat of the new town hall at Alcazar. Then all at once there was a dead silence, and she turned quickly. The colonel stood in the center of the little depot, his hands clasped comfortably under his coat tails, his lips pursed up for a whistle. And he was looking at the suitcase under the window ledge, a suitcase with the owner's name written boldly across it, "J. P. Dexter."

Nell leaned her hands on the desk and waited tensely. She had forgotten to hide the suitcase.

"Well, honey girl, the cat wouldn't stay put, would it? And you going to all this trouble just to try and save your dad from himself." The colonel spoke very calmly, very reflectively, almost with a glint of humor in his blue eyes, as he saw the look on Nell's face. "When did Jack Dexter get here?"

"Father, listen." She put both hands up on his shoulders and leaned her face against his chin. She was just about on a level with his chin. "You must take this train. Surely, when you know you're in the right, it doesn't matter what other people think. They don't know for sure that you are here yet. The night operator said you were, but I know he isn't certain. I can turn Jack Dexter away. He didn't know me at all. Think of them sending him down here to bring you back, the boy that owed everything to you."

"He had to do his duty if they sent him. I certainly wish it had been some one else. I always set a heap by Jack. He's a right fine boy. Studied law with the judge after we left, Nell. I understand he's prosecuting attorney."

From the bridge came the whistle of the 1:10. She was on time to the minute. The ticker was calling the Canaan operator, and she went to it, the tears streaming from her eyes. As the local pulled in the colonel stood in the doorway and swept his broad-brimmed felt hat off in a general salute.

And the 1:10 pulled out without its extra passenger.

Somebody came hurrying along the platform and into the depot.

"I can't locate him yet, but I'm going to stay over—" Jack Dexter stopped short and whistled softly under his breath. The colonel held Nell close to him, and smiled.

"How are you, boy, how are you?" he said, heartily. "I can't offer you my hand, because, you see, they're both engaged. I'm mighty glad to see you again, Jack. Just take your suitcase right over to my house, sir, and we'll have a good dinner before we start north tonight. "He put up one hand as Jack started to explain, and shook his head warningly. "No need for explanations. I understand the situation thoroughly. I don't want to disturb Nellie here, with any of the details."

"But, Colonel Acton," Jack exclaimed. "You don't know what I'm after, sir. I came down to let you know that that indictment is squashed flatter than a pancake. The whole city is waiting to welcome you back, if you'll only come. The president of the bank confessed to the full amount, swore he had made a scapegoat of you, sir, and then gracefully committed suicide. It was the wisest thing he'd done in five years."

"Well, now, that's too bad," the colonel said, regretfully. "He need not have done that. I was comfortable down here. It's home to Nell and myself. In fact, we feel rather responsible for the future of Canaan. Mighty fine of you to come down and let me know, Jack, though; mighty fine."

"I wanted to be the first to tell you, sir." Dexter's hand gripped the colonel's closely. "A crowd of the newspaper boys were after your trail, but I knew you'd be in the same place where you left word we could find you if you were wanted."

The colonel smiled in a pleased, comfortable fashion all his own.

"We keep our word, we Actons," he said. "Don't we, Nell?"

"I can hardly say that," she faltered. "I—I didn't tell the truth to Mr. Dexter when he asked me if I knew you. I just couldn't. I don't know what he must think of me."

"Think of you?" gasped Dexter. "I think you are the bravest, truest, bulliest—"

The colonel coughed and glanced at his watch.

"We will all lunch in honor of the occasion over at the hotel, sir. Jack, just give my little girl your arm along Main street. I'll lock up the station and carry the suitcase until the next train comes along. No, sir, I can't permit it, as my guest, you will allow me to have my way." Jack hesitated still, looking down at the heavy suitcase, and the colonel gave him a delicate poke in the side. "Ladies first, sir, right about face—forward, march!"

THE BOSS OF ALL BOSSES

It is said in Wall Street that one man is supreme drawn there now. If that is so, it is time to talk business. We have been neglecting business; we have been paying too much attention to politics; all of us have: the American people. And the cost of living is but a part of the price we shall have to pay for our absorption in our public affairs. It is true we have something to show for it; there's a balance to our credit: We are beginning to understand politics. Even our politicians are beginning to understand politics a little. And their lessons should not be interrupted. But our public business isn't our only business. We all have our private business also to attend to, and if one man dominates that, it means that the boss has developed in business as well as in politics. And if that is so, it is high times to understand business; it is time even for business men to understand business.

For Mr. J. P. Morgan is the boss of Wall Street, it means that those forces which are suppressing competition and centralizing financial power in this country have come to a head. Not to their end. Competition isn't all over yet; not by a long way. There are some independents left even in oil. But if the leader of the great financial groups that have formed the fighting oligarchy of national business have seen the community of their interests and are submitting to leadership of one of them, then the centripetal foces of American industry have come to a focus; to a head, to a head that wears a face and has a soul. And if that is so, the United States has, at last, a personal sovereign.

If Mr. Morgan merges in his person and merges of, he pesonifies the national organization of american business: Business, to which there is reason to believe a business people pay more loyal allegiance than they do to they political establishment. And, if that is true, if this man represents the financial power which controls the railroad and other public service corporations; the trusts, banks, insurance companies, trust companies, and other special interests, he represents those powers which—even before they were united—supported, defended, and controlled political parties and bosses, and, therefore, rivaled the power of mayors and councils, governors and legislatures, the president and congress of the United States. In other words if this Wall Street rumor is true; if Mr. Morgan is supreme there; if he is boss of the bosses in Wall Street who boss the business bosses back of the political bosses all over the United States, then J. Pierpont Morgan is the boss of the United States.

And it is true. Not only the newspapers and the comic weeklies, not only the rumor-mongers uptown and the curb-gossips downtown—big men say so: fighting financiers and conservative bankers, captains of industry, speculative operators, corporation attorney; men who know; men who helped to make it so; men who would like to help make it not so. Everybody I talk with confirmed the rumor. Some approved, others developed, a few resented; they all minimized and, neveatheless, many were genuinely alarmed at the belittled fact, but nobody dinied it. Not a man in Wall Street contradict the report that Mr, Morgan was "it down there now." —Lincoln Steffens in the September Everybodie's.

Best Stomach Remedy Free

It is an old saying that if the stomach is sound the whole body is safe, because so much depends upon the proper working of the stomach. Many persons find themselves with a disorder of the stomach which produces dyspepsia or a peculiar state of biliousness.

If you suffer from both stomach trouble and constipation you are on the way to a very serious disease. From just such conditions come appendicitis, rheumatism, skin diseases and similar disorders, because the waste matter that should have been dispelled from the system through the bowels has found its way into the blood and vitiated it. What is needed at this point is not simply a violent cathartic tablet or salt, which usually does more harm than good, but a gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which people have been using for these ailments for nearly a quarter of a century. It cured J. C. Lanham, of Waverly, Mo., of stomach trouble of long standing, also William Voll, of 923 Ellison St., Louisville, Ky., who had the trouble for fifteen years.

However, if you have stomach trouble you want to know from personal experience what Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do for you. If so, send your name to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you. You are urged to send for the free bottle, as the results from it will be the best recommendation of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Then you will do as over two million people did last year—go to your druggist and buy a regular bottle at 50 cents or $1, according to the size you prefer. We could mention hundreds and hundreds of families who are never without it. You can never tell when some member of the family will need a laxative, and then no time should be lost taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 360 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union of America

History of Especial Moment to the Progressive Agriculturist operation Aids Agriculturist to Raise Full Crop, Improve Land and Build Up Stock.

BENEFITS TO FARMERS

Nothing has co-operation been of such service as in farming. To get the farmer up to raise a full crop of good quality, of the kind that is most needed and therefore brings best price, that will improve his land by manure and drainage and cultivation, that will improve his stock by putting his intelligence into play—these are the largest benefits that come from association in a farmers' co-operative organization, says Desert Farmer. Next comes the assembling and manipulation of his crop to put the raw material into shape for the market, one step toward the consumer, one middleman skipped. By the association, the benefit of which is secured. From the 50 to 100 or 500 constituting the association five or ten directors are selected for their superior ability and their success to apply this ability for the mutual good of the less able.

There are these two important differences between this co-operation and socialism—it is voluntary; members benefits by his own effort and suffers by his own deficiency. When men do voluntarily they combine to do better than what they do by themselves. By a process of education in the many associations, men would become social and find enjoyment in it not only their own share, but for the good of all. They would not do it as they now are; and there is no ground for the assertion that they would be suddenly changed by the change in system. Law does not change men, it hardly changes affairs. Laws are intended to check men and restrain from getting rich and from getting poor have been in force ever since we can remember. There are bigger millionaires and more paupers and hirelings now than when such laws fall to work as in the past.

It is the same opening for getting rich by trade and speculation and for getting poor by hiring out for money now as there was in the past, no more and no less. There is the same opening now for starting business as there was 50 years ago. The case of one man who lately commenced organizing a farm neighborhood in Louisiana into a co-operative association. Most of the farmers settled there in the last five to ten years, with little or nothing, are doing well. Among them are many Norwegians from Minnesota and Canada, every one of whom is prosperous. Only one brought any more means than any industrious man in town or country can lay up in a few years.

Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union of America

Matters of Especial Moment to the Progressive Agriculturist

The fly pet is a saver of feed.
Those untilled fields are better so.
The moving farmer gathers no gear.
A rainy time is worth nine out of ten.
Making poor hay means milking a poor cow.
Too many men mistake promise for prosperity.
A spoiled child is told by the swelled head and a weak brain by a swelled head.
A Sunday morning in church will not offset a week of sharp dealing with one's neighbors.
The main reason why so many farmers are failures is that they are trying to farm and buy their living, instead of raising it.
The time will come when we will have harmless cattle as sure as we have thornless cactus. Horns are useless as thorns.
Some think it an extravagance for a farmer to have a motor car, but we like the position it is better for him to buy gasoline than beer.
There is coined money enough in the United States to give each resident $35. If you haven't got yours you're working on a farm this summer.
If you cannot afford to buy a manure spreader better rent—not borrow—your neighbor's. The use of a one for two or three seasons will enable you to buy one.
A gasoline engines sometimes balks, so does a horse. You can find out what's the matter with the engine, but no one has ever yet discovered the workings of the mind of a balky horse.

RAISE FINEST FURS

Project to Keep $14,000,000 From Going Abroad.

Dr. C. C. Young Imports Flock of Karakule Sheep and Describes Success of Crossing Them With American Breeds.

Chicago.—A project designed to keep in the United States the $14,000,000 now going abroad annually for the Astrakhan, Persian broadtail and krimmer furs so fashionable among wealthy Americans has been launched by Dr. C. C. Young, a former Chicago physician, now commissioner of agriculture for the State of Coahuila, Mexico.

It is the breeding of Karakule sheep, the basis of all the fine furs that come from Persia and other portions of Central Asia. He has succeeded in bringing to America after great expense and much trouble, on account of the rigid laws forbidding the importation of Asiatic sheep because of the danger of importing with them Asiatic diseases, a flock of full-blood Karakules and has begun the crossing of them with American sheep at his ranch at Menor, Coahuila.

Dr. Young was born in Bessarabia, a province of south Russia, and there was familiar as a boy with the Karakule sheep which produce the beautiful furs, although he then never saw a full-blood Karakule. He came to America when sixteen years old, took up the study of medicine, was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1901, and was for a time on the advisory staff of the Cook County hospital.

When the throat infection for which he is now receiving treatment made it imperative that he give up his practice in Chicago and live an outdoor life in a southern climate his mind reverted to the Karakule sheep and he decided to occupy his time with them. He finally surmounted the difficulties in the way of importing the sheep, and he now has a growing flock of them on his Mexican ranch. Recently he described enthusiastically the proportions to which the business may grow in the United States.

"The Karakule sheep are the basis of all these fine furs," said Dr. Young, "and the value of the fur depends upon the percentage of Karakule in it. Crossing the Karakule with the common scrub sheep of Persia, we get the Persian broadtail. Crossing it with the Astrakhan long-haired sheep we get Astrakhan, and crossing it with the common merino sheep of the Crimea we get the krimmer fur.

"These sheep, however, are vastly inferior to the sheep of the United States, and I decided that by crossing the Karakule sheep with various brands of American sheep I would get even better fur that, produced in the United States, would be marketable at a profit at a far lower price than is paid for the Persian furs. My experiments so far have more than justified this conclusion."

Dr. Young exhibited some of the pelts he has taken from the lambs resulting from the crosses between the American sheep and the imported Karakules. The crosses between the Lincolnshire and Shropshire and the Karakule have given a fur that is of a far finer texture and much more beautiful luster than the imported furs.

ARGUMENT ON RACE SUICIDE

Doctor Declares Statistics Prove First-Born Children Not Equals of Later Ones.

London.—One of the new features at the seventy-eighth annual meeting of the British Medical association, held at London, is a section on medical sociology, dealing particularly with the social aspects of the falling birth-rate.

That the elder-born children of a family are more liable to suffer from disease than the younger ones is a point Dr. J. W. Hunter has placed before the section. Of children of the working classes Doctor Hunter has found this holds good up to and including the seventh born child. With the eighth born, however, a sharp increase in the liability to physical defects has been noted, which steadily increases with still later members of the family. As a result of his studies Doctor Hunter believes that the limitation of the family to two or three children means the annihilation of the race.

Two Parables of Judgment

Sunday School Lesson for Sept. 4, 1910

Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Matthew 21:23-46.
Memory verses, 43, 44.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"Therefore, say I unto you: The kingdom of God shall be taken from you."—Matthew 21:43.
TIME.—Tuesday, April 4, A. D. 33. Two days after the triumphal entry.
PLACE.—In the courts of the temple.

Suggestion and Practical Thought.

Sustaining the Faith of His Disciples, which was so soon to be tested to the utmost.—Matt. 21:20-21; Mark 11:20-25. The fig tree on which the curse for fruitlessness rested on Monday morning, was found withered as Jesus and his disciples passed by it Tuesday morning on their way to the temple.

The Authority of Christ Challenged, and Christ's Answer.—Vs. 21-27. (Mark 11:27-33; Luke 20:1-8.) The Pharisees came to Jesus and demanded by what authority he took upon himself to drive out the money-changers, and the cattle, and the dealers in them from the temple. What authority had he to call himself the Messiah, and to oppose those who were the divinely appointed leaders in the ritual of a divinely authorized religion and temple?

It was useless to answer them by any statement of fact. They would have denied his authority, and made his claims a means of bringing him before the Roman court. His deeds and teachings were known, and they could have learned his authority. Jesus, therefore, refused to answer, but "said unto them, I also will ask you one thing," not to puzzle them, but to lead them to answer their own question in answering his.

25. The baptism of John, whence was it? from Heaven, or of men? That is, tell me what was John's authority for his teaching, represented by baptism, and I will tell you what mine is, for both are from the same source.

The rulers were afraid to express their opinion, and said they could not tell. They could not do so without making trouble for themselves, or answering themselves the question they asked Jesus. They were mere politicians and not statesmen, or patriots.

Jesus therefore refused to answer their question, and they could not complain. It was very wise and true action on the part of Jesus.

The Parable of the Two Sons. Good Resolutions Versus Good Deeds.—Vs. 28-32. "But what think ye?" He would not answer their question, but he would give them a parable to think of, a mirror in which they could see their own characters, and be led to repentance. "A certain man," representing God, our Father in Heaven, had two sons. Compare Luke 15:11.

The First Son represented those who made no pretension to the service of God, but stood opposed to it in doctrine, in character and in life.

The Second Son represented those who had in form at least been carrying on the work of their Father, represented by the elder son in the parable of the Prodigal son. This class included the Jewish leaders, and all those who joined with them as representatives of the kingdom of God in the world, as his professed servants in upholding his true religion. They were particular about ritual and form and outward observances. They sat in the chief seats of the synagogue.

To both sons was given the same command, to cultivate their father's vineyard. All God's children are sent into this world to make it bring forth the fruits of the Spirit, to make it a kingdom of Heaven, in their own souls and lives, and in the world as a whole.

The first son refused to obey. "He answered . . . I will not." Their whole conduct said "I will not." And this continued for ages. "But afterward he repented, and went." The second son "answered and said, I go, sir; and went not." Those whom this son represented had said by their actions and professions, "I go, sir."

Then, before they saw the application, Jesus asked them to decide—

"Whither of them twain did the will of his father?"

The only possible answer was, "The first."

Then Jesus made the application, and they saw themselves as in a mirror.

The Parable of the Vineyard and the Husbandmen.—Vs. 33-41. The Vineyard represented the kingdom of God, which was entrusted to the Jews, planted by God with the rich and fruitful vines of the knowledge of God, his commandments, the institutions of religion, and his revealed word.

They Slay the Son, Their Only Hope. Because they wanted to keep their places, their honors, their wealth, their own pleasure.

The Result was that they lost all. They killed that they might possess; but it was the shortest road to entire loss. Those who reject Christ in order that they may keep possession of themselves, their pleasures and hopes, have taken the shortest and surest way to lose them.

LIVE WIRES.

The parables may seem far away from us, but from them there come live wires conveying living truths to our souls and to our nation today.

To go on in sin against all the moral laws of God, is to be like a grasshopper before a mowing machine. The laws of God will crush us unless we get out of their way, by obedience to his will.

"Though the mills of God grind slowly, yet they grind exceeding small. Though with patience he stands waiting, with exactness grinds he all."

Torpedo Boat Without Funnels.

It is stated from Italy that one of the construction companies of that country has succeeded in building a successful torpedo boat without funnels. The products of combustion are discharged from the vessel by the means of electric ventilators, no smoke whatever being shown. The operation of getting up steam was conducted on the trial trip quite as rapidly as under ordinary circumstances.

Ice Help.

After placing in ice chamber of refrigerator sprinkle the ice with coarse salt and cover with a clean cloth; over this put a newspaper, tucking both in tight about the edges. The moisture caused by the salt on top of the ice will make the cloth adhere to the ice and the cloth and paper combined will practically exclude the air. No food should be put into the ice chamber of the refrigerator, as the lid or door to the same ought never to be opened except when absolutely necessary.

To Cook Veal Cutlets.

To cook veal cutlets or steak, so it will be as good as chicken, egg and crumb it and fry brown in hot grease. Then put in a bakingpan and add enough hot water to not quite cover the meat and cook in the oven for an hour. It will be so tender it can be almost cut with a fork and is as good cold as hot.

Dainty Dessert.

Place two tablespoonfuls of apricot jam in dessert glasses and heap over it the whites of an egg beaten stiff, to which has been added one-half dozen maccaroons cut fine, one tablespoonful powdered sugar and vanilla to taste. Whipped cream may be substituted for the beaten egg if a richer dessert is desired.

Producing Magnetism.

The magnetism with which Prof. S. P. Thomson lately showed a perceptible effect on the senses was produced by a powerful alternating current in a nine-inch coil of 32 turns of copper wire. With his head in the coil, the observer in the dark perceived a flickering bluish light, and in broad daylight the flickering persisted.

FISHHOOKS BAD FOR FOWLS

Pennsylvania Chicken Fancier Believes Old Saying Is in Need of Revision.

Lewiston, Pa.—John B. Clemmens, a Pennsylvania railroad signalman at Newton Hamilton, is of the opinion that the old saying, "Never count your chickens until they are hatched," could be well amended to read "Never count your chickens." Clemmens is a chicken fancier and had a flock of half grown games of which he was especially proud.

The other day his two sons returned from a fishing trip and threw a number of large eel hooks, baited with pieces of veal, on the bank at the boat landing.

An hour later there was a great commotion among the flock of games and an investigation showed that each had swallowed a chunk of veal and an eel hook with it. Clemmens killed six of the chickens in removing the hooks.

Tom Marshall's Wit.

One time Gen. Tom Marshall was speaking to a large gathering in Buffalo, when someone present every few moments, kept shouting "Louder! louder!" Tom stood for a while, but at last, turning gravely to the presiding officer, he said: "Mr. Chairman. At the last day, when the angel shall, with his golden trumpet, proclaim that time shall be no more; when the quick and dead shall appear before the mercy seat to be judged, I doubt not sir, that the solemnity of that solemn and awful scene will be interrupted by some drunken fool from Buffalo, shouting, "Louder, Lord louder."

"I rise for information," said a member of a legislative body.

"I am very glad to hear it" said a bystander "for I am sure no one needs it worse."

The successful man always sticks to one thing until he gets there.

It saved his Leg.

"All thought I'd lose my leg," writes J. A. Swenson, of Watertown, Wis." Ten years of eczema, that 15 doctors could not cure, had at last laid me up. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured it sound and well." Infallible for skin Eruption, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Boils, Fever sores Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Piles. 25c at Upchurch Drug co.

Struck by Lightning.

During the thunderstorm Monday afternoon lightning struck the telegraph operating room of the depot at Maplesville, badly shocking the operator and Tom Perry, a clerk in the store of T. U. Crumpton, who happened to be in the office, and a lady, whose name we failed to learn. Both men were badly shocked, and the lightning tore their legs up considerably, while the lady fortunately escaped with slight injuries.

Record Lowered.

Dr. J. V. Higgins, who drives a three and one-half horse power Wagner motorcycle, drove the machine to the river several days ago in 38 minutes, a distance of 13 miles down grade. Last Monday morning, early Dr. Higgins drove the machine from Higgins' lower ferry (same place) to Clanton in 32 minutes. Dr. Higgins states that several of the 13 miles were made in less than two minutes to the mile, which he says is a great deal more daring or dangerous than driving the machine at the rate of less than a mile a minute on a good race track.

Dr. Higgins also wishes to state that while passing stock or teams of any kind, if you are driving a scary animal, if the driver will whistle, he will be pleased to stop his machine and let vehicles pass, as Dr. Higgins wants the good will of everyone and the bad will of none.

A TRIPLE TRAGEDY.

Unfrocked Minister Shoots Two Women, Then Commits Suicide.

It is reported that C. S. L. Brown, an unfrocked minister, at Kansas City, Mo., shot and killed Mrs. Edith Ward and fatally wounded Mrs. Anne Lamphers, whose jealousy is said to have caused the tragedy. Then Brown killed himself. The shooting occurred in a rooming house.

Brown, who was a veteran of the Boer war, was formerly pastor of the Christian church at Lees Summit, but lately had been working as a car conductor and a railroad fireman. It is said he was dismissed from his church when he lost $60 of the church funds in a poker game, having previously been allowed to retain his pulpit on making good $300 church funds lost at gambling.

A MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR.

Child Kidnapped While Returning From Mother's Funeral.

A Princeton, Ky., dispatch says: Robbed of his wife by death and his only child by kidnappers, Texie Allison, a wealthy farmer, has returned home, after a vain search throughout southern states.

Little Gladys Allison was abducted while returning from the funeral of her mother three weeks ago at Shreveport, La., and since then her father has been unable to find a single trace of the child's whereabouts.

He is not a rich man and does not believe the little girl was taken in the hope of securing a reward, and, besides, the kidnappers have given him no chance to pay a ransom.

The Shreveport authorities have been unable to secure the slightest clue and the affair is as much a mystery as on the day of the disappearance.

A REAL ROMANCE.

Philip Carr Remarries Wife Lost in Turmoil of Civil War.

As quaint a romance as was ever written down in action has found its ending at Kentor, Ohio, in real life.

Philip Carr remarried to the wife he lost in the turmoil of the Civil war nearly half a century ago s enjoying with her his second honeymoon. They were re-united in wedlock a few days since, but it was only recently that the facts became known as to their life's history. Separated by raiding guerrillas who captured the federal mails; divorced because of a believed desertion; each remarried and each again widowed, they found the love of their youth still aflame upon an accidental meeting not long since and their new betrothal followed at once.

Carr is now 74 years old and his wife 68.

LEAPED 26 STORIES.

New York Broker Selected Spectacular Method of Suicide.

A man who, from papers found in his pockets, is supposed to have been B. H. Holbrook, an insurance broker, of 290 Broadway, New York, leaped to death from the twenty-sixth floor of the Park Row building, his body crashing through the roof of a six-story building on the north.

The crash of his body was heard all through the smaller building, occupied by various business firms, and almost caused a panic among the tenants.

The broker, mangled beyond recognition, crashed through the covering of the elevator shaft in the second building and became wedged in the elevator machinery.

CAPTAIN BEN HOOPER.

Republican Nominee For Governor of Tennessee.

TO RAISE ILL-FATED MAINE.

Vessel May Be Sailing Home On or Before Christmas.

If plans which President Taft regards favorably are adopted the battleship Maine, sunk in Havana harbor twelve years ago, which since then has concealed the secret of the disaster which overwhelmed her, may be sailing homeward on or before Christmas, bearing a long-delayed verdict to the nation.

John F. O'Rouke, of New York, submitted the plans to President Taft. The plan provides for raising the Maine by means of pneumatic caissons and steel cables. The ship will be preserved intact, Mr. O'Rouke says, with every evidence of the disaster which she may bear.

About 1,000 men will be required to attend to the jacks and other equipment and it is proposed that the government furnish all or part of this force, calling out a regiment if necessary.

It is further proposed that the repair ships in southern waters be sent to Havana to minimize the expense of the work.

SOUTH CAROLINA PRIMARY ELECTION

Kind of Stand-Off Between Prohis and Antis.

RESULT IS YET UNCERTAIN

Second Primary Will be Held to Decide Fight—Featherstone, the Prohi, and Blease, the Anti, Will be Contestants in Second Fight.

In the South Carolina state elections with about 40,000 votes from thirty-one counties heard from, it is evident that C. C. Featherstone and Cole L. Blease will be in the second race for governor. Thomas G. McLeod ran a fair third. Mr. Featherstone is a prohibitionist, while Blease and McLeod are advocates of local option.

Practically a Stand-Off.

In the race for governor and lieutenant governor the prohibitionists and local optionists so far are practically at a stand-off. The local option candidates, Messrs. Blease and McLeod, polled a majority of the vote, while that cast for the prohibition candidates, Featherstone, Hyatt and Richards, was lighter than expected. Mr. Featherstone's vote was good, but the other two fell off badly from estimates. On the other hand the prohibition candidate for lieutenant governor has made a great race and is almost certain of election.

Second Primary to Be Hot.

Two weeks intervening before the second primary will witness one of the most heated campaigns in this state since the days of "Tillmanism." The prohibitionists have never before made a very flattering showing in elections for state officers, but this is the first real state-wide prohibition campaign that has been waged in South Carolina. All but six of the forty-three counties in the sae now enjoy prohibition under the operation of a very liberal local option law, and whatever the outcome of this election, South Carolina will not be very "wet."

A NERVY ENGINEER.

Though Scalding, He Stuck to Post and Saved Lives.

Engineer Israel Brandt's nerve saved train No. 8 of the Fort Wayne division of the Pennsylvania railroad, with its load of sleeping passengers, from wrecking in the union station yards at Pittsburg, Pa.

A cap on a pipe directly above the throttle blew off, letting loose volumes of fiercely hot steam. The fireman jumped and escaped with slight injuries, but Brandt stuck to his post with blistering hands and burning face until he had brought the train to a standstill. By that time he was nearly unconscious and fell from the cab window when the train stopped. His arm was broken in the fall and he was found to be badly scalded.

SAD TRAGEDY AT TALLULAH FALLS

New Orleans Girl Is Lost In Treacherous Rapids.

WAS OF PROMINENT FAMILY

Unfortunate Victim Was Miss Marjorie Miller, Daughter of Prof. Walter Miller, Dean of the Academic Department of Tulane University.

Miss Marjorie Miller, a beautiful 18-year-old girl from New Orleans, was drowned at Tallulah Falls, Ga., Monday afternoon.

She was with some others who were stopping at Chasm Brink hotel, who went in bathing in Tallulah river at the mouth of Bad branch, where so many fatalities have occurred, and was carried out beyond her depth by the current, which is very swift and treacherous at this point.

Her companions strove heroically to save her but failed.

Miss Miller belongs to a prominent New Orleans family, and with her mother and sister had been summering at Tallulah, while her father is spending the summer in Europe on a lecturing tour.

Her mother is prostrated, and Miss Miller's death has cast a gloom over the gay visitors of the resort.

Miss Marjorie Miller, drowned near Tallulah Falls, Ga., was a daughter of Professor Walter Miller, dean of the academic department of Tulane university.

COTTON CROP PROSPECTS.

Fine Crops in Eastern States—Weevil Menaces Some Sections.

The cotton crop situation is summarized thus by the Commercial-Appeal:

It is evident that the recent rainfall in Texas has been of scattered and local benefit, the precipitation being too light in most cases to relieve the drouth. In central and southern parts of the state bolls are opening very rapidly, and almost the entire crop, unless rain falls soon, will very shortly be ready for the pickers. The yield promises somewhat better than last year, however. The crop in northern counties is good. Oklahoma's prospect continues excellent, a record production being indicated.

In other states returns do not average quite so favorable as during the preceding four weeks. The rainfall has been unevenly distributed, and there are places where shedding is complained of, the most serious reports coming from central and southern Alabama. The crop in Louisiana and southern Mississippi will not be increased beyond its present promise, because of the activity of boll weevil.

In all eastern and valley states, where rain has fallen during the past two weeks, reports are good, and there are some fine crops. The plant generally has fruited well, but a late frost is needed for maturing everything in sight. As a rule, cotton is opening slowly, but the fruit is beginning to mature more rapidly than heretofore.

BURGLARS' HIGH OLD TIME.

For a Week Lived Sumptuously in Deserted New York Home.

When Henry Morris, of Brooklyn, N. Y., returns from his vacation he will find that his home on Putnam avenue has been looted by two burglars of the story book type.

From the appearance of the things the burglars had been there about a week. Every dish in the cupboard had been used. There was ice in the refrigerator, showing that the men had taken proper care of the beers and wines which they had brought in, some of which still remained. An empty cigar box and a large assortment of empty bottles told a story of happy hours.

Every portable article of value in the apartment had been taken, including Mr. Morris' wedding wardrobe. Investigation by the police revealed the fact that several neighbors had seen two strange men leaving the building, one of whom was attired in a frock coat, patent leather shoes, silk hat, etc., while the other carried a suit case that was apparently heavy.

DYING, HE SANG SONG.

Brooklyn Man Tried to Save Aged Mother a Shock.

To spare his aged mother the shock of seeing him totter mortally wounded in the house, Patrick Rahil, a Brooklyn butcher, put the last vestige of strength left in him into the refrain of a popular song which he bravely whistled as he passed through the room which she occupied. As he reached an adjoining room he fell unconscious.

Rahil and two companions were seen a few moments earlier, fighting in front of his home. An examination showed that he had received four knife wounds. He died without revealing the identity of his assailants.

Three men were killed and two seriously injured by the overturning of a steam derrick at the cement mills at Speeds Station, Ind.

IMPRISONED WITH SNAKES.

Mrs. Wood Tells a Story of Cruelty in Divorce Suit.

That her husband had imprisoned her in a cave in which there were two huge snakes, from which she barely escaped with her life, and that later he attempted to tie her hands and feet and place her on a red-hot stove, was the testimony given by Mrs. Fannie Wood, in the district court at Denver, Colo., in her suit for divorce from Chester L. Wood. She secured her decree.

Wood became insane several months ago and when officers came to take him in charge, took refuge in a culvert half filled with water, where for several hours he put up a desperate fight, finally being overcome after he had received severe injuries.

Fraud in Weights and Measures

Among an astonishing proportion of dealers, both wholesale and retail, the familiar units of measure have become merely figures of speech. Under a lax administration of the law pounds, pints, and yards have grown more and more elastic, limited only by the conscience of the tradesmen and the credulity of the customer. So generally has this deception become, so much a matter of course, that to-day may leading merchants and commercial exchanges actually defend short-weighting and short-measuring as an established "trade custom," and ague, in all seriousness, that reform to the old standards would disorganize trade.

It has been found that more than two-thirds of all the scales used in New York are 3 per cent. [illegible] or worse. The minimum deficiency of 3 per cent is alone equivalent to the interest paid by savings banks or first class bonds. A legal rate of interest, the common reward of industry, is therefore counted against the purchaser before he enters the store. The annual loss to the consumer aggregates tens of millions of dollars.

The extent to which scales are doctored is almost unbelievable. As a result of a carfull examination of the weights and measures in New York recently, it was found that more than half the apparatus used as false. Stimulated by the present short-weight agitation, the scale business is said to be experiencing an unprecedented boom. Thousands of scales have been certificated in New York. One of the commonest deceptions is merely to loosen the brass fronts of the scales and slide the index of degrees up or down, thus making the pound anything the dealers may choose. Many scales, again, are provided with adjustable adjustments screws which enable the salesman to throw the weight up or down before the eyes of the customer.—From "Postpoures of Trickery in scales and Measures," by Francis Arnold Collins, in the American Review of Reviews for September.

Some Sparrows.

If we allow six inches, the measure of the common sparrow of our streets to be the average length of the migratory bird, then this mighty host, if we could arrange its restless flight members in a quiet, orderly manner like soldiers on parade, would make a line of 4,000,909 miles long. The earth is much too small for such a line. We might arrange our birds 326 lines, and each one would extend from the north pole to the south, and along the whole length of North and South America. If we arranged the birds at the equator, they would encircle the globe 162 times.

For the usual accompaniments to boys' suits. Low, rolling collars are preferred for the boy of five to seven, the high turn-over form is preferred by the older boy.—Harper's Bazar.

Under a lax administration of the law pounds, pints, and yards have grown more and more elastic, limited only by the conscience of the tradesmen and the credulity of the customer. So generally has this deception become, so much a matter of course, that to-day may lending merchants and commercial exchanges actually defend short-weighting and short measuring as an established "trade custom," and argue, in all serious, that return to the old standards would disorganize trade.

It has been found that more than two-thirds of all the scales used in New York are 3 per cent. "fast," or worse. The minimum deception of 3 per cent. is alone equivalent to the interest paid by savings banks or first class bonds. A legal rate of interest, the common reward of industry, is therefore counted against the purchaser before he enters the store. The annual loss to the consumer aggregaters tens of millions of dollars.

The extent to which scales are doctored is almost unbelievable. As a result of a carfull examination of the weights and measures of New York recently, it was found that more than half the apparatus used as false. Stimulated by the present short-weight agitation, the scale business is said to be experiencing an unprecedented boom. Thousands of scales have been certificated in New York. One of the commonest deceptions is merely to loosen the brass fronts of the scales and slide the index of degrees up or down, thus making the pound anything the dealers may choose. Many scales, again, are provided with adjustable adjustments screws which enable the salesman to turn the weight up or down before the eyes of the customer.—From "Exposures of Trickery in scales and Measures," by Francis Arnold Collins, in the American Review of Reviews for September.

Some Sparrows.

If we allow six inches, the measure of the common sparrow of our streets, to be the average length of the migratory bird, then this mighty host, if we could arrange its restless flitting members in a quiet, orderly manner, like soldiers on parade, would make a line of 4,090,909 miles long. This earth is much too small for such a line. We might arrange our birds in 326 lines, and each one would extend from the north pole to the south pole along the whole length of North and South America. If we arranged the birds at the equator, they would circle the globe 163 times.

Clothes for the Boy.

An occasional suit in heavy pongee is seen, even for the boy of ten, and this, too, is self-trimmed and finished with the strictest tailor effects, as a first-class outing shirt for a man would be. The waist which older boys are best pleased with has a center box plait, and one or more pockets. A heavy leather belt, with large buckle and a soft tie, often a Windsor, are the usual accompaniments to such suits. Low, rolling collars are provided for the boy of five to seven, but a high turn-over form is preferred for the older boy.—Harper's Bazar.

CARE OF THE RUGS

THEIR WELFARE IN SUMMER IS ALL IMPORTANT.

Should Be Thoroughly Cleaned and Aired Before Putting Into Storage—Some of the Best Methods of Caring for Them.

The good housewife is naturally concerned about the summer welfare of fine rugs, and she realizes that if they are used in the hot months they won't be so resplendent in winter. Simply putting rugs away in the proper manner for the summer will sometimes renew fading colors to an astonishing extent.

Before sending the rugs on their storeroom vacation the chamber itself should be well cleaned. Use perfectly cold water for the scrubbing and naphtha soap; then when floor shelves and painted walls are dry go over all the woodwork with clean rags smeared with kerosene. The moth-miller has no fondness for petroleum and so this device alone will keep it out of the storeroom.

The rugs themselves must be thoroughly beaten, cleaned of spots and hung in the broad air for some hours. A Turkish rug will stand a soap and water scrub admirably and where it is feasible a light one may be put entirely in a tub and washed like a sheet. After the airing beat the rugs again, using a strong rattan beater, then spread smoothly and spray with a strong black pepper tea. Have prepared some wooden rollers about two inches through and as long as the rug is wide. First put over the rug a sheet made of newspapers pasted together, then place the roller on top of this at one end of the rug and begin to roll, keeping the wooden prop straight all the time. Cover the roll with more paper pasted together, then insert it in a round bag made of tough manila paper and paste all the loose ends securely. As long as there are no loose seams in this outer bag no moths can get in, but a further precaution would be to spray the bag lightly all over with pepper tea.

Cheap rugs and old carpets will not need quite so much care, but if they are to be kept entirely free of moths they should be looked after. Beat, sunbrush and spray these in the same way as rugs, then roll them between newspapers, with a thick sprinkle of gum camphor between the folds. Cover the piles of loose rugs or carpets with burlap, or more newspapers, to keep off dust.

CAKE AS THE FOUNDATION

Without Special Pains Being Taken With This Charlotte Russe Will Not Be Success.

To make a really delicious charlotte russe prepare, first of all, a very delicious sponge cake after this formula:

Four eggs, beaten separately. Into the beaten yolks beat again one cup of sugar and to this add half a cup of potato flour. Into the flour must previously have been sifted three-fourths of a level teaspoonful cream of tartar and one-fourth teaspoonful of soda, the same of salt. Add, finally, two teaspoonfuls lemon extract and the white of the eggs. Bake in a charlotte russe pan. Remove the center, leaving a hollow shell. Fill this hollow with flavored, sweetened whipped cream or with ice cream, in any flavor liked, or Bavarian cream if available for the purpose.

The same cake may be baked in ordinary tins for 45 minutes, when it yields a soft and very light sponge loaf.

Pear Sponge.

Cook some small pears, peeled, halved and cored, in a vanilla sirup till quite tender and till sirup is thick. Arrange in a glass dish some lady fingers, wet with a little sherry, lay in the pears; set away to get very cold, and when ready to serve heap whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla, on the dish.

Pale-Faced Women

You ladies, who have pale faces, sallow complexions, dark circles under eyes, drawn features and tired, worn-out expressions, you need a tonic.

The tonic you need is Cardui, the woman's tonic.

It is the best tonic for women, because its ingredients are specifically adapted for women's needs. They act on the womanly organs and help to give needed strength and vitality to the worn-out womanly frame.

Cardui is a vegetable medicine. It contains no minerals, no iron, no potassium, no lime, no glycerin, no dangerous, or habit-forming drugs of any kind.

It is perfectly harmless and safe, for young and old to use.

SMARTNESS OF SIMPLICITY

Secret of the Woman Whose House, Appearance and Conversation Create Best Impression.

Think of the woman whose house, whose appearance, whose conversation creates the best impression and you will realize that absolute simplicity is the secret. Remember this in selecting your summer clothes, or furnishing your summer home, also when you meet strangers on your summer vacation.

Unfortunately, simplicity is not cheap. You will pay more for the hat of simple lines, the frock that is of exquisitely dainty embroidery and sheerness of material, than you will for something more ornate and dashing.

If you wish to pass a woman who knows, you will no more overload your back than you will your digestion. Better a few things of irreproachable cut and quality than an elaborate wardrobe of flaunting finery. It will doubtless mean having your clothes made to order or weary rounds of the shops in search of the simple, but it pays.

It is not always possible to have the house simple. If you rent your landlord's taste is sure to be fancy and the fixtures and decorations will wring your heart. The furniture is up to you. There are nowadays so many good copies of artistic old pieces that there is no excuse for the hideous display of houses furnished in the middle of the last century and later.

Adopt a simple scheme of decoration for your entire house and make everything bought conform to it. This does not need the training of a professional decorator; any woman who makes a study of simplicity and keeps her eyes open for bargains in that line can achieve it.

These three rules go far in the right direction: Stick to good lines of the period chosen; do not overcrowd and buy only the best, though it must be a piece at a time with long waits between.

Simplicity of manner is the crowning touch—the real you. The rest is but the outer shell, a matter of training or perhaps of a skilled decorator, or clever modiste. Do not post, do not be affected, above all, do not boast. You may not realize it, but in meeting strangers the simple, easy, sincere manner makes a much better impression with the right people, than airs, much manner, or great assumption of place and power.

FROCK FOR YOUNG GIRL

This dainty frock for a young girl of about sixteen years is of white muslin in princess style elaborately made with fine tucks, English embroidery and valenciennes lace. It is finished with a deep flounce of the English embroidery.

The attractive hat is also of muslin, the soft crown entirely fashioned of the embroidery, with draperies of soft pink satin ribbon.

Utilizing the Dutch Collar.

A pretty way of using the deep, round lace or embroidery Dutch collars is to renovate shirt waists with them. Blouses always wear out around the neck first and are often discarded solely on this account. When this is so, put on the waist after cutting away the band collar only and then lay on the deep collar.

Have some person pin all around the lower edge of it to the waist. Then baste and carefully sew. Afterward cut away the material underneath the collar and sew hooks and eyes to the edges in the back. A stock collar may be added if preferred.

Fashions for Boys.

An occasional suit in heavy pongee is seen, even for the boy of ten, and this, too, is self-trimmed and finished with the strictest tailor effects, as a first-class outing shirt for a man would be. The waist which older boys are best pleased with has a center box plait, and one or more pockets. A heavy leather belt, with large buckle and a soft tie, often a Windsor, are the usual accompaniments to such suits. Low, rolling collars are provided for the boy of 5 of 7, but a high turn-over form is preferred for the older boy.—Harper's Bazar.

Seismological Service in Chile.

Chile recently joined the countries having a seismological service, which now include Japan, Italy, Austria, Germany, France, Russia and the United States. Stations for observing earthquakes have been established from Tacna to the South Sea Islands, along a meridian nearly 2,000 miles long, and 550 observers note the shocks at 420 different localities. In six months 740 different earthquakes have been recorded, making Chile a rival of Japan as the most shaken country. A novel instrument at Santiago, the first of its kind, is one by P. Maccioni that is claimed to give warning of approaching earthquakes by its response to electromagnetic waves set up in advance of the shocks.

Weight of One-Dollar Bills.

Most persons would be surprised to learn that one-dollar bills are worth almost their weight in gold.

A twenty-dollar gold piece weighs 540 grains. Twenty-seven crisp, new one-dollar bills, fresh from the bureau of engraving and printing, weigh the same as the gold piece.

Bills that have been in use have been tested, and it has been found that it took but 26 of them to balance the gold piece. It follows, of course, that the used bills gather an accumulation of various matter, in passing from hand to hand, that causes them to take on addftional weight equal to about that of one new bill.—Harper's Weekly.

Cotton Value Breaks Record.

That the value of cotton which the South marketed during the commercial season recently closed far surpassed that of any previous year in the history of the country, in spite of a short crop, was the principal feature of the annual report put out today by Col. Henry G. Hester, for many years the Secretary and Statistician of the New Orleans Cotton exchange.

The money value of the commercial crop during the season of 1909-10 is placed at 778,894,000, showing that while the quantity of cotton marketed was 3,216,000 bales less than the previous season, it brouget $95,100,000 more. This does not include the value of cotton seed, which, if added, would show the actual wealth producing capacity of the southern cotton lands for the commercial year just closed to have been $902.894,000, again over 1908-09 of $177,100,000.

According to complete reports from both Northern and Southern milling centers, the South, for the third consecutive season, manufactured more cotton than the North and increased the lead which it held last season.

The Mexican Cotton Boll Weevil.

During the fall of 1909, the boll weevil was confined to within a few miles of the Alabama-Mississippi line at a point opposite Mobile county. The period during which the principal spread of these insects takes place has recently begun, extending as a rule from about the middle of August to the middle of September October or if the season is late, the movement sometimes continues into November. The spread is principally by flight and no human agency can possibly prevent it. During the eighteen years since the weevil first entered southern Texas, it has spread through an average of about 50 miles of new territory each year. While there will be considerable variation in the extend of the movement, this average distance will in all probability be maintained as the weevil spreads erstward through Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia. Without doubt, the boll weevil will cross the line into Alabama during this present season, although it will not do any serious damage to the present crop in this state.

Reports of weevils occurancy in Alabama are already becoming frequent in the daily and weekly papers. Without doubt, in practically all of these cases some other weevil or insect have been mistaken for the boll weevil. There is, however, a change that the boll weevil may be introduced in advance of the line of general infestation and it is important that its occurancy should be known immediately. In order to avoid needless and injurous alarms, specimens suspected of being the Mexican boll weevil should be inclosed in a tight tin or wooden box and mailed to the Etomologist, Agricultural Experiment Station, Auburn, Ala., for determination. Newspaper editors may rende their subscribers a valuable service by forwarding such specimens as may be brought to their attention before inserting reports in their papers. The Entomologist will, in all cases, reply directly to the sender and secure to him whatever news value there may be connected therewith. This is too serious a matter to permit of the creation of undue excitement through publication of mistaken reports weevil occurancy. The loss which the boll weevil has invariably inflicted upon planters and merchants where ever it has appeared can be largely reduced, if we are willing to profit by the experience of our neighbors in Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

A buletin describing the boll weevill, its work and a number of insects commonly mistaken for it, may be had free by request addressed to either the directory of the Alabama Agricultural Experiment Station or the undersigned. Further information will be gladly given to all who may write for it.

Alabama State Fair.

In an interview given out Monday, Captain Reuben F. Kolb, formerly State Superintenent of Agriculture and recently nominated again for that office again by the democratic party of Alabama, declared in favor of the State of Alabama lending aid to the Alabama State Fair at Birmingham from the funds in the state treasury,

"It strikes me" said Captain Kolb, "that it is high time the people are awakening to the value of the Alabama State Fair. The legislature should take the matter up and vote an appropriation to aid in the great work the fair is doing for the farmers and the state generaly.

"This is the day of studied scientific farming. It must always be left for the agricultural colleges to teach modern methods of farming but it is up to the fair to demonstrate through its exhibits just what is being accomplished by these modern methods as taught by the colleges.

"The sooner the legislature of Alabama comes to a realization of the necessary for this demonstration by the Fair and comes to the aid of that institution the better it will be fo the state at large."

Official notice was received Wednesday by Secretary Chaffee of the Alabama State Fair at Birmingham that all railroads entering Birmingham and feeding into Birmingham will grant a rate of 3½ cents a mile for the round trip to Birmingham during the Fair.

The fare as fixed by the passenger association this year is the same as for last year but the territory covered is far more extensive. The rates are effective as far East as Atlanta and for portions of Florida Tennessee and Mississippi contiguous to Alabama.

Secretary Chaffee expresses himself as well pleased with the treatment the passenger association has accorded Birmingham and the Fair and declares that the wide range of effectiveness of the rates will help wonderfull to swell the attendance at the Fair which already promises to eclipse any previous record.

Encouraging reports continue to come in from all over the state and indications are that several more county exhibits will be added to the already long list that is more than twice that of former years.

The idea of having Captain Kolb visit the several county Fairs held about over Alabama in an effort to have them bring their exhibits to the state Fair at Birmingham is being worked out and Captain Kolb is sanguine of great success in this work.

As an indication of the wide spread interest that is being awakened early in the Fair this year it is stated at the Fair headquarters that many inquires have already been received for rooms and boarding places for prospective visitors to Birmingham during Fair Time.
